②
"Reasons the writ will aid in the Court's appellate jurisdiction"

The writ will aid in the Court's appellate jurisdiction, aiding the Court in the knowledge of lower courts that are allowing their officials to deny its citizens equal protection, and due process of the laws, by imposing convictions, and sentences, illegally, in violation of the Constitution, by way of involuntary guilty pleas, where the defendants, as myself were not advised to their rights to trial by jury, to confront witnesses, nor to the protection against compelled self-incrimination.

"Exceptional circumstances warranting the Court's discretionary powers"

These exceptional circumstances warrants the Court's discretionary powers, because the constitution is violated, and denied. These exceptional circumstances warrant the Court's discretionary powers, because i have presented the evidence of the constitutional violations in my case to the circuit court, to the state appellate court, to the state Supreme Court, to the District Court, and also to the United States Court of Appeals, and the Constitution is still denied in my case.

CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS INVOLVED

Due Process, Equal Protection, protection against compelled self-incrimination, trial by jury, and confront witnesses, also Assistance of Counsel.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

my court appointed counsel denied me to read the plea petition, did not advise me to the rights I would be waiving by pleading guilty, and did not object when the judge did not advise me to my rights.

"Why adequate relief cannot obtain in any other form or any other court"

Adequate relief could have been obtained in the petition for post-conviction relief and the numerous appeals i've filed, threw the circuit court, the state appellate court, the state Supreme Court, the District Court, and threw the United States Court of Appeal, but the constitution has been denied in my case, with the evidence of the state's denial of my constitutional rights before each court, forcing me to file this petition with the Court.

6-28-2018,

Respectfully Submitted,

Charles C. Evans, Petitioner.

CONCLUSION

The petition for a writ of certiorari should be granted.

Respectfully submitted,

Curtis Wanso
