OPINION*

FISHER, Circuit Judge.

* This disposition is not an opinion of the full Court and pursuant to I.O.P. 5.7 does not constitute binding precedent.

Jamar McMillan appeals his conviction for possession with intent to distribute heroin, phencyclidine (PCP), and synthetic marijuana; possession of a firearm in furtherance of drug trafficking; and being a felon in possession of a firearm. He also challenges his designation as a career offender for sentencing purposes. We will affirm his conviction and sentence.

I.

Officer Nicholas Licata of the Harrisburg Bureau of Police received an internal Bureau email stating that Jamar McMillan was a person of interest in an arson. The email indicated that McMillan drove his girlfriend's black Lexus and white Jeep, was residing at a particular address, and that "[s]omeone close to the investigation" said McMillan "ma[de] his living by dealing drugs."<sup>1</sup> McMillan was also the subject of an outstanding arrest warrant. Officer Licata set out to run surveillance at McMillan's suspected address.

When Officer Licata arrived, he saw McMillan leave the house, walk to a black Lexus, "mill[] around for a few minutes," and then walk back inside.<sup>2</sup> Officer Licata did not attempt to arrest McMillan at that time, but returned two days later after confirming that the warrant for his arrest was still active. McMillan, the black Lexus, and a white Jeep were at the residence, and this time another man was there with McMillan. The two men went to the Lexus, where McMillan took child seats from the trunk and gave them to the second man, who transferred them to the white Jeep. McMillan then went up to the driver's door of the Lexus and "lean[ed] in . . . doing something in the area of the center console in the driver's seat area."<sup>3</sup>

At this point, backup officers began to arrive, and the individual with McMillan "[took] off running."<sup>4</sup> McMillan paused briefly, but then closed the driver's door of the Lexus and ran. The officers stopped him, arrested him, and searched him. They found a key to a Lexus, a cell phone, a vial containing brown liquid—which Officer Licata recognized as PCP—a "corner tied bag" of what appeared to be synthetic marijuana, and four bundles of heroin (with approximately ten bags per bundle).<sup>5</sup> McMillan had no paraphernalia typical for a heroin user, such as syringes, spoons, pipes, or lighters.

Officer Licata next searched the Lexus "based on the fact that [he] saw Mr. McMillan inside of the vehicle moving items around, as well as the drugs that he possessed."<sup>6</sup> On the driver's seat, Officer Licata found a pouch that contained a loaded .45 caliber gun and a facemask. Officers also discovered another small bag of suspected synthetic marijuana in the trunk.

<sup>5</sup> App. 351. Much of what appeared to be heroin turned out to be fake, and the synthetic marijuana weighed less than thirty grams. Officer Licata testified that heroin users might use a few bags to three bundles daily depending on personal tolerance, but that a vial of PCP is something usually found on a dealer, not a user.

McMillan was charged with possession with intent to distribute heroin, PCP, and synthetic marijuana, as well as possession of the firearm in furtherance of drug trafficking and being a felon in possession of a firearm.<sup>7</sup> McMillan moved to suppress evidence recovered from the Lexus, arguing that the officers lacked probable cause for the search. The District Court denied the motion.<sup>8</sup> McMillan's case went to trial, and a jury found him guilty on all five counts. He was convicted and sentenced to 240 months' imprisonment after the court determined that his two prior Pennsylvania drug convictions<sup>9</sup> were predicate "controlled substance" offenses under the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines career offender enhancement.<sup>10</sup>

II.<sup>11</sup>

McMillan challenges his conviction, arguing that the District Court erred in denying his motion to suppress. In reviewing the denial of a motion to suppress, we review factual findings for clear error, and exercise plenary review over application of law to fact.<sup>12</sup> McMillan also challenges his sentence, arguing that the court erred in classifying him as a career offender. Our review of whether an offense constitutes a

<sup>7</sup> The operative five-count indictment charged McMillan under 21 U.S.C. § 841(a)(1) and (b)(1)(C), 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1)(A), and 18 U.S.C. § 922(g).

controlled substances offense for the purpose of career offender status under the Guidelines is plenary.<sup>13</sup>

McMillan argues that the District Court erred in denying his motion to suppress because officers searched his vehicle without a warrant or probable cause. Under the “automobile exception,” police may conduct a warrantless search of a vehicle without offending the Fourth Amendment if they have probable cause to believe contraband is in the vehicle.<sup>14</sup> This extends to containers found in a vehicle when an officer has “probable cause to believe contraband or evidence is contained” therein.<sup>15</sup> We evaluate “probable cause” in light of all of the circumstances leading to a search.<sup>16</sup> If circumstances “indicate[] a fair probability” of finding contraband, there is probable cause.<sup>17</sup>

McMillan argues that the nonspecific tip that he dealt drugs, his flight from officers, the drugs on him at the time of his arrest, and his proximity to the Lexus did not amount to probable cause because officers did not see him engage in drug transactions or carry a firearm, and because they did not see contraband in the Lexus before the search.

<sup>17</sup> United States v. Burton, 288 F.3d 91, 103 (3d Cir. 2002); see also Ornelas v. United States, 517 U.S. 690, 696 (1996) (“[P]robable cause to search [exists] where the known facts and circumstances are sufficient to warrant a man of reasonable prudence in the belief that contraband or evidence of a crime will be found[.]”).

We disagree. The record demonstrates that there was at least a fair probability of finding contraband in the Lexus, justifying the search. First, there was the tip from a source who alleged that McMillan sold drugs for a living. Second, Officer Licata saw McMillan in the Lexus doing something near the center console. Third, when McMillan saw the officers moving in he closed the door of the Lexus and ran. This sudden and deliberate flight suggested wrongdoing.<sup>18</sup> Consistent with the tip that McMillan sold drugs, there were drugs in McMillan's pockets and indicia that McMillan was a dealer rather than a user. Based on the totality of this circumstantial evidence, there was probable cause to search the vehicle for contraband.<sup>19</sup>

A defendant being sentenced for a controlled substances offense who has two prior "controlled substance" convictions is a career offender under the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines.<sup>20</sup> Determining whether a conviction is a "controlled substance" conviction requires comparing the elements of the statute of conviction with the Guidelines definition.<sup>21</sup> If the statute of conviction is overbroad, such that it criminalizes more conduct than the Guidelines definition, then it cannot be a qualifying offense.<sup>22</sup>

McMillan argues that his two prior convictions under a Pennsylvania drug offenses statute<sup>23</sup> are not “controlled substance” offenses because the statute criminalizes mere offers to buy or sell. That argument is foreclosed by our precedent,<sup>24</sup> and a panel of this Court cannot abrogate that precedent.<sup>25</sup> McMillan argues that this Court erred in our earlier consideration of the Pennsylvania statute of conviction because we failed to consider case law from the Pennsylvania Superior Court criminalizing mere “solicitation.”<sup>26</sup> He argues that the cited Pennsylvania Superior Court case shows a “realistic probability” that Pennsylvania uses his statute of conviction to prosecute individuals who offer to buy or sell controlled substances.<sup>27</sup> However, in another recent precedential opinion, this Court specifically considered the Pennsylvania Superior Court case McMillan points to, and decided that it does not undermine our determination that the Pennsylvania statute does not criminalize mere “offers to sell,” nor is the statute otherwise overbroad.<sup>28</sup>

<sup>23</sup> See 35 Pa. Stat. Ann. § 780-113(a)(30). McMillan’s convictions included a 2003 conviction for possession with intent to manufacture or deliver cocaine and a 2005 conviction for unlawful delivery of a controlled substance.

<sup>28</sup> United States v. Daniels, 915 F.3d 148, 163-64 (3d Cir. 2019) (“Daniels purportedly cites to an authority suggesting that Pennsylvania does in fact prosecute offers to sell. . . . We do not agree.” (citing Donahue, 630 A.2d at 1242-44)).

III.

For the reasons stated in this opinion, we will affirm the conviction and sentence.

4 circumstances under which the firearm is found; and eight,
5 proximity to drugs or drug profits.

6 Ladies and gentlemen, in addition to your verdict on 7 Counts 1 through 4 of the indictment the verdict form asks you
8 to answer two special interrogatories, or questions. Those two 9 questions are, one, did the defendant Mr. McMillan on or about
10 August 14, 2015 knowingly possess a Heckler & Koch .45 caliber
11 handgun; and two, did the defendant Mr. McMillan possess that 12 firearm in or affecting interstate or foreign commerce as 13 defined in these instructions.

14 In or affecting interstate commerce defined. The 15 second interrogatory asks whether the firearm was, whether the 16 firearm specified was in or affecting interstate or foreign 17 commerce. This means that the government must prove that at 18 some time before the defendant's possession the firearm had 19 travelled in interstate commerce. It is sufficient for the 20 government to satisfy this element that proving that any time
21 prior to the date in the indictment the firearm crossed a state
22 line.

23 The government does not need to prove that 24 Mr. McMillan himself carried it across the state line or to 25 prove who carried it across or to how it was transported. It

1 is also not necessary for the government to prove that
2 Mr. McMillan knew that the firearm had travelled in interstate
3 commerce. In this regard there has been evidence that the 4 firearm in question was manufactured in a different state other
5 than the state where Mr. McMillan is charged with possessing
6 it. You are permitted to infer from this fact that the firearm
7 travelled in interstate commerce. However, you are not
8 required to do so.

9           Having instructed you on the elements of the offenses
10 charged in the indictment, I remind you that the burden lies on 11 the government to prove each and every element of each offense
12 beyond a reasonable doubt. This concludes my instructions
13 explaining the law regarding the testimony and other evidence
14 and the offenses charged.

15           Now let me explain some things about your 16 deliberations in the jury room and your possible verdict. The 17 first thing that you should do in the jury room is choose
18 someone to be your foreperson. That person will speak for the 19 jury here in court. He or she will also preside over your 20 deliberations. However, the views and vote of the foreperson
21 are entitled to no greater weight than those of any other
22 juror.

23           Second, I want to remind you that your verdict,
24 whether it is guilty or not guilty, must be unanimous. To find 25 the defendant guilty of each offense every one of you must

1 what is your verdict, the jury has selected guilty.

2 On question 4-A, if you find Mr. McMillan guilty of
3 possession of a firearm in furtherance of a drug trafficking
4 crime on or about July 1, 2015 to August 14, 2015, please
5 indicate the drug trafficking crime that you have found Mr.
6 McMillan committed, mark all that apply. All three are applied
7 with respect to each substance.

8 With respect to the special interrogatories, 1, did
9 defendant Jamar McMillan on or about August 14, 2015 knowingly
10 possess a Heckler & Koch .45 caliber handgun, the answer the 11 jury has picked is yes. Question number 2, was the firearm
12 described in special interrogatory number 1 possessed in or 13 affecting interstate or foreign commerce, the jury has selected 14 yes, and the verdict is properly signed by our foreperson and 15 dated. Counsel, would either party exercise the right to a
16 poll of the jury?

17 MS. SCHINNOUR: No, Your Honor, thank you.

18 MS. GRELLA: No, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. It appearing that 20 the jurors have reached a unanimous verdict on this part of the 21 jury proceeding, the clerk of court is directed to enter a
22 judgment in accordance with that verdict. Ladies and 23 gentlemen, there is an additional part of this case.

24 Now that you have completed your initial 25 deliberations there is one additional matter for you to

1 consider. Count 5 of the indictment charges Mr. McMillan with
2 being a felon in possession of a firearm on or about August 14,
3 2015, which is a separate violation of federal law Section
4 922(g).

5           It is necessarily separate and distinct from the 6 charge of possession of a firearm in furtherance of a drug
7 trafficking crime. To find Mr. McMillan guilty of this offense
8 you must find that the government proved each of the following
9 three elements beyond a reasonable doubt.

10           First, that Mr. McMillan was previously convicted of 11 a felony, that is a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term
12 exceeding one year. Second, that after this conviction
13 Mr. McMillan knowingly possessed a Heckler & Koch .45 caliber
14 handgun. And third, that Mr. McMillan's possession was in or 15 affecting interstate commerce as that term has already been 16 defined for you.

17           By answering the two special interrogatories on the 18 verdict form in the affirmative you have already determined
19 that the government has satisfied its burden of proving the 20 second and third elements of this offense. The only remaining
21 issue for you to decide with respect to Count 5 is whether the 22 government has satisfied its burden of proving the first 23 element of the offense beyond a reasonable doubt, that is 24 whether Mr. McMillan had been convicted of a crime punishable
25 by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year prior to August

1 14, 2015. Counsel, would you please approach?

2 (Side bar at 2:52 p.m.)

3 THE COURT: The government may present evidence of the 4 length of the punishment, but this is clearly a matter that I
5 would think we could stipulate to. What is your client
6 prepared to do, Ms. Grella?

7 MS. GRELLA: My client wants her to present testimony.

8 MS. SCHINNOUR: And, Your Honor, there is in the 9 evidence Government's Exhibit 42 and 43 a certified copy of 10 conviction. Those convictions do indicate what the sentence
11 was within their document, and the government would represent
12 or redirect the jury to Government's Exhibits 42 and 43.

13 THE COURT: All right. I think that can be done by 14 oral argument as opposed to your, because it's already in 15 evidence. I don't think they need a separate sponsoring
16 witness, but if your client would insist on that then I think
17 you need to identify by exhibit number what those documents
18 are, direct the jury to, the jury's attention to those 19 documents for purposes of proving the first element of that 20 charge.

21 MS. SCHINNOUR: Okay.

22 THE COURT: Okay?

23 MS. SCHINNOUR: Thank you, Your Honor.

24 (Side bar concluded at 2:54 p.m.)

25 THE COURT: Ladies and gentlemen, at this time Ms.

1 Schinnour will direct your attention to the evidence which they
2 believe establishes the first element. As I said, the second
3 two elements are already determined. That first element that 4 the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt is whether 5 Mr. McMillan had been convicted of a crime punishable by 6 imprisonment for a term exceeding one year prior to August 14,
7 2015. The government may present evidence to you on that.
8 Ms. Schinnour?

9 MS. SCHINNOUR: Thank you, Your Honor. At this time I
10 would like to direct the jury's attention to two previously
11 submitted exhibits. Should I --

12 THE COURT: No, you can do it from counsel table.

13 MS. SCHINNOUR: For two previously submitted exhibits
14 which you may have examined in your previous deliberations.
15 These are Government's Exhibits 42 and 43. These documents are 16 both certified copies of conviction records pertaining to 17 Mr. Jamar L. McMillan with a date of birth of June 8th of 1984.

18 Within these documents, and I'll begin with 19 Government's Exhibit 42, there is information related to a
20 prior conviction which lists as its grade an "F", which the 21 government submits is a felony level offense. On page 2 of the 22 document it does indicate that on December 15th of 2003 there
23 was a guilty plea to this offense which is labeled as a felony
24 offense, and the period of confinement or the potential penalty
25 of this offense was a minimum of two years. Additionally if

1 you look at the --

2 (Brief pause.)

3 MS. SCHINNOUR: The fourth page of the document at 4 line 5 it does indicate that on that day on December 15th of 5 2003 the defendant in open court pleads guilty to Count 1 and 6 it indicates herein that he was to serve a sentence of one to 7 two years in SCI Camp Hill.

8 Moving on to Government's Exhibit 43, which has been 9 previously submitted to the jury, this is again a certified
10 conviction record. This conviction record relates to Jamar
11 McMillan, with a date of birth of June 8th of 1984. This 12 record indicates that on April 6th of 2006 there was a guilty
13 plea to a felony level charge, indicated here that the minimum
14 penalty for that offense was one year and the maximum was 15 three.

16 And moving on to page 4 of the document it does
17 indicate at line 4 that on April 6th of 2006 there was a
18 sentence imposed in that case and the defendant was ordered to 19 serve one to three years in SCI Camp Hill. I will note for the 20 jury that the SCI Camp Hill is indeed a prison facility here in 21 the state of Pennsylvania.

22 THE COURT: All right.

23 MS. SCHINNOUR: Thank you, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Ms. Grella, is there any evidence that you
25 would like to present?

1 MS. GRELLA: No, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: All right. Ladies and gentlemen, at this
3 time I will provide you with the second verdict form, which 4 asks the single question, on the charge of being a felon in 5 possession of a firearm on or about August 14, 2015 against
6 defendant Jamar McMillan, what is your verdict. I invite you
7 now to return to the jury deliberation room to complete this 8 second and final verdict form. Ms. McKinney, would you kindly
9 escort the jury?

10 (Jury deliberations continued at 2:56 p.m.)

11 THE COURT: We are in recess until the jury returns a 12 second verdict.

13 (Recess taken at 2:56 p.m.)

14 (Trial resumed at 3:17 p.m.)

15 THE COURT: Please be seated. The court has been 16 apprised of a verdict on the bifurcated phase of this 17 proceeding with respect to Count 5 and the charge of 18 Mr. McMillan being a felon in possession of a firearm in 19 violation of Section 922(g)(1). Ms. McKinney, would you please
20 escort the jury?

21 COURTR00M DEPUTY: Yes.

22 (Jury seated at 3:19 p.m.)

23 THE COURT: Ladies and gentlemen, please be seated.
24 Again I would ask the foreperson to please stand, and I do have 25 the same two questions for you. Have you reached a verdict on

1 the second aspect of this proceeding, the bifurcated Count 5
2 matter?

3 JURY FOREPERSON: Yes.

4 THE COURT: Is your verdict unanimous?

5 JURY FOREPERSON: Yes.

6 THE COURT: If you would please hand the envelope to 7 Ms. McKinney?

8 (Brief pause.)

9 THE COURT: The verdict form is in order. Ladies and 10 gentlemen, I will now publish the verdict. Count 5, on the 11 charge of being a felon in possession of a firearm on or about 12 August 14, 2015 against defendant Jamar McMillan, what is your 13 verdict, the jury has selected guilty. The form is 14 appropriately signed and dated by the foreperson. Counsel, 15 would either party like to exercise their right to a poll of 16 the jury with respect to this aspect?

17 MS. SCHINNOUR: No, Your Honor, thank you.

18 MS. GRELLA: No, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Very good. Thank you. It appearing that 20 the jurors have reached a unanimous verdict, the clerk of court
21 is directed to enter judgment in accordance with the verdict.
22 Ms. McKinney, here is the official verdict slip.

23 COURTROOM DEPUTY: Thank you.

24 THE COURT: Members of the jury, I would like to speak
25 with you privately very briefly in the jury room before you
