OFFICE OF THE CLERK
SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

IN THE

SHERMAN ALEXANDER LYNCH, Petitioner

v.

SHANE NELSON, Respondent

ON PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE TENTH CIRCUIT, CASE NO. 18-4174

Sherman A. Lynch
OFN 64063
Central Utah Correctional Facility
P.O. Box 550
Gunnison, Utah 84634-0550
Petitioner, Pro se

Petitioner is incarcerated and pro se without access to a law library or adequate legal assistance.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

First Question: Whether the District Court erred when it held Lynch was not entitled to the “fundamental miscarriage of justice” exception under the Carrier award¹ was contrary to holdings established by the Supreme Court in Schlup v. Delo, 513 U.S. 278, 321, 324, 327-328, 331-332 (1975)?

Second Question: Whether the District Court erred when it did not hold that Lynch's constitutional-Brady-error² claims, raised in initial-review collateral proceedings in a Utah State court "where there was no counsel" for Lynch, that were procedurally defaulted was contrary to holdings established by the Supreme Court in Martinez v. Ryan, 566 U.S. 1, 17 (2012)?

Third Question: Whether the District Court erred when it made six (6) false statements of fact to deny Lynch the “fundamental miscarriage of justice” exception under the Carrier standard was contrary to the holdings established by the Supreme Court that “[d]ue process guarantees that fundamental fairness essential to the very concept of justice,” Lisenba v. CA, 314 U.S. 219, 236 (1941)?

Fourth Question: Whether the District Court erred when it made a conclusion of law for summary judgment on the credibility of new evidence not presented at trial without an evidentiary hearing was contrary to holdings established by the Supreme Court in Schlup, supra, at 332?

Fifth Question: Whether the District Court erred when it failed to address allegations of eleven (11) false statements of fact or law as fraud on the court in Respondent/Appellee's Motion to Dismiss Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus was contrary to holdings established by the Supreme Court in Hazel-Atlas Glass Co. v. Hartford-Empire Co., 332 U.S. 238, 246 (1944) (it "is a wrong against the

² Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83, 87 (1963) (where prosecutors unconstitutionally withheld exculpatory evidence from the defense).

26 institutions set up to protect and safeguard the public, institutions in which fraud 27 cannot complacently be tolerated")?

28 Sixth Question: Whether the District Court erred when it denied Lynch's 29 three (3) requests for appointed counsel was contrary to the holdings established by 30 the Supreme Court in Bounds v. Smith, 450 U.S. 817, 822 (1977) ("counsel musts be 31 appointed to give indigent inmates a "meaningful appeal" from their convictions") 32 (emphasis added)?

33 Seventh Question: Whether the District Court erred when it denied Lynch's 34 request for the prison to provide a Law Library or an adequate Legal Assistance 35 Program to inmates was contrary to holdings established by the Supreme Court in 36 Lewis v. Casey, 518 U.S. 343, 351 (1996) ("prison law libraries and legal assistance 37 programs are the means for ensuring "a reasonably adequate opportunity to present 38 claims for violations of fundamental constitutional rights to the courts." [Bounds, 39 430 U.S.], at 825')?

40 Eighth Question: Whether the District Court erred when it denied Lynch's 41 Constitutional right of access to the courts by not granting Lynch's request for an 42 order to not transfer Lynch to other correctional facilities was contrary to holdings 43 established by the Supreme Court in Bounds, 430 U.S., at 821 ("It is established 44 beyond doubt that prisoners have a constitutional right of access to the courts").

45 Ninth Question: Whether the District Court erred when it denied Lynch's 46 constitutional right of access to the courts by not granting Lynch's request for an 47 order to allow Lynch to purchase computer was contrary to holdings established by 48 the Supreme Court in Bounds, supra?

49 Tenth Question: Whether the Court of Appeals erred when, after being 50 Briefed on the Federal issues of the case with citations to facts in the record and 51 relevant legal authorities, it denied Lynch's Application for Certificate of 52 Appealability, ("COA"), without considering claims of violations of Federal rights 53 raised in Lynch's Brief that is reviewable under Chambers v. Baltimore & O.R. Co., 54 207 U.S. 142, 148 (1907) ("the Federal question was assumed to be in issue, was 55 decided against the claim of Federal right, and the decision of the question was 56 essential to the judgment rendered. This is enough to give this Court the authority 57 to re-examine that question on writ of error")?

6 For cases for federal courts:

7 The opinion of the United States Court of Appeals appears at Appendix A to 8 the petition and is unpublished.

10 The opinion of the United States District Court appears at Appendix B to the 11 petition and is unpublished.

JURISDICTION

14 The date on which the United States Court of Appeals, (“Court of Appeals”), 15 denied Lynch’s Application for Certificate of Appealability, (“Request for COA”), was 16 February 21, 2019, and a copy of the order denying the Request for COA appears at 17 Appendix. A. A Petition for Rehearing was denied by the Court of Appeals on 18 March 25, 2019, and a copy of the order denying rehearing appears at Appendix C.

The jurisdiction of the Court is invoked under 28 U.S.C. §1254(1).

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS INVOLVED

21 U.S. Constitution, Article III. (relevant portions)

Section 1. The judicial power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme court." And in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish.

Section 2. The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States, and Treaties made, or which shall be made, under their Authority.

31 U.S. Constitution, Amendment V. (relevant portion)

32 No person shall be ... deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due 33 process of law.

35 U.S. Constitution, Amendment VI.

36 In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a 37 speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein 38 the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been 39 previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of 40 the accusations; to be confronted with witnesses against him; to have 41 compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the 42 assistance of counsel for his defense.

43

44 U.S. Constitution, Amendment XIV. (relevant portions)

45 All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject 46 to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the 47 state herein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which 48 shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United 49 States; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or 50 property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its 51 jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

52

53 LESS STRINGENT STANDARD

54 Lynch is a pro se litigant where 'the Court unanimously held in Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519 (1972), a pro se complaint, "however artfully pleaded," must be held to "less stringent standards than formal pleadings drafted by lawyers" and can only be dismissed for failure to state a claim if it appears "beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief." Id., at 520-521, quoting Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 45-46 (1957).' Estelle v. Gamble, 429 U.S. 97, 106 (1976). Emphasis added.

61 STATEMENT OF THE CASE

62 I. Nature of the Case:

63 On November 14, 2008, Lynch was convicted at trial of homicide for the death
64 of his wife, Patricia Rothermich, and obstruction of justice in the Third District 65 Court, State of Utah, Case No. 071907498, and subsequently sentenced to 16-years-66 to-life and 1-to-15 years consecutively. After the direct appeal was denied, Lynch 67 filed an Amended Petition for Relief under the Post-Conviction Relief Act, ("PCRA"), 68 on the ground of constitutional-Strickland-error¹ at trial with the assistance of

69 counsel, Case No. 110913691. The State filed a Motion for Summary Judgment on 70 procedural grounds and on the merits, which the State District Court granted on 71 January 6, 2014. With counsel, Lynch appealed the decision to the Utah Court of 72 Appeals, which was denied. See Lynch v. State, 400 P.3d 1047 (UT App. 2017). In 73 January 2015, Lynch filed with the state District Court a PCRA Petition on 74 constitutional-Brady-error² at trial, Case No. 150900245, and a PCRA Petition for 75 Actual Innocence, Case No. 150900286. The State filed Motions for Summary
76 Judgment against both PCRA Petitions on procedural grounds, which the Court 77 granted in March 2016. Lynch filed a timely appeal, which the Utah Court of 78 Appeals summarily dismissed the appeals, Case Nos. 20160234-CA and 0216035-79 CA. Lynch filed timely Petitions for Writ of Certiorari with the Utah Supreme 80 Court, which were denied, Case Nos. 20160851SC and 20160852-SC.

81 II. Course of Proceedings:

82 Having exhausted all appellate procedures in the Utah courts, on May 25, 83 2017, Lynch filed a Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, (“Habeas Petition”), under 84 28 U.S.C. §2254 on grounds of constitutional errors at trial under Brady, 373 U.S., 85 at 87, and Strickland, 466 U.S., at 687, and actual innocence under Schlup, 513 86 U.S., at 321-322, 324, 327-328, 331-332, requesting a “fundamental miscarriage of 87 justice” exception under the Carrier³ standard, DC Doc. No. 1,⁴ and Lynch filed a 88 Motion for Appointed Counsel, (“first Motion for Counsel”), as a constitutional right 89 for access to the courts under Bounds v. Smith, 430 U.S. 817 (1977). DC Doc. No. 2.
90 On January 11, 2018, the District Court ordered Respondent to answer the Habeas 91 Petition and denied Lynch’s first Motion for Counsel. DC Doc. No. 14. On March 92 22, 2018, Lynch filed a Motion for Relief from Order Denying Appointed Counsel, 93 (“second Motion for Counsel”). DC Doc. No. 18. On March 27, 2018, Lynch filed a

² Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83, 87 (1963) (where prosecutors unconstitutionally withheld exculpatory evidence from the defense).

⁴ District Court Document Numbers reference as “DC Doc. No.”.

94 Motion to Order Respondent Not to Transfer Lynch to Other Facilities, (“Motion Not 95 to Transfer”), DC Doc. No. 19. On April 19, 2018, Lynch filed a Motion to Order 96 Respondent to Contract with Lynch for Purchase of a Computer, (“Motion to 97 Purchase Computer”), DC Doc. No. 24. On May 23, 2018, Respondent filed a Motion
98 to Dismiss Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, (“Motion to Dismiss”). DC Doc. No.
99 31. On June 28, 2018, Lynch filed a Motion to Appoint Counsel to Assist With 100 Objection to Motion to Dismiss Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, (“third Motion 101 for Counsel”). DC Doc. No. 36. On August 30, 2018, the District Court denied 102 Lynch’s second and third Motions for Counsel, Motion Not to Transfer, and Motion 103 to Purchase Computer. DC Doc. No. 40. On September 4, 2018, Lynch filed an 104 Objection to Motion to Dismiss Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, (“Objection”).
105 DC Doc. No. 41. On November 15, 2018, Lynch filed a Motion to Order Respondent
106 to Provide Law Library or Legal Assistance, (“Motion for Law Library”). DC Doc.
107 No. 58. On November 21, 2018, the District Court filed its Order Granting Motion 108 to Dismiss Habeas Corpus Petition that also denied the Motion for Law Library.
109 App. B. On December 10, 2018, Lynch filed a Notice of Appeal. DC Doc. No. 66.
110 Notice of Appeal was timely.

111 Subsequent to the Notice of Appeal, the Court of Appeals ordered Lynch to 112 file an Appellant’s Combined Opening Brief and Application for a Certificate of 113 Appealability,⁵ which Lynch mailed on January 28, 2019. On February 19, 2019, 114 the Court of Appeals denied Lynch’s request for COA and dismissed his appeal. See 115 App. A. On February 26, 2019, Lynch mailed a Request for Extension of Time to file 116 a Petition for Rehearing of Order Denying COA from March 5, 2019 to April 4, 2019.
117 On March 14, 2019, Lynch mailed a Motion to Submit Out of Time Petition for 118 Rehearing of Order Denying COA.⁶ On March 25, 2019, the Court of Appeals

⁵ Lynch requested a copy of the Docketing Statement and all pleadings and documents for this case from the Clerk of the Court of Appeals. To date, Lynch has not received the copies.

⁶ “A paper filed by an inmate confined in an institution is timely if deposited in the institution’s mail system on or before the last day for filing.” 10th Cir. R. 25(a)(2)(C).

119 denied the Petition for Rehearing. See App. C. This Petition for Writ of Certiorari 120 is timely.

121 I. Statement of the Facts.

122 Article III, Section 1, of the U.S. Constitution states: “The judicial power of 123 the United States, shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and such inferior Courts 124 as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish,” and Section 2 states: 125 “The judicial power shall extend to all cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this 126 Constitution, [or] laws of the United States.” The Supreme Court has established 127 that “once the Court has spoken, it is the duty of other courts to request that 128 understanding of the governing rule of law.” Bousley v. U.S., 523 U.S. 614, 625-626 129 (1998). Emphasis added. The word ‘contrary’ is commonly understood to mean 130 ‘diametrically different,’ ‘opposite in character or nature,’ or ‘mutually opposed.’
131 Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 698 (2002), citing Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 405 132 (2002). “Clearly established law is determined by the Supreme Court of the United 133 States.” Id., at 412. Emphasis added.

134 A. Due Process of Law:

135 Under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment Due Process Clause, the 136 Supreme Court established ‘due process guarantees that a [petitioner] will be 137 treated with “that fundamental fairness essential to the very concept of justice.”
138 U.S. v. Valenzuela-Bernal, 458 U.S. 858, 872 (1982), citing Lisenba v. CA, 314 U.S.
139 219, 236 (1941). Emphasis added. ‘Formulation of this right [to a fair trial], and 140 imposition of this duty, are “the essence of due process of law.” U.S. v. Bagley, 473 141 U.S. 667, 695-696 (1985), citing Moore v. IL, 408 U.S. 786, 809-810 (1972).
142 Emphasis added. “The requirement of due process of law in judicial procedure 143 [requires] every procedure which might lead [a judge] not to hold the balance nice, 144 clear and true between the State and the [petitioner] denies the latter of due 145 process of law.” Tumey v. OH, 273 U.S. 519, 532 (1927). Emphasis added. “A fair 146 tribunal is a basic requirement of due process [where] our system of law has always 147 endeavored to prevent the probability of unfairness.” In re Murchison, 349 U.S.
148 133, 136 (1955). Emphasis added. In other words, the Supreme Court has 149 established the rule of law that the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment Due Process 150 Clause guarantees habeas corpus proceedings must be in a fair tribunal where the 151 judge has a duty to hold the balance nice, clear and true to prevent the probability 152 of unfairness, or the habeas petitioner is denied due process of law.

153 In this case, the District Court rendered judgments that violated 154 Lynch's constitutional right to due process of law by: (1) holding Lynch was not 155 entitled to the "fundamental miscarriage of justice" exception under the Carrier
156 standard contrary to established law in Schlup, 513 U.S., at 321, 324, 327-328, 331-
157 332; (2) holding Lynch's constitutional-Brady-errors were procedurally defaulted 158 contrary to established law in Martinez v. Ryan, 566 U.S., 1, 17 (2012); (3) making 159 false statements to deny Lynch's actual-innocence claims contrary to established 160 law in Lisenba, 314 U.S., at 236; (4) holding a conclusion of law for summary 161 judgment on the credibility of new evidence presented contrary to established law in 162 Schlup, 513 U.S., at 332; and (5) failing to address allegations of false statements in 163 the Motion to Dismiss contrary to established law in Hazel-Atlas, 332 U.S., at 246.
164 Also, the Court of Appeals rendered an Order denying a COA that violated Lynch's 165 constitutional right to due process of law by not addressing the claimed violations of 166 Federal rights raised in Lynch's Brief contrary to established law in Chambers, 207
167 U.S., at 148.

168 B. Access to the Courts:

169 Under the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause, the 170 Supreme Court held: "It is established beyond doubt that prisoners have a 171 constitutional right to access to the courts." Bounds, 430 U.S., at 821. The District 172 Court rendered Orders that violated Lynch's constitutional right of access to the 173 Court by denying Lynch: (1) appointed counsel contrary to established law in 174 Bounds, 430 U.S., at 823, 828; (2) an adequate law library or legal assistance
175 contrary to established law in Lewis, 518 U.S., at 351; and (3) a remedy to prison 176 officials' interference with presentation of claims to the Court contrary to 177 established law in Lewis, 518 U.S., at 349-350. Also, the Court of Appeals denied 178 Lynch's constitutional right of access to the Court by procedurally denying Lynch

179 reasonable time to file a Petition for Rehearing of Order Denying COA contrary to 180 established law in Bounds, 430 U.S., at 821.

181 REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

182 I. District Court's Order Denying "Fundamental Miscarriage of Justice"
183 Exception Was Contrary To Established Law.

185 In Schlup, the Supreme Court established four criteria the habeas petition 186 must meet to be entitled to a "fundamental miscarriage of justice" exception under 187 the Carrier standard: (1) "this Court explicitly tied the miscarriage of justice 188 exception to the petitioner's innocence," Schlup, 513 U.S., at 321; (2) "when the 189 claimed injustice that constitutional error has resulted in the conviction of one who 190 is actually innocent of the crime," id., at 324; (3) "to be credible, such a claim 191 requires petitioner to support his allegation of constitutional error with new reliable 192 evidence ... that was not presented at trial," id., and (4) "the application of the 193 Carrier standard arises in the context of a request for an evidentiary hearing," id., 194 at 331.

195 Lynch's eleven claims of actual innocence, DC Doc. No. 1, at pp 92-104, met 196 the first criteria for the Carrier standard under Schlup. Lynch's eleven 197 constitutional-Brady-error claims, DC Doc. No. 1, at pp 59-79, and his four 198 constitutional-Strickland-error claims, id., at pp 80-92, met the second criteria for 199 the Carrier standard under Schlup. Lynch supported each constitutional-error and 200 actual-innocence claim with new reliable evidence that was not presented at trial, 201 DC Doc. No. 1, at pp 59-104, met the third criteria for the Carrier standard under 202 Schlup. And, Lynch requested an evidentiary hearing, DC Doc. No. 1, at p 109, met 203 the fourth criteria for the Carrier standard under Schlup. Also, the District court 204 stated: 'procedurally defaulted claims may be reviewed only if "the petitioner can 205 demonstrate cause and prejudice or a fundamental miscarriage of justice." Thomas 206 v. Gibson, 218 F.3d 1213, 1221 (10th Cir. 2000)'. DC Doc. No. 59, at p 4. Emphasis 207 added. Thereby, the District Court and this Court of Appeals agree with the 208 Supreme Court that a "fundamental miscarriage of justice" exception applies to 209 Lynch's Habeas petition as Lynch has shown it met the four criteria for this 210 exception for the Carrier standard under Schlup.

211 II. District Court's Failure To Apply Martinez Exception To Procedural Default
212 Was Contrary To Established Law.

213
214 In Martinez v. Ryan, the Supreme Court established:

215 "Where, under state law, claims of [constitutional-error] must be 216 raised in an initial-review collateral proceeding, a procedural default 217 will not bar a federal habeas court from hearing a substantial claim of 218 [constitutional-error] at trial if, in the initial-review collateral 219 proceeding, there was no counsel."

220
221 Id., 566 U.S., at 17. See Trevino v. Thaler, 133 S.Ct., 1911, 1912, 1921 (2013) (citing 222 Martinez, 566 U.S., at 17); Ayestas v. Davis, 138 S.Ct., 1080, 1083, 1096 (2018) 223 (same). As "Lynch filed pro se a PCRA Petition with the [Utah] District Court for 224 constitutional error at trial citing 18 claims of prosecutorial misconduct by 225 withholding exculpatory and impeachment evidence from Lynch," DC Doc. No. 1, at 226 p 47, then a procedural default would not bar the District Court from hearing 227 Lynch's claims of substantial constitutional-Brady-error at trial. Id., at pp 59-79.
228 The District Court's failure to apply this well-established exception by the Supreme 229 Court for procedural default to Lynch's constitutional-Brady-error claims violated 230 Lynch's Constitutional right to due process of law under the Fifth and Fourteenth 231 Amendment Due Process Clause contrary to established law in Martinez, 566 U.S., 232 at 17, that reasonable jurists could debate whether Lynch's Habeas case should 233 have been resolved in a different manner.

234 III. District Court's False Statements Were Contrary To Established Law.

235 The District Court stated as fact that Lynch's "evidence presented in [claims] 236 1, 3, 7, 8, 9 and 10 is not new, but was presented and considered at trial." App. B, 237 at p 5. Emphasis added. This statement of fact is false for the following reasons:

238 Claim 1: "Testimony and exhibit evidence on the Victim's pants." Id. Lynch 239 presented new reliable evidence not presented at trial that the "exhibit evidence on 240 the Victim's pants" was manufactured by the prosecution, see DC Doc. No. 1, at pp 241 59-61, which is evidence not presented and considered at trial.

242 Claim 3: “Location of the Victim’s back injuries.” App. B, at p 5. Lynch 243 presented new reliable evidence not presented at trial that the location of the fatal 244 back injury that severed the Victim’s spinal cord was at 49.2 inches and too high to 245 align with 37.25-inch height of the hood on Lynch’s truck, see DC Doc. No. 1, at pp 246 68-70, which is evidence not presented and considered at trial.

247 Claim 7: “Evidence that potential witness Maxwell saw a red truck in the 248 area of the accident.” App. B, at p 5. Lynch presented new reliable evidence not 249 presented at trial that Maxwell heard and saw a large red industrial truck, versus 250 Lynch’s white pickup truck, at the scene of the collision at the moment of the 251 collision, see DC Doc. No. 1, at pp 98-99, which is evidence not presented and 252 considered at trial.

253 Claim 8: “Evidence that a potential witness overheard a conversation about a 254 hit and run.” App. B, at p 5. Lynch presented new reliable evidence not presented 255 at trial that Michele Ashe told Det. Adamson she overheard one man confessing to 256 another man that he had accidentally hit and killed a woman in Hollady, Utah, the 257 location of where the Victim was killed, and gave a description of the man 258 confessing, who looked nothing like Lynch, see DC Doc. No. 1, at pp 100-101, which 259 is evidence not presented and considered at trial.

260 Claim 9: “Testimony that the DNA evidence on the truck did not match the 261 Victim.” App. B, at p 5. Lynch presented new reliable evidence not presented at 262 trial that ‘Barbara Reed, the Crime Lab photographer, described the Victim’s pants 263 as “bloody.” Also, photographs taken by the M.E. of the Victim’s left and right 264 calves show they both had significant open wounds.’ DC Doc. No. 1, at p 101. This 265 is new evidence that the impact vehicle would certainly have blood or tissue from 266 the Victim transferred to it from the collision, and after twice swabbing Lynch’s 267 truck for DNA samples, see id., at pp 16-17, 17-18, then this is new reliable evidence 268 Lynch’s truck was not the impact vehicle, which is evidence not presented and 269 considered at trial.

270 Claim 10: “Evidence about paint and paint analysis.” App. B, at p 5, Lynch 271 presented new reliable evidence not presented at trial that the white paint tested

272 from the pants tested at the State Crime Lab showed inconsistencies with the white 273 paint sample taken from the hood on Lynch's truck and was not from Lynch's truck.
274 See DC Doc. No. 1, at pp 102-103. Also, Lynch presented new reliable evidence not 275 presented at trial that the "evidence about paint and paint analysis" was 276 manufactured by the prosecution. See id., at pp 59-61, 92-94. Thereby, this is 277 "evidence about paint and paint analysis" that was not presented and considered at 278 trial, that reasonable jurists could debate whether Lynch's Habeas case should have 279 been resolved in a different manner.

280 As the District Court's Order made false statements of fact to support its 281 judgment to dismiss these actual innocence claims, then the Order violated Lynch's 282 constitutional right to due process of law under the Fifth and Fourteen Amendment 283 Due Process Clause and is contrary to established law in Tumey, 273 U.S., at 532.
284 ("The requirement of due process of law in judicial procedure [requires a judge] to 285 hold the balance nice, clear and true between the State and the [petitioner, or it] 286 denies the latter of due process of law").

287 IV. District Court's Conclusion Of Law For Summary Judgment Was Contrary 288 To Established Law.

289
290 Schlup established:

291 The court is not [] to test the new evidence by a standard 292 appropriate for deciding a motion for summary judgment. Cf. Agosto v.
293 I.N.S., 436 U.S. 748, 756 (1978) ("[A] district court generally cannot 294 grant summary judgment based on 'its assessment of the credibility of 295 the evidence presented'); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 296 249 (1986) ("At the summary judgment stage the judge's function is not 297 himself to weigh the evidence and determine the truth of the matter 298 but to determine whether there is a genuine issue for trial"). Instead, 299 the Court may consider how the timing of the submission and the 300 likely credibility of the affiants bear on the probable reliability of that 301 evidence.'

302
303 Id., 513 U.S., at 332.

304 In regard to Lynch's actual-innocence claims 2, 4, 5 and 6, the District Court 305 agrees that these claims "involve evidence ... which were not presented during the 306 trial." App. B, at p 6. But then the District Court concluded 'this new evidence 307 alone is insufficient to determine that “it is more likely than not that no reasonable 308 juror would have convicted [Lynch] in light of [this] new evidence.” Calderon v.

309 Thompson, 523 U.S. 538, 559 (1998)] (emphasis added).’ Id. Emphasis added. ‘The 310 habeas court must make its determination concerning the petitioner’s innocence “in 311 light of all the evidence.”’ Schlup, 513 U.S., at 328. As the District Court cannot 312 assess the credibility of Lynch’s new evidence at this stage of the habeas proceeding 313 and the District Court must make its determination of the new evidence presented 314 in light of all the evidence, then the District Court’s Order dismissing Lynch’s 315 actual-innocence claims 2, 4, 5 and 6, because it has determined the new evidence 316 presented in these claims alone is insufficient, then the Order violates Lynch’s 317 constitutional right to due process of law under the Fifth and Fourteenth 318 Amendment Due process Clause and contrary to established law in Lisenba, 314 319 U.S., at 236 (‘due process guarantees that a [petitioner] will be treated with “that 320 fundamental fairness essential to the very concept of justice”), that reasonable 321 jurists could debate whether Lynch’s Habeas case should have been resolved in a 322 different manner.

323 V. District Court’s Failure To Address Allegations Of Eleven False Statements 324 In Motion to Dismiss Was Contrary to Established Law.

325
326 On May 23, 2018, Respondent filed a Motion to Dismiss, DC Doc. No. 31. On 327 September 4, 2018, Lynch filed an Objection to Motion to Dismiss, DC Doc. No. 41, 328 alleging Respondent made eleven false statements of fact or law. Lynch showed 329 with facts in the court record or relevant legal authority Respondent’s statements 330 were false on the following issues: (1) Respondent misrepresented Coleman v.
331 Thompson, 501 U.S. 722, 729-732, 735 n. 1 (1991) as a relevant authority to 332 procedurally default Lynch’s constitutional-Brady-error claims, see DC Doc. No. 41, 333 at pp 64-65; (2) Respondent misrepresented Coleman, supra, as a relevant authority 334 to procedurally default Lynch’s constitutional-Strickland-error claims, see id., at pp 335 66-67; (3) Respondent made a false statement to support his allegation there was a 336 tow hook on the front of Lynch’s truck, see id., at pp 68-69; (4) Respondent made a 337 false statement to support his allegation Lynch had not shown any apparent conflict

338 between the Victim's injuries and truck's grill, see id., at p 69; (5) Respondent made 339 a false statement that defense counsel elicited an admission that Det. Adamson 340 never had the substance on the zip tie tested on cross-examination, see id., at p 75; 341 (6) Respondent made a false statement to support his allegation Det. Adamson 342 admitted nothing in the paint analyst's report matched the white substance on the 343 zip tie to paint on Lynch's truck, see id., at pp 75-76; (7) Respondent made a false 344 statement Lynch had not shown prejudice in his Strickland claim that defense 345 counsel failed to present Maxwell as a witness, see id., at p 82; (8) Respondent made 346 a false statement Lynch had not said what Maxwell would have testified to at trial, 347 see id., at p 83; (9) Respondent made a false statement Lynch had to explain how 348 testimony could have created reasonable likelihood on appeal, see id., (10)
349 Respondent made a false statement there is no prejudice to accumulate Lynch's 350 constitutional-error claims, see id., at p 88; and (11) Respondent made a false 351 statement that free-standing claims of innocence are not cognizable, see id., at pp 352 88-91.

353 As the District Court's Order failed to address Respondent's eleven false 354 statements made to support his Motion to Dismiss, then the Order violated Lynch's
355 constitutional right to due process of law under the Fifth and Fourteenth
356 Amendment Due Process Clause and contrary to established law in Hazel-Atlas, 332 357 U.S., at 246 (it "is a wrong against the institutions set up to protect and safeguard 358 the public, institutions in which fraud cannot complacently be tolerated")⁷, that 359 reasonable jurists could debate whether Lynch's Habeas case should have been 360 resolved in a different manner.

361 VI. District Court's Denial Of Appointed Counsel Was Contrary to Established 362 Law.

363 Lynch filed his first Motion for Counsel, DC Doc. No. 2, as a constitutional 364 right to access to the courts under the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection

⁷ See also i.d., at 245 ("Every element of the fraud here disclosed demands the exercise of the historic power of equity to set aside fraudulently begotten judgments") (emphasis added); S & E Contractors, Inc. v. U.S., 406 4.S 1, 15 (1972) ("fraud on ... the court enforcing the action is ground for setting aside the judgment").

366 Clause established by the Supreme Court, citing Bounds, 430 U.S., at 825, as a 367 relevant authority because the Utah prisons were lacking the “most minimal legal 368 research materials” and that “the legal services provided to assist the prisoner are 369 grossly inadequate,” citing Adams, 123 P.3d, at 406 (Utah 2005), as relevant 370 authority.⁸

371 “The Court notes that Petitioner has no constitutional right to appointed pro 372 bono counsel in [this] habeas corpus case,” citing as its seemingly relevant authority
373 United States v. Lewis, No. 97-3135-SAC, 91-0047-01-SAC, 1998 WL 105477, at 3 374 (D. Kan. December 9, 1998). DC Doc. No. 14, at p 1. (“There is no constitutional 375 right to appointment of counsel in a §2255 proceeding. See United States v.
376 Vasquez, 7 F.3d 81, 83 (5th Cir. 1993”). Vasquez stated: “No such right [of 377 appointed counsel] flows from the Constitution. Pennsylvania v. Finley, 481 U.S.
378 551, 555 (1987) (No Sixth Amendment right to appointed counsel extends to 379 prisoners collaterally attacking their convictions).” Id., 7 F.3d, at 83. However, 380 Finley held “the underlying constitutional right to appointed counsel [in Federal 381 habeas corpus proceedings was] established in Douglas v. California, 372 U.S. 353
382 (1963).” Id., 481 U.S., at 555.
383 In other words, while an indigent habeas corpus petitioner has no constitutional 384 right to counsel under the Sixth Amendment, he does have a constitutional right to 385 appointed counsel under the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause for 386 access to the courts. The District Court’s analysis of constitutional law on this issue 387 was based on an obscure irrelevant authority that was “not reported in F. Supp. 2d 388 (1998),” see Lewis, 1998 WL 1054227, that is contrary to established law that 389 ‘counsel must be appointed to give indigent inmates “a meaningful appeal” from 390 their convictions,’ Bounds, 450 U.S., at 822, that reasonable jurists could debate 391 whether Lynch’s Habeas case should have been resolved in a different manner.
392

393 VII. District Court's Denial Of Motion For Law Library Was Contrary to 394 Established Law.

395
396 After the District Court denied all three (3) of Lynch's Motions for Appointed 397 Counsel, DC Doc. Nos. 14, 40, Lynch filed a Motion for Law Library, DC Doc. No.
398 58. The District Court denied the Motion because "a legal-access claim such as the 399 one Petitioner suggests is not appropriate in this habeas corpus case but would be 400 more properly addressed in a civil right complaint regarding conditions of 401 confinement." App. B, at p 16.

402 Though Bounds, 430 U.S., at 828, and Lewis, 518 U.S., at 346 were the result 403 of class action civil rights suits, Lynch is unaware of any caselaw or statute that a 404 civil suit to order prison authorities to provide inmates with a law library or legal 405 assistance program must be separate from a 28 U.S.C. §2254 civil suit. In fact, it 406 would be during the proceedings of a 28 U.S.C. §2254 civil suit that the need would 407 manifest itself for a habeas corpus petition file for an injunction with the habeas 408 court for the Constitutional right of access to a law library or legal assistance 409 program for meaningful legal papers to be filed with the courts under the 410 Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause, and not in another civil suit after 411 the habeas corpus petitioner has had his habeas corpus petition dismissed, which is 412 now the case for Lynch.

413 As the District Court's denial of Lynch's Motion for Law Library has caused 414 injury to Lynch due to the District Court's wrongful dismissal of Lynch's Habeas 415 Petition, which more likely than not would not have occurred if Lynch had had 416 access to a law library or legal assistance program to enable Lynch to file 417 meaningful legal papers with the District Court, and as the District Court denied 418 Lynch's Motion for Law Library without citation to any relevant legal authority, 419 and as the District Court's denial of Lynch's Motion for Law Library was contrary to 420 established law in Bounds, 430 U.S., at 821-823, 825-826, 828; Lewis, 518 U.S., at 421 349-351,

422 ('It is the role of the courts to provide relief to claimants, in individual 423 or class actions, who have suffered, or will imminently suffer actual 424 harm. ... It is for the courts to remedy past or imminent official 425 interference with individual inmate's presentation of claims to the 426 courts. ... In other words, prison law libraries and legal assistance 427 programs are not the ends in themselves, but only the means for 428 ensuring "a reasonably adequate opportunity to present claims 429 violations of fundamental constitutional rights to the courts." [Bounds, 430 430 U.S.], at 825''), 431

432 then the District Court's denial of Lynch's Motion for a Law Library was 433 contrary to established law that reasonable jurists could debate whether 434 Lynch's Habeas case should have been resolved in a different manner.

435 VIII. District Court's Denial Of Motion Not To Transfer Lynch Was Contrary to 436 Established Law.

438 Lynch was incarcerated in the Utah State Prison ("USP"), Draper, Utah on 439 January 29, 2009. Within the year following the filing of his Habeas Corpus 440 Petition on May 25, 2017, DC Doc. No. 1, prison officials had transferred Lynch
441 three (3) times between USP, Draper and the Central Utah Correctional Facility 442 ("CUCF"), Gunnison, Utah. See DC Doc. Nos. 8, 10, 26. During the process of each 443 transfer, Lynch was separated from the legal materials he needed for access to the 444 courts for up to three (3) weeks. As Lynch is a pro se litigant in his habeas case, the 445 separation from these legal materials by prison officials violated Lynch's 446 constitutional right to access to the District Court under the Fourteenth 447 Amendment Equal Protection Clause as established by the Supreme Court's 448 decision in Bounds, 430 U.S., at 821 ("It is established beyond doubt that prisoners 449 have a constitutional right to access to the courts"). The Supreme Court has also 450 established under Lewis, 518 U.S., at 349-350 ("[I]t is the role of courts to provide 451 relief to claimants, in individual or class actions, who have suffered, or will 452 imminently suffer actional harm. ... It is for the courts to remedy past or imminent 453 official interference with individual inmates' presentation of claims to the courts."
454 In an effort to prevent further violations by prison official's interference with this 455 constitutional right to access to the District Court, Lynch filed his Motion Not to 456 Transfer Lynch, DC Doc. No. 19, citing as relevant authority Bounds, supra, and 457 Lewis, supra. The District Court's August 30, 2018 interlocutory Order denied said 458 Motion because "the Court has been liberal in granting time extensions for 459 petitioner and sees no need to impose an injunction on Respondent." DC Doc. No.

460 40, at p 1. This bandaid remedy does not cover any future time when Lynch is 461 transferred to another Utah prison facility, separating Lynch from his needed legal 462 materials for weeks at a time, which could cause Lynch not to be able to file a 463 timely motion for extension of time that would be procedurally barred by the 464 District Court, which would result in prejudice to Lynch due to loss of a critical legal 465 issue by default for the Lynch and his habeas case.

466 As the District Court had a duty and the judicial authority to remedy the 467 imminent suffering of actual harm by the Prison's official interference with his 468 constitutional right to access to the courts, then the District Court's denial of 469 Lynch's Motion Not to Transfer was contrary to established law in Lewis, 518 U.S., 470 at 349-350, cited above, that reasonable jurists could debate whether Lynch's 471 Habeas case should have been resolved in a different manner.

472 IX. District Court's Denial Of Motion To Purchase Computer Was Contrary To 473 Established Law.

475 Previously, when Lynch requested documentation with assistance of counsel 476 from Utah State agencies involved in collecting, analyzing or processing of evidence 477 for the crimes which Lynch was convicted, the agencies had provided the 478 documentation in the format it was stored, to wit, digitally on CD-Rs. As Lynch 479 was then represented by counsel, then accessing digitally stored documents was not 480 an issue because counsel could provide copies as printed documents. And, as the 481 USP, Draper had provided access to a laptop computer for inmates to view digitally 482 stored documents, then it was not an issue for pro se incarcerated litigants to have 483 documents provided digitally. However, on March 19, 2018, Captain Crane, the 484 officer with overall responsibility for the facility Lynch was housed at that time, 485 informed him that the Warden had withdrawn the privilege for inmate access to 486 these laptop computers due to security issues dealing with unauthorized use of CR-487 Rs, flash drives, and thumb drives by some inmates. See DC Doc. No. 24, at p 3.

488 'It is now established beyond doubt that prisoners have a constitutional right 489 of access to the courts ... to give indigent inmates "a meaningful appeal" from their 490 convictions. Douglas v. California, 322 U.S. 353, 358 (1963).' Bounds, 430 U.S., at 491 821-822. "Moreover, our decisions have consequently required States to shoulder 492 affirmative obligations to assure all prisoners meaningful access to the courts." Id., 493 at 824. And, "it is often more important that a prisoner's complaint sets forth a 494 nonfrivolous claim meeting all procedural prerequisites, since the court may pass on 495 the complaint's sufficiency ... and may dismiss the case if it is deemed frivolous.
496 Even the most dedicated trial judges are bound to overlook meritorious cases 497 without the benefit of an adversary presentation." Id., at 826. "It is the rule of 498 courts to remedy past or imminent official interference with individual inmates' 499 presentation of claims to the courts." Lewis, 518 U.S., at 349-350.

500 'The right that Bounds acknowledged was the (already well 501 established) right of access to the courts. E.g., Bounds, 430 U.S., at 502 817, 821, 828. In the cases to which Bounds traced its roots, we have 503 protected that right by prohibiting state prison officials from actively 504 interfering with inmates' attempts to prepare legal documents. ... for 505 indigent inmates Bounds focused on the same entitlements of access to 506 the courts. Although it affirmed a court order requiring North 507 Carolina to make law library facilities available to inmates, it stressed 508 that that was merely "one constitutionally acceptable means to assure 509 meaningful access to the courts" and that "our decision here ... does 510 not foreclose alternative means to achieve that goal." 430 U.S., at 830.
511 In other words, prison law libraries and legal assistance programs are 512 not ends in themselves, but only the means for ensuring "a reasonably 513 adequate opportunity to present claimed violations of fundamental 514 constitutional rights to the courts." Id., at 825.' Id., at 350-351.

516
517 As to Lynch's Motion for Purchase of Computer, the District Court did not 518 have to deny Lynch's request et al., but could have insured Lynch's constitutional 519 right to view digitalized legal documents for his access to the courts by ordering the 520 Warden, the Respondent, to provide in each housing unit a laptop computer for all 521 inmates who needed to view digitalized legal documents for access to the courts.

522 But the District Court decided to Order “Petitioner’s Motion to Order 523 Respondent to Contract with Lynch for Purchase of a Computer is DENIED. (DC 524 Doc. No. 24.) This request is simply not legally supportable.” DC Doc. No. 40, at p 525 1. As the District Court failed to cite any legal authority to support its denial, then 526 its denial of Lynch’s said Motion can be construed as “arbitrary,” and thereby an 527 abuse of discretion. See U.S. v. Wright, 826 F.2d, 938, 943 (10th Cir. 1987). (“Abuse 528 of discretion occurs when a judicial determination is arbitrary”). Additionally, an 529 abuse of discretion occurs when a district court makes “an overriding of the law by 530 the manifestly unreasonable judgment … as shown by … the record of proceedings.”
531 Id., As the District Court’s interlocutory Order on this issue, DC Doc. No. 40, at p 1, 532 was contrary to law on the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause for 533 access to the courts as established by the U.S. Supreme Court decisions of Bounds, 534 430 U.S., supra, and Lewis, 518 U.S., supra, then the District Court’s said Order 535 was contrary to established law that reasonable jurists could debate whether 536 Lynch’s Habeas case should have been resolved in a different manner.

537 X. Court of Appeals’ Order Denying COA Was Contrary To Established Law.

538 Subsequent to Lynch’ Notice of Appeal, the Court of Appeals ordered Lynch 539 to file an Appellant’s Combined Opening Brief and Application for a Certificate of 540 Appealability. On January 28, 2019, Lynch mailed to the Court of Appeals his 541 Combined Opening Appellant Brief, (“Appellant Brief”), and Application for 542 Certificate of Appealability, (“Request for COA”). On February 19, 2019, the Court 543 of Appeals denied Lynch’s Request for COA ‘because Lynch has not “made a 544 substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right,” [28 U.S.C.] §2253(c)(2).’
545 App. A, at p 1. Also:

546 “Having undertaken a review of Lynch’s appellate filings, the district 547 court’s thorough order, and the entire record before this court pursuant 548 to the framework set out by the Supreme Court in Miller-El fv.
549 Cockrell, 537 U.S. 332 (2003)] and Slack fv. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473
550 (2000)], we conclude Lynch is not entitled to a COA. The district 551 court’s resolution of Lynch’s §2254 petition is not reasonably subject to 552 debate and the issues he seeks to raise on appeal are not adequate to 553 deserve further proceedings. Furthermore, it cannot be reasonably

554 argued the district court abused its discretion when it denied Lynch's 555 request for appointed counsel, provision of a law library, ability to 556 purchase a computer, and the ability to block his transfer to another 557 facility. In so ruling, this court concludes it is unnecessary to 558 recapitulate the district court's careful analysis." 559

560 Id., at p 4. Emphasis added.

561 First: As the Court of Appeals did not address specifically any of the 562 substantial constitutional "issues [Lynch] seeks to raise on appeal" that are 563 "adequate to deserve further proceedings," id., supra, that are substantiated with 564 citation to facts in the record and relevant established law, see Appellant Brief, at 565 pp 13-23, and Lynch's "complaint concludes that [he] has indeed been denied 566 substantial constitutional rights, [where a liberal construction is to be accorded to a 567 pro se complaint," Sigafus v. Brown, 416 F.2d 105, 106 (7th Cir. 1969); 106 n. 4.⁹
568 then the Court of Appeals' Order denying Request for COA, see App. A, at p 1, 569 violated Lynch's constitutional right to due process of law under the Fifth and 570 Fourteenth Amendment Due Process Clause, which is contrary to established law 571 under Tumey, 273 U.S., at 532 ("not to hold the balance nice, clear and true ...
572 denies the [petitioner] of due process of law"), that reasonable jurists could debate 573 whether Lynch's Request for COA should have been resolved in a different manner.

574 Second: The Court of Appeals "concludes it is unnecessary to recapitulate the 575 district court's careful analysis of "Lynch's request for appointed counsel, provisions 576 of a law library, ability to purchase a computer, and the ability to block his transfer 577 to another facility." App. A, supra. The Court of Appeals could not "recapitulate 578 the district court's careful analysis" because there is nothing in the District Court's 579 record to show it performed any "analysis," "careful" or otherwise, of these Federal 580 issues Lynch raised in his Brief, as the District Court had presented no facts from 581 the record or citation to established law to rebut Lynch's claims of violation to his 582 constitutional right of access to the courts established by Bounds, 430 U.S., at 821, 583 823, 825, 828, 828 n. 17; Lewis, 518 U.S., at 349-350, 351, under the Fourteenth

⁹ "Dioguardio v. Durning, 139 F.2d 774, 775 (2nd Cir. 1944); Rini v. Katzenbach, 374 F.2d 836, 837 (7th Cir. 1967); 2A Moor's Federal Practice P8.13 p. 1707 (2d ed. 1968)."

584 Amendment Equal Protection Clause. Thereby, the Court of Appeals' conclusion of 585 fact is a false statement that fails as a matter of law and violates Lynch's 586 constitutional right of due process of law under the Fifth and Fourteenth 587 Amendment Due Process Clause, which is contrary to established law in Lisenba, 588 314 U.S., at 236 ("that fundamental fairness is essential to the very concept of 589 justice"), that reasonable jurists could debate whether Lynch's Request for COA 590 should have been resolved in a different manner.

591 Third: Since Lynch's complaint concludes he has been denied the substantial 592 constitutional right of access to the courts from the denial of his "request for 593 appointed counsel, provisions of a law library, ability to purchase a computer, and 594 the ability to block his transfer to another facility," CA Doc. No. ____, at p 4, under 595 the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection clause, then a liberal construction is 596 to be accorded Lynch as a pro se complainant. See Sigafus, 416 F.2d, at 106; 597 Dioguardio, 139 F.2d, at 775; Rini, 374 F.2d, at 873. And, as each "Federal question 598 was decided against the claim of Federal rights, and the decision of the question 599 was essential to the judgment rendered[, then t]his is enough to give this Court the 600 authority to re-examine [each] question on writ of error," Chambers, 207 U.S., at 601 148, as a violation of Lynch's constitutional right of access to the courts that jurists 602 could debate whether Lynch's Request for COA should have been resolved in a 603 different manner.

604 CONCLUSION

605 Lynch has shown in Questions X, with citation of facts in the record and 606 established law, the Court of Appeals' Orders denying Lynch's Request for COA 607 violated Lynch's constitutional rights of due process of law and access to the courts.
608 Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §2253(c)(1)(A), "a circuit justice or judge" must issue a COA 609 before an appeal can "be taken to the court of appeals from the final order in a 610 habeas corpus proceeding." Thereby, this Supreme Court can simply remand this 611 case to the Court of Appeals with instructions to rehear Lynch's Request for COA 612 based on the constitutional issues raised in Lynch's Opening Brief. Elsewise, as 613 shown in the Reasons for Granting the Writ above that Lynch substantiated with 614 citation to facts in the record and established law that the judgments rendered by 615 the District Court and the Court of Appeals had substantially violated Lynch's 616 constitutional rights of due process of law and access to the courts guaranteed by 617 the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment Due Process Clause and the Fourteenth 618 Amendment Equal Protection Clause, where such judgments were contrary to law

619 established by the Supreme Court and where reasonable jurists could debate 620 whether Lynch's Habeas Corpus claims of constitutional-error at trial and claims of 621 actual innocence, and his claims of constitutional-error on Appeal, should have been 622 resolved in a different manner, then Lynch respectfully requests this august 623 Supreme Court that the Petition for Writ of Certiorari should be granted.

624 Respectfully submitted,
