Opinion

PER CURIAM: *

Julio Cesar Velasquez appeals his guilty plea conviction for possession with intent to distribute five kilograms or more of cocaine, a controlled substance, and his above-guidelines sentence of 150 months of imprisonment. Velasquez argues that the *360 factual basis was insufficient to support his guilty plea because the Government did not show that it would prove by a preponderance of the evidence that he knew the type of drug and drug quantity involved in the 21 U.S.C. §

841(a)(1) offense. While recognizing that this court has previously held that the Government is not required to prove the defendant's knowledge of the type of drug and quantity involved in the offense, he contends that there has been an intervening Supreme Court decision, Flores-Figueroa v. United States, 556 U.S. 646, 129 S.Ct. 1886, 173 L.Ed.2d 853 (2009), that requires proof of intent with respect to all material elements of an offense. However, Velasquez acknowledges that this court in United States v. Betancourt, 586 F.3d 303, 309 (5th Cir. 2009), held that the broad rule announced in Flores-Figueroa did not apply to an offense under § 841 and correctly concedes that this issue is foreclosed by this court's precedent. See United States v. Rodriguez, 602 F.3d 346, 352 (5th Cir. 2010).

Second, Velasquez argues that the 150-month sentence of imprisonment is substantively unreasonable because it represents a clear error in the district court's judgment in balancing the sentencing factors that constituted an abuse of discretion. He asserts that the district court gave undue weight to what it perceived as his immediate return to drug trafficking when he needed extra money. He contends that a lesser sentence would have been sufficient and not greater than necessary in light of the sentencing factors.

This court reviews the substantive reasonableness of the sentence imposed for an abuse of discretion. United States v. Delgado-Martinez, 564 F.3d 750, 752-53 (5th Cir. 2009). Contrary to Velasquez's argument, the district court did not put undue weight on the fact that Velasquez returned to drug trafficking when he needed money. That factor was one, among many, considered by the district court, and it was a factor relevant to his personal history and characteristics. 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a). After considering the mitigating evidence presented by Velasquez and his counsel, the district court stated that the above-guidelines sentence was in response to the need to protect the community from the danger of drug trafficking, the need to promote Velasquez's respect for the law in light of his violation of the terms of supervised release on two occasions and the commission of the instant offense just after completing that term of supervised release for a prior drug conviction, and the clear need to deter Velasquez from engaging in further criminal conduct.

In sum, the district court did not abuse its discretion in imposing the above-guidelines sentence. The court took into account the relevant factors, including the relevant § 3553(a) factors, it did not give significant weight to an improper factor, and its sentence does not represent a clear error of judgment by the district court in balancing the sentencing factors. See United States v. Brantley, 537 F.3d 347, 350 (5th Cir. 2008); United States v. Smith, 440 F.3d 704, 708 (5th Cir. 2006).

Accordingly, Velasquez's conviction and sentence are AFFIRMED.

PER CURIAM: *

Footnotes

- * Pursuant to 5th Cir. R. 47.5, the court has determined that this opinion should not be published and is not precedent except under the limited circumstances set forth in 5th Cir. R. 47.5.4.

Oscar Bogar Laguna-Gomez pleaded guilty to importing into the United States 500 grams or more of methamphetamine, in violation of 21 U.S.C. § 952(a) and 21 U.S.C. § 960(a)(1), (b)(1). He was sentenced to 168 months of imprisonment. On appeal, Laguna-Gomez asserts that the factual basis for his guilty plea was inadequate because the Government failed to meet its obligation to prove that he had knowledge of the type and quantity of the controlled substance involved in his offense.

As Laguna-Gomez concedes, his argument is foreclosed by United States v. Betancourt, 586 F.3d 303, 308-09 (5th Cir. 2009), which held that Flores-Figueroa v. United States, 556 U.S. 646, 129 S.Ct. 1886, 173 L.Ed.2d 853 (2009), did not overturn United States v. Gamez-Gonzalez, 319 F.3d 695 (5th Cir. 2003), and that the Government is not required to prove knowledge of the drug type and quantity as an element of a 21 U.S.C. § 841 drug trafficking offense. Likewise, knowledge of drug type and quantity is not an element that must be proven for an offense under the related drug importation statutes of § 952(a) and § 960(a). United States v. Restrepo-Granda, 575 F.2d 524, 527 (5th Cir. 1978); see *341 United States v. Valencia-Gonzales, 172 F.3d 344, 345-46 (5th Cir. 1999). Thus, the Government was not required to prove that Laguna-Gomez knew the type and quantity of the controlled substance involved in his drug importation offense.

Accordingly, Laguna-Gomez's motion for summary disposition is GRANTED, and the district court's judgment is AFFIRMED.

(ii) Any practitioner or other registrant who is otherwise authorized by their registration to dispense, procure, purchase, manufacture, transfer, distribute, import, or export the substance under this chapter.

(iii) A person or entity providing documentation that establishes the name, address, and business of the person or entity and which provides a legitimate purpose for using any “date rape drug” for which a prescription is not required.
