

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE SIXTH CIRCUITFILED

Oct 11, 2017

DEBORAH S. HUNT, Clerk

JONATHAN HENRY HILL,

Petitioner-Appellant,

v.

STATE OF MICHIGAN,

Respondent-Appellee.

ORDER

Jonathan Henry Hill, a pro se federal prisoner, appeals a district court judgment denying his petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254 and moves this court for a certificate of appealability. He also requests the appointment of counsel.

In 2006, while he was serving a federal sentence for pleading guilty to bank robbery by force and use of a weapon during a violent crime, a jury convicted Hill in state court of two counts of first-degree murder, Mich. Comp. Laws § 750.316, and two counts of possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony, Mich. Comp. Laws § 750.227b. The convictions arose following the shooting deaths of two victims that occurred prior to the filing of Hill's federal charges. He was sentenced to life imprisonment for each first-degree murder conviction and two years of imprisonment for each felony-firearm conviction. The Michigan Court of Appeals affirmed, People v. Hill, No. 269095, 2007 WL 2331077 (Mich. Ct. App. Aug. 16, 2007), and the Michigan Supreme Court denied leave to appeal on December 28, 2007, People v. Hill, 742 N.W.2d 369 (Mich. 2007) (mem.).

Sometime after September 25, 2014, Hill filed a motion for relief from judgment, which the state trial court denied. The Michigan Court of Appeals and Michigan Supreme Court each denied leave to appeal.

On July 19, 2016, Hill filed the instant habeas corpus petition, challenging his state-court convictions. He claims that he received ineffective assistance of counsel and that the prosecutor committed misconduct. The district court denied Hill's habeas petition as time-barred by the one-year statute of limitations set forth in 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1) and declined to issue a certificate of appealability.

Hill now moves this court for a certificate of appealability. In his motion, Hill does not challenge the district court's ruling that his petition is time-barred under § 2244(d)(1). Because Hill did not raise this issue in his motion for a certificate of appealability, it is waived on appeal. See Jackson v. United States, 45 F. App'x 382, 385 (6th Cir. 2002). Hill, however, maintains that he "has pursued his rights diligently" to obtain "newly-discovered evidence"—two affidavits from 2014—and that this new evidence establishes his actual innocence.

This court may issue a certificate of appealability "only if the applicant has made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right." 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2). "When the district court denies a habeas petition on procedural grounds without reaching the prisoner's underlying constitutional claim," the petitioner can satisfy § 2253(c)(2) by establishing that "jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the petition states a valid claim of the denial of a constitutional right and that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the district court was correct in its procedural ruling." Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000).

Hill argues that he is entitled to equitable tolling. Section 2244(d) is subject to equitable tolling when a petitioner shows: "'(1) that he has been pursuing his rights diligently, and (2) that some extraordinary circumstance stood in his way' and prevented timely filing." Holland v. Florida, 560 U.S. 631, 649 (2010) (quoting Pace v. DiGuglielmo, 544 U.S. 408, 418 (2005)).

Hill has not met this burden. He alleges that two affidavits constitute "newly discovered evidence" and support his claim that the prosecution committed misconduct because it knew or should have known that its informant, George Williams, provided false testimony that implicated Hill in the crimes.¹ At trial, Williams testified that, when he and Hill were cellmates in 2002 and 2003, Hill admitted to shooting the murder victims. Hill, 2007 WL 2331077, at *1.

Neither of the affidavits provided by Hill contains any facts that could not have been discovered previously through the exercise of due diligence. The affidavits are authored by two inmates, Nathan Hill and Leslie James Warnsley, who were previously incarcerated with Williams on separate occasions. In Nathan's affidavit, he claims that Williams told him that Williams planned to implicate Hill in the murders by falsely testifying that Hill had confessed to the murders, and asked Nathan to join him in his plan. Nathan also claims that, when he thereafter ran into Hill in segregation, he "explained to [Hill] what [Williams] had told [him]." Contrary to Hill's argument, Nathan advised Hill of Williams's statements before Hill was tried. Nathan's affidavit makes clear that he told Hill what Williams said before Hill's trial because Hill asked in response if Nathan would testify for him and against Williams. Nathan declined, and Hill later told him that Williams indeed was a witness against him at his trial. Although Hill did not receive this affidavit from Nathan until 2014, the underlying facts—i.e., that Williams intended to falsely implicate Hill in the murders—were known to Hill before his trial in 2006 by virtue of his previous conversation with Nathan. Hill therefore knew of the factual predicate underlying his prosecutorial misconduct claim before he was convicted and thus well before expiration of the limitations period. Reasonable jurists therefore could not debate the district court's conclusion that Nathan's affidavit is not based on any newly discovered facts and thus does not warrant equitable tolling.

Nor could reasonable jurists debate the district court's conclusion that Warnsley's affidavit does not support equitable tolling. In Warnsley's affidavit, he claims that he met Williams in prison in 2005 and that Williams told him "that he had returned to Michigan to testify as a cooperating Government witness in a high profile murder case" so that he could "shorten his prison time" and that he "convince[d] [the government] that the person he was testifying against . . . had confessed to him.” As set forth above, Hill knew—prior to his trial—that Williams intended to testify that Hill had confessed to the murders. Thus, even if Williams’s statements to Warnsley show that Williams intended to falsely implicate Hill—despite that the affidavit does not mention Hill—Hill knew of Williams’s intentions when Nathan told him so prior to trial. No jurist of reason therefore could disagree with the district court’s conclusion that Hill is not entitled to equitable tolling.

Absent equitable tolling, the only gateway for review of an otherwise time-barred claim is a showing of actual innocence. See McQuiggin v. Perkins, 133 S. Ct. 1924, 1928 (2013). A credible claim of actual innocence “requires [a] petitioner to support his allegations of constitutional error with new reliable evidence—whether it be exculpatory scientific evidence, trustworthy eyewitness accounts, or critical physical evidence—that was not presented at trial.” Schlup v. Delo, 513 U.S. 298, 324 (1995). The Supreme Court has cautioned that “tenable actual-innocence gateway pleas are rare: ‘[A] petitioner does not meet the threshold requirement unless he persuades the district court that, in light of the new evidence, no juror, acting reasonably, would have voted to find him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.’” McQuiggin, 133 S. Ct. at 1928 (quoting Schlup, 513 U.S. at 329).

Hill has not made this showing. Contrary to Hill’s argument, neither affidavit described above establishes his actual innocence. As previously explained, the facts underlying each affidavit were known to Hill prior to trial and therefore the affidavits do not constitute new evidence. Nor do the affidavits show that no reasonable juror would have convicted him, particularly in view of the evidence presented at trial showing that “Hill shot [one of the victims] multiple times in the back as [the victim] staggered away,” which “indicates that Hill not only intended to kill [the victim], but that he had time to contemplate his actions between shots” and thus “killed [the victim] with premeditation and deliberation.” Hill, 2007 WL 2331077, at *2. Jurists of reason therefore could not debate the district court’s finding that the affidavits do not support a credible claim of actual innocence to overcome the statute of limitations.

Accordingly, the court DENIES the application for a certificate of appealability and DENIES as moot the request for the appointment of counsel.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN
SOUTHERN DIVISION

JONATHAN HENRY HILL,

Petitioner,

Case No. 1:16-cv-950

v.

HON. JANET T. NEFF

STATE OF MICHIGAN,

Respondent.

OPINION AND ORDER

This is a habeas corpus petition filed pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254. The matter was referred to the Magistrate Judge, who issued a Report and Recommendation (R&R, Dkt 6), recommending that this Court deny the petition as barred by the one-year statute of limitations. The matter is presently before the Court on Petitioner's objections to the Report and Recommendation (Objs., Dkt 7). In accordance with 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1) and FED. R. CIV. P. 72(b)(3), the Court has considered de novo those portions of the Report and Recommendation to which objections have been made. The Court denies the objections and issues this Opinion and Order. The Court will also issue a Judgment in this § 2254 proceeding. See Gillis v. United States, 729 F.3d 641, 643 (6th Cir. 2013) (requiring a separate judgment in habeas proceedings).

First, Petitioner asserts that equitable tolling of the statute of limitations is required because "previously-unavailable evidence of his actual innocence which became available only immediately prior to Petitioner's motion for post-conviction relief filed . . . on May 4, 2015 . . . , is sufficient to overcome the reason stated in the Magistrate's Report and Recommendation for denying Petitioner's Motion under 28 [U.S.C.] § 2254” (Objs., Dkt 7 at PageID.78). As the Magistrate Judge noted, “[a] petitioner seeking equitable tolling of the habeas statute of limitations has the burden of establishing two elements ‘(1) that he has been pursuing his rights diligently, and (2) that some extraordinary circumstance stood in his way’” (R&R, Dkt 6 at PageID.71, quoting Holland v. Florida, 560 U.S. 631, 649 (2010)). Petitioner has presented no evidence or argument showing that he diligently pursued his rights, and for the reasons set forth in the Report and Recommendation, his equitable tolling argument is without merit (R&R, Dkt 6 at PageID.71–72) (stating that Petitioner was aware of the evidence since 2005 and had not been pursuing his rights).

Second, Petitioner asserts that the Magistrate Judge made two “erroneous findings”: (1) “denial of relief due to ‘failure to raise the issues in his direct appeal or actual prejudice,’” and (2) “application of the incorrect rule concerning 28 [U.S.C.] § 2244 time limitation” (Objs., Dkt 7 at PageID.78–79).

As to the first “erroneous finding,” Petitioner asserts that “he has consistently maintained his actual innocence and was prevented from submitting evidence in the form of witness statements until those witnesses came forward. Such circumstances show good cause for Petitioner having not raised these same grounds for relief during the direct appeal process” (id. at PageID.79). Petitioner’s objection does not address the Magistrate Judge’s Report and Recommendation, but instead the opinion of the 37th Circuit Court for the County of Calhoun (Dkt 2-4). Petitioner must specifically designate the part of the Report and Recommendation to which he objects and the basis for such objection, pursuant to W.D. MICH. LCivR 72.3(b). Because Petitioner’s objection does not go to the Report and Recommendation, it is without merit.

As to the second “erroneous finding,” Petitioner asserts that “the Court should evaluate his claims pursuant to 28 [U.S.C.] § 2244(d)(1)(D) . . . ” (Objs., Dkt 7 at PageID.80). Petitioner states that “[a]ffidavits [q]ualify as [n]ew [e]vidence,” showing that the statute of limitations did not begin to run until the affidavit evidence “could have been discovered,” pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1)(D) (id.). Petitioner’s argument fails to demonstrate any factual or legal error in the Magistrate Judge’s analysis or conclusion. As the Magistrate Judge noted, “the running of the limitations period does not await the collection of evidence which supports the facts, including supporting affidavits” (R&R, Dkt 6 at PageID.73, citing Redmond v. Jackson, 295 F. Supp. 2d 767, 772 (E.D. Mich. 2003)). “Petitioner knew of Mr. Hill’s conversation with Mr. Williams before he was tried,” which shows that the evidence was already discovered (id. at PageID.74). Therefore, Petitioner’s disagreement with the Magistrate Judge’s analysis and conclusion does not warrant its rejection.

Third, Petitioner states that “[e]vidence of [p]erjury [r]equires [g]ranting [r]elief” (Objs., Dkt 7 at PageID.82). Petitioner merely reargues this claim (see Dkt 2 at PageID.19) and points to no specific error in the Magistrate Judge’s analysis or conclusions. Such general argument does not constitute proper objection to a Report and Recommendation. Miller v. Currie, 50 F.3d 373, 380 (6th Cir. 1995); Howard v. Sec’y of Health & Human Servs., 932 F.2d 505, 508-09 (6th Cir. 1991). In any event, the Court finds Petitioner’s argument without merit because, in pertinent part, he did not present evidence showing that the government knew that it was using false testimony at trial. See Coe v. Bell, 161 F.3d 320, 343 (6th Cir. 1998) (stating the elements for a habeas petitioner to succeed on due process grounds involving perjured testimony). Additionally, Petitioner presents the Court with no authority stating that such a claim overcomes the statute of limitations. Petitioner's objection is without merit.

Having determined Petitioner's objections lack merit, the Court must further determine pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c) whether to grant a certificate of appealability as to the issues raised. See RULES GOVERNING § 2254 CASES, Rule 11 (requiring the district court to "issue or deny a certificate of appealability when it enters a final order"). The Court must review the issues individually. Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473 (2000); Murphy v. Ohio, 263 F.3d 466, 466-67 (6th Cir. 2001).

"When the district court denies a habeas petition on procedural grounds without reaching the prisoner's underlying constitutional claim, a COA should issue when the prisoner shows, at least, that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the petition states a valid claim of the denial of a constitutional right and that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the district court was correct in its procedural ruling. Slack, 529 U.S. at 484. Where a plain procedural bar is present and the district court is correct to invoke it to dispose of the case, a reasonable jurist could not conclude either that the district court erred in dismissing the petition or that the petitioner should be allowed to proceed further." Id. Upon review, this Court finds that reasonable jurists would not find the Court's procedural ruling debatable as to each issue asserted. A certificate of appealability will therefore be denied.

Accordingly:

THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED that the Objections (Dkt 7) are DENIED and the Report and Recommendation of the Magistrate Judge (Dkt 6) is APPROVED and ADOPTED as the Opinion of the Court.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the petition for habeas corpus relief (Dkt 1) is DENIED for the reasons stated in the Report and Recommendation.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a certificate of appealability pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c) is DENIED as to each issue asserted.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

This is a habeas corpus action brought by a federal prisoner pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254. Promptly after the filing of a petition for habeas corpus, the Court must undertake a preliminary review of the petition to determine whether “it plainly appears from the face of the petition and any exhibits annexed to it that the petitioner is not entitled to relief in the district court.” Rule 4, RULES GOVERNING § 2254 CASES; see 28 U.S.C. § 2243. If so, the petition must be summarily dismissed. Rule 4; see Allen v. Perini, 424 F.2d 134, 141 (6th Cir. 1970) (district court has the duty to “screen out” petitions that lack merit on their face). A dismissal under Rule 4 includes those petitions which raise legally frivolous claims, as well as those containing factual allegations that are palpably incredible or false. Carson v. Burke, 178 F.3d 434, 436-37 (6th Cir. 1999). The Court may sua sponte dismiss a habeas action as time-barred under 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d). Day v. McDonough, 547 U.S. 198, 209 (2006). After undertaking the review required by Rule 4, I conclude that the petition is barred by the one-year statute of limitations.

Discussion

I. Factual Allegations

Petitioner Jonathan Henry Hill is currently incarcerated at the United States Penitentiary in Tucson, Arizona. On July 5, 2002, Petitioner pleaded guilty in this Court to one count of bank robbery by force in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2113 and use of a weapon during a violent crime in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 924(c). The Court sentenced Petitioner to 235 months on the bank robbery count and seven years on the use of a weapon count, to be served consecutively, followed by supervised release for 3 years.

During the time Petitioner was serving his federal sentence, he was tried for another crime in Calhoun County Circuit Court. The Michigan Court of Appeals described the underlying facts and procedural history as follows:

This case arises out of the April 24, 2001 shooting deaths of Philip Terrell and Stephen Haley. On the night of the shootings, Haley's body was found in a church parking lot in Battle Creek, Michigan. Later that night, Terrell's body was found in the front passenger seat of a green Cadillac parked in a nearby hospital parking lot. Medical evidence revealed that Haley died as result of three gunshot wounds to the back and that Terrell died from a single gunshot wound to the head.

Several days later, Hill admitted to meeting Terrell and Haley in the church parking on the night of the shootings, but he denied being the shooter. At trial, George Williams testified that, between late 2002 and early 2003, he and Hill were cellmates in a federal prison. According to Williams, Hill admitted shooting both Haley and Terrell. Hill told Williams that he met the men to exchange drugs. Hill said that he and the two men sat in a green Cadillac while conducting the drug deal. At some point, Terrell, who was sitting in the front passenger seat, "jumped," and Hill shot him. Hill fired a second shot after, the driver, Haley jumped out of the car. As Haley staggered away, Hill got out of the car and shot him again. After the shootings, Hill stole money and drugs from the trunk of the Cadillac, as well as jewelry and cash from the victims' bodies. Hill told Williams that he then drove away in the Cadillac, with Terrell still inside.

People v. Hill, No. 269095, 2007 WL 2331077 at *1 (Mich. Ct. App. Aug. 16, 2007). During January of 2006, the jury convicted Petitioner of two counts of first-degree murder and two counts of felony firearm. On February 27, 2006, the trial court sentenced Petitioner to concurrent life terms of imprisonment on the murder convictions consecutive to a pair of two year terms of imprisonment on the felony-firearm convictions.

Petitioner appealed his convictions and sentences to the Michigan Court of Appeals raising two issues: (1) the evidence was insufficient to find him guilty of the premeditated murder of Haley and (2) his trial counsel was ineffective for failing to request an instruction on the lesser-included offense of voluntary manslaughter. Id. at *1-2. By unpublished opinion dated August 16, 2007, the court of appeals affirmed the trial court.

Petitioner then filed an application for leave to appeal in the Michigan Supreme Court. That court denied the application by order entered December 28, 2007.

Petitioner took no further action until some time after September of 2014, when he filed a motion for post-conviction relief in the Calhoun County Circuit Court raising essentially the same issues he raises in his habeas petition.¹ On March 30, 2015, the trial court denied Petitioner's motion because he had failed to demonstrate good cause for his failure to raise the issues in his direct appeal or actual prejudice. (Op., ECF No. 2-4.) The Michigan Court of Appeals and Michigan Supreme Court denied leave to appeal that decision by orders entered June 19, 2015, and May 24, 2016, respectively.

¹Petitioner did not report the date he filed his motion; however, the Affidavit of Nathan Hill filed in support of his state court motion and this habeas petition is dated September 25, 2014.

Petitioner filed his petition for relief in this Court on July 19, 2016.² He raises two issues: first, ineffective assistance of counsel due to counsel's failure to adequately investigate the testimony proffered by the state's sole witness, George Williams (ECF No. 1, PageID.5); and second, prosecutorial misconduct in that the state knew or should have known that their informant was deliberately fabricating evidence implicating Petitioner (ECF No. 1, PageID.7).

II. Statute of Limitations

Petitioner's application is barred by the one-year statute of limitations provided in 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1), which became effective on April 24, 1996, as part of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act, PUB. L. NO. 104-132, 110 STAT. 1214 (AEDPA). Section 2244(d)(1) provides:

(1) A 1-year period of limitation shall apply to an application for a writ of habeas corpus by a person in custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court. The limitation period shall run from the latest of

(A) the date on which the judgment became final by the conclusion of direct review or the expiration of the time for seeking such review;

(B) the date on which the impediment to filing an application created by State action in violation of the Constitution or laws of the United States is removed, if the applicant was prevented from filing by such State action;

(C) the date on which the constitutional right asserted was initially recognized by the Supreme Court, if the right has been newly recognized by the Supreme Court and made retroactively applicable to cases on collateral review; or ²Under Sixth Circuit precedent, the application is deemed filed when handed to prison authorities for mailing to the federal court. Cook v. Stegall, 295 F.3d 517, 521 (6th Cir. 2002). Petitioner dated his application on July 19, 2016, and it was received by the Court on July 27, 2016. Thus, it must have been handed to prison officials for mailing at some time between those dates. For purposes of this Report and Recommendation, I have given Petitioner the benefit of the earliest possible filing date. See Brand v. Motley, 526 F.3d 921, 925 (6th Cir. 2008) (holding that the date the prisoner signs the document is deemed under Sixth Circuit law to be the date of handing to officials) (citing Goins v. Saunders, 206 F. App'x 497, 498 n.1 (6th Cir. 2006)).

(D) the date on which the factual predicate of the claim or claims presented could have been discovered through the exercise of due diligence.

28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1). “The subsection . . . provides one means of calculating the limitation with regard to the ‘application’ as a whole, § 2244(d)(1)(A) (date of final judgment), but three others that require claim-by-claim consideration, § 2244(d)(1)(B) (governmental interference); § 2244(d)(1)(C) (new right made retroactive); § 2244(d)(1)(D) (new factual predicate).” Pace v. DeGuglielmo, 544 U.S. 408, 416 n.6 (2005). In every case the court must determine the date provided by § 2244(d)(1)(A), and then evaluate whether it is later than the dates provided by subparagraphs (B), (C), or (D) if those subparagraphs are applicable to one or more of the claims raised in the application.

A. § 2244(d)(1)(A)

In most cases, § 2244(d)(1)(A) provides the operative date from which the one-year limitations period is measured. Under that provision, the one-year limitations period runs from “the date on which the judgment became final by the conclusion of direct review or the expiration of the time for seeking such review.” 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1)(A). According to paragraph nine of Petitioner’s application, Petitioner appealed his conviction to the Michigan Court of Appeals and the Michigan Supreme Court. The Michigan Supreme Court denied his application on December 28, 2007. Petitioner did not petition for certiorari to the United States Supreme Court. The one-year limitations period, however, did not begin to run until the ninety-day period in which Petitioner could have sought review in the United States Supreme Court had expired. See Lawrence v. Florida, 549 U.S. 327, 332-33 (2007); Bronaugh v. Ohio, 235 F.3d 280, 283 (6th Cir. 2000). The ninety-day period expired on March 28, 2008.

Petitioner had one year from March 28, 2008, to file his habeas application. Petitioner filed on July 19, 2016. Petitioner obviously filed more than one year after the time for direct review expired. Thus, to the extent the timeliness of the petition is measured from the date provided by 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1)(A), his application is time-barred.

The running of the statute can be tolled, either by operation of the habeas statute or proper application of equitable doctrines. The habeas statute provides that the running of the statute of limitations is tolled when “a properly filed application for State post-conviction or other collateral review with respect to the pertinent judgment or claim is pending.” 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(2); see also Duncan v. Walker, 533 U.S. 167, 181-82 (2001) (limiting the tolling provision to only State, and not Federal, processes); Artuz v. Bennett, 531 U.S. 4, 8 (2000) (defining “properly filed”). Petitioner’s application for post-conviction review was pending from, at the earliest, September of 2014,³ to May of 2016. The one-year period, however, had expired long before Petitioner filed his motion. The tolling provided by 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(2) can only serve to pause a clock that has not yet fully run. Payton v. Brigano, 256 F.3d 405, 408 (6th Cir. 2001). Once the limitations period is expired, collateral petitions can no longer serve to avoid a statute of limitations. Id.; McClendon v. Sherman, 329 F.3d 490, 493 (6th Cir. 2003). Statutory tolling, standing alone, is insufficient to avoid the time bar.

The one-year limitations period applicable to § 2254 may also be equitably tolled. See Holland v. Florida, 560 U.S. 631, 645 (2010); Akrawi v. Booker, 572 F.3d 252, 260 (6th Cir. 2009); Keenan v. Bagley, 400 F.3d 417, 420 (6th Cir. 2005). A petitioner bears the burden of showing that he is entitled to equitable tolling. See Keenan, 400 F.3d at 420; Allen v. Yukins, 366

³See note 1, infra.

F.3d 396, 401 (6th Cir. 2004). The Sixth Circuit repeatedly has cautioned that equitable tolling should be applied “sparingly” by this Court. See, e.g., Hall v. Warden, Lebanon Corr. Inst., 662 F.3d 745, 749 (6th Cir. 2011); Robertson v. Simpson, 624 F.3d 781, 784 (6th Cir. 2010); Sherwood v. Prelesnik, 579 F.3d 581, 588 (6th Cir. 2009). A petitioner seeking equitable tolling of the habeas statute of limitations has the burden of establishing two elements: “(1) that he has been pursuing his rights diligently, and (2) that some extraordinary circumstance stood in his way.” Holland, 560 U.S. at 649 (citing Pace v. DiGuglielmo, 544 U.S. 408, 418 (2005)); Lawrence, 549 U.S. at 335; Hall, 662 F.3d at 750; Akrawi, 572 F.3d at 260.

Petitioner has failed to raise equitable tolling or allege any facts or circumstances that would warrant its application in this case.⁴ The fact that Petitioner is untrained in the law, was proceeding without a lawyer, or may have been unaware of the statute of limitations for a certain period does not warrant tolling. See Allen, 366 F.3d at 403-04; see also Craig v. White, 227 F. App’x 480, 482 (6th Cir. 2007); Harvey v. Jones, 179 F. App’x 294, 299-300 (6th Cir. 2006); Martin v. Hurley, 150 F. App’x 513, 516 (6th Cir. 2005); Fisher v. Johnson, 174 F.3d 710, 714 (5th Cir. 1999) (“[I]gnorance of the law, even for an incarcerated pro se petitioner, generally does not excuse [late] filing.”).

Moreover, based on the materials filed with his petition, it is apparent that Petitioner has not pursued his rights with the requisite diligence. Petitioner first claims that his trial counsel was ineffective for failing to properly investigate the credibility of the jailhouse informant. Petitioner was aware of the problem as early as December of 2005. Petitioner received a letter from his counsel dated December 22, 2005, that informed him that his counsel still had to hire an investigator, because the investigator he initially hired had been hospitalized. (ECF No. 2-3, PageID.53.) Instead, “[counsel] simply let the investigation die, unfinished and incomplete.” (ECF No. 2, PageID.27.) Counsel’s failure, however, was readily apparent to Petitioner at Petitioner’s trial less than a month later. The same is true with respect to Petitioner’s claim of prosecutorial misconduct. That claim is premised on the prosecutor’s actual or constructive knowledge that Mr. Williams’ testimony was a fabrication.

Although Petitioner was aware of his counsel’s failing and the prosecutor’s misconduct as early as January of 2006, he has provided no indication of his diligence in the ensuing years. The affidavit of Nathan Hill reveals that Mr. Hill had informed Petitioner of George Williams’ confession of false testimony before Petitioner was even tried.⁵ Affiant Leslie James Warnsley indicates that even though he was in George Williams’ pod in the Calhoun County jail, he had never been asked, questioned, or interviewed about Mr. Williams’ deceit until “now,” June 26, 2014. (ECF No. 2-1, PageID.49.) Thus, despite knowing that Mr. Williams had informed fellow prisoners that he, Mr. Williams, had lied when he testified at Petitioner’s trial, Petitioner waited years to pursue the matter. Under those circumstances, it simply cannot be said that Petitioner was pursuing his rights diligently. Accordingly, Petitioner is not entitled to equitable tolling of the statute of limitations.

⁵After recounting George Williams’ confession of deceit, Mr. Hill reports that he explained to Petitioner “what George had told me.” (ECF No. 2-2, PageID.51.) Mr. Hill further indicates that subsequent to that explanation he again ran into Petitioner who had just come back from court. (Id.) Petitioner indicated to Mr. Hill that George Williams had indeed been a witness against him. (Id.) Thus, Petitioner knew of Mr. Hill’s knowledge of Mr. Williams’ deceit before Petitioner’s trial.

B. § 2244(d)(1)(D)

The result is the same even if timeliness is measured pursuant to § 2244(d)(1)(D). That subsection provides that the limitations period begins to run when a petitioner knows, or through due diligence, could have discovered, the important facts for his claims, not when the petitioner recognizes the legal significance of the facts. See Redmond v. Jackson, 295 F. Supp. 2d 767, 771 (E.D. Mich. 2003). “The question under the provision is not when prisoners first learned of the new evidence; it is when they should have learned of the new evidence had they exercised reasonable care.” Townsend v. Lafler, 99 F. App’x 606, 608 (6th Cir. 2004) (citing Owens v. Boyd, 235 F.3d 356, 359 (7th Cir. 2000)). Section 2244(d)(1)(D) “does not convey a statutory right to an extended delay while a petitioner gathers every possible scrap of evidence that might support his claim.” Redmond, 295 F.Supp.2d at 771 (quoting Sorce v. Artuz, 73 F. Supp. 2d 292, 294-95 (E.D.N.Y. 1999)). “Rather, it is the actual or putative knowledge of the pertinent facts of a claim that starts the clock running on the date on which the factual predicate of the claim could have been discovered through due diligence, and the running of the limitations period does not await the collection of evidence which supports the facts, including supporting affidavits.” Id. at 772 (citing Tate v. Pierson, 177 F. Supp. 2d 792, 800 (N.D. Ill. 2001), and Flanagan v. Johnson, 154 F.3d 196, 198-99 (5th Cir. 1998)).

A habeas petitioner has the burden of proof in establishing that he exercised due diligence in searching for the factual predicate of the habeas claims. Stokes v. Leonard, 36 Fed. Appx. 801, 804 (6th Cir. 2002). Unsupported and conclusory arguments are insufficient to warrant application of § 2244(d)(1)(D). Redmond, 295 F. Supp. 2d at 772; Grayson v. Grayson, 185 F. Supp. 2d 747, 750-51 (E.D. Mich. 2002) (holding that a petitioner does not show how the factual predicate could not have been discovered earlier if he fails to indicate the steps he took to discover the claims). The key to deciding whether evidence is ‘newly discovered’ or only ‘newly available’ is to ascertain when the defendant found out about the information at issue.” United States v. Turns, 198 F.3d 584, 587 (6th Cir. 2000).

As set forth above, Petitioner knew of Mr. Hill’s conversations with Mr. Williams before he was tried. The fact that Mr. Hill might not have been willing to provide an affidavit at that time is immaterial. “[T]he running of the limitations period does not await the collection of evidence which supports the facts, including supporting affidavits.” Redmond, 295 F. Supp. 2d at 772. Thus, the one year period of limitation measured under 2244(d)(1)(D) provides no relief for Petitioner.

C. Actual innocence

In McQuiggin v. Perkins, 133 S. Ct. 1924, 1931-32 (2013), the Supreme Court held that a habeas petitioner who can show actual innocence under the rigorous standard of Schlup v. Delo, 513 U.S. 298 (1995), is excused from the procedural bar of the statute of limitations under the miscarriage-of-justice exception. In order to make a showing of actual innocence under Schlup, a Petitioner must present new evidence showing that “‘it is more likely than not that no reasonable juror would have convicted [the petitioner].’” McQuiggin, 133 S. Ct. at 1935 (quoting Schlup, 513 U.S. at 329 (addressing actual innocence as an exception to procedural default)). Because actual innocence provides an exception to the statute of limitations rather than a basis for equitable tolling, a petitioner who can make a showing of actual innocence need not demonstrate reasonable diligence in bringing his claim, though a court may consider the timing of the claim in determining the credibility of the evidence of actual innocence. Id. at 1936.

In the instant case, although Petitioner suggests that he is actually innocent, he proffers no new evidence of his innocence, much less evidence that makes it more likely than not that no reasonable jury would have convicted him. Schlup, 513 U.S. at 329. A valid claim of actual innocence requires a petitioner “to support his allegations of constitutional error with new reliable evidence--whether it be exculpatory scientific evidence, trustworthy eyewitness account, or critical physical evidence--that was not presented at trial.” Id. at 324. Furthermore, actual innocence means “factual innocence, not mere legal insufficiency.” Souter v. Jones, 395 F.3d 577, 590 (6th Cir. 2005) (quoting Bousley v. United States, 523 U.S. 614, 623 (1998)). Here, even if the Court accepts as true the allegations in the affidavits offered by Petitioner, it may call into question the legal sufficiency of the prosecutor’s proofs, but it does not show that Petitioner is actually innocent. Put differently, even if Mr. Williams were lying about Petitioner confessing the crime, it would not mean that Petitioner did not commit the crime.⁶

A petitioner “must produce evidence of innocence so strong that the court can not have confidence in the outcome of the trial unless the court is also satisfied that the trial was free of nonharmless constitutional error.” Allen v. Yukins, 366 F.3d 396, 405 (6th Cir. 2004) (internal quotations and citations omitted). Petitioner has made no such showing in this case. His contention that his habeas claims have merit does not state a claim of actual innocence. Moreover, he has presented no new reliable evidence in support of such a claim. Accordingly, Petitioner is not entitled to equitable tolling of the statute of limitations. Because Petitioner has wholly failed to provide evidence of his actual innocence, he is not excused from the statute of limitations under 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1). His habeas petition therefore is time-barred.

⁶Even viewed from the perspective of legal sufficiency, Petitioner has failed to demonstrate his innocence. If Mr. Hill and Mr. Warnsley had been permitted to testify at Petitioner’s trial, the jury still could have resolved the credibility contest between Mr. Williams, on the one hand, and Mr. Hill and Mr. Warnsley, on the other hand, in favor of conviction. Mr. Williams’ testimony would still have been legally sufficient to convict Petitioner even if its credibility were called into question.

The Supreme Court has directed the District Court to give fair notice and an adequate opportunity to be heard before dismissal of a petition on statute of limitations grounds. See Day, 547 U.S. at 210. This report and recommendation shall therefore serve as notice that the District Court may dismiss Petitioner's application for habeas corpus relief as time-barred. The opportunity to file objections to this report and recommendation constitutes Petitioner's opportunity to be heard by the District Judge.

Recommended Disposition

For the foregoing reasons, I recommend that the habeas corpus petition be denied because it is barred by the one-year statute of limitations. I further recommend that a certificate of appealability be denied. See Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473 (2000).
