Dear Mr. Case:

The Virginia Supreme Court has denied your petition for appeal. A copy of the denial order is enclosed. I write to tell you that I regret this outcome and to advise you that this concludes my representation in your case. I also write to advise you of further steps that can be taken if you wish to pursue on your own.

If you choose to file a petition for habeas corpus in State court, you must do so either within one year from the date of the Virginia Supreme Court denial order or within two years of the final judgment (sentencing order) of the Circuit Court where you were convicted, whichever is the later date. As we advised you in the initial letter at the beginning of the appeal, there are certain claims, such as ineffective assistance of counsel that cannot be raised on appeal but can be raised in a petition for habeas corpus.

If you wish to appeal, on your own, to the United States Supreme Court, you must do so within 90 days of the denial of your appeal by the Virginia Supreme Court.

If you wish to file a petition for habeas corpus in the United States District Court, it must be filed within one year of the time that final appellate review is completed or the time for seeking any further appellate review has expired. Also, if you wish to raise an ineffective assistance of counsel claim in a federal petition for habeas corpus, you must first present that claim in a Virginia habeas corpus proceeding.

Counsel will not be appointed for you initially in any of these proceedings. The court where the habeas petition is filed may appoint counsel if your claims appear to be substantial and meritorious. I would also advise you to consult your prison library for forms and information on each of the measures mentioned above.

Sincerely,

Eric T. Cronin
Assistant Public Defender
