OPINION OF THE COURT

CABRET, Associate Justice.

¶ 1 Louis Willis appeals his convictions for conspiracy to defeat or evade tax and aiding and abetting willful failure to collect or pay over tax. For the reasons discussed below, we affirm his convictions on both counts.

I. BACKGROUND

¶ 2 From 2000 to 2006, Willis served as the Director of the Virgin Islands Bureau of Internal Revenue (“BIR”). From 2002 to 2008, during his tenure as Director, and shortly after his term ended—Willis furnished false tax clearance letters to Gerald Castor—the owner of Balbo Construction, Inc. and Willis’ friend. Willis signed the letters in place of Judith Creighton, the Supervisor of the Tax Records Management Division, who was in charge of issuing tax clearance letters to entities in good standing.

¶ 3 The letters provided by Willis represented that Balbo Construction was current in all of its tax obligations. In fact, Balbo Construction owed BIR payments for gross receipts taxes and had not filed corporate tax returns for a number of years. Thus, prior to receiving assistance from Willis, Castor’s application for a tax clearance letter had been denied by Creighton because Balbo Construction was delinquent in its tax obligations. Because the Department of Licensing annually requires entities and their owners to be current on all taxes prior to obtaining a business license, Balbo Construction used the false letters provided by Willis to obtain a business license from the Department.¹

¶ 4 Moreover, on or around February 14, 2008, Willis prepared gross receipt returns on behalf of Balbo Construction, which underreported its gross receipts for the years 2002–2007. One year later, Balbo Construction paid the outstanding gross receipts tax. After a BIR audit by the Internal Revenue Service (“IRS”) and the Virgin Islands Office of the Inspector General, the entities discovered Willis’ activities. Specifically, the IRS found that in exchange for the false clearance letters, Castor, on behalf of Balbo Construction, paid Willis five thousand dollars for “accounting services.”

¶ 5 Based on the preceding facts, the People initiated charges against both Willis and Castor for criminal tax offenses. Castor later entered into a plea agreement with the Government. In exchange for a reduced sentence, Castor entered a guilty plea and agreed to testify on behalf of the Government.

¶ 6 In a motion to dismiss, Willis argued before the Superior Court that the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction to hear his case, on the theory that jurisdiction lay exclusively in the District Court by operation of section 22 of the Revised Organic Act of 1954 and section 1612(a) of title 48 of the United States Code. The Superior Court denied his motion to dismiss in a November 10, 2014 order. Trial took place from August 18 through 25, 2015. The jury found Willis guilty of conspiracy to defeat or evade tax in violation of 33 V.I.C. § 1522 (Count 1) and aiding and abetting willful failure to collect or pay over tax pursuant to 14 V.I.C. § 11 and 33 V.I.C. § 1523 (Count 2). As to Count 3, fraud and false statements in violation of 33 V.I.C. § 1525(2), the jury returned a “not guilty” verdict. For the purposes of sentencing, the Superior Court, in an October 1, 2015, judgment and commitment, merged Count 2 with Count 1 and stayed the imposition of a separate sentence for the conviction on Count 2.

¶ 7 On September 25, 2015, Willis filed a timely notice of appeal,² asserting that there was insufficient evidence to convict him, that he is immune from criminal liability under executive

R. 5(a)(1), as in effect when the appeal was taken in this case, provided that “[a] notice of appeal filed after the announcement of a judgment or order - but before entry of the judgment or order - is treated as filed on the date of and after the entry of judgment.” Current V.I. R. APP. P. 5(b)(1), provides that “[a] notice of appeal filed after the announcement of a decision, sentence, or order—but before entry of the judgment or order—is treated as filed on the date of and after the entry of judgment.” Because the appellate rules provisions applicable at the time this appeal was commenced and briefed were located in the V.I. immunity principles, and that the Superior Court erroneously instructed the jury. However, Willis neglected to assert in his opening brief that the Superior Court had erred in rejecting the subject matter jurisdiction argument he had raised below in his motion to dismiss, effectively abandoning that argument on appeal. See V.I. R. APP. P. 22(m) (providing that “[i]ssues that were . . . (2) raised or objected to but not briefed . . . are deemed waived for purposes of appeal,” but also that the Supreme Court may nevertheless address such an issue on appeal “that affects substantial rights”). As a result, on appeal, this Court directed the parties to brief the issue of whether the exercise of jurisdiction in this matter by the Superior Court was proper, in light of the jurisdictional analysis undertaken and ruling made by the Superior Court in People v. Willis, 60 V.I. 60, 67-80 (V.I. Super. Ct. 2014). The People argued that the Superior Court had jurisdiction over the matter, and Willis conceded. Immediately following oral arguments, Willis filed with this Court a “Motion for Leave to Withdraw Assertions in his Brief in Favor of the Superior Court’s Jurisdiction as Improvidently Filed and to Assert that the Superior Court Lacked Jurisdiction.” Although we generally do not allow the filing of motions asserting new legal authorities after oral argument, we granted the motion because issues affecting subject matter jurisdiction may be asserted at any time. Martinez v. Colombian Emeralds, Inc., 51 V.I. 174, 187 (V.I. 2009).

Superior Court"). Because the Superior Court's October 1, 2015 judgment and commitment constitutes a final order, this Court has jurisdiction over this appeal. See Allen v. HOVENSA, L.L.C., 59 V.I. 430, 434 (V.I. 2013). Generally, the "trial court's application of law is subject to plenary review, while findings of fact are reviewed for clear error." Brathwaite v. People, 67 V.I. 609, 613 (V.I. 2017). We exercise plenary review over matters concerning the Superior Court's exercise of subject matter jurisdiction. See In re Guardianship of Smith, 54 V.I. 517, 520 (V.I. 2010); Judi's of St. Croix Car Rental v. Weston, 49 V.I. 396, 399 (V.I. 2008).

III. DISCUSSION

¶ 9 On appeal, Willis challenges the merits of his convictions on numerous grounds, including purportedly defective jury instructions, the statute of limitations, separation of powers principles, and the sufficiency of the evidence. However, it is well-established that prior to reaching the merits of a case, we must determine whether we have subject matter jurisdiction over the dispute, including whether the Superior Court properly exercised jurisdiction over this case in the first instance. See V.I. Gov't Hosps. & Health Facilities Corp. v. Gov't of the V.I., 50 V.I. 276, 279 (V.I. 2008); see also Rivera-Moreno v. Gov't of the V.I., 61 V.I. 279, 304 (V.I. 2014) (noting that this Court possesses "an independent obligation to determine that the Superior Court properly exercised jurisdiction."). Having considered the parties' positions on jurisdiction, we conclude that the Superior Court properly exercised jurisdiction over this matter. Furthermore, as explained in detail below, we find Willis' arguments on the merits unpersuasive and affirm his convictions on both counts.

A. The Superior Court's Jurisdiction

¶ 10 "Under the 1954 Revised Organic Act, 48 U.S.C. § 1612, the District Court of the Virgin Islands had 'jurisdiction over federal questions, regardless of the amount in controversy, and general original jurisdiction over questions of local law, subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the local courts over civil actions where the amount in controversy was less than $500.” Id. at 358. However, in passing the 1984 amendments to the Revised Organic Act, “Congress vested traditional federal jurisdiction—federal question and diversity—in the district court, and permitted the Government of the Virgin Islands to establish exclusive jurisdiction in the territorial court over local matters.” Bluebeard’s Castle, Inc. v. Gov’t of the V.I., 321 F.3d 394, 401 (3d Cir. 2003). Subsequently, by act of the territorial legislature, on October 1, 1991, the Territorial Court assumed jurisdiction over all civil matters in accordance with title 4, section 76(a) of the Virgin Islands Code and on January 1, 1994, the court’s jurisdiction was expanded to include all criminal matters. Browne v. People, 50 V.I. 241, 255 n.16 (V.I. 2008). Today, “the relative jurisdictions of the territorial and district courts in the Virgin Islands mirror the division of authority between state and Article III district courts.” Bluebeard’s Castle, 321 F.3d at 400.

¶ 11 However, the territorial legislature’s power to vest jurisdiction in the Superior Court is limited to those “causes in the Virgin Islands over which any court established by the Constitution and laws of the United States does not have exclusive jurisdiction.” 48 U.S.C. § 1611(b). In turn, § 1612(a) provides, in relevant part, that “[t]he District Court of the Virgin Islands shall have exclusive jurisdiction over all criminal and civil proceedings in the Virgin Islands with respect to the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands, regardless of the degree of the offense or of the amount involved, except the ancillary laws relating to the income tax enacted by the legislature of the Virgin Islands.” Thus, the operative question is whether Willis’ violations of the territorial gross receipts tax laws constitute violations of “the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands” within the meaning of § 1612(a).

¶ 12 In answering this question, “the appropriate inquiry is to apply the rules of statutory construction to determine what Congress intended at the time it enacted this provision,” see Bryan v. Fawkes, 61 V.I. 201, 231 (V.I. 2014) (collecting cases). Generally, the interpretation of any statute begins with plain and ordinary meaning of the statutory language. Thomas v. People, 69 V.I. 913, 923 (V.I. 2018). However, “[t]echnical words and phrases and such others as may have acquired a peculiar and appropriate meaning in the law, shall be construed and understood according to their peculiar and appropriate meaning.” Id. Additionally, even “where a statutory scheme is plain and internally consistent, no statute should be read literally if such a reading is contrary to its objective and this Court must consider whether applying the statute’s literal language leads to absurd consequences or is otherwise inconsistent with the Legislature’s intent.” Heyliger v. People, 66 V.I. 340, 350 (V.I. 2017).

¶ 13 Here, given the long and complicated history of taxation in the Virgin Islands and of the relationship between the jurisdiction of the federal and territorial courts, any attempt to construe the meaning of §1612(a) necessitates a thorough review the history, context, and expressions of congressional intent surrounding its enactment. Indeed, as discussed in detail below, considering the unambiguous statements of congressional intent found in both the legislative history surrounding the passage of the 1984 amendments to the Revised Organic Act, and in the very text of the amendments themselves, it is apparent that, as used in 48 U.S.C. §1612(a), the phrase “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands” is a term of art, specifically referring to the provisions of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code made applicable to the Virgin Islands under the “mirror tax” system.³ Accordingly, we begin with a discussion of the overall intentions of

³ In its order denying Willis’ motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, the Superior Court compared the Black’s law definition of “income tax” with the statutory definition of “gross receipts tax,” to conclude that a gross receipts tax is

Congress in passing the 1984 amendments as outlined in previous decisions of both this Court and the Third Circuit, before turning to the more specific question of what precisely Congress meant by “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands,” in §1612(a). See Edwards v. HOVENSA, LLC, 497 F.3d 355, 358 (3d Cir. 2007) (“A brief analysis of the jurisdiction of the District Court of the Virgin Islands is necessary to put the issue before us in perspective.”).

¶ 14 Following the lead of the Third Circuit, this Court has previously described the effect of the 1984 amendments as a Congressional authorization for “the Virgin Islands Legislature to end the District Court’s role as a territorial court by divesting it of jurisdiction over actions brought under Virgin Islands law that do not fall within the District Court’s federal question, diversity, or supplemental civil and criminal jurisdiction.” Hodge v. Bluebeard’s Castle, Inc., 62 V.I. 671, 682 (V.I. 2017) (citing 48 U.S.C. §1612(a) through (c)). Furthermore, we observed that “[t]he District Court now exercises the same jurisdiction as any other federal district court, with a few exceptions such as continuing concurrent jurisdiction with the Superior Court over local crimes that are related to federal crimes and proceedings related to the income tax laws of the Virgin Islands.” Id. at n.5.

¶ 15 In previous decisions that have required the court to ascertain Congress’s purpose in enacting the 1984 amendments, the Third Circuit has repeatedly turned to the remarks of Senator Weicker, which were offered as a “full explanation of the provisions of [the] committee amendment,” and were read into the record without objection. 130 Cong. Rec. S23,787 (daily ed. Aug. 10, 1984). For example, in Parrott v. Gov’t of the V.I., 230 F.3d 615, 620 (3d Cir. 2000), the court explained that the purpose of 48 U.S.C. § 1613 is to ensure “that the relations between the not an income tax. However, as explained below, we conclude that, as used in § 1612(a) the phrase “income tax” should not be considered in isolation, but must instead be considered in context as part of the legal term of art: “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands.”

Willis v. People

local courts of the Virgin Islands and the federal courts . . . shall be the same as the relation between the state courts and the federal courts. . . .” (quoting 130 Cong. Rec. S10,527 (daily ed. Aug. 10, 1984) (statement by Sen. Weicker)). And, in determining that the jurisdictional divestiture provisions of the 1984 amendments were not self-executing, the Third Circuit relied on Senator Weicker’s explanation that “[t]he decision as to whether jurisdiction over strictly local causes should be vested in the district court or the local courts will be made by local law.” Estate of Thomas Mall, Inc. v. Territorial Court of the V.I., 923 F.2d 258, 263 (3d Cir. 1991) (quoting 130 Cong. Rec. S10,527 (daily ed. Aug. 10, 1984)). Finally, the court has identified as one of the main purposes of the 1984 amendments Congress’ intention “to put an end to the ‘situation of both the district court and the local court having jurisdiction over strictly local causes.’” United States v. Gillette, 738 F.3d 63, 70 (3d Cir. 2013) (quoting 130 Cong. Rec. S23,789 (daily ed. Aug. 10, 1984)).⁴

¶ 16 Thus, while neither this Court nor the Third Circuit has yet had occasion to specifically consider what Congress meant by “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands,” or what Congress intended to accomplish by including this language in §1612(a), there is ample precedent to show us precisely where to look for guidance. Indeed, an examination of the Congressional record reveals three details of Senator Weicker’s explanation that are dispositive of the question presented here. Each of these details will be discussed, in turn.

⁴ We note that, in its jurisdictional analysis, the Superior Court placed undue emphasis on the Third Circuit’s decisions in Pan Am. World Airways, Inc. v. Duly Authorized Gov’t of Virgin Islands, 459 F.2d 387, (3d Cir. 1972), Excavation Const. No. One Contracting Corp. v. Quinn, 673 F.2d 78, 81 (3d Cir. 1982), and Birdman v. Office of the Governor, 677 F.3d 167, 177 (3d Cir. 2012). First, two of these cases were decided prior to the enactment of the 1984 amendments to the Revised Organic Act which drastically altered the overall jurisdictional relationship between the federal and territorial courts. But more importantly, none of these cases touched upon the specific question presented in this matter: whether the territorial gross receipts tax constitutes an “income tax law applicable to the Virgin Islands” within the meaning of § 1612(a).

¶ 17 In describing the purpose and intended effect of the proposed amendment to §1612(a),

Senator Weicker explained, in relevant part:

In analogy to § 31 of the Organic Act of Guam, 48 U.S.C. § 1421i(h), the district court will also have exclusive jurisdiction in all proceedings under the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands, except certain ancillary laws enacted by the legislature of the Virgin Islands. This provision is based on the consideration that since the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands are the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code uniformity of interpretation requires that questions involving the interpretation of those laws be litigated only in the Federal courts. This provision appears to be necessary in view of the characterization of the income tax laws of the Virgin Islands as a local Territorial tax which is reviewable in the district court only by virtue of local legislation. Dudley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 258 F.2d 182 (3rd Cir. 1958). Another reason for this provision is the fact[] that this bill would abolish the concurrent jurisdiction of the district court over causes based on local law, if local law has vested jurisdiction over them in the local courts. See Section 22 (b).

130 Cong. Rec. S23,789 (daily ed. Aug. 10, 1984).

¶ 18 First, and most simply, this explanation includes the statement that “the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands are the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. . . .” This statement clarifies, without ambiguity, precisely what Congress understood the operative statutory language to mean. As used and understood by Congress, the phrase “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands” did not mean any law pertaining to any tax on any form of income—as a literal reading of the statute might suggest—but rather specifically referred to those portions of the Internal Revenue Code made applicable to the Virgin Islands pursuant to the Naval Services Appropriation Act of 1939 which created the system of taxation now known as the “mirror code.”

¶ 19 Moreover, the Congressional Record not only reveals precisely what Congress meant by “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands,” but further explains why Congress believed it necessary to grant the district court exclusive jurisdiction over this area of the law. That is, “[u]niformity of interpretation requires that questions involving the interpretation of those laws be litigated only in Federal courts.” In this case, “those laws” refers to the “the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code” mentioned in the previous line. And, given that one overarching purpose of the 1984 amendments was to permit the territorial legislature to divest the district court of jurisdiction to hear cases based in local law, Congress was particularly worried by language included in the Third Circuit’s decision in Dudley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 258 F.2d 182 (3rd Cir. 1958) finding “that the tax here in dispute [a provision of the mirror code] is actually not a tax of the United States but a territorial income tax.” So, Senator Weicker explained that in order to maintain uniformity in the law, it appeared necessary to expressly provide for the district court’s exclusive jurisdiction in cases involving the interpretation of the mirror code “in view of the [Third Circuit’s] characterization of the income tax laws of the Virgin Islands as a local Territorial tax which is reviewable in the district court only by virtue of local legislation.” 130 Cong. Rec. S23,789 (daily ed. Aug. 10, 1984).

Opinion of the Court

¶ 20 Thus, given that Congress’ clear objective in establishing the district court’s exclusive jurisdiction over this area of law was to ensure the uniformity of interpretation of the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, we see no Congressional purpose that would be served by counting the territorial gross receipts tax among the “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands.” There exists no possibility of concern over the uniformity of interpretation of the gross receipts tax because it is purely a creature of local legislation and is not borrowed from, or patterned on, any provision of the Internal Revenue Code. Additionally, our interpretation is further bolstered by the other stated purposes of Congress in enacting the 1984 amendments discussed above: (1) to make the relationship between the territorial courts and the district court more like the relationship between state courts and the courts of the United States, and (2) to empower the territorial legislature to divest the district court of jurisdiction over purely local matters.

¶ 21 The Superior Court based its jurisdictional determination, in part, on the fact that the gross receipts tax is local law. And while, on the surface, §1612(a) does not draw a distinction between laws enacted by the territorial legislature and provisions of the Internal Revenue Code applicable through the mirror tax system, it is also undeniable that one of Congress' chief purposes in adopting the 1984 amendments was to grant the local, territorial courts jurisdiction over questions of local, territorial law. See Gillette, 738 F.3d at 70 (quoting 130 Cong. Rec. S23,789 (daily ed. Aug. 10, 1984)) (observing Congress' intention "to put an end to the 'situation of both the district court and the local court having jurisdiction over strictly local causes. . ."). Stated plainly, the gross receipts tax provisions of the Virgin Islands Code are precisely the type of purely local laws enacted by the territorial legislature over which Congress intended to vest jurisdiction in the local courts.

¶ 22 Finally, to the extent that any doubt remains, Senator Weicker also explained that the exclusive jurisdiction provision of §1612(a) was intended to be analogous in function to its counterpart in the Organic Act of Guam; specifically, 48 U.S.C. §1421i(h).⁵ Section 1421i(h)(1) provides, in relevant part: "the District Court of Guam shall have exclusive original jurisdiction over all judicial proceedings in Guam, both criminal and civil, regardless of the degree of the offense or of the amount involved, with respect to the Guam Territorial income tax." Fortunately, whereas Congress failed to specify the meaning of the phrase "income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands" in the text of the Revised Organic Act of the Virgin Islands, Congress did include in the Organic Act of Guam a definition of the phrase "Guam territorial income tax." "The incometax laws in force in Guam pursuant to subsection (a) of this section shall be deemed to impose a separate Territorial income tax, payable to the government of Guam, which tax is designated the “Guam Territorial income tax.” 48 U.S.C. § 1421i(b). In turn, subsection (a), patterned off of the Virgin Islands’ mirror tax provision, states that “[t]he income-tax laws in force in the United States of America and those which may hereafter be enacted shall be held to be likewise in force in Guam.” 48 U.S.C. § 1421i(a). Synthesizing these provisions together then, the “Guam territorial income tax,” over which the district court has exclusive jurisdiction, refers specifically to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code made applicable to Guam through its own mirror tax system. Thus, given that the text of the Organic Act of Guam clarifies that the district court has exclusive jurisdiction only over actions related to the provisions of its own mirror code, and given that Congress intended for §1612(a) to function “in analogy” to its Guam-focused statutory counterpart, it is clear that Congress, in using the phrase “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands,” understood that phrase as a term of art, referring specifically to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code made applicable to the Virgin Islands by virtue of the mirror tax system.⁶

¶ 23 When considered together and viewed in the proper historical context, these three aspects of the legislative history embodied in Senator Weicker’s explanation paint a clear picture of the purpose and intended effect of the 1984 amendments to §1612(a). Indeed, in Birdman v. Office of the Governor, 677 F.3d 167 (3d Cir. 2012), the Third Circuit turned to these same remarks to support its conclusion that the exclusive jurisdiction provision of §1612(a) applied only as to the local courts and not other United States district courts, because “[t]he Virgin Islands income tax is analogous to a federal tax; thus the Virgin Islands local courts lack jurisdiction.”⁷ Considering these remarks—(1) that the “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands” are the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code; (2) that the purpose of the exclusive jurisdiction provision is to maintain uniformity of interpretation of those provisions of the Internal Revenue Code; and (3) that §1612(a) was intended to function “in analogy” to its counterpart in the Organic Act of Guam—in their proper historical context as described in the previous decisions of this Court and the Third Circuit, we are compelled to conclude that in using the phrase “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands” in §1612(a), Congress intended to refer specifically to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code that apply to the Virgin Islands through the mirror tax system. This conclusion harmonizes the statutory language with both the stated intentions of Congress in amending §1612(a), and with Congress’ overarching purpose in enacting the 1984 amendments generally: to give local courts jurisdiction over local law.

⁶ We recognize that the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has held that the Superior Court of Guam lacked jurisdiction over local income tax rebates because of the relevant exclusive jurisdiction statute related to the “Guam Territorial Income Tax.” Govt. of Guam v. Super. Ct. of Guam, 998 F.2d 754, 755 (9th Cir. 1993). There, however—unlike the local Virgin Islands gross receipts taxes—the Guam economic development tax rebates at issue were exemptions from the mirrored income taxes, which are, of course, “Guam Territorial Income Tax[es]” over which the Guam District Court has exclusive jurisdiction.

¶ 24 Accordingly, because we conclude that the territorial gross receipts tax does not constitute an “income tax law applicable to the Virgin Islands” within the meaning of § 1612(a), we hold that the Superior Court properly exercised jurisdiction over this criminal matter charging Willis with violations of the territorial gross receipts tax laws.

¶ 25 Turning to the merits of the case, Willis makes several arguments on appeal, each of which will be addressed, in turn, below. For the reasons that follow, we affirm Willis' conviction on both counts.

B. Jury Instructions

¶ 26 First, Willis asserts that the Superior Court committed several errors in its instructions to jury. However, as Willis failed to object to the jury instructions at trial, we review the instructions only for plain error. Monelle v. People, 63 V.I. 757, 763 (V.I. 2015). Thus, the judgment of the Superior Court will not be reversed unless Willis demonstrates (1) an error, (2) that is plain, (3) that affects substantial rights. Id. "Even then, this Court will only reverse where the error seriously affects the fairness, integrity, or public reputation of judicial proceedings." Francis v. People, 52 V.I. 381, 390–91 (V.I. 2009) (internal quotation marks omitted).

¶ 27 Willis argues that Superior Court erred in instructing the jury that the People were required to prove that he conspired to evade or defeat the gross receipts tax "with intent to defraud the Government of the Virgin Islands of money or property" because the quoted language does not appear in the text of 33 V.I.C. § 1522. In support, Willis cites Kawashima v. Holder, 565 U.S. 478 (2012), in which the Supreme Court of the United States considered "whether aliens who commit certain federal tax crimes are subject to deportation as aliens who have been convicted of an aggravated felony." Id. at 480. Even on the premise that this decision has any relevance to the question presented here—and it does not—Willis has failed to explain how the Superior Court's addition of the challenged language affected, in any way, either his substantial rights or the fairness and integrity of the judicial proceedings. Thus, Willis has failed to demonstrate that the addition of this language constituted plain error warranting reversal.

¶ 28 Paradoxically, Willis next argues that the Superior Court erred in failing to instruct the jury that the People were required to prove that Willis acted with the “specific intent to defraud or to defeat or evade a tax.” As discussed in the previous paragraph, the Superior Court did instruct the jury that the People were required to prove that he conspired to evade or defeat the gross receipts tax “with intent to defraud the Government,” and therefore Willis’ argument is without factual or legal merit.

¶ 29 Willis further contends that the Superior Court erred in failing to specifically instruct the jury on the statute of limitations.⁸ However, even if the court did not separately instruct the jury on the statute of limitations, the court did provide the jury with a copy of the second amended information listing the elements the prosecution was required to prove including, as to both counts, that the crimes occurred “on or about the period between January 1, 2002 through February 25, 2008.” Thus, considering the jury instructions as a whole, we cannot conclude that the Superior Court’s failure to separately instruct the jury on the statute of limitations constituted plain error. See Freeman v. People, 61 V.I. 537, 544 (V.I. 2014) (“A challenge alleging reversible error in jury instructions must be considered in light of the complete jury instructions and the whole trial record.”).

¶ 30 Next, Willis argues that the Superior Court erred in failing to instruct the jury that the prosecution was required to prove that Willis’ false tax clearance letters were material, citing Neder v. United States, 527 U.S. 1 (1999). However, even if the court’s failure to mention materiality in this context could rise to level of plain error, that error would nevertheless be harmless and cannot justify reversal in this case. As the High Court observed in Neder: “In general, a false statement is material if it has a natural tendency to influence, or [is] capable of influencing, the decision of the decision making body to which it was addressed. In a prosecution [for evading or defeating a tax], several courts have determined that any failure to report income is material. Under either of these formulations, no jury could reasonably find that [the defendant's] failure to report substantial amounts of income on his tax returns was not "a material matter." Id. at 16. Applying this same rationale, we conclude that because the tax clearance letters issued by Willis plainly influenced the relevant decision making body's decision to issue Balbo a business license, no jury could reasonably conclude that the letters were not material. Thus, Willis has failed to demonstrate any plain error in the Superior Court's jury instructions affecting substantial rights sufficient to warrant reversal.

⁸ Willis fails to offer any example of what, in his opinion, an appropriate instruction would be.

C. Other Arguments

¶ 31 Next, Willis argues, in vague and confusing terms, that his conviction violates the principle of separation of powers enshrined in the Revised Organic Act. It appears that the main thrust of this argument is that Willis was simply exercising his discretion as director of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and was not aware that he was breaking the law. However, we agree with the People that this argument is "not credible and wholly without merit." The evidence of record establishes that Willis signed and issued, in his capacity as director of the B.I.R., multiple tax clearance certificates stating that Balbo Construction had satisfied its gross receipts tax liability, at a time when Willis knew this to be false. Willis has not, and indeed cannot, point to any authority in support of the facially preposterous claim that issuing official government documents—here tax clearance letters—containing known falsehoods represents an appropriate exercise of discretion.

¶ 32 Additionally, Willis asserts that the charges against him were "void ab initio" because, in the context of tax crimes, government officials must be charged under 33 V.I.C. § 1533 rather than § 1522. Willis cites our decision in Velazquez v. People, 65 V.I. 312 (2016), for the proposition that “where two statutes criminalize a conduct, . . . the more specific one applies.” However, this seriously misstates the rule articulated in that case. In Velazquez, we considered which of two apparently conflicting statutes controlled where one statute required that persons bringing firearms into the territory report the firearms immediately, while another section of the code generally provided that any action statutorily required to be performed on a Sunday—a legal holiday in the Virgin Islands—is instead required to be performed the following Monday. Id. at 318-19. There we explained that “when a party contends that there exist two conflicting statutes, and uncertainty lingers, casting doubt on which statute is controlling, we emphasize that . . . the more specific statute takes precedence over the more general one, unless it appears the Legislature intended for the more general to control.” Id. at 319. In this case, however, there is no conflict or apparent contradiction between the provisions of § 1522—criminalizing conspiracy to evade or defeat taxes generally—and § 1533, which outlines various tax crimes specifically committed by government employees. Although there may be some potential overlap between the two statutes, “the power to make decisions to charge a particular crime is reposed within the discretion of the prosecutor,” and Willis has failed to offer any relevant argument as to why the prosecutor’s election to charge him under § 1522 was in any way improper or prejudicial in this case. See Castillo v. People, 59 V.I. 240, 275 (V.I. 2013).

¶ 33 Willis’ next assertion, that the Superior Court erred in failing to grant his motion for judgment of acquittal, is similarly meritless. Willis appears to argue that the court erred in failing to submit to the jury the issue of whether the prosecution was barred by the relevant six-year statute of limitations, and specifically argues that his conviction must be overturned because the last overt act committed in furtherance of the conspiracy—the filing of Balbo’s false tax returns on February

25, 2008—was “not in the information” and “not submitted to the jury.” This argument fails for two reasons. First, Willis has failed to offer any authority in support of the proposition that specific details such as the last overt act must be charged in the information. See V.I. R. APP. P. 22(m) (providing that “[i]ssues... only adverted to in a perfunctory manner or unsupported by argument and citation to legal authority are deemed waived for purposes of appeal”). Second, Balbo’s gross receipts tax returns were admitted into evidence at trial and were therefore properly submitted to the jury.

¶ 34 Finally, Willis presents two arguments as to the sufficiency of the evidence. First, he argues that there is insufficient evidence to convict him of conspiracy to defeat or evade the gross receipts tax because he lacked the requisite mens rea, as he did not think that his actions were criminal and never entered an agreement with Balbo to defeat the tax. However, the evidence demonstrates that Willis acted knowingly and willfully. Castor testified that because of his friendship with Willis, he asked Willis to help him with obtaining the tax clearance letters—which Willis did—even though both Castor and Willis were aware that Castor was delinquent on his taxes. Second, Willis argues that there is insufficient evidence to sustain his conviction for aiding and abetting Castor’s violation of 33 V.I.C. § 1523 because Castor pled guilty to violating § 1524 rather than § 1523 and, according to Willis, there is no evidence in the record of any violation of § 1523. However, because Willis failed to raise this issue in any of his arguments concerning the sufficiency of evidence before the trial court, instead arguing only that the evidence failed to demonstrate that Willis acted with the requisite mens rea, Willis waived this argument on appeal. See V.I. R. APP. P. 22(m) (“Issues that were . . . not raised or objected to before the Superior Court . . . are deemed waived for purposes of appeal. . .”).

IV. CONCLUSION

¶36 Appellant, Louis Willis, was convicted after a criminal trial in the Superior Court of the Virgin Islands (“Superior Court”) and, in this appeal, seeks to have the jury’s verdict reversed. However, Willis does not argue that the Superior Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over this criminal case. Rather, this Court, upon noticing the challenge to the trial court’s subject matter jurisdiction in the record, ordered the parties to brief the issue. See Estate of Skepple v. Bank of Nova Scotia, 69 V.I. 700, 718-21 (V.I. 2018) (stating that the four requirements to a valid judgment are: (1) subject matter jurisdiction, (2) personal jurisdiction, (3) the issue decided was the issue presented, (4) the court otherwise acted in accordance with due process of law).¹ From this Court’s earliest decisions, we have applied the rule that, before we may consider an appeal, we must satisfy ourselves that subject matter jurisdiction exists to consider the case, even if the parties are in agreement to its existence. Virgin Islands Gov’t Hosp. & Health Facilities Corp. v. Gov’t of the

¹ This Court has repeatedly said that the parties may not stipulate to the law and that it is the substance of the pleading that controls the court’s actions, not mere labels of the parties. As such, this Court, when presented with a colorable challenge to the subject matter jurisdiction of the Superior Court in the record, has an obligation to review the issue on appeal. H&H Avionics, Inc. v. Port Auth., 52 V.I. 458, 460 (V.I. 2009) (“Although the parties agree that this court lacks . . . jurisdiction . . . , their agreement does not relieve the court of the need to conduct an independent analysis of the jurisdictional question.” (quoting *Wisconsin Bell, Inc. v. This Court, being an appellate court, is a court of limited jurisdiction and must be satisfied of both the trial court’s and its own subject matter jurisdiction before it considers the merits of an appeal. *See People v. ² The standard of review as to the question of the existence of the Superior Court’s subject matter jurisdiction is not altered by this procedural history. Questions relating to either this Court’s or the Superior Court’s subject matter jurisdiction are subject to plenary review. Hansen v. O’Reilly, 62 V.I. 494, 507 (V.I. 2015) (quoting *Brunn v. ³ An expansive annotated legislative history of the jurisdictional statutes of the courts of the Virgin Islands setting forth, inter alia, the history of amendments regarding the jurisdiction of those courts, under both federal and territorial law, is attached hereto as Appendix A and explicitly incorporated herewith. While a case making a conclusion about jurisdiction is of little value if it is not anchored in the actual statutory language, having the exact statutory language available for reference enables just such an evaluation. Obviously, simply because any number of provisions are included in the appendix does not dictate that they will be relied upon in the ultimate analysis and decision.

¶38 Although I agree with the majority’s analysis and also agree that the Superior Court possessed subject matter jurisdiction authorizing it to conduct the trial, I contend that the majority, while claiming to rely upon the “plain language” of the statute in question, ignores the actual words of subsection 22(a) in its analysis and places the focus, instead, almost exclusively on case law interpretations and on the legislative history, as if these are the primary means by which the plain meaning of the statutory language is determined—as opposed to using the legislative history as providing the context necessary to clarify ambiguous language in the statute that may be open to interpretation. See Crandon v. United States, 494 U.S. 152, 158 (1990) (recognizing that the entire process of statutory interpretation is controlled by the presumption that the ordinary meaning of the chosen words manifests the legislative intent); e.g., In re Sherman, 49 V.I. 452, 456 (V.I. 2008) (noting that, where the plain language of a statute discloses the legislative intent, the interpretive inquiry is over); see also United States v. Lanier, 520 U.S. 259, 265 n.5 (1997).

¶39 Indeed, the majority explicitly states that “the unambiguous statements of congressional intent found in both the legislative history surrounding the passage of the 1984 amendments to the Revised Organic Act, and in the very text of the amendments themselves” lead them to their conclusions, emphasizing that their primary focus of analysis is directed elsewhere—not focused on the actual text used and utilizing legislative history to provide context for determining the meaning of that text. Because one of the primary animating principles underlying this “Plain Meaning” rule of statutory interpretation is that legislatures are presumed to have expressed their intent through the words of the statute as written, see Ubiles v. People, 66 V.I. 572, 590 (V.I. 2017) (citing Haynes v. Otley, 61 V.I. 547, 561 (V.I. 2014); Bryan v. Fawkes, 61 V.I. 416, 462 (V.I. 2014); Rohn v. People, 57 V.I. 637, 646 n.6 (V.I. 2012); Murrell v. People, 54 V.I. 338, 352 (V.I. 2010); Rosenberg v. XM Ventures, 274 F.3d 137, 141 (3d Cir. 2001)), I believe the majority’s analysis is an inappropriate application of the rules of statutory construction and invites arbitrary interpretation (and application) of statutes.

¶40 This Court, like the United States Supreme Court, has recognized, if the plain language of the statute discloses the legislative intent, that is the end of the interpretive inquiry, and there is no need or justification for a court to go beyond the words of the statute as written. See, e.g., F.B.I. v. Abramson, 456 U.S. 615, 648 (1982) (O’Connor, J., dissenting) (quoting United States v. Wiltberger, 18 U.S. (5 Wheat.) 76, 95-96 (1820) (“Where there is no ambiguity in the words, there is no room for construction.”)); see also SAS Institute, Inc. v. Iancu, 138 S. Ct. 1348, 1358 (2018) (“[P]olicy considerations cannot create an ambiguity when the words on the page are clear.” (citing SEC v. Sloan, 436 U.S. 103, 116-117 (1978))); In re Sherman, 49 V.I. at 456. Yet, in today’s opinion, the majority inverts the process by which the meaning of any statute is to be understood, thereby creating ambiguity in statutory analysis and inviting judicial legislation in its application, a principle of decision I cannot support.⁵ Therefore, while joining the majority's analysis, I view it as an interpretation that merely buttresses the appropriate statutory Plain Meaning analysis.

¶41 Additionally, subsections 22(a) and 22(c) of the 1954 Act are both addressed to the subject matter jurisdiction of the trial courts of the Virgin Islands, providing that: (1) the District Court's subject matter jurisdiction "with respect to the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands" is exclusive and (2) its subject matter jurisdiction relating to violations of Virgin Islands criminal statutes arising out of the same course of conduct giving rise to a prosecution for violations of federal law is concurrent with local, territorial courts established by the Legislature. 48 U.S.C. § 1612(a), (c) (emphasis added). Because a proper understanding of the legislative intent of any

⁵ This rule of statutory interpretation giving primacy to the plain meaning of a statute is, inter alia, an application of the principle that laws in derogation of individual rights guaranteed by the Constitution are subject to strict construction. Wilberger, 18 U.S. at 95 ("To determine that a case is within the intention of a statute, its language must authorize us to say so. It would be dangerous, indeed, to carry the principle, that a case which is within the reason or mischief of a statute, is within its provisions, so far as to punish a crime not enumerated in the statute, because it is of equal atrocity, or of kindred character, with those which are enumerated."); Bank of Columbia v. Okley, 17 U.S. (4 Wheat.) 235, 241-42 (1819) ("We readily admit, that the provisions of this law are in derogation of the ordinary principles of private rights, and, as such, must be subject to strict construction."). The underlying principle for the rule of strict construction of laws in derogation of individual rights, e.g., criminal laws and laws applying penalties or forfeitures, is that a narrow application is most appropriate because the law favors free exercise of an individual's rights and because the courts are not the proper branch of government for passing laws, which is the practical effect of an expansive judicial interpretation of a statute. Wilberger, 18 U.S. at 95 ("The rule that penal laws are to be construed strictly . . . is founded on the tenderness of the law for the rights of individuals; and on the plain principle that the power of punishment is vested in the legislative, not in the judicial department. It is the legislature, not the Court, which is to define a crime, and ordain its punishment."); Western Union Tel. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U.S. 1, 44 (1910) ("We are not at liberty to read into the statute terms not found therein or necessarily implied, with a view to limiting the tax to local business, which the legislature, in the terms of the act, impose upon the entire business of the company."); but see generally Southern P. Co. v. Jensen, 244 U.S. 205, 221 (1912) (Holmes, J.) ("I recognize without hesitation that judges must and do legislate, but they do so only interstitially; they are confined from molar to molecular motions. A common-law judge could not say, I think the doctrine of consideration a bit of historical nonsense and shall not enforce it in my court."); BENJAMIN A. CARDOZO, THE NATURE OF THE JUDICIAL PROCESS 15-16 (2d photo. reprint. 1961) (Yale University Press 1921) ("One weighty task of the system of the application of law consists then in this, to make more profound the discovery of the latent meaning of positive law. Much more important, however, is the second task which the system serves, namely the filling of gaps which are found in every positive law in greater or less measure. You may call this process legislation, if you will. In any event, no system of jus scriptum has been able to escape the need of it." (citation omitted)). Therefore, because the courts are not equipped with the capacity to legislate, they may only interpret a statute to apply according to its express language and by necessary implication; inserting limiting terms that are not necessarily implied and venturing into legislative history and debates when no ambiguity exists to create a meaning to a statute is the equivalent of legislating. Western Union, 216 U.S. at 44.

given statute is garnered from the linguistic indicators of the language utilized and the subject matter of the legislation, National Ass'n of Home Builders v. Michigan Dept. of Treasury, 489 U.S. 803, 809 (1989))), I first discuss subject matter jurisdiction as it relates to how the varying terminology of the topic operates to limit a court’s authority to act so as to provide the appropriate context in which to evaluate the plain language of the statute in question for its Plain Meaning. See BENJAMIN N. CARDOZO, THE NATURE OF THE JUDICIAL PROCESS 81 (2d photo. reprint. 1961) (Yale University Press 1921) (“[S]tatutes are to be viewed, not in isolation or in vacuo, as pronouncements of abstract principles for the guidance of an ideal community, but in the setting and the framework of the present-day conditions . . .”). Following this discussion of subject matter jurisdiction as it relates to the statute in question, I elucidate my own Plain Meaning analysis based on proper respect for the role of the legislative branch of government and the limited role of the judiciary—a coordinate, co-equal branch of government—in ascertaining the plain meaning of the acts of the legislative branch of government.

I. DISCUSSION

¶42 I first note that this Court must more forcefully and consistently emphasize to the Superior Court that—before considering any error in the jury instructions, evidentiary rulings, or the sufficiency of the evidence—the judges must first consider the relevant statutory language because the accuracy of the jury instructions, relevance of evidence, and sufficiency of the evidence are dictated by the content of the statute. Ubiles, 66 V.I. at 590.⁶ Furthermore—and even more importantly, as here—the very power of the court to act is clarified by considering and analyzing the plain language of the statute.⁷

A. Subject Matter Jurisdiction

¶43 “Jurisdiction” is an expansive legal concept, and the use of the term should be studied carefully to determine which aspect of “jurisdiction” is being addressed. Perhaps the Supreme Court of the United States said it best when it stated, “It is as easy to give a general and

⁶ CARDOZO, supra note 4, at 14 (“Before we can determine the proportions of a blend, we must know the ingredients to be blended. Our first inquiry should therefore be: Where does the judge find the law which he embodies in his judgment?”); see also Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U.S. 11, 23 (1905) (“What, according to the judgment of the state court, are the scope and effect of the statute? What results were intended to be accomplished by it? These questions must be answered.”); Coffin v. United States, 156 U.S. 432, 458 (1895) (“[W]e must first ascertain, with accuracy, in what each consists of.”); Duggins v. People, 56 V.I. 295, 307 (V.I. 2012) (noting that, in determining the applicability of a statute of limitations, “we were required to determine the elements of a violation of” the crime charged (citing Miller v. People, 54 V.I. 398 (V.I. 2010))); Inniss v. Inniss, 65 V.I. 270 (V.I. 2016) (conducting a thorough review of all cases interpreting the laws governing division of marital property to determine if the definition by implication that had been adopted by the courts was sound); Coastal Air Trans. v. Royer, 64 V.I. 645, 652 n.8 (V.I. 2016) (counseling against relying on case law as authority when it mechanistically and uncritically applied provisions of the Restatements); Rennie v. Hess Oil V.I. Corp., 62 V.I. 529, 543 (V.I. 2015) (rejecting past interpretation of section 76 of title 24 of the Virgin Islands Code as not comporting with the plain language of the statute).

⁷ To say an issue is jurisdictional is to refer to a court’s adjudicatory capacity to either adjudicate the subject matter of the case or the rights in question as they relate to the parties, if a court is acting in personam, or to the res, if the court is acting in rem. Edward v. GEC, LLC, 67 V.I. 745, 754 (V.I. 2017); Prosser v. Pub. Services Comm’n, 56 V.I. 391, 405 (V.I. 2012) (“[A] statute is ‘jurisdictional’ only if ‘it governs a court’s adjudicatory capacity, that is, its subject-matter or personal jurisdiction,’ and that other statutes, even if couched in mandatory language are not jurisdictional if they do not intend to limit the authority to hear the case.” (quoting Henderson v. Shinseki, 562 U.S. 428, 435 (2011))); see also Vanderbilt v. Vanderbilt, 354 U.S. 416, 418 (1957) (holding that a court has no power to adjudicate personal rights and obligations without first acquiring personal jurisdiction over the person of the defendant); Vanterpool v. Gov’t of the V.I., 63 V.I. 563, 572 (V.I. 2015); First Am. Dev. Group/Carib, LLC v. WestLB AG, 55 V.I. 594, 611 (V.I. 2011) (noting that “[t]o say a statute is ‘jurisdictional’ is to say that ‘it governs the court’s adjudicatory capacity, that is, its subject-matter or personal jurisdiction’” (quoting Henderson, 562 U.S. at 435)). In contrast, to state that a statute is merely a “claims-processing” rule means that the intent of the limitation is “to promote the orderly progress of litigation by requiring that the parties take certain procedural steps at certain specified times,” but the intent is not to limit the court’s power—“jurisdiction”—to hear the matter. First Am. Dev., 55 V.I. at 611 (quoting Henderson, 562 U.S. at 435). “Where a party timely raises a claims processing rule that was violated by its opponent, we have no choice but to dismiss based on it.” Prosser, 56 V.I. at 403 n.9 (citing Gov’t of the V.I. v. Martinez, 620 F.3d 321, 328-29 (3d Cir. 2010)); cf. Brown v. People, 49 V.I. 378, 382-83 (V.I. 2008) (holding that a notice of appeal filed after the deadline set by court rule is subject to an excusable neglect analysis to extend the time for filing).

People*, 58 V.I. 341, 347 (V.I. 2013).¹⁰ More succinctly, when a court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, it lacks the power to act, and no action by the parties can give such power. Kempe’s Lessee v. Kennedy, 9 U.S. (5 Cranch) 173, 186 (1809) (“Their error was not in rendering a judgment against a person who was not proved by indictment to have committed the crime, but who, if guilty, they had no power to try. The proceedings were clearly coram non judice.”).¹¹ Therefore, the subject matter jurisdiction of a court may be considered at any time during a proceeding. Prosser v. Pub. Services Comm’n, 56 V.I. 391, 404 (V.I. 2012). It is for this important reason that this Court ordered briefing on this issue.¹²

They are not waived because they were not made in the lower court.”). Such limitations, however, do not foreclose the possibility of setting a statute of limitations after which time even a void judgment cannot be challenged. See O’Neil v. Northern Colo. Irrigation Co., 242 U.S. 20, 26 (1916) (citing Barker v. Harvey, 181 U.S. 481 (1901); Soper v. Lawrence Brothers Co., 201 U.S. 359, 367-68 (1906); *Montoya v. ¹² Fundamentally, courts must act according “to those rules and principles which have been established in our systems of jurisprudence for the protection and enforcement of private rights.” Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. (5 Otto) 714, 733 (1878). ¶45 When reviewing a challenge to the validity of a trial court's order, there are certain presumptions that apply with regards to challenges to the trial court's jurisdiction. Ct. 2010); cf. Prosser, 56 V.I. at 405 ("[P]rocedural errors—no matter how egregious—will not constitute jurisdictional defects." (quoting In re Smith, 54 V.I. at 526)); First Am. Dev. Group/Carib, LLC v. WestLB AG, S. Ct. Civ. No. 2012-0023, 2012 WL 1526100, at *1 (V.I. Apr. 30, 2012) (per curiam) (unpublished) (holding that a court's rules can neither expand nor contract its subject matter jurisdiction). The reasons for this are twofold. First, every court derives its power to act from the law as it exists. See Hollingsworth v. Barbour, 29 U.S. (4 Pet.) 466, 470 (1830) ("The circuit court of Washington county could take cognizance of the case presented to them by the complainant, by no principle of the common law, or rule of a court of equity. The powers to do so must be conferred by some law of Kentucky, within which the complainant must have brought himself, or the proceedings would be void for want of jurisdiction of the court."); see also Lessee of Hickey v. Stewart, 44 U.S. (3 How.) 750, 762 (1845) ("According to the decision in the case, Henderson v. Poindexter's Lessee, 25 U.S. (12 Wheat.) 543, 544 (1827), above referred to, Stark's claim, when submitted by his heirs to the Court of Chancery, was utterly void; and no power having been conferred by Congress, on that court, to take or exercise jurisdiction over it for the purpose of imparting to it legality, the exercise of jurisdiction was a mere usurpation of judicial power, and the whole proceeding of the court void." Second, under the Constitution, the most basic protection provided to the people is the due process right to be free from arbitrary deprivation of life, liberty, or property. Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 314 (1979). Therefore, we must address the Superior Court's very capacity to act in the first instance. Rivera-Moreno v. Gov't of the V.I., 61 V.I. 279, 304 (V.I. 2014) (citing In re Smith, 54 V.I. at 525-26). An early exposition as to the significance of subject matter jurisdiction was the case of Elliot v. Lessee of Peirsol, 26 U.S. 328, 340-41 (1828). In that case, the Court explained first that, where a court acts without authority, its judgments are void and of no legal effect. Second, it explained that "the jurisdiction of any Court exercising authority over a subject, may be inquired into in every Court." Id. at 340-41. The Court found the orders of the state court to be void because the state legislature had not conferred on the state court the power to order the acts done. Id. at 340-41. Therefore, if a court lacked subject matter jurisdiction when issuing a judgment, that judgment and "the proceedings are void and a mere nullity, and confer no right, and afford no justification, and may be rejected when collaterally drawn into question." Thompson v. Tolmie, 27 U.S. (2 Pet.) 157, 163 (1829); see generally Rhode Island, 37 U.S. at 718 ("However late this objection has been made or may be made in any cause in an inferior or appellate court of the United States, it must be considered and decided, before any court can move one further step in the cause; as any movement is necessarily the exercise of jurisdiction. Jurisdiction is the power to hear and determine the subject matter in controversy between parties to a suit, to adjudicate and exercise any judicial power over them; the question is, whether on the case before the court, their action is judicial or extra-judicial; with or without the authority of law, to render a judgment or decree upon the rights of the litigant parties. If the law confers the power to render a judgment or decree, then the court has jurisdiction; what shall be adjudged or decreed between the parties, and with which is the right of the case, is judicial action, by hearing and determining it." (citing Arredondo, 31 U.S. at 691; Watkins, 28 U.S. at 193)).

authority which organizes the court, and is to be sought for in the general nature of its powers, or in authority specially conferred.” (emphasis added)); e.g., 4 V.I.C. § 76(b) (“[T]he Superior Court shall have original jurisdiction in all criminal actions.”), are presumed to have jurisdiction over both the cause of action and the parties, which by extension includes a presumption that process was served correctly. Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 462 (1940). This presumption is dispositive absent contradiction in the record or contradiction by extrinsic evidence. Hanley v. Donoghue, 116 U.S. 1, 5 (1885). As such, on appeal from a court of general jurisdiction, absent a situation in which the appellate court, through the course of determining an appeal, notices a lack of subject matter jurisdiction plainly implicated in the record, it is the obligation of the party challenging the trial court’s jurisdiction to do so affirmatively.

¶46 In contrast to courts endowed with general jurisdiction, there are courts of limited subject matter jurisdiction, also called special subject matter jurisdiction.¹³ These are courts whose authority over controversies, the “subject,” are limited to specific categories of cases. BLACK’S L. DICT., at 869 (“[L]imited jurisdiction[:] Jurisdiction that is confined to a particular type of case or that may be exercised only under statutory limits and prescriptions. – Also termed special

They apply to court of a special and limited jurisdiction, which are erected on such principles that their judgment, taken alone, are entirely disregarded, and the proceedings must show their jurisdiction. The courts of the United States are all of limited jurisdiction, and their proceedings are erroneous, if the jurisdiction be not shown in them.”); Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. (6 Wheat.) 264, 378 (1821) (“The second section of the third article of the constitution defines the extent of the judicial power of the United States. Jurisdiction is given to the Court of the Union in two classes of case. In the first, their jurisdiction depends on the character of the cause, whoever may be the parties. This class comprehend ‘all cases in law and equity arising under this constitution, and the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority.’ . . . In the second class, the jurisdiction depends entirely on the character of the parties. In this are comprehended ‘controversies between two or more States, between a State and citizens of another State,’ ‘and between a State and foreign States, citizens or subjects.’ If these be the parties, it is entirely unimportant what may be the subject of the controversy. Be it what it may, the parties have a constitutional right to come into the Courts of the Union.”); Ex parte Bollman, 8 U.S. (4 Cranch) 75, 93 (1807) (“Courts which originate in the common law possess a jurisdiction which must be regulated by their common law, until some statute shall change their established principles; but courts which are created by written law, and whose jurisdiction is defined by written law, cannot transcend that jurisdiction.”).

jurisdiction.”). Courts of limited or specific jurisdiction do not benefit from a presumption of jurisdiction, and proof of jurisdiction of both the subject matter and the person must appear in the record. Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 511 U.S. 375, 377 (1994) (“It is to be presumed that a cause lies outside this limited jurisdiction, and the burden of establishing the contrary rests upon the party asserting jurisdiction.” (citing Turner v. Bank of N.A., 4 U.S (4 Dall.) 8, 11 (1799); McNutt v. General Motors Acceptance Corp., 298 U.S. 178, 182-83 (1936))). In fact, absent record evidence establishing such, these courts are presumed to lack both subject matter and personal jurisdiction. Kokkonen, 511 U.S. at 377 (“It is to be presumed that a cause lies outside this limited jurisdiction, and the burden of establishing the contrary rests upon the party asserting jurisdiction.” (citing Turner, 4 U.S at 11; McNutt, 298 U.S. at 182-83))).

¶47 Furthermore, the powers of courts of limited jurisdiction are constrained to the subject matter and/or territory designated by statute. Crooke, 54 V.I. at 246 (“It is well established that ‘the powers of courts of local or special jurisdiction are restricted to the subject matter or territory designated by statute.’” (quoting 3A NORMAN J. SINGER & J. D. SHAMBIE SINGER, SUTHERLAND STATUTES & STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION § 67:3 (6th ed. 2003))). The fact that a court of general jurisdiction, or a judge appointed thereto, is hearing a matter does not convert a statutory grant of limited subject matter jurisdiction into a grant of general jurisdiction. Boswell’s Lessee v. Otis, 50 U.S (9 How.) 336, 348 (1850) (“Under the assumption of a special power, it cannot be made general by any supposed necessity, beyond the provisions of the act.”).¹⁴ By extension, then, “[w]hen a senior judicial officer elects to hear a case that is traditionally within the purview of

These all differ widely from the county courts of Virginia, which have all those powers of general jurisdiction usually found in circuit courts, courts of common pleas, courts of chancery, and others of similar character. Exclusive jurisdiction is the power of a trial court “to adjudicate an action or class of actions to the exclusions of all other courts.” *Martinez v. B. Statutory Interpretation²¹

¶50 Under the Constitution, the most basic protection provided to the people is the due process right to be free from arbitrary deprivation of life, liberty, or property. Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 314 (1979). "Due process of law is a summarized constitutional guarantee of respect for those personal immunities which, as Mr. Justice Cardozo twice wrote for the Court, are 'so rooted in the traditions and conscience of our people as to be ranked as fundamental,' or are 'implicit in the concept of ordered liberty.'" Rochin v. California, 342 U.S. 165, 168 (1952) (quoting Snyder

²⁰ E.g., Corbett v. Nutt, 77 U.S. (10 Wall.) 464, 475 (1870) ("A court could not by the mere force of its decree transfer title to land lying without its jurisdiction from the party in whom it was vested by the will of Mrs. Hunter. A court of equity acting upon the person of a defendant may control the disposition of real property belonging to him situated in another jurisdiction, and even in a foreign country. It may decree a conveyance and enforce its execution by process against the defendant, but neither its decree nor any conveyance under it, except by the party in whom the title is vested, is of any efficacy beyond the jurisdiction of the court."); see also Johnson v. Powers, 139 U.S. 156, 159 (1891) ("A judgment in rem binds only the property within the control of the court which rendered, and a judgment in personam binds only the parties to the judgment, and those in privity with them."); Hanson v. Denckla, 357 U.S. 235, 246 n.12 (1958) ("Founded on physical power, the in rem jurisdiction of a state court is limited by the extent of its power and by the coordinate authority of sister States. The basis of the jurisdiction is the presence of the subject property within the territorial jurisdiction of the forum state." (citing McDonald v. Mabey, 243 U.S. 90, 91 (1917); Rose v. Himley, 8 U.S. (4 Cranch) 241, 277 (1808); Overby v. Gordon, 177 U.S. 214, 221-22 (1900))); Mississippi & Mo. Ry. Co. v. Ward, 67 U.S. (2 Black) 485, 495-96 (1862); see generally Rose, 8 U.S. at 276 ("It is conceded that the legislation of every country is territorial; that beyond its own territory, it can only affects its own subjects or citizens. It is not easy to conceive a power to execute a municipal law, or to enforce obedience to that law without the circle in which the law operates. A power to seize for the infraction of a law is derived from the sovereign, and must be exercised, it would seem, within those limits which circumscribe the sovereign power."); Estate of Ludington v. Jaber, 54 V.I. 678, 681 (V.I. 2011) (discussing property rights in personam); Dyndul v. Dyndul, 541 F.2d 132, 378 n.2 (3d Cir. 1976); BLACK'S L. DICT., at 1332 (defining "res" as "An object, interest, or status, as opposed to a person <jurisdiction of the res—the real property in Colorado>").

²¹ When engaging in statutory interpretation, the court must first gain context. See Commonwealth v. Bean, 80 Mass. 52, 53 (Mass. 1859) ("We are first to ascertain, by a careful examination of the statute, what act the legislature had in view, and intended to make penal, and then see if that act, thus ascertained, is charged in the complaint or indictment. If there is nothing in the context or in other parts of the statute, or in statutes in pari materia, to control or modify the sense and meaning of the terms in which the offence is defined, then it may be presumed that the terms in the complaint are used in the same sense with those in the statute, and whatever that prohibits the complaint charges. In such a case, the offence may be described and charged in the words of the statute. Otherwise, it may be necessary to frame the complaint in such terms as to designate the offence intended with precision."); e.g., Wallace v. People, 2019 VI 24, ¶88 (Swan, J., concurring).

v. Massachusetts, 291 U.S. 97, 105 (1934); Palko v. Connecticut, 301 U.S. 319, 325 (1937)). States and self-governing territories are at liberty to define crimes and regulate court jurisdiction and procedures according to what they believe constitutes fair public policy except when, in doing this, their actions offend “some principle of justice so rooted in the traditions and conscience of our people as to be ranked fundamental.” Almendarez-Torres v. United States, 523 U.S. 224, 228 (1998); Snyder, 291 U.S. at 10-5; see also Rochin, 342 U.S. at 168. That is to say, courts must act within the limits of due process. Skepple, 69 V.I. at 721 (stating that the fourth requirement of a valid judgment is that the court otherwise acted in accordance with due process of law).

¶51 It bears repeating that the entire process of statutory interpretation is controlled by the presumption that the ordinary meaning of the chosen words manifests the legislative intent. Lanier, 520 U.S. at 265 n.5; Crandon, 494 U.S. at 158. Therefore, all endeavors of statutory interpretation begin with a thorough consideration of the statutory language, the statutory design, and the object of and policy underlying the statute, controlled by a presumption that the ordinary meaning of the chosen words manifests the legislative intent. Crandon, 494 U.S. at 158 (citing K-mart Corp. v. Cartier, Inc., 486 U.S. 281, 291 (1988); Pilot Life Ins. Co. v. Dedeauz, 481 U.S. 41, 51 (1987)). While “[r]egard for [the] purposes [of the statute] should infuse the construction of the legislation if it is to be treated as a working instrument of government and not merely as a collection of English words,” United States v. Dotterweich, 320 U.S. 277, 280 (1943), laws must be read, understood, and applied in light of the practical affairs of people in society as it exists and in such a manner as to effectuate the purpose of the statute, not undermine it. See Commonwealth v. Regan, 64 N.E. 407, 407 (Mass. 1902) (“The statute imposes a penalty and it should be construed in a reasonable, practical way rather than so as to make the business impossible or a lottery.”). The rules and canons of statutory interpretation and construction have the overarching objective that

[a]ll laws should receive a sensible construction. General terms should be so limited in their application as not to lead to injustice, oppression, or absurd consequence. It will always, therefore, be presumed that the legislature intended exceptions to its language, which would avoid results of this character. The reason of the law in such cases should prevail over its letter.

Gov't of the V.I. v. Berry, 604 F.2d 221, 225 (3d Cir. 1979) (quoting United States v. Kirby, 74 U.S. (7 Wall.) 482, 486-87 (1868)). Therefore, courts must assume that the legislature intends for the entirety of the statutory language, as well as the whole statutory scheme, to be effective, unless to do so would lead to unjust or absurd results or would otherwise undermine the legislative intent. Cornelius v. Bank of Nova Scotia, 67 V.I. 806, 822 (V.I. 2017) (citing Gilbert v. People, 52 V.I. 350, 356 (V.I. 2009)); see also Dupigny v. Tyson, 66 V.I. 434, 440 (V.I. 2017); In re Visteon Corp., 612 F.3d 210, 226 (3d Cir. 2010).

¶52 Although such a statement is a gross over simplification, it is commonly said to be “black-letter law” that, if the plain language of the statute discloses the legislative intent, the interpretive inquiry is at an end.²² While this rule of statutory construction is an easy starting point, one should be mindful that, though a literal interpretation of statutory language is preferred, “the intention prevails over the letter” requiring that a literal reading of any statute be avoided if such a reading would be contrary to its objective, i.e., legislative intent. United States v. Wells, 519 U.S. 482, 491 (1997); Gilbert, 52 V.I. at 356 (quoting Gov't of the V.I. v. Knight, 989 F.2d 619, 626 (3d Cir. 1993)). Essentially, the language of a statute must be considered as the conclusive statement of legislative intent, unless the legislature has unequivocally shown its intent to be the contrary. E.g., Wells, 519 U.S. at 498-99; Lopez v. People, 60 V.I. 534, 537 (V.I. 2014). Certainly, “the surest way to misinterpret a statute is to follow its literal language without reference to its purpose.” Viacom Int’l, Inc. v. FCC, 672 F.2d 1034, 1040 (2d Cir. 1982).

²² See generally CARDOZO, supra note 4, at 14 (“There are times when the source [of the law] is obvious. The rule that fits the case may be supplied by the constitution or by statute. If that is so, the judge looks no farther. The correspondence ascertained, his duty is to obey. The constitution overrides a statute, but a statute, if consistent with the constitution, overrides the law of judges. In this sense, judge-made law is secondary and subordinate to the law that is made by legislators. . . . [Although, t]here are gaps to be filled.”); e.g., Willberger, 18 U.S. at 95-96; In re Sherman, 49 V.I. at 456.

¶53 Regarding the operational mechanics of interpretation, if statutes are interrelated—such as a licensing scheme or, as here, the jurisdictional provisions of the 1954 Act and the jurisdictional provisions passed by the Legislature—they must be read in reference to each other, i.e., in pari materia. Phillip v. People, 58 V.I. 569, 590 (V.I. 2013).²³ Interpretations that are unjust or lead to absurd results must be avoided because they are inconsistent with legislative intent. Gilbert, 52 V.I. at 356. An interpretation that renders a statute (or any part or language thereof) inoperative, nonsensical, or superfluous, or that defies rationality is absurd. Dupigny, 66 V.I. at 440 (citing United States v. Fontaine, 697 F.3d 221, 228 (3d Cir. 2012)).

¶54 Further, penal statutes are to be interpreted and construed strictly, but “they are not to be construed so strictly as to defeat the obvious intention of the legislature. The maxim is not to be so applied as to narrow the words of the statute to the exclusion of cases which those words, in their ordinary acceptance, or in that sense in which the legislature obviously used them, would comprehend. The intention of the legislature is to be collected from the words they employ. Where there is no ambiguity in the words, there is no room for construction.” Wiltberger, 18 U.S. at 95-96; see also Ward v. People, 58 V.I. 277, 287 (V.I. 2013) (citing People v. Henley, 1 V.I. 397, 398

(D.V.I. 1937)); Sonson v. People, 599 V.I. 590, 608 (V.I. 2013). If a penal statute is ambiguous, that ambiguity must be resolved in favor of lenity to the criminal defendant. Ward, 58 V.I. at 286-87 (explaining the “rule of lenity”); see also United States v. Enmons, 410 U.S. 396, 411 (1973). Specifically, only when a statute is genuinely susceptible to two (or more) constructions, can the statute be said to be ambiguous. What is more, “[t]he rule of lenity applies only if, ‘after seizing everything from which aid can be derived,’ . . . we can make ‘no more than a guess as to what [the legislature] intended.’” Wells, 519 U.S. at 499 (quoting Reno v. Koray, 515 U.S. 50, 65 (1995); and citing Smith v. United States, 508 U.S. 223, 239 (1993); Lardner v. United States, 358 U.S. 169, 178 (1958)).

¶55 That being said—and as much as these rules tend to invite lawyers and judges to misadventure in the application of the rules and canons of construction—the failure to define a term does not ipso facto mean a statute is ambiguous.²⁴ Therefore, prior to venturing into considerations of legislative history and comments of legislators in the debates prior to the adoption of a given piece of legislation, determination of the plain meaning of any statute begins

with, indeed, requires a thorough consideration of, first, the statutory language, i.e., a consideration of the definitions of the words used.²⁵

¶56 Clarification of the intended meaning of words and phrases that may be necessary is gleaned from other linguistic indicators such as subject matter, context,²⁶ structure, and placement, and a word's meaning is "construed according to the common and approved usage of the English language." Dupigny, 66 V.I. at 440 (citing Almendarez-Torres, 523 U.S. at 228); *Miller v. If such application of the relevant definitions of the actual statutory language leaves the need for further clarification, history of amendments, the statutory design, the object of and policy

²⁵ Even in distinguishing whether a statute is a criminal punishment or a regulatory sanction, legislative labels do not control, as the focus is on the actual content of the statute, the language used; and a statute nominally entitled a civil penalty may be subject to the same statutory construction and constitutional due process restrictions that any other criminal statute would be subject. United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 747 (1987) ("To determine whether a restriction on liberty constitutes impermissible punishment or permissible regulation, we first look to legislative intent. Schall v. Martin, 467 U.S. [253,] 269 [(1984)]. Unless Congress expressly intended to impose punitive restrictions, the punitive/regulatory distinction turns on 'whether an alternative purpose to which [the restriction] may rationally be connected is assignable to it, and whether it appears excessive in relation to the alternative purpose assigned [to it].'" (citation omitted)).

Todman*, 13 V.I. 599, 606 n.4 (D.V.I. 1977). Rather, the various provisions governing interpretation make clear that statutes are to be read so as to fully effect the legislative intent, and the headings, location, etc. are guides in determining legislative intent that may provide clarity to otherwise ambiguous statutory language and enable the court to determine the plain meaning of a statute. *Strathearn S.S. ¶60 Having set forth the law relevant to subject matter jurisdiction and thoroughly elucidated the general rules of statutory interpretation, I now address the Plain Meaning of subsection 22(a) of the 1954 Act, 48 U.S.C. § 1612(a).

C. The Exclusive “Income Tax Jurisdiction” of the District Court Under Section 22 of the 1954 Organic Act, as Amended

¶61 It must first be recognized that this matter presents for consideration an amendment of a grant of jurisdiction, as the present version of subsection 22(a) of the 1954 Act was a substitution of the previous version of section 22 added in 1984, post at A-96-A-97, and when a court is granted jurisdiction, absent express repeal, that jurisdiction will not be interpreted to have been rescinded by a subsequent grant of similar jurisdiction to another tribunal or agency. Crooke, 54 V.I. at 246 (“When jurisdiction is once granted it will not be deemed to have been taken away by similar jurisdiction grant to another tribunal unless the statute is repealed.” (quoting 3A SUTHERLAND, STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION § 67:3)). If faced with the task of interpreting statutes providing time limits and other limitations that could be understood to limit a court’s jurisdiction, its very power to act, statutory requirements should only be held to be jurisdictional if there is a clear indication the legislature intended the statutory provision to operate as a limitation on the court’s adjudicatory capacity—the jurisdictional intent must be clear. First Am. Dev. Group/Carib, LLC v. WestLB AG, 55 V.I. 594, 602 (V.I. 2011) (quoting Henderson v. Shinseki, 562 U.S. 428, 435 (2011)); Brooks v. Gov’t of the V.I., 58 V.I. 417, 424 (V.I. 2013) (citing Henderson, 526 U.S. at 435-36). Determining jurisdictional intent requires that the statutory language be considered for the meaning of the express text in light of the context in which it is located and relevant historical treatment. Brady v. Cintron, 55 V.I. 802, 815 (V.I. 2011). When there is no clear label, then courts consider the structure of the statute and whether long-standing judicial precedent “compels the conclusion” that the statute imposes a jurisdictional limit. Id. If the express language unambiguously prescribes the jurisdictional limits, no further inquiry is necessary. Id.

¶62 The relevant portion of subsection 22(a) of the 1954 Organic Act provides as follows:

(a) The District Court of the Virgin Islands shall have the jurisdiction of a District Court of the United States, including, but not limited to, the diversity jurisdiction provided for in section 1332 of title 28, United States Code, and that of a bankruptcy court of the United States. The District Court of the Virgin Islands shall have exclusive jurisdiction over all criminal and civil proceedings in the Virgin Islands with respect to the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands, regardless of the degree of the offense or of the amount involved, except the ancillary laws relating to the income tax enacted by the legislature of the Virgin Islands. . . .

48 U.S.C. § 1612(a) (emphases added). As originally enacted, section 22 of the 1954 Act provided that the District Court had “general original jurisdiction” over breaches of laws enacted by the Legislature “exclusive jurisdiction over which is not conferred by this Act upon” the Superior Court. Post at A-95-A-96. This language did not change with the amendment in 1978. Post at A-96. Then, effective January 3, 1985, section 22 was amended to provide three new subparts. Post at A-96-A-97. In subsection 22(b), Congress provided that the District Court was to have general original jurisdiction over all causes arising under Virgin Islands law “the jurisdiction over which is not then vested by local law in the local courts of the Virgin Islands.” Post at A-97. Simultaneously, Congress, in subsection 22(a), provided for the District Court to “have exclusive jurisdiction over all criminal and civil proceedings in the Virgin Islands with respect to the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands” Post at A-96. It is the legal interaction of these two provisions that must be considered when determining the plain meaning of subsection 22(a) and ultimately the scope of the subject matter jurisdiction of the District Court—also, by implication, the subject matter jurisdiction of the Superior Court.

¶63 The first clause of subsection 22(a) plainly grants to the District Court subject matter jurisdiction equivalent to that granted to federal courts established under Article III of the Constitution. However, the second clause of this subsection expands upon this grant of subject matter jurisdiction to include exclusive subject matter jurisdiction over proceedings, both civil and criminal and irrespective of the degree of the crime, “with respect to the income tax laws applicable to” this Territory. 48 U.S.C. § 1612(a) (emphasis added). This second grant of exclusive “Income Tax Jurisdiction” in subsection 22(a) of the 1954 Act to the District Court is then immediately qualified by an exception that prosecutions pursuant to “ancillary laws” “relating to” income tax laws “enacted by” the Legislature are not within the District Court’s grant of subject matter jurisdiction. Id. (emphasis added).

¶64 “Law,” the singular form of “laws,” has multiple definitions, but the definition most appropriate when such word is modified by the words “income tax” is “the set of rules or principles dealing with a specific area of the legal system.” BLACK’S L. DICT., at 900; see also id. (“A statute <Congress passed a law>”). Alternatively, law is said to be “A rule of conduct established by custom, agreement, or authority,” “A body of such rules,” “A piece of enacted legislation.” COMPACT AMERICAN DICTIONARY: A CONCISE DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN ENGLISH 473 (1998). A “tax” being a “monetary charge imposed by the government on persons, entities, transactions, or property to yield public revenue” and being modified with the adjective “income,” “income tax” then logically is “a tax on an individual’s or entity’s net income.” BLACK’S L. DICT., at 1497.³¹

Income is the “money or other form of payment that one receives, usu. periodically, from employment, business, investments, royalties, gifts, and the like.” Id., 778.³² “Net income” is the “Total income from all sources minus deductions, exemptions, and other tax reductions. Income tax is computed on net income. Also termed net earnings.” Id., 779. Further, to say that a thing is “applicable” is to say that it “can be applied,” it is “appropriate” to apply. COMPACT AM. DICT., at 40. Therefore, the District Court has exclusive subject matter jurisdiction over criminal prosecutions pursuant to income tax laws taxing any person’s “net income” that are appropriately applied in the Virgin Islands and to its residents and/or citizens.

¶65 The excepting clause that follows this declaration qualifies the scope of this exclusive Income Tax Jurisdiction relating to “income tax laws applicable to” this Territory by removing from the scope of the District Court’s “Income Tax Jurisdiction” those “ancillary laws” “relating to” those laws, having been “enacted by the Legislature of the Virgin Islands,” taxing any person’s net income. To describe a law as “ancillary” is to say that it is “Supplementary, subordinate.” BLACK’S L. DICT., at 95; COMPACT AM. DICT., at 31 (“1. Subordinate. 2. Auxiliary; helping.”). To “relate” or to say something is “related” is to say that the things “have connection, relation, or reference.” COMPACT AM. DICT., at 695. So, an ancillary law relating to income taxes in the Virgin Islands is a “set of rules or principles dealing with a specific area of the legal system” that definition of taxes characterizes them as ‘contributions,’ other definitions refer to them as ‘imposts,’ ‘duty or impost,’ ‘charges,’ ‘burdens,’ or ‘exactions’; but these variations in phraseology are of no practical importance.” (quoting 1 THOMAS M. COOLEY, The Law of Taxation § 1, at 61-63 (Clark A. Nichols, 4th ed. 1924)); COMPACT AM. DICT., at 829 (“A contribution for the support of a government required of persons, groups, or businesses within the domain of that government.”); id., 423 (defining “income” as “The amount of money or its equivalent received in exchange for labor or services, from the sale of goods or property, or as profit from investments.”); id. (defining “income tax” as “A tax levied on net income.”).

is “supplementary,” “subordinate,” or “helping” to controlling laws that “have connection, relation, or reference” to “the income tax enacted by the Legislature of the Virgin Islands,”³³ and prosecutions arising out of such laws are not within the subject matter jurisdiction of the District Court, even if they may be in some broader, tangential sense related to “income tax laws.”

¶66 Certainly, Congress’s choice to categorize the District Court’s Income Tax Jurisdiction as exclusive demonstrates the intent that the District Court be the only court in which prosecutions for violations of criminal income tax laws be prosecuted in the Virgin Islands. Furthermore, the phrase “income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands” plainly includes the “Mirror Tax Code,” created when Congress passed the Naval Services Appropriation Act of 1939 making the federal Internal Revenue Code applicable to the Virgin Islands. 48 U.S.C. § 1397 (1984); e.g., Vitco, Inc. v. Gov’t of the V.I., 560 F.2d 180, 185 (3d Cir. 1977); Chicago Bridge & Iron Co. v. Wheatley, 430 F.2d 973, 977 (3d Cir. 1970).

¶67 However, Congress chose the expansive language of “applicable to” rather than saying income tax laws “of the Virgin Islands” or “enacted by the Virgin Islands” or utilizing language specifically stating that exclusive jurisdiction existed over “all income tax prosecutions arising from or conflicting with the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code made specifically applicable to the Virgin Islands.” This indicates a legislative expectation of future implementation of income taxes by the Legislature. In light of this choice of language, the plain legislative intent underlying the exclusive Income Tax Jurisdiction granted to the District Court was to make that court the exclusive court in which all matters applying income tax laws in the Virgin Islands are to be heard.

¶68 In contrast, a “gross-receipts tax” is “a tax on a business’s gross receipts, without deduction for costs of goods sold, or allowance for expenses or deductions.” BLACK’S L. DICT., at 1497; see also id. (defining “gross receipts” as “the total amount of money or other consideration received by a business taxpayer for good sold or services performed in a year, before deductions.” (citing 26 U.S.C. § 448; C.F.R. § 1.448-IT(f)(2)(iv))). By comparison, an “income tax” is a tax on “net income,” which is the “total income from all sources minus deductions, exemptions, and other tax reductions. Income tax is computed on net income. Also termed net earnings.” Id., 779. To say that a gross-receipts tax, a tax on the total amount of money earned prior to deductions, is an “income tax,” a tax on income after appropriate deductions, applicable to the Virgin Islands is to stretch and expand the language of the statute beyond its intent and beyond its breaking point.

¶69 While the gross-receipts tax relates to income in the broadest general sense, the Virgin Islands gross receipts tax does not implement a tax on net income and does not attempt to supplement the Mirror Tax Code enacted by Congress, a situation that would give rise to the need for the District Court to uniformly apply the laws passed by the Legislature so as to avoid conflicts between those laws and the Mirror Code. Simply, a gross-receipts tax is not an income tax applicable to, or enacted by, the Virgin Islands. The tax in question is not an income tax and does not relate to or bear on the application of the Mirror Code (or any other “income tax” provision); this prosecution falls outside the District Court’s exclusive Income Tax Jurisdiction provided for in subsection 22(a) of the 1954 Act. As such, the Superior Court, acting pursuant to the authority granted it by the Legislature, e.g., 4 V.I.C. § 76(b), validly exercised subject matter jurisdiction over this prosecution, and the judgment and commitment is not void.³⁴

II. CONCLUSION

¶70 Because I conclude the Superior Court properly exercised subject matter jurisdiction in this case and agree with the conclusions of the majority as to Willis's other challenges, I join the majority in affirming the convictions. However, because the purpose of the rules and canons of interpretation is to provide a singular method of coming to an understanding of enactments of the Legislature so as to avoid widely varying conclusions among different judges and courts, I write separately. In statutory interpretation, the ends do not justify the means.

³⁴ Having considered the language as written—and as used in context—had there been any ambiguity to the statute, I would next consider the history of amendments to this section. E.g., Heyliger, 66 V.I. at 354-56. As I have already concluded that the language of the statute is dispositive, I simply note that the history of amendment further supports the conclusion that a gross-receipts tax is not an income tax within the meaning of subsection 22(a). See post at A-95-A-97.

Third. Imprisoned on a criminal charge, or in execution under sentence of a court for a term less than his natural life.

The time of such disability shall not be a part of the time limited for the commencement of the action, but the period within which the action shall be brought shall not be extended in any case longer than two years after such disability ceases.

Section 9.—If a person entitled to bring an action die before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement thereof, and the cause of action survive, an action may be commenced by his personal representatives, after the expiration of the time and within one year from his death. If a person against whom an action may be brought die before the expiration of the time limited for the commencement thereof, and the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced against his personal representatives after the expiration of that time, and within six months after the issuing of letters testamentary or of administration.

Section 10.—When the commencement of an action is stayed by injunction or a statutory prohibition, the time of the continuance of the injunction or prohibition shall not be a part of the time limited for the commencement of the action.

Section 11.—No person shall avail himself of a disability unless it existed when his right of action accrued.

Section 12.—When two or more disabilities shall exist at the time the right of action accrues the limitation shall not attach until all such disabilities are removed.

Section 13.—No acknowledgement or promise shall be sufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract, whereby to take the case out of the operation of this chapter, unless the same is contained in some writing, signed by the party to be charged thereby; but this section shall not alter the effect of any payment of principal or interest.

Section 14.—Whenever any payment of principal or interest has been or shall be made upon an existing contract, whether it be a bill of exchange, promissory note, bond, or other evidence of indebtedness, if such payment be made after the same shall have become due, the limitation shall commence from the time the last payment was made.

Section 15.—When the cause of action has arisen in any State, Territory, or country between nonresidents of this District, and by the laws of the State, Territory, or country where the cause of action arose an action can not be maintained thereon by reason of the lapse of time, no action shall be maintained thereon in the District.

Chapter Three. Of the Parties to Actions

Section 1.—Every action shall be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except as otherwise provided in section three of this chapter; but this section shall not be deemed to authorize the assignment of a thing in action not arising out of contract.

Section 2.—In the case of an assignment of a thing in action, the action by the assignee shall be without prejudice to any setoff or other defense existing at the time of or before notice of the assignment; but this section shall not apply to a negotiable promissory note or bill of exchange transferred in good faith and upon valuable consideration before due.

Section 3.—An executor or administrator, a trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized by statute, may sue without joining with him the person for whose benefit the action is prosecuted. A person with whom, or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another, is a trustee of an express trust within the meaning of this section.

Section 4.—A wife may receive the wages of her personal labor, and maintain an action therefor in her own name and hold the same in her own right, and she may prosecute and defend all actions for the preservation and protection of her rights and property as if unmarried.

Section 5.—Actions may be commenced and prosecuted by infants, either by guardian or next friend, and by conservators on behalf of the person they represent.

Section 6.—In any action it shall be lawful for the court in which the action is pending to appoint a guardian ad litem to any infant or insane defendant in such action, and to compel the person so appointed to act. By such appointment such person shall not be rendered liable to pay costs of action; and he shall moreover, be allowed a reasonable sum for his charges as such guardian, to be fixed by the court, and taxed in the bill of costs.

Section 7.—A father, or in case of his death or desertion of his family, the mother, may maintain an action as plaintiff for the seduction of a minor daughter, and the guardian for the seduction of a ward, though the daughter or ward be not living with or in the service of the plaintiff at the time of the seduction or afterwards, and there be no loss of service.

Section 8.—A father, or in case of his death or desertion of his family, the mother, may maintain an action as plaintiff for the injury or death of a child, and a guardian for the injury or death of his ward.

Section 9.—An unmarried female over twenty-one years of age may maintain an action as plaintiff for her own seduction, and may recover therein such damages as may be assessed in her favor; but the prosecution of an action to judgment by the father, mother, or guardian, as described in section seven of this chapter last preceding, shall be a bar to an action by such unmarried female.

Section 10.—Persons, firms, or corporations, jointly liable upon the same obligation or instrument, including the parties to bills of exchange and promissory notes, may all or any of them be included in the same action, at the option of the plaintiff.

Section 11.—No action shall abate by the death or disability of a party or by the transfer of any interest therein, if the cause of action survive or continue. In case of the death or disability of a party, the court may at any time within two years thereafter, on motion, allow the action to be continued by or against his personal representative or successor in interest.

Section 12.—An action for a wrong shall not abate by the death of any party after the decision has been given therein, but the action shall proceed thereafter in the same manner as in cases where the cause of action survives.

Section 13.—In any action for recovery of specific personal property, if a third person demand of the defendant the same property, the court, in its discretion, on motion of the defendant, and notice to such person and the adverse party, may, before answer, make an order discharging the defendant from liability to either party and substitute such person in his place as defendant. Such order shall not be made but on condition that the defendant deliver the property or its value to such person as the court may direct, nor unless it appears from the affidavit of the defendant, filed with the clerk by the day he is otherwise required to answer, that such person makes such demand without collusion with the defendant. The affidavit of such third person as to whether he makes such demand of the defendant may be read on the hearing of the motion.

Section 14.—All persons having an interest in the subject of the action, and in obtaining the relief demanded, may be joined as plaintiffs, except as in this chapter otherwise provided. Any person may be made a defendant who has or claims any interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff or who is a necessary party to the complete determination or settlement of the question involved therein.

Section 15.—Of the parties to the action those who are united in interest must be joined as plaintiffs or defendants; but if the consent of anyone who should have been joined can not be obtained, he may be made a defendant, the reason thereof being stated in the complaint; and when the question is one of a common or joint interest of many person, or when the parties are numerous and it may be impracticable to bring them all into court, one or more may sue or defendant for the benefit of the whole.

Section 16.—The court may determine any controversy between parties before it when it can be done without prejudice to the rights of others, or by saving their rights; but when a complete determination of the controversy can not be had without the presence of other parties, the court shall cause them to be brought in.

Section 17.—Any person may, before the trial, intervene in an action or proceeding, who has an interest in the matter of litigation, in the success of either of the parties or an interest in the matter of litigation, in the success of either of the parties or an interest against both. An intervention takes place when a third person is permitted to become a party to an action or proceeding either by joined the plaintiff in claiming what is sought by the complaint, or by uniting with the defendant in resisting the claim of the plaintiff, or by demanding anything adversely to both the plaintiff and the defendant, and is made by complaint setting forth the ground upon which the intervention rests, filed by leave of court and served upon the parties to the action or proceeding who have not appeared, and upon the attorneys of the parties who have appeared, who may answer or demur to it as if it were an original complaint.

Chapter Four. Of the Manner of Their Commencement

Section 1.—Civil actions shall be instituted by filing a complaint with the clerk of the court. At any time after the action is commenced plaintiff may cause a summons to be served on the defendant.

Section 2.—The summons shall contain the name of the court in which the complaint is filed, the names of the parties to the action, and the title thereof. It shall be issued by the court or the clerk thereof and directed to the defendant, and shall require him to appear and answer the complaint as in this section provided, or judgment for want thereof will be taken against him. The defendant shall appear and answer the complaint within twenty days from the date of the service.

Section 3.—There shall also be inserted in the summons a notice in substance as follows:

First. In any action for recovery of money damages only that the plaintiff will take judgment for a sum specified therein if the defendant fail to answer the complaint.

Second. In other actions that if the defendant fail to answer the complaint the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded therein.

Section 4.—The summons shall be served by delivering a copy thereof, together with a copy of the complaint prepared and certified by the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney, or by the clerk of the court as follows:

First. If the action be against a private corporation, to the president or other head of the corporation, secretary, cashier, or managing agent, or, in case none of the officers of the corporation above named shall reside or have an office in the District, then to any clerk or agent of such corporation who may reside or be found in the District, or if no such officer be found, then by leaving a copy thereof at the residence or usual place of abode of such clerk or agent.

Second. If against a person judicially declared to be of unsound mind, or incapable of conducting his own affairs and if a guardian has been appointed, to such guardian and to the defendant personally.

Third. If against a minor to such minor personally, and also to his father, mother, or guardian, or if there be none within the District then to any person having the care or control of such minor, or with whom he resides, or in whose service he is employed.

Fourth. In all cases, to the defendant personally, or if he is not found, to some person of the family above the age of fourteen years at the dwelling house or usual place of abode of the defendant or at the defendant's place of business to the manager thereof.

Section 6.—When service of the summons can not be made as prescribed in the last preceding section, and the defendant after due diligence can not be found within the District, and when that fact appears by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court or judge thereof, or police judge in an action in a police court, and it also appears, that a cause of action exists against the defendant, or that he is a proper party to an action relating to real or personal property in the District the court or judge thereof shall grant an order that service be made by publication of the summons in either of the following cases:

First. When the defendant is a foreign corporation, and has property within the District, or the cause of action arose therein;

Second. When the defendant, being a resident of the District, has departed therefrom with intent to defraud his creditors or to avoid the serve of the summons, or with like intent keeps himself concealed therein, or has departed from the District and remained absent therefrom six consecutive weeks;

Third. When the defendant is not a resident of the District, but has property therein, and the court has jurisdiction of the subject of the action;

Fourth. When an action is to have a marriage declared void, or for a divorce in the cases prescribed by law;

Fifth. When the subject of the action is personal property in the District, and the defendant has a claim or lien, of interest, actual or contingent, therein, or the relief demanded consists wholly or partly in excluding the defendant from an interest or lien therein;

Sixth. When the action is to foreclose, satisfy, or redeem from a mortgage, or to enforce a lien of any kind on real estate in said District, or satisfy or redeem the same. The summons published shall contain the name of the court and the title of the cause, a succinct statement of the relief demanded, and the date of the order for serve by publication, and the time within which the defendant is required to answer the complaint.

Section 7.—The order shall direct the publication to be made in a newspaper designated by the court or judge as the most likely to give notice to the person to be served, and for such length of time as may be deemed reasonable, not less than once a week for six weeks. In case of publication, the court or judge shall also direct a copy of the summons and complaint to be forthwith deposited in the post office, directed to the defendant at his place of residence, unless it shall appear that such residence is neither known to the party making the application nor can with reasonable diligence be ascertained by him. When publication is ordered, personal service of a copy of the summons and complaint out of the District shall be equivalent to publication and deposit in the post office. In either case, the defendant shall appear and answer within thirty days after the completion of such period of publication. In case of personal service out of the District, the summons shall specify the time prescribed in the other for duplication.

Section 8.—The defendant against whom publication is ordered, or his personal representatives, on application and sufficient cause shown, at any time before judgment shall be allowed to defendant the action; and the defendant against whom publication is ordered, or his representatives, may in like manner, upon good cause shown, and upon such terms as may be proper, be allowed to defendant after judgment and within one year after the entry of such judgment on such terms as maybe just; and if the defense be successful, and the judgment or any peart thereof have been collected or otherwise enforced, such restitution may thereupon be compelled as the court shall direct. But the title to property sold upon execution issued on such judgment tot a purchaser in good faith shall not be thereby affected.

Section 9.—Whenever it shall appear by the return of the sheriff or officer that the defendant is not found, the plaintiff may deliver another summons to be served, and so on, until serve be had; or the plaintiff may proceed by publication, as in this chapter provided, at his election.

Section 10.—When the action is against two or more defendants, and the summons is served on one or more but not all of them, the plaintiff may proceed as follows:

First. If the action be against defendants jointly indebted upon a contract, he may proceed against the defendants served, unless the court otherwise direct; and if he recover judgment, it may be entered against all the defendants thus jointly indebted so far only as that it may be enforced against the joint property of all and the separate property of the defendant served, and if they are subject to arrest, against the person of the defendants served; or,

Second. If the action be against the defendants severally liable, he may proceed against the defendants served in the same manner as if they were the only defendants; or,

Third. If all the defendants have been served, judgment may be taken against any or either of them severally, when the plaintiff would be entitled to judgment against such defendant or defendants, if the action had been against them, or any of them alone.

Section 11.—Proof of the service of the summons, or of the deposit thereof in the post office, shall be as follows:

First. If the serve or deposit in the post office be by the sheriff or officers, the certificate of such officer, or,

Second. If by any other person, his affidavit thereof, or,

Third. In case of publication, the affidavit of the publisher or his representative, together with a copy of the publication, or,

Fourth. The written admission of the defendant in case of service otherwise than by publication; the certificate, affidavit, or admission must state the time and place of service, and in case of deposit in the post office, the time and place thereof.

Section 12.—From the time of the service of the summons or the allowance of a provisional remedy the court shall be deemed to have acquired jurisdiction and to have control of all the subsequent proceedings. A voluntary appearance of the defendant shall be equivalent to personal service of the summons upon him.

Chapter Five. Of the Pleadings.

Section 1.—All the forms of pleading heretofore existing in actions at law and suits in equity are abolished, and hereafter the forms of pleading in causes in law and equity in courts of record and the rules by which the sufficiency of such pleadings is to be determined shall be those prescribed by this code.

Section 2.—The only pleadings on the part of the plaintiff shall be—

- First. The complaint; or,
- Second. The demurrer; or,
- Third. The reply,
- And on the part of the defendant—
- First. The demurrer; or,
- Second. The answer.

Chapter Six. Of the Complaint.

Section 1.—The first pleading on the part of the plaintiff shall be the complaint.

Section 2.—The complaint shall contain;

First. The title of the cause, specifying the name of the court and the names of the parties to the action, plaintiff and defendant.

Second. A plain and concise statement of the facts constituting the cause of action, without unnecessary reparation.

Third. A demand of the relief which the plaintiff claims. If the recovery of money or damages be demanded the amount thereof shall be stated.

Chapter Seven. Of the Demurrer.

Section 1.—The defendant may demur to the complaint within the time required by law to appear and answer, and when it appears upon the face thereof, either,—

First. That the court has no jurisdiction of the person of the defendant of the subject of the action; or,

Second. That the plaintiff has no legal capacity to sue; or,

Third. That there is another action pending between the same parties for the same cause; or,

Fourth. That there is a defect of parties plaintiff or defendant; or,

Fifth. That several causes of action have been improperly united; or,

Sixth. That the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action; or,

Seventh. That the action has not been commenced within the time limited by this code.

Section 2.—The demurrer shall distinctly specify the grounds of objection to the complaint; unless it does so it may be disregarded. It may be taken to the whole complaint or to any of the alleged causes of action stated therein.

Section 3.—If the complaint be amended, a copy thereof shall be served on the defendant or his attorney, and the defendant shall answer the same within such time as may be prescribed by the court, and if he omit to do so the plaintiff may proceed to obtain judgment as in other cases of failure to answer.

Section 4.—When any of the matters enumerated in section one of this chapter do not appear upon the face of the complaint the objection may be taken by answer.

Section 5.—If no objection be taken, either by demurrer or answer, the defendant shall be deemed to have waived the same excepting only the objection to the jurisdiction of the court and the objection that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

Chapter Eight. Of the Answer.

Section 1.—The answer of the defendant shall contain:—

First. A general or specific denial of each material allegation of the complaint controverted by the defendant, or of any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief.

Second. A statement of any new matter constituting a defense or counterclaim in ordinary and concise language without repetition.

Section 2.—The counterclaim mentioned in the last preceding section must be one existing in favor of the defendant and against a plaintiff, between whom a several judgment might be had in the action, and arising out of the following causes of action.

First. A cause of action arising out of the contract or transaction set forth in the complaint as the foundation of the plaintiff's claim.

Second. IN an action arising on the contract, and any other cause of action arising on contract, and existing at the commencement of the action.

The defendant may set forth by answer as many defenses and counterclaims as he may have. They shall each be separately stated and refer to the causes of action which they are intended to answer in such manner that they may be intelligibly distinguished.

Section 3.—The defendant may demur to one or more of the several causes of action stated in the complaint and answer the residue.

Section 4.—Sham, frivolous, and irrelevant answers and defenses may be stricken out on motion, and upon such terms as the court may in its discretion impose.

Chapter Nine. Of the Reply.

Section 1.—When the answer contains new matter, constituting a defense or counterclaim, the plaintiff may reply to such new matter, denying generally or specifically each allegation controverted by him or any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief; and he may allege in ordinary and concise language, without repetition, any new matter not inconsistent with the complaint, constituting a defense to such new matter in the answer.

Section 2.—The plaintiff may demur to an answer containing new matter when it appears upon the face thereof that such new matter does not constitute a defense or counterclaim; or he may, for like cause, demur to one or more of such defenses or counterclaims and reply to the residue.

Section 3.—If the answer contain a statement of new matter, constituting a defense or counterclaim, and the plaintiff fail to reply or demur thereto within the time prescribed by law or rule of the court, the defendant may move the court for such judgment as he is entitled to on the pleadings.

Section 4.—The defendant may demur to any new matter contained in the reply when it appears upon the face thereof that such matter is not sufficient reply to the facts stated in the answer. Sham, frivolous, and irrelevant replies may be stricken out in like manner and on the same terms as like answers and defense.

Chapter Ten. Of the General Rules of Pleading.

Section 1.—Every pleading shall be subscribed by the party or his attorney, and, except a demurrer, shall also be verified by the party, his agent or attorney, to the effect that he believes it to be true. The verification must be made by the affidavit of the party, or, of there be several parties united in interest and pleading together, by one, at least, of such parties, if such parties be within the district and capable of making the affidavit; otherwise the affidavit may be made by the agent or attorney of the party. The affidavit may also be made by the agent or attorney of the action or defense be founded on a written instrument for the payment of money only, and such instrument be in the possession of the agent or attorney, or if all the material allegation of the pleading be within the personal knowledge of the agent or attorney. When the affidavit is made by the agent or attorney, it must set forth the reason of his making it. When a corporation is a party, the verification may be made by any officer thereof upon whom service of a summons might be made, and when the People or Municipality, or any officer thereof in its behalf, is a party, the verification may be made by any person to whom all the material allegations of the pleading are known.

Section 2.—When, in the judgment of the court, an answer to an allegation in any pleading might subject the party answering to a prosecution for felony, the verification of the answer to such allegation may be omitted.

Section 3.—The answer or demurrer to the complaint shall be filed with the clerk by the time required to answer, and the demurrer, or reply thereto, as the case may be, must in like manner be filed by the first day of the next term of the court, or within such time as the court may allow after the filing of the answer to the complaint, if the same be filed in term time. A demurrer to a reply must be filed in the manner and within the time required to file a demurrer to an answer. A motion to strike out a pleading for want of verification or subscription, or because several causes of action or defense therein are not pleaded separately, or for other cause, or a sham, frivolous, or irrelevant pleading or redundant matter therein, shall be made within the time for answer such pleading.

Section 4.—A party may set forth in a pleading the items of any account therein alleged, or file a copy thereof, with the pleading verified by his own oath, or that of his agent or attorney, if within the personal knowledge of such agent or attorney, to the effect that he believes it to be true. If he do neither, he shall deliver to the adverse party, within five days after a demand thereof in writing, a copy of the account, verified as in this section provided, or be precluded from giving evidence thereof. The court or judge thereof may order a further account when the one filed or delivered is defective.

Section 5.—In the construction of a pleading for the purpose of determining its effect, its allegations shall be liberally construed, with a view of substantial justice between the parties.

Section 6.—If irrelevant or redundant matter be inserted in the pleading, it may be stricken out on motion of the adverse party; and when the allegations of a pleading are so indefinite or uncertain that the precise nature of the charge of defense is not apparent the Court may require the pleading to be made definite and certain by amendment.

Section 7.—In pleading a judgment or other determination of a court or officer of special jurisdiction it shall not be necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but such judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made. If such allegation be controverted, the party pleading shall be bound to establish on the trial the facts conferring jurisdiction.

Section 8.—In pleading the performance of a condition precedent in a contract it shall not be necessary to state the facts showing such performance, but it may be stated generally that the party duly performed all the conditions on his part; and if such allegations be controverted the party pleading shall be bound to establish on the trial the facts showing such performance.

Section 9.—In pleading a private statute, or a right derived therefrom, it shall be sufficient to refer to such statute by its title and the day of its passage, and the court shall thereupon take judicial notice thereof.

Section 10.—In an action for libel or slander it shall not be necessary to state in the complaint any extrinsic fact for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of the defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose, but it shall be sufficient to state generally that the same was published or spoken concerning the plaintiff, and if such allegation be controverted the plaintiff shall be bound to establish on trial that it was so published or spoken.

Section 11.—In the actions mentioned in the last section the defendant may, in his answer, allege both the truth of the matter charged as defamatory and any mitigating circumstances to reduce the amount of damages; and whether he prove the justification or not he may give in evidence the mitigating circumstances.

Section 12.—In an action to recover the possession of property distrained doing damage, an answer that the defendant or person by whose command he acted was lawfully possessed of the real property upon which the distress was made, and that the property distrained was at the time doing damage thereon, shall be good without setting forth the title to such real property.

Section 13.—The plaintiff may unite several causes of action in the same complaint when they all arise out of—

First. Contract, express or implied; or Second. Injuries, with or without force, to the person; or Third. Injuries, with or without force, to property; or Fourth. Injuries to character; or

Fifth. Claims to recover real property, with or without damages for the withholding thereof; or

Sixth. Claims to recover real property, with or without damages, for the withholding thereof; or Seventh. Claims against a trustee by virtue of a contract or by operation of the law.

But the causes of action so united must all belong to one only of these classes, must effect all the parties to the action, and must be separately stated.

Section 14.—Every material allegation of the complaint not controverted by the answer, and every material allegation of new matter in the answer not controverted by the reply, shall, for the purpose of the action, be taken as true; but the allegation of new matter in a reply is to be deemed controverted by the adverse party as upon a direct denial or the avoidance, as the case may require.

Section 15.—A material allegation in a pleading is one essential to the claim or defense, and which could not be stricken from the pleading without leaving it insufficient as to such claim or defense.

Chapter Eleven. Of Mistakes in Pleadings and Amendments.

Section 1.—No variance between the allegation in a pleading and the proof shall be deemed material, unless it shall have actually mislead the adverse party to his prejudice in maintaining his action or defense upon the merits. Whenever it shall be alleged that a party has been so misled, that fact shall be proved to the satisfaction of the court, and in what respect he has been misled; and thereupon the court may order the pleading to be amended upon such terms as shall be just.

Section 2.—When the variance is not material, as provided in the last section, the court may direct the fact to be found according to the evidence, or may order an immediate amendment, without costs.

Section 3.—When, however, the allegation of the cause of action or defense to which the proof is directed is unproved, not in some particular or particulars only, but in its entire scope and meaning, it shall not be deemed a case of variance within the last two sections, but a failure of proof.

Section 4.—Any pleading may be upon a demurrer, if it be overruled, and it appears that such demurrer was interposed in good faith, the court may, in its discretion, allow the party to plead over, upon such terms as may be proper. If the demurrer be sustained the court may, in its discretion, allow the party to amend the pleading demurred to, upon such terms as may be proper.

Section 5.—After the decision upon a demurrer, if it be overruled, and it appears that such demurrer was interposed in good faith, the court may, in its discretion, allow the party to plead over, upon such terms as may be proper. If the demurrer be sustained the court may, in its discretion, allow the party to amend the pleading demurred to, upon such terms as may be proper.

Section 6.—The court may, at any time before trial, in furtherance of justice, and upon such terms as may be proper, allow any pleading or proceeding to be amended by adding the name of a party, or other allegation material to the cause, and in like manner and for like reasons it may, at any time before the cause is submitted, allow such pleading or proceeding to be amended, by striking out the name of any party, or by correcting a mistake in the name of a party, or a mistake in any other respect, or when the amendment does not substantially change the cause of action or defense, by conforming the pleading or proceeding to the facts proved.

Section 7.—The court may likewise, in its discretion and upon such terms as may be just, allow an answer or reply to be made or other act to be done after the time limited by this code, or by an order enlarge such time; and may also, in its discretion, and upon such terms as may be just, at any time within one year after notice thereof, relieve a party from a judgment, order, or other proceeding taken against him through his mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect.

Section 8.—When the plaintiff shall be ignorant of the name of a defendant, such defendant may be designated in any pleading or proceeding by any name; and when his true name shall be discovered, the pleading or proceeding may be amended accordingly.

Section 9.—When any pleading or proceeding is amended before trial, mere clerical errors excepted, it shall be done by filing a new pleading, to be called the amended complaint, or otherwise, as the case may be. Such amended pleading shall be complete in itself without reference to the original or any preceding amended one.

Section 10.—Any pleading not duly verified and subscribed may, on motion of the adverse party, be stricken out of the case. When any pleading contains more than one cause of action or defense, if the same be not pleaded separately, such pleading may, on motion of the adverse party, be stricken out of the case. When a motion to strike out is allowed, the court may upon such terms as may be proper, allow the party to file an amended pleading, or if the motion be disallowed, and it appear to have been made in good faith, the court may, upon like terms, allow the party to plead over.

Section 11.—The court shall, in every stage of an action, disregard any error or defect in the pleadings or proceedings which shall not affect the substantial right of the adverse party.

Section 12.—The plaintiff and defendant, respectively may be allowed on motion to make a supplemental complaint, answer, or reply, alleging facts material to the case occurring after the former complaint, answer, or reply. Copies of all pleading subsequent to the complaint must be served upon the adverse party or his attorney.

Chapter Twelve. Of Arrest and Bail.

Section 1.—No person shall be arrested in any civil action at law, except as provided in this section, provided, however, that no person shall be detained in custody for a longer period than three months on civil arrest. The defendant may be arrested in the following cases:

First. In an action for the recovery of money or damages when the defendant is about to remove from the District with intent to defraud his creditors, or when the action is for any injury to person, or for willfully injuring or wrongfully taking, detaining, or converting property.

Second. In an action for a fine or penalty, or for money, or property embezzled or fraudulently misapplied or converted to his own use by a public officer, or by an attorney, or by an officer or agent of a corporation in the course of his employment as such, or by any factor, agent, broker, or other person in a fiduciary capacity, or for any misconduct or neglect in officer in a professional employment.

Third. In an action to recover the possession of personal property unjustly detained, when the property or any part thereof has been concealed, removed, or disposed of, so that it can not be found or taken by the sheriff, and with intent that it should not be so found or taken, or with the intent to deprive the plaintiff of the benefit thereof.

Fourth. When the defendant has been guilty of a fraud in contracting a debt, or incurring the obligation for which the action is brought, or in concealing or disposing of the property for the taking, detention, or conversion of which the action is brought.

Fifth. When the defendant has removed or disposed of his property, or is about to do so, with intent to defraud his creditors.

But no female shall be arrested in any action except for injury to person, character or property.

Section 2.—The mode of proceeding to obtain the arrest of the defendant for any of the causes specified in the section last preceding shall be as provided in this section:

First.—At any time after the commencement of an action at law, and before judgment, the plaintiff in such action shall, in the discretion of the court, or the judge thereof be entitled to a writ of arrest for such defendant whenever he shall make and file with the clerk of the court in which such action is commenced, or is at the time pending, an affidavit that the plaintiff has a sufficient cause of action therein, and that the case is one of those mentioned in the section last preceding; and shall also make and file with such clerk an undertaking with sufficient sureties, in a sum not less than one hundred dollars, and equal to the amount for which the plaintiff prays judgment.

Such undertaking shall be conditioned that the plaintiff will pay all costs that may be adjudged to the defendant and all damages which he may sustain by reason of the arrest if the same be wrongful or without sufficient cause, not exceeding the amount specified in the undertaking.

Second. The affidavit may be either positive or upon information and belief; but if the latter, it shall state the facts upon which the belief is found. The plaintiff shall also file with his undertaking the affidavits of the sureties therein, from which it must appear that such sureties are residents of the District, and that they are, taken together, worth double the amount of the sum specified in the undertaking over all debts and liabilities and property exempt from execution. No person not qualified to become bail upon arrest is qualified to become surety in an undertaking for an arrest.

Third. The writ of arrest shall be issued by the court or judge, in his or its discretion, and shall require the sheriff forthwith to arrest the defendant and hold him to bail in the amount specified in the undertaking, and that in default thereof he keep him in custody until discharged by law, and to return the writ to the court from which it issued, with his doings indorsed thereon, when required by the plaintiff at any time before the defendant may be arrested, or afterwards whenever the defendant shall have been discharged from the arrest on bail or otherwise.

Fourth. The plaintiff shall deliver or cause to be delivered to the sheriff with the writ a copy of the affidavit upon which the warrant was issued, subscribed by himself or attorney. The sheriff, upon the delivery of the writ, shall endorse thereon the date of the receipt and upon the arrest of the defendant shall deliver to him a copy of the writ and such copy of the affidavit. The sheriff shall execute the writ by arresting the defendant and keeping him in custody until discharged by law.

Section 3.—The defendant, at any time before execution, shall be discharged from the arrest, either upon giving bail or upon depositing the amount mentioned in the writ of arrest, as provided in this chapter.

Section 4.—The defendant may give bail by causing a written undertaking to be executed in favor of the plaintiff by sufficient sureties, stating their places of residence, to the effect that the defendant shall at all times render himself amenable to the process of the court during the pendency of the action, and to such as may be issued to enforce the judgment therein, or if he be arrested for the cause mentioned in the third subdivisions of section one of this chapter, an undertaking to the same effect as that provided by section five of chapter thirteen of this Title.

Section 5.—In case of the failure to comply with the undertaking, the bail may be proceeded against by action only.

Section 6.—The bail may be exonerated, either by the death of the defendant or his imprisonment in the penitentiary, or by his legal discharge from the obligation to render himself amenable to the process.

Suction 7.—Within three days after the execution of the undertaking of the bail the sheriff or deputy having the defendant in custody shall deliver to the plaintiff or his attorney, or such other person as the plaintiff may direct, a certified copy of the undertaking, with the date of the arrest indorsed thereon. In any other case the sheriff may mail such copy within the same time to the plaintiff or his attorney, within the district, or to either of them as the plaintiff may direct. The plaintiff, within ten days from the delivery of such copy, or fifteen days from the mailing of the same, if sent by mail, may serve upon the sheriff or deputy for the defendant in custody a notice that he does not accept the bail, or he shall be deemed to have accepted it, and the sheriff shall be exonerated form liability. If no notice be served within ten days, the original undertaking shall be filed with the court where the action is pending.

Section 8.—On the receipt of such notice the sheriff or defendant may, within ten days thereafter, give the plaintiff or his attorney notice of the justification of the same or other bail, specifying the place of residence and occupation of the later, before the Judge of the District Court or clerk of the court where the action is pending, at a specified time and place, the time to be not less than five nor more than ten days thereafter. In case other bail be given, there shall be a new undertaking, in the form and to the effect prescribed in section four of this chapter.

Section 9.—The qualifications of bail shall be as follows:

First. Each of them shall be a resident within the district; but no counselor or attorney-at-law, sheriff, deputy sheriff, police officer, clerk of any court shall be permitted to become bail in any action.

Second. Each of them shall be worth the amount specified in the writ of arrest, or the amount to which the same may be reduced as provided in this chapter, over and above all debts and liabilities, and exclusive of property exempt from execution; but the judge, or clerk on justification may allow more than two sureties to justify severally in amounts less than that expressed in the writ, if the whole justification shall be equivalent to that of two sufficient bail.

Section 10.—For the purpose of justification each of the bail shall attend before the judge, or clerk at the time and place mentioned in the notice, and may be examined on oath, on the part of the plaintiff, touching his sufficiency, in such manner as the judge, or clerk in his discretion may think proper. The examination shall be reduced to writing and subscribed by the bail, if required by the plaintiff.

Section 11.—If the judge, or clerk shall find the bail sufficient, he shall annex the examination of to the undertaking, indorse his allowance thereon, and cause them to be filed with the clerk of the court in which the action is pending; and the sheriff shall thereupon be exonerated from liability.

Section 12.—The defendant may at the time of his arrest, instead of giving bail, deposit with the sheriff the amount mentioned in the writ. Thereupon the sheriff shall give the defendant certificate of the deposit made and the defendant shall be discharged out of custody.

Section 13.—The sheriff shall, within ten days after the deposit, pay the same into the court, and take from the clerk receiving the same two certificates of such payment, the one of which he shall deliver to the plaintiff or his attorney and the other to the defendant. For any default in making such payment, the same proceedings may be had on the official bond of the sheriff to collect the sum deposited as in other case of delinquency.

Section 14.—If money be deposited, as provided in the last two sections, bail may be given and justified upon notice, as prescribed in section four of this chapter, at any time before judgement, and on the filing of the undertaking and justification with the clerk the money deposited shall be refunded by such clerk to the defendant.

Section 15.—When money shall have been deposited, if it remain on deposit at the time of an order or judgment for the payment of money to the plaintiff, the clerk shall, under the direction of the court apply the same in satisfaction thereof, and, after satisfying the judgment, shall refund the surpluses, if any, to the defendant. If the judgment be in favor of the defendant the clerk shall refund to him the whole sum deposited and remaining unapplied.

Section 16.—There shall be allowed to the sheriff for the food and maintenance of any defendant arrested under the provisions of this chapter one dollar per day, and the plaintiff shall be liable in the first instance for such expense, and if required by the sheriff shall pay the same weekly in advance; and such expense so paid shall be added to the disbursements taxed or accruing in the case, and be collected as other disbursements.

Section 17.—If the plaintiff shall neglect to pay such expense for three days after a demand of payment, the sheriff may discharge the defendant out of custody.

Section 18.—A defendant arrested may, at any time before judgment, apply on motion to the court or judge thereof in which the action is pending upon notice to the plaintiff, to vacate the writ of arrest.

Section 19.—If a motion be made upon affidavits or other proofs on the part of the defendant, but not otherwise, the plaintiff may oppose the same by affidavits or other proofs in addition to those upon which the writ was issued. If upon the hearing of such motion it shall satisfactory appear that there was not sufficient cause to allow the writ, or other good cause which would entitle him to be discharged on habeas corpus, the same shall be vacated, or in case he has given bail the court may discharge the same or reduce the amount thereof on good cause shown.

Chapter Thirteen. Of the Recovery of Personal Property.

Section 1.—In an action to recover possession of personal property the plaintiff, at any time after the action is commenced, and before judgment may claim the immediate delivery of such property, as provided in this chapter.

Section 2.—When a delivery is claimed an affidavit shall be made by the plaintiff, or by some one in his behalf, showing:—

First. That the plaintiff is the owner of the property claimed (particularly describing it) or is lawfully entitled to the possession thereof by virtue of a special property therein, the facts in respect to which shall be set forth;

Second. That the property is wrongfully detained by the defendant;

Third. The alleged cause of the detention thereof, according to his best knowledge, information and belief;

Fourth. That the same has not been taken for a tax, assessment or fine, pursuant to a statute, or seized under an execution or attachment against the property of the plaintiff; or, if so seized, that it is by statute exempt from such seizure; and Fifth. The actual value of the property.

Section 3.—The plaintiff may thereupon by an indorsement in writing upon the affidavit, require the sheriff to take the property from the defendant and deliver it to the plaintiff.

Section 4.—Upon the receipt of the affidavit and indorsement thereon, with a written undertaking executed by two or more sufficient sureties approved by the sheriff, to the effect that they are bound in double the value of the property as stated in the affidavit for the prosecution of the action for the return of the property to the defendant, if return thereof be adjudged, and for the payment to him of such sum as may for any cause be recovered against the plaintiff, the sheriff shall forthwith take the property described in the affidavit, if it be in the possession of the defendant or his agent, and retain it in his custody. He shall also, without delay, serve on the defendant a copy of the affidavit, indorsement thereon, and undertaking, by delivering the same to him personally, if he can be found, or to his agent from whose possession the property is taken; or, if neither can be found, by leaving them at the usual place of abode of either with some person of suitable age and discretion; or, if neither have any known place of abode, by putting them in the post office directed to the defendant at the post office nearest him.

Section 5.—The defendant may, within three days after the service of a copy of the affidavit and undertaking give notice to the sheriff that he excepts to the sufficiency of the sureties. If he fail to do so, he shall be deemed to have waived all objections to them. When the defendant excepts, the sureties shall justify on notice in like manner as upon bail on arrest. And the sheriff shall be responsible for the sufficiency of the sureties until the objection to them is either waived, as above provided, or until they shall justify or new sureties shall be substituted and justified. If the defendant except to the sureties, he cannot reclaim the property, as provided in the next section.

Section 6.—At any time before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff the defendant may, If he do not except to the sureties of the plaintiff, require the return thereof upon giving to the sheriff a written undertaking, executed by two or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the sheriff, to the effect that they are bound I double the value of the property as stated in the affidavit of the plaintiff, for the delivery thereof to the plaintiff, if such delivery be adjudged, and for the payment to him of such sum as may, for any cause, be recovered against the defendant. If a return of the property be not so required within three days after the taking and service of a copy of the affidavit and undertaking of a defendant, it shall be delivered to the plaintiff, except as provided in section ten of this chapter.

Section 7.—The defendant's sureties, upon a notice to the plaintiff or his attorney of not less than two nor more than six days, shall justify before a Judge of the District Court, or the clerk of the court in which the action is pending, in the same manner as upon bail on arrest. Upon such justification the sheriff shall deliver the property to the defendant. The sheriff shall be responsible for the defendant's sureties until they justify, or until justification is completed or expressly waived, and may retain the property until that time; but if they or others in their place fail to justify at the time and place appointed he shall deliver the property to the plaintiff.

Section 8.—Qualifications of sureties and their justifications shall be the same as prescribed in respect to bail upon an order of arrest.

Section 9.—If the property or any part thereof be concealed in a building or enclosure the sheriff shall publicly demand its delivery. If it be not delivered he shall cause the building or enclosure to be broken open and take the property into his possession, and if necessary he may call to his aid the power of the district.

Section 10.—When the sheriff shall have taken the property as in this chapter provided, he shall keep it in a secure place and deliver it to the party entitled thereto upon receiving his lawful fees for taking and his necessary expenses for keeping the same.

Section 11.—If the property taken be claimed by any other person than the defendant or his agent, and such person made affidavit of his title thereto or his right, to the possession thereof, stating the grounds of such title or right, and serve the same upon the sheriff before the delivery of the property to the plaintiff, the sheriff shall not be bound to keep the property or deliver it to the plaintiff unless the plaintiff, on demand of him or his agent, shall indemnify the sheriff against such claim by an undertaking, executed by two sufficient sureties, accompanied by their affidavits that they are each worth double the value of the property as specified in the affidavit of the plaintiff, over and above their debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from execution. And no claim to such property by any other person than the defendant or his agent shall be valid against the sheriff unless made as aforesaid; and notwithstanding such claim when so made he may retain the property a reasonable time to demand such indemnity.

Section 12.—The sheriff shall file the affidavit, with his proceedings thereon including an inventory of the property taken, with the clerk of the court in which the action is pending within twenty days after taking the property mentioned therein, or he may mail or forward the same to the clerk within that time.

Chapter Fourteen. Of Attachment.

Section 1.—The plaintiff, at the time of issuing the summons, or at any time afterwards, may have the property of the defendant attached as security for the satisfaction of any judgment that may be recovered, unless the defendant give security to pay such judgment, as in this chapter provided, in the following cases:

First. In an action upon a contract, express or implied for the direct payment of money, and which is not secured by mortgage, lien, or pledge upon real or personal property, or, if so secured, when such security has been rendered nugatory by the act of the defendant.

Second. In an action upon a contract, express or implied for the direct payment of money, and which is not secured by mortgage, lien, or pledge upon real or personal property, or, if so secured, when such security has been rendered nugatory by the act of the defendant.

Section 2.—A writ of attachment shall be issued by the clerk of the court in which the action is pending, whenever the plaintiff or anyone in his behalf shall make and file an affidavit showing:

First. That the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff (specifying the amount of such indebtedness over and above all legal set-offs or counterclaims) upon a contract, express or implied, for the direct payment of money, and that the payment of the same has not been secured by any mortgage, lien, or pledge upon real or personal property; and

Second. That the sum for which the attachment is asked is an actual, bona fide, existing debt, due and owing from the defendant to the plaintiff, and that the attachment is not sought nor the action prosecuted to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor of the defendant.

Section 3.—Upon filing the affidavit with the clerk, the plaintiff shall be entitled to have the writ issued as soon thereafter as he shall file with the clerk his undertaking, with one or more sureties, in a sum not less than one hundred dollars, and equal to the amount for which the plaintiff demands judgment, and to the effect that the plaintiff will pay all costs that may be adjudged to the defendant, and all damages that he may sustain by reason of the attachment if the same be issued wrongfully or without sufficient cause, not exceeding the sum specified in the undertaking. With the undertaking the plaintiff shall also file the affidavits of these sureties for which affidavits it must appear that such sureties are qualified, and that, taken together, they are worth double the amount of the sum specified in the undertaking, over all debts and liabilities and property exempt from execution. No person not qualified to become bail upon an arrest is qualified to become surety in an undertaking for an attachment.

Section 4.—The writ shall be directed to the sheriff and shall require him to attach and safely keep all the property of such defendant not exempt from execution, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's demand, the amount of which shall be stated in conformity with the complaint, together with costs and expenses.

Section 5.—The rights or shares which such defendant may have in the stock of any association or corporation, together with the interest and profits thereon, and all other property in the district of such defendant, not exempt from execution, shall be liable to be attached. The sheriff shall note upon the writ the date of its delivery to him, and shall make a full inventory of the property attached, and return the same with the writ.

Section 6.—The sheriff or deputy to whom the writ is delivered shall execute the same without delay, as follows:

First. Real property shall be attached by leaving with the occupant thereof, or if there be no occupant, in a conspicuous place therein, a copy of the writ certified by the sheriff.

Second. Personal property capable of manual delivery to the sheriff, and not in the possession of a third person, shall be attached by taking it into his custody.

Third. Other personal property shall be attached by leaving a certified copy of the writ, and a notice specifying the property attached, with the person having possession of the same, or if it be a debt, then with the debtor, or if it be rights or shares in the stock of an association or corporation or interest or profits thereof, then with such person or officer of such association or corporation as this code authorizes a summons to be served upon.

Section 7.—From the date of the attachment until it be discharged or the writ executed, the plaintiff as against third persons shall be deemed a purchaser in good faith and for a valuable consideration of the property, real or personal, attached, subject to the conditions prescribed in the next section as to real property. Any person, association, or corporation mentioned in subdivision three of the section last preceding, from the service of a copy of the writ and notice as therein provided, shall, unless such property, stock or debts be delivered, transferred, or paid to the sheriff, be liable to the plaintiff for the amount thereof until the attachment be discharged or any judgment recovered by him be satisfied.

Section 8.—If real property be attached, the sheriff shall make a certificate containing the title of the cause, the names of the parties, a description of such real property and a statement that the same has been attached at the action of the plaintiff and the date thereof. Within ten days from the date of the attachment, the sheriff shall deliver such certificate to the recorder of deeds for the district who shall file the same in his office and record it. When such certificate is so filed for the record the lien in favor of the plaintiff shall attach to the real property described in the certificate from the date of the attachment, but if filed afterwards it shall only attach, as against the third persons from the date of such subsequent filing.

Whenever such lien shall be discharged it shall be the duty of the recorder, when requested, to record the transcript of any order, entry of satisfaction of judgment, or other proceeding of record whereby it appears that such lien has been discharged in the records. The recorder shall also enter on the margin of the page on which the certificate is recorded a minute of the discharge, and the page and book where recorded.

Section 9.—Whenever the sheriff, with a writ of attachment against the defendant, shall apply to any person or officer mentioned in subdivision three of section six of this chapter, for the purpose of attaching any property mentioned therein, such person or officer shall furnish him with a certificate designating the amount and shall give a description of any property in his possession belonging to the defendant or any debt owing to the defendant, or the number of rights or shares of the defendant in the stock of the association or corporation, with any interest or profits or encumbrance thereon. If such person or officer refuse to do so, or if the certificate when given be unsatisfactory to the plaintiff, he may be required by the court or judge thereof, where the action is pending, to appear before him and be examined on oath concerning the same, and disobedience to such order may be punished as contempt.

Section 10.—If any of the property attached be perishable, the sheriff shall sell the same in the manner in which property is sold on execution. The proceeds thereof and other property attached shall be retained by him to answer any judgment that may be recovered in the action, unless sooner subjected to execution upon another judgment. Personal property mentioned in subdivision three of section six of this chapter, may be delivered, transferred, or paid to the sheriff without any action, and his receipt therefor shall be a sufficient discharge accordingly.

Section 11.—The sheriff may deliver any of the property attached to the defendant, or to any other person claiming it, upon his giving a written undertaking thereof, executed by two or more sufficient sureties, engaging to redeliver it or pay the value thereof to the sheriff, to whom execution upon a judgment obtained by the plaintiff in that action may be issued.

Section 12.—If an action be brought upon such undertaking against the principal or his sureties, it shall be a defense that the property for which the undertaking was given did not, at the execution of the writ of attachment, belong to the defendant against whom it was issued.

Section 13.—If judgment be recovered by the plaintiff, and it shall appear that the property has been attached in the action and has not been sold as perishable property or discharged from the attachment as provided by law, the court shall order and adjudge the property to be sold to satisfy the plaintiff's demands, and if execution issue thereon, the sheriff shall apply the property attached by him, or the proceeds thereof, upon the execution, and if there be any such property or proceeds remaining after satisfying such execution, he shall, upon demand, deliver the same to the defendant.

Section 14.—If judgment be not recovered by the plaintiff, all the property attached; or the proceeds thereof, or the undertaking thereof, shall be returned to the defendant upon his serving upon the sheriff a certified copy of the order discharging the attachment.

Section 15.—Whenever the defendant shall have appeared in the action he may apply upon notice to the plaintiff to the court or judge where the action is pending or to the clerk of such court, for an order to discharge the attachment upon the execution of the undertaking mentioned in the next section; and if the application be allowed, all the proceeds of sales of property remaining in his hand shall be released from the attachment and delivered to the defendant upon his serving a certified copy of the order on the sheriff.

Section 16.—Upon such application the defendant shall deliver to the court or judge to whom the application is made an undertaking executed by one or more sureties, to the effect that the sureties will pay to the plaintiff the amount of the judgment that may be recovered against the defendant in the action. If the plaintiff demand it, the sureties shall be required to justify in the same manner as bail upon an arrest.

Section 17.—The defendant may, at any time before judgment, except where the cause of attachment and the cause of action are the same, apply to the court or judge thereof where the action is pending, to discharge the attachment, in the manner and with the effect as provided in sections eighteen and nineteen of chapter twelve for the discharge of a defendant from arrest.

Section 18.—When the writ of attachment shall be fully executed or discharged, the sheriff shall return the same, with his proceedings indorsed thereon to the clerk of the court where the action was commenced.

Section 19.—The order provided for in section nine of this chapter shall require such person or officer to appear before such court or judge at a time and place therein stated. In the proceedings thereafter, upon such order such person or association or corporation shall be known as the garnishee.

Section 20.—After the allowance of the order and before such garnishee or officer thereof shall be thereby required to appear, or within a time to be specified in the order, the plaintiff may serve upon such garnishee or officer thereof written allegations and interrogatories touching any of the property liable to attachment as the property of the defendant, as provided in subdivision three of section six of this chapter and to which such garnishee or officer thereof is required to give a certificate as provided in section nine of this chapter.

Section 21.—On the day when the garnishee or officer thereof shall be required to appear before the court or judge thereof, he shall return the allegations and interrogatories of the plaintiff to the court or judge with his written answer thereto, unless for good cause shown a further time be allowed. Such answer shall be on oath, and shall contain a full and direct response to all the allegations and interrogatories.

Section 22.—If the garnishee or officer thereof fail to answer, the court or judge thereof, on motion of the plaintiff, may compel him to do so, or the plaintiff may, at any time after the entry for judgment against the defendant in the action have judgment against the garnishee for want of such answer. In no case shall judgment be given against the garnishee for a greater amount than the judgment against the defendant in the action.

Section 23.—The plaintiff may except to the answer of the garnishee or officer thereof for insufficiency, within such time as may be prescribed or allowed, and if the same be adjudged insufficient, such garnishee or officer may be allowed to amend his answer on such terms as may be proper, or judgment may be given for the plaintiff as for want of answer, or such garnishee or officer may be compelled to give a sufficient answer.

Section 24.—The plaintiff may reply to the whole or part of the answer within such time as may be prescribed or allowed, and the issue arising thereon shall be tried as ordinary issues of fact between plaintiff and defendant. If the answer be not excepted or replied to within the time prescribed or allowed, it shall be taken to be true and sufficient.

Section 25.—If by the answer it shall appear, or if upon trial it shall be found, that the garnishee, at the time of the service upon him or the officer thereof of the copy of the writ of attachment and notice, and had any property of the defendant liable to attachment as provided in subdivision three of section six of this chapter, and as to which such garnishee or officer thereof is required to give a certificate as provided in section nine of this chapter beyond the amount admitted in the certificate, or in any amount if the certificate was refused, judgment may be given against such garnishee for the value thereof in money. The garnishee may at any time before judgment discharge himself by delivering, paying, or transferring the property to the sheriff.

Section 26.—Executions may issue upon judgments against a garnishee as upon ordinary judgments between plaintiff and defendant, and cost and disbursements shall be allowed and recovered in like manner. Witnesses including the defendant and garnishee or officer thereof, may be required to appear and testify upon such proceeding against a garnishee, as upon the trial of issue of fact.

Section 27.—The court or judge thereof in its discretion may, at the time of the application of the plaintiff for the order provided for in section nine of this chapter and at any time thereafter before judgment against the garnishee, or by order restrain the garnishee from paying, transferring, or in any manner disposing of or injuring any of the property of the defendant, alleged by the plaintiff to be in the garnishee's possession, control, or owing by him to the defendant, and disobedience to such order may be punished as contempt.

28.—The proceedings provided for in chapters twelve, thirteen, and fourteen of this title shall be known as provision remedies.

Chapter Fifteen. Of Issues and the Mode of Trial.

Section 1.—Issues arise upon the pleadings when a fact or conclusion of law is maintained by the one party and controverted by the other. They are of two kinds:

First. Of Law; and

Second. Of Fact.

Section 2.—An issue of law arises upon a demurrer, to the complaint, answer, or reply, or to some part thereof.

Section 3.—An issue of fact arises:

First. Upon a material allegation in the complaint controverted by the answer; or,

Second. Upon new matter in the answer controverted by the reply; or,

Third. Upon new matter in the reply, except an issue of law is joined thereon.

Section 4.—Issues both of law and of fact may arise upon different parts of the pleadings in the same action. In such cases, the issues of law shall be first tried, unless the court otherwise direct.

Section 5.—A trial is the judicial examination of the issues between the parties, whether they be issues of law or of fact.

Section 6.—An issue of law shall be tried by the court, unless referred as provided in chapter nineteen. An issue of fact shall be tried by a jury, unless tried by the court or referred as provided in chapter nineteen.

Section 7.—A motion to postpone a trial on the ground of the absence of evidence shall only be made upon affidavit showing the materiality of the evidence expected to be obtained, and a statement of facts showing that due diligence has been used to procure it, and also the name and residence of the witness or witnesses. The court may also require the moving party to state upon affidavit the evidence which he expects to obtain, and if the adverse party thereupon admit that such evidence would be given, and that it be considered as actually given on the trial, or offered and overruled as improper, the trial shall not be postponed. The court, when it allows the motion may impose such conditions or terms upon the moving party as may be just.

Section 8.—Jurors for the trial of issues of fact in civil causes shall be selected and summoned in the manner prescribed by Chapter Twelve of Title Five of this Ordinance, and shall have the same qualifications and be entitled to the same exemptions, it being the intent and meaning of this section that but one jury shall be summoned for the trial of all actions, civil and criminal, triable by the district court of the district.

Section 9.—Trial juries in civil actions shall be formed in the same manner as provided in Chapter Thirteen of Title Five of this Ordinance. When the action is called for trial, the clerk shall draw from the trial jury box of the court, one by one, the ballots containing the names of the jurors until the jury is completed or the ballots are exhausted. If the ballots become exhausted before the jury is complete, the marshal, under the direction of the court, shall summon from the bystanders, or the body of the district, as the court may direct, so many qualified persons as may be necessary to complete the jury.

Section 10.—A preemptory challenge or a challenge for cause may be taken by either party. When there are two or more parties, plaintiffs or defendants, they must join in the challenge or it can not be taken. Either party shall be entitled to three preemptory challenges and no more.

Section 11.—Before a jury was impaneled in a civil action a request for a jury shall be made by the party desiring a jury, which request shall also be accompanied by the fees for such jury, provided however that the court may, on its own motion, order a jury impaneled in any civil action.

Chapter Sixteen. Conduct of the Trial.

Section 1.—When the jury has been completed and sworn, the trial shall proceed in the order prescribed in this section, unless the court for special reasons otherwise direct.

First. The plaintiff shall state briefly his cause of action, and the issue to be tried; the defendant shall then in like manner state his defense or counterclaim.

Second. The plaintiff shall then introduce the evidence on his part, and when he has concluded the defendant shall do the same.

Third. The parties may then respectively introduce rebutting evidence only, unless the court, for good reason and in furtherance of justice, permit them to introduce evidence upon the original cause of action, defense, or counterclaim.

Fourth. Not more than two counsel shall be allowed to address the jury or court on behalf of the plaintiff or defendant, unless otherwise allowed by the court; and the court may limit the time to be consumed by counsel in arguing the cause.

Fifth. When the evidence is concluded, unless the case is submitted by both sides without argument, the plaintiff shall commence and conclude the argument. If the plaintiff waive the opening argument, and the defendant then argue the cause, the plaintiff shall not be permitted to reply to the argument of the defendant.

Sixth. The court shall then charge the jury, and, if either party require it, and shall at the commencement of the trial give notice of his intention so to do, the charge of the court, so far as it relates to the law and the facts of the case, shall be reduced to writing and given to the jury by the court as written, without any oral explanation. The charge, when reduced to writing, must be filed with the clerk.

Section 2.—Whenever, in the opinion of the court, it is proper that the jury should have a view of real property which is the subject of the litigation, or of the place in which any material fact occurred, it may order the jury to be conducted in a body, in the custody of a proper officer, to the place, which shall be shown to them by the judge, or by a person appointed by the court for that purpose. While the jury are thus absent no person shall speak to them on any subject connected with the trial.

Section 3.—The jurors may be kept together in charge of a proper officer, or may, in the discretion of the court, at any time before the submission of the cause to them, be permitted to separate; in either case they may be admonished by the court that it is their duty not to converse with any other person, or among themselves, on any subject connected with the trial, or to express any opinion thereon, until the case is finally submitted to them.

Section 4.—If, after the formation of the jury, and before verdict, a juror becomes sick, so as to be unable to perform his duty, the court may order him to be discharged. In that case, unless the parties agree to proceed with the other jurors, a new juror may be sworn, and the trial may begin anew; or the jury may be discharged, as the court shall direct, and a new jury then or afterwards formed.

Section 5.—In charging the jury the court shall state to them all matters, of law which it thinks necessary for their information in giving their verdict, but it shall not present the facts of the case, but shall inform the jury that they are the exclusive judges of all questions of fact.

Section 6.—After hearing the charge the jury may either decide in the jury box or retire for deliberation. If they retire they must be kept together in a room provided for them, or some other convenient place, under the charge of one or more officers, until they agree upon their verdict or are discharged by the court. The officer shall, to the utmost of his ability, keep the jury thus together separate from other persons, without drink, except water, and without food, except ordered by the court. He must not suffer any communication to be made to them, nor make any himself unless by order of the court, except to ask them if they have agreed upon their verdict, and he shall not, before the verdict is rendered, communicate to any person the state of their deliberation or the verdict agreed on. Before any officer takes charge of a jury this section shall be read to him, and he shall be then sworn to conduct himself according to its provisions, to the utmost of his ability.

Section 7.—If while the jury are kept together, either during the progress of the trial or after their retirement for deliberation, the court order them to be provided with suitable and sufficient food and lodging, they shall be so provided by the sheriff, at the expense of the District, which expense shall be taxed in the cost of the case.

Section 8.—Upon retiring for deliberation the jury may take with them the pleadings in the cause, and all papers which have been received as evidence on the trial (except depositions, or copies of such parts of public records or private documents given in evidence as ought not, in the opinion of the court, to be taken from the person having them in possession).

Section 9.—After the jury have retired for deliberation, if they desire to be informed on any point of law arising in the case, they may require the officer having them in charge to conduct them into court. Upon their being brought into court the instruction required shall be given by the court in the presence of or after notice to the parties or their attorneys.

Section 10.—Except as provided in sections three and four of this chapter, or in case of some accident or calamity requiring their discharge, the jury shall not be discharged after the cause is submitted to them until they have agreed upon a verdict and given it in open court, unless by the consent of both parties entered in the journal or unless at the expiration of such period as the court deem proper it satisfactorily appears that there is no probability of an agreement of five-sixths of them and it is thereby declared that five-sixths of the jury may render a verdict in civil action's the same as in criminal actions.

Section 11.—In all cases where a jury are discharged or prevented from giving a verdict by reason of accident or other cause during the progress of the trial, or after the cause is submitted to them, the action may be again tried immediately, or at a future time, as the court directs.

Section 12.—While the jury are absent the court may adjourn from time to time, in respect to other business, but it is nevertheless to be deemed open for every purpose connected with the cause submitted to the jury until a verdict is rendered or the jury discharged. A final adjournment of the court discharges the jury.

Section 13.—When five-sixths of the jury have agreed upon their verdict they shall be conducted into court by the officer having them in charge. They shall be asked by the court or the clerk whether they have agreed upon their verdict, and if the foreman answer in the affirmative he shall, on being required, declare the same.

Section 14.—When a verdict is given and before it is filed, the jury may be polled on the request of either party, for which purpose each shall be asked whether it be his verdict; if more than one-sixth of the jurors answer in the negative, the jury shall be sent out for further deliberation. If the verdict be informal or insufficient, it may be corrected by the jury under the advice of the court, or the jury may against be sent out.

Section 15.—When the verdict is given, and is such as the court may receive, and the jury be not again sent out, the clerk shall file the verdict. The verdict is then complete, and the jury shall be discharged from the case. The verdict shall be in writing, and under the direction of the court shall be substantially entered in the journal as of the day's proceedings on which it was given.

Chapter Seventeen. Of the Verdict.

Section 1.—The verdict of a jury is either general or special. A general verdict is that by which the jury pronounce generally upon all or any of the issues, either in favor of the plaintiff or defendant. A special verdict is that by which the jury find the facts only, leaving the judgment to the court.

Section 2.—In an action for the recovery of specific personal property, if the property have not been delivered to the plaintiff, or the defendant by his answer claim a return thereof, the jury shall assess the value of the property, if their verdict be in favor of the plaintiff or if they find in favor of the defendant and that he is entitled to a return thereof, and may at the same time assess the damages, if any are claimed in the complaint or answer, which the prevailing party has sustained by reason of the detention or taking and withhold such property.

Section 3.—In every action for the recovery of money only or specific real property, the jury in their discretion may render a general or special verdict. In all other cases the court may direct the jury to find a special verdict upon all or any of the issues; and in all cases may instruct them if they render a general verdict, to find upon particular questions of fact, to be stated in writing. The special verdict or finding shall be filed with the clerk and entered in the journal as provided in chapter sixteen.

Section 4.—When a special finding of facts shall be inconsistent with the general verdict, the former shall control the latter, and the court shall give judgment accordingly.

Section 5.—When a verdict is found for the plaintiff in an action for the recovery of money or for the defendant when a counterclaim for the recovery of money is established beyond the amount of the plaintiff's claim as established, the jury shall also assess the amount of recovery; and they may also, under the direction of the court assess the amount of the recovery when the court gives judgment for the plaintiff on the answer.

Chapter Eighteen. Trial by the Court.

Section 1.—Upon the trial of an issue of fact by the court, its decision shall be given in writing and filed with the clerk during the term or within six weeks thereafter. The decision shall state the facts found and the conclusion of law separately, without argument or reason therefor. Such decision shall be entered in the journal and judgment entered thereon accordingly. The court may deliver any argument or reason in support of such decision either orally or in writing, separate from the decision, and file the same with the clerk.

Section 2.—The finding of the court upon the fact shall be deemed a verdict, and may be set aside in the manner and for the reasons so far as applicable, and a new trial granted.

Chapter Nineteen. Trial by Referees.

Section 1.—All or any of the issues of fact in an action may be referred to a referee or referees upon the written consent of the parties.

Section 2.—When the parties do not consent in an action at issue and to be tried without a jury, the court may, upon the application of either, or of its own motion, direct a reference in the following cases:

First. When the trial of an issue of fact shall require the examination of a long account on either side, in which case the referees may be directed to hear and decide the whole issue or to report upon any specific question of fact involved therein; or,

Second. When the taking of an account shall be necessary for the information of the court, before judgment upon an issue of law, or for carrying a judgment or order into effect; or,

Third. When a question of fact other than upon the pleadings shall arise, upon motion or otherwise, in any stage of the action; or,

Fourth. When it is necessary for the information of the court in a special proceeding.

Section 3.—A reference may be ordered to any person or persons, not exceeding three, agreed upon by the parties. If the parties do not agree, the court or judge may appoint one or more, not exceeding three.

Section 4.—When the appointment of referees is made by the court or judge, each referee shall be a competent person not interested in the cause at issue and possessing the qualifications of a juror.

Section 5.—When the referees are chosen by the court each party shall have the right of challenge as to such referees for the cause set out in the preceding, section, except that neither party shall be entitled to a preemptory challenge.

Section 6.—Subject to the limitations and directions prescribed in the order of reference, the trial by referee shall be conducted in the same manner as a trial by the court. They shall have the same power to grant adjournments, administer oaths, to preserve order, and to punish all violation thereof upon such trial, and to compel the attendance of witnesses and to punish them for non-attendance or refusal to be sworn or testify, as is possessed by the court.

Section 7.—The report of the referee shall state the facts found. The referees shall file with their report the evidence received upon the trial. If evidence offered by either party shall not be admitted on the trial and the party offering the same except to the decision rejecting such evidence at the time, the exception shall be noted by the referees, and they shall take and receive such testimony and file it with the report. Whatever judgment the court may give upon the report, it shall, when it appears that such evidence was frivolous or inadmissible, require the party at whose instance it was taken and reported to pay all costs and disbursements thereby incurred.

Section 8.—The report shall be filed with the clerk. IF it be filed in term time, either party may, within such time as may be prescribed by the rules of the court or by special order, move to set the same aside or for judgment thereon, or such order or proceedings as the nature of the case may require. If the report be filed in vacation, the like proceedings may be had at the next term following.

Section 9.—The court may affirm or set aside the report either in whole or in part. If it affirm the report, it shall give judgment accordingly. If the report be set aside either in whole or in part, the court may make another order of reference as to all or so much of the report as is set aside to the original referees or others, or it may find the facts and determine the law itself and give judgment accordingly. Upon a motion to set aside a report, the conclusions thereof shall be deemed and considered as the verdict of a jury.

Chapter Twenty. Of Exceptions.

Section 1.—An exception is an objection taken at the trial to decision upon a matter of law, whether such trial be by jury or court, and whether the decision be made during the formation of a jury, or in the admission of evidence, or in the charge to the jury, or time from the calling the action for trial to the rendering the final verdict or decision. But no exception shall be regarded on a motion for a new trial, or on an appeal, unless the exception be material and affect the substantial rights of the parties.

Section 2.—The point of the exception shall be particularly stated, and may be delivered, in writing to the judge or entered in his minutes, and at the time or afterwards be corrected until made conformable to the truth.

Section 3.—No particular form of exception shall be required. The objection shall be stated with so much of the evidence or other matter as is necessary to explain it, but no more.

Section 4.—The statement of the exception, when settled and allowed, shall be signed by the judge and filed with the clerk and thereafter it shall be deemed and taken to be a part of the record of the cause. No exception need be taken or allowed to any decision upon a matter of law when the same is entered in the journal or made wholly upon matters in writing and on file in the court.

Section 5.—The verdict of the jury, or any order or decision, partially or finally determining the rights of the parties, or any of them or affecting the pleadings, or granting or refusing a continuance or granting or refusing a new trial, or admitting or rejecting evidence, provided objection be made to its admission or rejection at the time of its offer, or made upon ex parte application or in the absence of a party, are deemed excepted to without the exception being taken or stated, or entered in the journal.

Chapter Twenty-one. Of New Trial.

Section 1.—A new trial is a re-examination of an issue of fact in the same court after a trial and decision or verdict.

Section 2.—The former verdict or other decision may be set aside and a new trial granted, on the motion of the party aggrieved, for any of the following causes materially affecting the substantial rights of such party.

First. Irregularity in the proceedings of the court, jury or adverse party, or any order of the court, or abuse of discretion by which such party was prevented from having a fair trial;

Second. Misconduct of the jury or prevailing party;

Third. Accident or surprise which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against;

Fourth. Newly discovered evidence, material for the party making the application, which he could not with reasonable diligence have discovered and produced at the trial.

Sixth. Error in law occurring at the trial and excepted to by the party making the application;

Seventh. Excessive damages appearing to have been given under the influence of passion or prejudice.

Section 3.—A motion for a new trial, with the affidavits, if any in support thereof, shall, except as hereinafter provided, be filed within three days after giving the verdict or other decision sought to be set aside; but the court may, upon satisfactory showing, extend the time for filing such affidavits. When the adverse party is entitled to oppose the motion by counter affidavits, he shall file the same within three days after the filing of the motion. A motion shall be heard and determined within ten days unless the occur continue the same for advisement or want of time to hear it.

Section 4.—In all cases of motion for a new trial the ground thereof shall be plainly specified, and no cause of new trial not so stated shall be considered or regarded by the court. When the motion is made for cause mentioned in subdivision one, two, three, or four of section two of this chapter, it shall be upon affidavits setting forth the facts upon which such motion is based unless they appear of record in the cause.

Section 5.—If the motion be supported by affidavits, counter affidavits may be offered by the adverse party; and if the cause be newly discovered evidence, the affidavits of any witness or witnesses showing what their testimony will be shall be produced or good reason shown for their nonproduction; and in the consideration of any motion for a new trial reference may be had to any proceedings in the case prior to the verdict or other decisions sought to be set aside.

They shall be written and handed to the court.

Section 2.—All questions of law, including the admissibility of testimony, the facts preliminary to such admission, and the construction of statutes and other writings and other rules of evidence, are to be decided by the Court, and all discussions of law addressed to it; and whenever the court is by this code made evidence of fact, the court is to declare such knowledge to the jury, which must be accepted as conclusive.

Section 3.—All questions of fact other than those mentioned in the preceding section shall be decided by the jury and all evidence thereon addressed to them.

Section 2.—Judgment may be given for or against one or more of several plaintiffs, and for or against one or more of several defendants; and it may, when the justice of the case requires it, determine the ultimate rights of the parties on each side as between themselves.

Section 3.—In an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment against one or more of them, whenever a several judgment is proper, leaving the action to proceed against the others.

Chapter Twenty-four. Of Judgment of Nonsuit.

Section 1.—A judgment of nonsuit may be given against the plaintiff as provided in this chapter:—

First. On motion of the plaintiff, at any time before trial, unless a counterclaim has been pleaded as a defense;

Second. On motion of either party, upon the written consent of the other filed with the clerk.

Third. On motion of the defendant, when the action is called for trial and the plaintiff fails to appear; or when, after the trial has begun and before the final submission for the cause, the plaintiff abandons it, or when upon the trial, the plaintiff fails to prove a cause sufficient to be submitted to the jury.

Section 2.—A cause not sufficient to be submitted to the jury is one where it appears that the jury were to find a verdict for the plaintiff upon any or all of the issues to be tried, the court ought, if required, to set it aside for want of evidence to support it.

Section 3.—When a judgment of nonsuit is given the action is dismissed, but such judgment shall not have the effect to bar another action for the same cause.

Chapter Twenty-five. Of Judgment on Failure to Answer.

Section 1.—Judgment may be had upon failure to answer as follows:

When the time for answering the complaint has expired and it appears that the defendant, or one or more of several defendants in the cases mentioned in section ten of chapter four of this title has been duly served with the summons and has failed to answer the complaint, the plaintiff shall be entitled to have judgment against such defendant or defendants.

First. In an action arising upon contract for the recovery of money or damages only; if no answer has been filed with the clerk of the court within the time specified in the summons, or such further time as may have been granted by the court or judge thereof, the court upon the application of the plaintiff made in writing filed with the clerk, shall enter the default of the defendant, and immediately thereafter enter judgment for the amount specified in the summons, including the costs of the defendant, or against one or more of several defendants, in cases provided for in section ten of chapter four of this title;

Second. In other actions, if no answer has been filed with the clerk of the court within the time specified in the summons or such further time as may have been granted by the court or judge thereof, the court shall, upon the written motion of the plaintiff being filed, enter the default of the defendant, and thereafter the plaintiff may apply at any time for the relief demanded in the complaint; and the court shall upon such demand, give judgment for the amount claimed in the summons, or the relief demanded in the complaint, unless it be necessary, to enable the court to give judgment or carry the same into effect, to take proof of any matter of fact, in which case the court may order the entry of judgment to be delayed until such proof be taken. The court may hear the proof itself or make an order of reference, or order that a jury be called to inquire thereof. The defendant shall not be precluded, by reason of his default, from offering proof in mitigation of damages;

Third. When the defendant has answered, and admits the plaintiff's claim, but sets up a counterclaim amounting to less than the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff, on motion, shall have judgment for the excess of his claim over such counterclaim, as for want of answer thereto.

Fourth. When in any action the service of the summons appears to have been made by publication, the court may, in its discretion, order the entry of judgment to be delayed until the plaintiff file with the clerk an undertaking, with one or more sureties, to be approved by the clerk, in an amount equal to the sum for which judgment may be given, upon the condition that the plaintiff will abide by and perform any order of the court requiring restitution to be made to the defendant or his representative in case either of them shall afterwards be admitted to defend the action. The sureties in the undertaking shall have the qualification of bialy and justify as provided in section seven of chapter twelve of this title.

Chapter Twenty-Six. Of Judgment by Confession.

Section 1.—On the confession of the defendant, with the assent of the plaintiff or his attorney, judgment may be given against the defendant in any action, before or after answer, for any amount or relief not exceeding or different from that demanded in the complaint.

Section 2.—When the action is against a public corporation or a private corporation, the confession shall be made by the person who at the time sustains the relation to such corporation as would authorize the service of a summons upon him. In all other cases the confession shall be made by the defendant in person.

Section 3.—When the action is upon a contract, and against one or more defendants jointly liable, judgment may be given on the confession of one or more defendants against all the defendants thus jointly liable, whether such defendants have been served with the summons or not to be enforced only against their joint property and against the joint and separate property of the defendant making the confession.

Section 4.—The confession and assent thereto shall be in writing, and subscribed by the parties or their attorneys making the same, and acknowledged by each before some officer authorized to take acknowledgements of deeds, but such acknowledgement is not required when the parties or their attorney shall appearing court when the judgment is given. In all cases the confession and assent thereto and the acknowledgment, if any, shall be filed with the clerk.

Section 5.—On the confession of any person capable by this code of being made a party defendant to an action, judgment may be given against such person without action, in favor of anyone, either for money due or to become due, or to secure any person against contingent liability on behalf of the defendant in such judgment, or both, if it be in favor of the same person.

Section 6.—The confession shall be made, assented to and acknowledged, and judgment given in the same manner as a confession in an action pending; besides which, the confession shall be verified by oath of the party making it, and shall authorize a judgment to be given for a particular sum. If it be for money due or to become due it shall state plainly and concisely the fact out of which such indebtedness arose, and shall show that the sum confessed therefor is justly due or to become due.

Section 7.—If it be for the purpose of securing the plaintiff in the judgment against a contingent liability, it shall state plainly and concisely the facts constituting such liability and shall show that the sum confessed therefor does not exceed the same. When judgment is given so as to be payable in installments, executions may issue to enforce the payment of such installments, as they become due.

Chapter Twenty-Seven. Of Submitting Controversy Without Action.

Section 2.—The parties as plaintiff and defendant shall state, in writing, a case containing the facts upon which the controversy depends, and subscribe the same in person or by their attorneys.

Such statement shall be verified by the oaths of the parties, or, where there is more than one plaintiff or defendant, by at least one of each, to the effect that the controversy is real, and the proceeding is taken in good faith to determine the rights of the parties. Where either party to the controversy is a public corporation, or a private corporation, the statement of the case may be subscribed and verified by any person who at the time sustains the relation to such corporation as would authorize the service of a summons upon him.

Section 3.—The statement shall be filed with the clerk of the court and from the date of such filing the court shall have jurisdiction of the controversy as if the same were an action pending after a special verdict found, and shall proceed to hear and determine the same accordingly.

Chapter Twenty-Eight. Of the Manner of Giving and Entering Judgment.

Section 1.—All judgements shall be entered by the clerk in the journal, and shall specify clearly the amount to be recovered, the relief granted, or other determination of the action. If entered in vacation, the entry shall be entitled and dated substantially as follows:

Section 2.—If a counterclaim established at trial exceed the plaintiff's demand so established, judgment for the defendant shall be given for the excess, or if it appear that the defendant is entitled to any other affirmative relief, judgment shall be given accordingly.

Section 3.—In an action to recover the possession of personal property judgment for the plaintiff may be for the possession, or the value thereof in case a delivery cannot be had, and damages for the detention thereof. If the property has been delivered to the plaintiff and defendant claim a return thereof, judgment for the defendant may be for the return of the property, or the value thereof in case a return cannot be had, and damages for taking and withholding the same.

Section 4.—When judgment is given for want of answer, the entry shall state substantially that the defendant has been duly served with the summons and has failed to answer the complaint. When judgment is given on confession, with or without action, on the report of referees, or on a controversy, submitted without action the entry shall state in like manner the confession and assent thereto, the report of the referees, or agreed case, as the case may be.

Section 5.—When a decision has been made sustaining or overruling a demurrer, unless the party against whom the decision is made be allowed to amend or plead over, judgment shall be given for the plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, for such amount or relief or to such effect, as it appears from the pleadings he is entitled to; but if the case is otherwise at issue upon a question of fact, the court may order the entry of judgment to be delayed until such issue be tried or otherwise disposed of.

Section 6.—When judgment is given in any of the cases mentioned in the two sections last preceding, unless otherwise ordered by the court, it shall be entered by the clerk within the day it is given. Except as in this section hereinafter provided, when a trial by the court has been had judgment shall be entered by the clerk in conformity with the decision within two days from the time the same is filed; or if the trial be by jury, judgment shall be given by the court in conformity therewith and entered by the clerk within two days from the time the verdict has been received; and in either case within the term at which such judgment is given.

First. When the court is in doubt what judgment ought to be given, it may order the question to be reserved for argument or further consideration and thereupon the entry of judgment shall be delayed until judgment be given;

Second. When, within the time allowed to file a motion for new trial, either party shall file a motion for a particular judgment or for judgment notwithstanding the verdict or decision;

Third. When a motion for new trial is filed within the time prescribed, the entry of judgment shall be thereby delayed until the motion is disposed of;

Fourth. When, upon a trial by the court, its decision is filed in vacation, the entry of judgment shall be delayed until the expiration of the time prescribed to file a motion for a new trial.

Section 7.—When it appears from the pleadings that the court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the action or the person of the defendant, or that the facts stated in the pleadings of the plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, do not constitute a cause of action or defense thereto, on motion judgment shall be given for the plaintiff or defendant, as the case may be, notwithstanding the verdict or decision.

Section 8.—When a motion for new trial, for a particular judgment, or for a judgment notwithstanding the decision is decided in vacation, the decision shall be in writing and filed with the clerk.

Chapter Twenty-Nine. Of Lien Judgment and Final Record.

Section 1.—Immediately after the entry of judgment in any action the clerk shall docket the same in the judgment docket. At any time thereafter, while an execution might issue upon such judgment, and the same remains unsatisfied in whole or in part, the plaintiff, or in case of his death his representative, may file a certified transcript of the original docket in the office of the recorder of the recording district. Upon the filing of such transcript, the recorder shall docket the same in the judgment docket of his office and note the same in the property register against such property or properties as requested by the judgment creditor. From the date of docketing a judgment, as in this chapter provided, or the transcript thereof, such judgment shall be a lien upon such real property of the defendant, and also provided; that such judgment may be recorded against all after acquired property with like effect, upon the request of the judgment creditor.

Section 2.—Whenever, after the entry of judgment a period of ten years shall elapse without an execution being issued on such judgment, the lien thereof shall expire.

Section 3.—A conveyance of real property or any portion thereof or interest therein shall be void against the lien of a judgment unless such conveyance be recorded at the time of docketing such judgment or the transcript thereof, as the case may be.

Section 4.—Within thirty days after docketing the judgment, the clerk shall prepare and file in his office the judgment roll, as provided in this section:

First. If the complaint has not been answered by any defendant he shall attach together, in the order of their filing, issuing, and entry, the complaint, summons, and proof of service, and a copy of the entry judgment.

Second. In all other cases he shall attach together in like manner the summons and proof of service, the pleadings, bill of exceptions, all orders relating to change of parties, together with a copy of the entry of judgment, and all other journal entries or orders in any way involving the merits and necessarily affecting the judgment.

Third. In all cases the clerk shall attach upon the outside of the judgment roll a blank sheet of paper upon which he shall indorse the name of the court, the term at which judgment was given, the names of the parties to the action and the title thereof, for whom judgment was given, and the amount or nature thereof, and the date of its entry and docketing.

First. When in any action it shall appear that the title to real property, or any interest therein, or any easement, franchise, or right in or to the same, is directly determined or affected by the judgment therein, on motion of either party the court shall order that a final record be made of the case and the expense of such record shall be taxed as other disbursements of the action.

Second. In all other actions, on motion of either party, the court shall order that a final record be made of the case at the cost of the party moving for the same.

Chapter Thirty-Seven. General Provision Relating to Actions of an Equitable Nature.

Section 1.—An action of an equitable nature shall only be commenced within the time limited to commence an action as provided in chapter two of this title, and an action for the determination of any right or claim to or interest in real property shall be deemed within the limitations provided for actions for the recovery of the possession of real property. In an action upon a new promise, fraud, or mistake the limitation shall only be deemed to commence from the making of the new promise or the discovery of the fraud or mistake: Provided, this section shall not be construed so as to bar an equitable owner in possession real property from defending his possession by means of his equitable title; and in any action for the recovery of any real property, or the possession thereof, by any person or persons claiming or holding the legal title to the same under such patent against any person or persons in possession of such real property under any equitable title or having in equity the right to the possession in such action, or by complaint of injunction shall not be barred by lapse of time while an action for the possession of such real property is not barred by the provision of chapter two of this title.

Section 2.—Every action of an equitable nature shall be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest, except as in this section otherwise provided. An executor or an administrator, a trustee of an express trust, or a person expressly authorized to sue by statute, may sue without joining with him the person for whose benefit the action is prosecuted. A trustee of an express trust within the meaning of this section shall be construed to include a person with whom and in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another.

Section 3.—All persons having an interest in the subject of the action and in obtaining the relief demanded may be joined as plaintiffs, except as in this chapter otherwise provided. Any person may be made a defendant who has or claims an interest in the controversy adverse to the plaintiff, or who is a necessary party to a complete determination or settlement of the question involved therein.

Section 4.—Of the parties to the action, those who are united in interest must be joined as plaintiffs or defendants; but if the consent of anyone who should have been joined as plaintiff cannot be obtained, he may be made a defendant, the reason thereof being stated in the complaint; and when the question is one of common or general interest of any persons, or when the parties are very numerous and it may be impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of the whole.

Section 5.—When there is more than one defendant in the action, service of only one copy of the complaint shall be required, the same to be served on the defendant designated by the plaintiff or his attorney by a direction indorsed on such summons, but the summons served on the other defendants shall contain a brief statement of the cause of action and relief demanded.

Section 6.—In addition to the cause enumerated in the subdivision of section six of chapter four of this title service of the summons may be made by publication in the following cases:

First. When the subject of the action is real or personal property in the District, and the defendant has or claims a lien or interest actual or contingent therein, or the relief demanded consists wholly or partly in excluding the defendant from any lien or interest.

Second. When the action is for divorce, as hereinafter provided.

Section 7.—The objection to the jurisdiction of the court, or that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, if not taken by demurrer or answer, may be made on the trial.

Section 8.—The counterclaim of the defendant shall be one upon which an action might be maintained by the defendant against the plaintiff in the action; and in addition to the cases specified in the subdivisions of section two of chapter eight of this title, it is sufficient if it be connected with the subject of the action.

Section 9.—The plaintiff in an action of an equitable nature may unite several causes of action in the same complaint, where they all arise out of:

First. The same transaction, or transactions connected with the same subject of action;

Second. Contract, express or implied;

Third. Injuries, with or without force to property;

Fourth. Claims to real property, or any interest therein, with or without an account for the rents and profits thereof;

Fifth. Claims to personal property, or any interest therein, with or without an account for the use thereof;

Sixth. Claims against a trustee by virtue of a contract or by operation of law.

But the causes of action so united must all belong to one of these classes, and must affect all the parties to the action, and not require different places of trial, and shall be separately stated.

Section 10.—The plaintiff in an action may have the defendant arrested and held to bail in like manner and with like effect as provided in the chapter of this title “Of arrest and bail.” A cause of arrest in an action shall be the same as those specified, in section one of chapter twelve of this title, so far as the same may exist, and not otherwise.

Chapter Thirty-Eight. Of the Trial of Issues in Actions of an Equitable Nature.

Section 1.—The provision of chapter fifteen of this title shall apply to actions of an equitable nature except as in this chapter otherwise or specially provided. Both issues of law and fact shall be tried by the court, unless referred, provided however, the court may, in its discretion, order a jury to inquire into a fact and render a verdict as to such fact.

Section 2.—All issues of fact in actions of an equitable nature may be tried by the court, and the evidence shall be presented and the trial conducted in the same manner as other actions; provided, the court in its discretion, refer the case to a referee pursuant to the provisions of this title. In all such actions the court, in rendering its decision therein, shall set out in writing its findings of fact upon all the material issues of fact presented by the pleadings, together with its conclusions of law thereon; but such findings of fact and conclusions of law shall be separate from the judgment, and shall be filed with the clerk; and shall be incorporated in, and constitute a part of, the judgment roll of the case; and such findings of fact, shall be conclusive. Exceptions may be taken during the trial to the ruling of the court, and also to its findings of fact, and a statement of such exceptions prepared and settled to its findings of fact, and a statement of such exceptions prepared and settled as in an action, and the same shall be filed with the clerk within ten days from the entering of the decree, or such further time as the court may allow.

Section 3.—When the action is called for trial, the trial shall proceed in the order prescribed in subdivisions one, two, three, four and five of section one of chapter sixteen, unless the court for special reasons otherwise directs.

Section 4.—Upon the trial either party may object to the reading of a deposition or any part thereof, when offered by the other because the witness is incompetent or the testimony is so, or irrelevant, and not otherwise.

Section 6.—The provisions of chapters nineteen (19) and twenty-three (23) of this title shall apply to actions of an equitable nature, but the final determination of the rights of the parties thereto is called a judgment, and any intermediate determination is called an order.

Section 7.—A judgment dismissing an action may be given against the plaintiff in any of the cases specified in subdivisions one, two, and three of section one of chapter twenty-four of this title, except the last clause of subdivision three. Such judgment is a determination of the action, but shall not have the effect to bar another action for the same cause or any part thereof.

Section 8.—Whenever upon the trial it is determined that the plaintiff is not entitled to the relief claimed, or any part thereof, a judgment shall be given dismissing the action and such judgment shall have the effect to bar another action for the same cause or any part thereof, unless such determination be on account of a failure of proof on the part of the plaintiff, in which case the court may, on motion of such plaintiff, give such judgment without prejudice to another action by the plaintiff for the same cause or any part thereof.

Section 9.—The provisions of chapter twenty-five and of section one, two, three and four of chapter twenty-six of this title shall apply to actions of an equitable nature. The provisions of chapter twenty-seven shall apply to controversies which might be the subject of such action.

Section 10.—When upon the submission of such an action of the court is unadvised as to what judgment ought to be given therein, it may reserve the case for further consideration, and may decide the same and give such judgment in vacation by filing the same with the clerk. When a judgment is given in an action of an equitable nature, unless otherwise ordered by the court, it shall be entered by the clerk within the day it is given. Sections one, two, four and five of chapter twenty-eight of this title shall apply to actions of an equitable nature. The provisions of chapter twenty-nine of this title shall apply to judgment and the final record or roll thereof.

enforce an order or judgment in an action of an equitable nature, other than for the payment of money punishing the party refusing or neglecting to comply therewith, as for a contempt.

Section 2.—The provisions of chapter thirty of this title shall apply to the enforcement of judgment so far as the nature of the judgment may require or admit of it, but the mode of trial of an issue of fact in a proceeding against a garnishee shall be according to the mode of trial of such issue in an action.

Chapter Forty-Four. Actions to Declare Void or Dissolve the Marriage Contract

Section 1.—A husband or wife may maintain an action of equitable nature against the other for the dissolution of the marriage contract, or to have the same declared void, as provided in this chapter.

Section 2.—All marriages which are prohibited by law on account of consanguinity between the parties, or on account of either of them having a husband or wife then living shall, if solemnized within the district, be absolutely void.

Section 3.—When either of the parties to a marriage shall be incapable of making such contract or assenting thereto for want of legal age or sufficient understanding, or when the consent of either party shall be obtained by force or fraud, such marriage shall be void from the time it is so declared by the decree of a court having jurisdiction thereof.

Section 4.—A marriage may be declared void from the beginning at the action of either party, for any of the causes specified in section two of this chapter, and whether so declared or not shall be deemed and held to be void in any action or proceeding whatever in which the same may come in question; but a marriage once declared to be valid by the judgment of a court having jurisdiction thereof, in an action for that purpose, can not afterwards be questioned for the same cause, directly or otherwise.

Section 5.—A marriage shall not be declared void for any of the causes specified in section three of this chapter, except at the action or claim of the party laboring under the disability, or upon whom the force or fraud was imposed or practiced; not at the action or claim of such party if it appears that the parties freely cohabited together as husband and wife after the party had arrived at legal age, acquired sufficient understanding, been restored to reason, freed from the force, or discovered the fraud, as the case may be.

Section 6.—When either husband or wife shall claim or pretend that the marriage is void or voidable, as provided in sections two and three of this chapter, the same may be declared valid and lawful at the action of the other, and in such action the court shall have power,

Section 8.—When a marriage has been solemnized in the district an action may be maintained to declare it void if the plaintiff is an inhabitant of the district at the commencement of the action. If the marriage has not been solemnized in the district, such an action can only be maintained when the plaintiff has been an inhabitant thereof for six months prior to the commencement of the action.

Section 9.—In an action for the dissolution of the marriage contract the plaintiff therein must be an inhabitant of the district at the commencement of the action and for six months prior thereto, which residence shall be sufficient to give the court jurisdiction without regard to the place where the marriage was solemnized or the cause of action arose.

Section 10.—In an action for the dissolution of the marriage contract on account of adultery the defendant may admit the adultery and shown in bar of the action:

First. That the act was committed by the procurement or with the connivance of the plaintiff; or,

Second. That the act had been expressly forgiven or impliedly so, by the voluntary cohabitation of the parties after knowledge thereof; or,

Third. That the plaintiff has been guilty of adultery also without the procurement or connivance of the defendant and not forgiven as provided in subdivision second of this section; or,

Fourth. That the action has not been commenced within one year after the discovery of the act by the plaintiff.

Section 11.—After the commencement of an action, and before a judgment therein, the court or judge thereof may, in its discretion, provide by order as follows:

First. That the husband pay, or secure to be paid, to the clerk of the court such an amount of money as may be necessary to enable the wife to prosecute or defend the action, as the case may be;

Second. For the care, custody, and maintenance of the minor children of the marriage during the pendency of the action;

Third. For the freedom of the wife from the control of the husband during the pendency of the action, and the court may restrain either or both parties from disposing of the property of either party pending the action.

Section 12.—Whenever a marriage shall be declared void or dissolved the court shall have the power to further decree as follows:

First. For the future care and custody of the minor children of the marriage as it may deem just and proper having due regard to the age and sex of the children and unless otherwise manifestly improper giving the preference to the party not in fault;

Section 13.—At any time after a judgment is given the court or judge thereof, upon the motion of either party on notice shall have power to set aside, alter, or modify so much of the judgment as may provide for alimony or for the appointment of trustees for the care

Section 14.—A judgment declaring a marriage void or dissolved by the action or claim of either party shall have the effect to terminate such marriage as to both parties, except that neither party shall be capable of contracting marriage with a third person, until the action has been heard and determined on appeal, and if no appeal be taken, and if he or she does so contract, such party shall be liable therefore as if such judgment had not been given.

Section 4.—There must be no existing right of appeal from judgment proposed as a set-off, and if such judgment was given in another court than the one where the application is made, the party proposing such set-off must produce a transcript of such judgment, certified by the proper Judge, which certificate shall also state how much of the judgment remains unsatisfied, and treat the transcript as given for the purpose of being set-off against the judgment to which it is proposed as a set-off.

Section 5.—The Judge making such transcript and certificate shall make an entry thereof in his docket, and thereafter all proceedings to enforce such judgment shall be stayed, unless the transcript be returned, with the certificate of the proper Judge indorsed thereon, to the effect that it has not been allowed to be set off.

Section 6.—If, upon the hearing of the application, the Judge finds that the judgments are mutual, he shall give judgment allowing the proposed set-off.

Section 10.—An execution issued by a Police Court must be made returnable in thirty days from the date thereof and may be directed to the sheriff or deputy or other officer authorized to act; and must be executed by any of such officers when delivered to him.

Section 11.—At any time before the expiration of the return day of the execution it may be renewed for another period of thirty days, at the request of the plaintiff, by an indorsement to that effect, made by the judge thereon. Such indorsement must be dated, and if any part of such execution has been satisfied, must state the amount then due thereon. An entry of such renewal must also be made in the docket of the Police Judge.

Chapter Eighty-Seven. Of Appeals from Police Court in Civil Actions.

Section 1.—Either party may appeal from a judgment given in a Police Court, in a civil action, when the sum in controversy is not less than ten dollars, or for the recovery of personal property of the value of not less than ten dollars, exclusive of costs in either case, except when the sum is given by confession or for want of an answer, as prescribed in this chapter, and not otherwise.

Section 2.—The appeal is taken to the District Court, and may be taken within thirty days from the date of the entry of the judgment. The party appealing is known as the appellant and the adverse party is the respondent, but the title of the action is not thereby changed.

Section 3.—An appeal is taken by serving the notice thereof on the adverse party or his attorney and filing the original, with the proof of service indorsed thereon, with the justice, and by giving the undertaking or the costs of the appeal as hereinafter provided.

Section 4.—The undertaking of the appellant must be given, with one or more sureties, to the effect that the appellant will pay all costs and disbursements that may be awarded against him on the appeal; but such undertaking does not stay the proceeding unless the undertaking further provides to the effect following, that the appellant will satisfy any judgment that may be given against him in the appellate court on the appeal.

Section 5.—If the judgment appealed from be in favor of the appellant, the proceedings thereon are stayed by the notice of appeal and the undertaking for the costs of the appeal.

Section 6.—When an appeal is taken the Police Court Judge must allow the same and make an entry thereof in his docket, stating whether the proceedings are thereby stayed or not. When the proceedings are stayed, if an execution has been issued to enforce the judgment, the judge must recall the same by written notice to the officer holding the execution, and thereupon it must be returned and all property taken thereon and not sold or released; and if the body of the defendant has been taken on execution he must be discharged from custody.

Section 7.—All sureties in an undertaking under the provisions of this chapter must have the qualification of bail upon arrest; and if required by the adverse party must justify before the judge in like manner.

Section 8.—Within twenty days after the allowance of the appeal the appellant must file with the clerk of the district court a transcript of the cause. The transcript must contain a copy of all the material entries in the Police Court docket relating to the cause of the appeal, and must have annexed thereto all the original papers relating to the cause or the appeal and filed with the judge.

Section 9.—Upon the filing of the transcript with the clerk of the district court the appeal is perfected, and the action shall be deemed pending and for trial therein as if originally commenced in such court, and the district court shall proceed to hear, try, and determine the same anew, without regarding any error or other imperfection in the original summons and the service thereof, or on the trial, judgment, or other proceeding of the Police Court.

Section 10.—The District Court, on motion of the respondent may, at any time before the action is called for trial, dismiss the appeal, if it satisfactorily appear that the transcript and original papers annexed are incomplete in any material particular, unless upon the cross motion of the appellant it makes a rule upon the Police Court Judge to supply such omission, upon such terms against the appellant as may be just. At any time before the trial the court may dismiss the appeal upon the motion of the appellant.

Section 11.—When an appeal is dismissed the district court must give judgment as it was given in the court below, and against the appellant, for the costs and disbursements of the appeal. When judgment is given in the appellate court against the appellant, either with or without trial of the action, it must also be given against the sureties in the undertaking according to the nature and effect of it. If the appellant fail to file such transcript within the time required, the adverse party may file a transcript of the judgment of the Police Court, and the notice and undertaking on appeal, which, on demand, the Police Court Judge shall deliver to him for that purpose and thereupon have such appeal dismissed and judgment against the appellant and his sureties as provided in this section.

Section 12.—An appeal can not be dismissed on the motion of the respondent, on account of the undertaking therefor being defective, if the appellant, before the determination of the motion to dismiss, will execute a sufficient undertaking, and file the same in the appellate court, upon such terms as may be deemed just.

Section 13.—In all cases of appeal the bill of items of the account sued on, or filed as a counterclaim or set-off, or the abatement of the plaintiff's cause of action, or of the defendant's counterclaim or set-off, or other ground of defense filed before the Police Court, may be amended upon appeal in the appellate court to supply any defect, deficiency, or omission therein, by filing formal pleadings therein when by such amendment substantial justice will be promoted; and in all cases when required by court, or by either party to the action, formal pleadings shall be filed on either side upon the trial of the cause on appeal; when either party requires such formal pleadings, he shall cause to be served on the opposite party a notice thereof in writing, and file the same in the court where the cause is pending try the first day of the term of the such court at

To maximize resources in providing services to children in need, all departments providing service to children shall develop methods to coordinate their services' resources. For children with multiple needs, the furtherance of this policy requires that all children's service agencies recognize that their jurisdiction in meeting these children's needs is not mutually exclusive.
- (e) When children or their families request help, Federal and Territorial government resources shall be utilized to complement community efforts to help meet the needs of children by aiding in the prevention and resolution of their problems. The territory shall direct its efforts first to strengthen and encourage family life as the most appropriate environment for the care and nurturing of children. To this end, the territory shall assist and encourage families to utilize all available resources. For children in need of services, care and guidance, the territory shall attempt to secure those services needed to serve the emotional, mental and physical welfare of children and the best interests of the community, preferably in their homes or in the least restrictive environment possible. When children must be placed in care away from their homes, the territory shall attempt to ensure that they are protected against harmful effects resulting from the temporary or permanent inability of parents to provide care and protection of their children. It is the policy of this territory to reunite children with their families in a timely manner, whether or not the child has been voluntarily placed in the care of a department. When children must be permanently removed from their homes, they shall if practicable be placed in adoptive homes so that they may become members of a family by legal adoption or, absent that possibility, they shall be placed in other permanent settings.
- (f) The Children's Policy shall be implemented through the cooperative efforts of legislative, judicial and executive branches, as well as other public and private resources. Where resources are limited, services shall be targeted to those children in greatest need.

 - (4) No court of any other State would have jurisdiction under the criteria specified in paragraph (1), (2), or (3).
- (b) Subsection (a) is the exclusive jurisdiction basis for making a child-custody determination by a court of this State.
- (c) Physical presence of, or personal jurisdiction over, a party or a child is not necessary or sufficient to make a child-custody determination.

If a child-custody proceeding has not been or is not commenced in a court of a State having jurisdiction under § 127 through § 129, a child-custody determination made under this section becomes a final determination, if it so provides and this State becomes the home State of the child.

Section 132. Simultaneous proceedings

- (a) Except as otherwise provided in § 130, a court of this State may not exercise its jurisdiction under this subchapter if, at the time of the commencement of the proceeding, a proceeding concerning the custody of the child has been commenced in a court of another State having jurisdiction substantially in conformity with this chapter, unless the proceeding has been terminated or is stayed by the court of the other State because a court of this State is a more convenient forum under § 133.
- (b) Except as otherwise provided in § 130, a court of this State, before hearing a child-custody proceeding, shall examine the court documents and other information supplied by the parties pursuant to § 134. - (c) In a proceeding to modify a child-custody determination, a court of this State shall determine whether a proceeding to enforce the determination has been commenced in another State. If a proceeding to enforce a child-custody determination has been commenced in another State, the court may:

- (b) If a court of this State declines to exercise its jurisdiction pursuant to subsection (a), it may fashion an appropriate remedy to ensure the safety of the child and prevent a repetition of the unjustifiable conduct, including staying the proceeding until a child-custody proceeding is commenced in a court having jurisdiction under § 127 through § 129.
- (c) If a court dismisses a petition or stays a proceeding because it declines to exercise its jurisdiction pursuant to subsection (a), it shall assess against the party seeking to invoke its jurisdiction necessary and reasonable expenses including costs, communication expenses, attorney's fees, investigative fees, expenses for witnesses, travel expenses, and child care during the course of the proceedings, unless the party from whom fees are sought establishes that the assessment would be clearly inappropriate. The court may order any person who is in this State and who has physical custody or control of the child to appear in person with the child.
- (b) If a party to a child-custody proceeding whose presence is desired by the court is outside this State, the court may order that a notice given pursuant to § 122 include a statement directing the party to appear in person with or without the child and informing the party that failure to appear may result in a decision adverse to the party.
- (c) The court may enter any orders necessary to ensure the safety of the child and of any person ordered to appear under this section.
- (d) If a party to a child-custody proceeding who is outside this State is directed to appear under subsection (b) or desires to appear personally before the court with or without the child,

Upon petition by either parent and a finding that a significant change of circumstances has occurred where visitation is no longer in the best interest of the child, the court may modify or terminate grandparent visitation rights. Any order denying or terminating grandparent visitation shall be in writing and shall state its reasons for denial or termination. An order denying or terminating visitation shall be a final order for the purposes of appeal.

JUDGMENT AND COMMITMENT

THIS MATTER came on for Sentencing on Thursday, September 17, 2015, before the Honorable Michael C. Dunston. The People appeared through Assistant Attorney General Denise George-Counts, Esq., and the Defendant appeared personally with counsel Treston E. Moore, Esq.

The Court advised the parties that a Memorandum Opinion and Order had been entered earlier on that day denying Defendant's post-conviction motion for judgment of acquittal and new trial. The Court inquired as to the accuracy of the presentence investigation report and counsel for the People offered a single correction, which was duly noted on the record. The Court then heard allocution and recommendations from both defense counsel and counsel for the People, as well as testimony from Janeen Claxton on behalf of the People, and two exhibits were identified and admitted into evidence on behalf of the People. The Defendant was then given an opportunity to make a statement on his behalf, and he did.

1 you a short break before I give you the 2 final instructions in this case. We will
3 recess for about ten minutes.

4 [JURY EXITS]

5 [Brief recess, thereafter trial resumes:]

6 [JURY ENTERS]

7 FINAL JURY INSTRUCTIONS

8 THE CLERK: People of the 9 Virgin Islands versus Louis Milton Willis.

10 THE COURT: Ladies and
11 Gentlemen, now that you have heard all of 12 the evidence and the arguments of the 13 Attorneys I will instruct you on the law.
14 Before I do that, I want to thank you one
15 more time for your assistance and your 16 service as jurors. We are truly grateful
17 for your help.

18 It is your duty to find the 19 facts from all of the evidence. With 20 those facts you'll apply the law as I
21 instruct you. Instructing you on the law
22 is my job and you must follow the law as I
23 state it, whether you agree with it or 24 not.

25 In following my instructions,

1 you should follow all of them and not
2 single out some and ignore others. They 3 are all equally important. And, you must 4 not read into these instructions or into 5 anything that I have said or done, during
6 the course of this trial, any suggestion
7 as to what you should find the facts to be 8 or what your verdict should be. Those are 9 matters in entirely up to you. Nor should 10 you be influenced by my tone of voice or 11 manner of speaking to one of Attorneys or 12 a witness.

13 Except for my instructions to 14 you on the law, you should disregard
15 anything that I may have said or done
16 during the this trial in deciding the 17 facts.

18 There is nothing particularly 19 different in the way that a Juror should 20 consider the evidence in a trial from the 21 way any reasonable and careful person
22 would deal with any important question.

23 You are expected to use your
24 good sense in considering the evidence
25 reasonably and fairly and find the truth

1 using your common knowledge of the way
2 people behave.

3 If the Defendant has been
4 proven guilty, beyond a reasonable doubt,
5 say so. If the Defendant has not been
6 proven guilty, beyond a reasonable doubt,
7 say so.

8 Your power is not arbitrary,
9 but it must be exercised with discretion
10 and in accordance with the rules of 11 evidence as I instruct you.

12 It would be a violation of 13 your sworn duty to base a verdict upon 14 anything other than the evidence and my 15 instructions. Justice through trial by 16 jury depends on the willingness of each
17 individual Juror to seek the truth from 18 the same evidence and to arrive at a
19 verdict by applying the same rules of law.

20 The evidence from which you
21 are to decide what the facts are consist 22 of the sworn testimony of witnesses, both
23 on direct and cross examination,
24 regardless of who called the witness; the 25 exhibits that have been received into

1 evidence; and any facts to which the
2 lawyer have agreed or stipulate.

3 Although you may consider only
4 the evidence presented during the trial,
5 using common sense and personal experience
6 you are also permitted to draw reasonable
7 conclusions that you find, I'm sorry, from 8 facts that you find to have been proven.

9 Remember that certain things
10 are not evidence. Unless I have 11 specifically instructed you otherwise,
12 nothing that the Attorneys have said is 13 evidence, including their opening
14 statements, their closing arguments, their 15 objections and their questions. The 16 lawyers are not witnesses. What they say
17 may help you interpret the evidence, but 18 it is not evidence.

19 If the facts, as you remember
20 them from the evidence, differ from the 21 way the lawyers have stated them, your 22 memory controls. Lawyers have a duty to 23 their clients to object when they believe
24 that a question or an exhibit is improper
25 under the rules of evidence.

1 You should not be influenced
2 by those objections or by my rulings on 3 them. If I sustained an objection to a
4 question, you must ignore the question and 5 not try to guess what the answer might
6 have been. Similarly, if a lawyer ask a
7 question that asserts something to be a
8 fact, you may not consider the assertion
9 by the lawyer as evidence of that fact.
10 Only the witnesses' answers are evidence.

11 Anything that I've excluded
12 from evidence or ordered stricken and 13 instructed you to disregard, is not 14 evidence.

15 The Second Amended Information
16 is not evidence. The fact that a
17 Defendant has been charged with crimes,
18 proves nothing.

19 And finally anything you've 20 seen or heard when the Court was not in 21 session is not evidence.

22 Evidence may be direct or 23 circumstantial. Direct evidence is simply 24 evidence, like the testimony of an eye
25 witness that directly proves a fact.

1 Circumstantial evidence is simply a chain
2 of circumstances that indirectly proves a
3 fact.

4 The law makes no distinction
5 between the weight that you should give to 6 either direct or circumstantial evidence,
7 nor does the law say that one is better
8 evidence than the other. You should 9 consider all of the evidence, both direct
10 and circumstantial and give it whatever
11 weight you think it deserves.

12 I've indicated to you during 13 the trial that certain evidence was 14 admitted only for a particular limited
15 purpose and not generally for all
16 purposes. With the limited purpose for 17 which evidence has been received, you may 18 give it such weight as you think it
19 deserves. But you may not use that 20 evidence for any purpose other than the 21 purpose I specified at the time the 22 evidence was presented.

23 In deciding the facts you may 24 have to decide which testimony to believe
25 and not believe. You may believe

1 everything a witness says, part of it, or
2 none of it. In deciding whether you
3 believed any witness, I suggest you ask
4 yourself a few questions:

5 Did the witness impress you as
6 someone who was telling the truth? Did
7 the witness demonstrate a bias or
8 prejudice or resentment in this case? Did
9 the witness have a personal interest in 10 the outcome of case or a particular reason
11 not to tell the truth?

12 Did the witness have the 13 opportunity and ability to observe
14 accurately the things he or she testified?
15 Did the witness appear to understand the 16 questions clearly and answer them
17 directly? Did the witness seem to have a 18 good memory?

19 Did the witness say or do
20 something or fail to say or do something
21 at an earlier time that was different from 22 the testimony the witness gave during the 23 trial? Or did the witness give testimony
24 that differed from other evidence that you
25 believed.

1 Of course, a simple mistake by
2 a witness does not mean, necessarily, that 3 the witness is not telling the truth, as 4 he or she remembers it, because people see
5 or hear things differently and sometimes
6 forget things. So you need to consider
7 whether a contradiction is an innocent
8 lapse of memory or an intentional
9 falsehood. And that may depend on whether 10 it has to do with an important fact or 11 only a small detail.

12 If a person is shown to have 13 knowingly testified falsely concerning an 14 important matter, you have the right to 15 distrust the testimony of that witness
16 concerning any matter. You may accept or 17 reject some or all of the testimony of the 18 witness and give it whatever weight you
19 think it deserves.

20 The testimony of a witness may 21 be discredited by a showing that the 22 witness previously made statements that 23 are different from the testimony the 24 witness gave at trial.

25 Under Virgin Islands Law

1 earlier inconsistent statements are
2 admissible in criminal trials only to
3 impeach the credibility of the witness.
4 You may use that evidence only to help you
5 decide whether to believe the trial
6 testimony of a witness and how much weight
7 to give to it.

8 You've heard evidence that a
9 witness has previously been convicted of a
10 crime involving dishonesty and false
11 statements. That evidence may be 12 considered by you only for the purpose of 13 determining the affect of the prior 14 conviction on the credibility of the 15 witness and for no other purpose.

16 You may consider the 17 conviction only to help you decide whether 18 to believe the witness' version of events
19 and how much weight to give to his 20 testimony.

21 Documents have been received
22 in evidence from which portions have been 23 deleted. These redactions are made for 24 the purpose of ensuring that the evidence
25 is presented to you in accordance with the

1 requirements of the law, to prevent
2 confusion, or avoid error.

3 You should not concern
4 yourself with the reasons for the removal
5 of portions of the documents, nor should
6 you attempt to guess what information
7 might have been removed from the 8 documents.

9 You may consider only the 10 portions of the documents that have been 11 admitted into evidence in arriving at your 12 verdict.

13 Your decision should not be 14 determined by the number of witnesses for 15 or against a party, but should be based on 16 all the facts in evidence. You may find 17 that the testimony of a smaller number of 18 witnesses, on one side, is more credible
19 than the testimony of a greater number of 20 witnesses on the other side.

21 The testimony of a single 22 witness, if believable, is sufficient to 23 prove any fact, if it convinces you, after 24 consideration of all the evidence, that 25 the fact has been proven, even if other

1 witnesses testified to the contrary.

2 The law permits the accused to 3 testify on his own behalf. And the 4 testimony of the Defendant is before you.
5 As with the testimony of any witness, you
6 must determine to what extent the 7 testimony of the Defendant is credible.
8 And the testimony of the Defendant is to 9 be judged in the same way as that of any 10 other witness.

11 You've heard that the 12 Defendant made one or more statements. It
13 is for you to decide first, whether the 14 Defendant made the statements. And 15 second, if so, how much weight you should 16 give to it.

17 In making these decisions, you
18 should consider all of the evidence
19 including, the age, training, education
20 occupation, physical and mental condition
21 of the Defendant, as well as all of the 22 circumstances under which the statements
23 may have been made.

24 You've also heard testimony
25 from Gerard Castor, who entered a plea

1 agreement that included an agreement to 2 cooperate with the People and give
3 truthful testimony in this trial.

4 The People are permitted to 5 present the testimony of someone with whom
6 they have entered into such an agreement,
7 but you should consider this testimony
8 with great care and caution.

9 In evaluating the testimony of 10 a co-defendant, you should consider this 11 factor, along with the others I called to 12 your attention. Whether the testimony of 13 the witness has been influenced by the 14 People's agreement is for you to 15 determine, and you may give his testimony
16 such weight as you think it deserves.

17 The Defendant has pled not
18 guilty to the crimes charged. The law
19 presumes that the Defendant is innocent
20 and the Defendant has no obligation to 21 prove his innocence or to present any 22 evidence. It is up to the People to 23 prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the 24 Defendant is guilty, and this burden stays
25 on the People at all times.

1 You must find the Defendant
2 not guilty, unless the Government
3 convinces you, beyond a reasonable doubt,
4 that he is guilty.

5 A reasonable doubt is what the
6 term implies, a doubt that is reasonable.
7 The People are not required to produce
8 evidence that will exclude every
9 conceivable possibility of the Defendant's
10 innocence because almost everything in 11 life is open to some degree of doubt.

12 The People are only required
13 to prove a defendant's guilt, beyond a 14 reasonable doubt, not beyond all possible
15 doubt.

16 A reasonable doubt is a fair
17 doubt based upon reason and common sense,
18 the kind of doubt that will make a
19 reasonable person hesitate to act. Proof
20 beyond a reasonable doubt, then must be 21 proof of such a convincing character that 22 you would not hesitate to rely and act on 23 it in the most important of matters.

24 While it's rarely possible to 25 prove anything to an absolute certainty,

1 you must also remember that the Defendant
2 must never be convicted on mere suspicion
3 or speculation.

4 Reasonable doubt may also
5 arise from the absence of evidence or a
6 lack of proof. If the Jury views the 7 evidence in the case as reasonably
8 permitting either of two conclusions, one
9 of innocence, the other of guilt, the Jury
10 must adopt the conclusion of innocence.

11 A separate crime is charged in 12 each count of the Second Amended
13 Information. Each charge, and the 14 evidence pertaining to each charge, should 15 be considered separately by the Jury.

16 The fact that you may find the 17 Defendant guilty or not guilty as to one 18 of the Counts should not control your 19 verdict as to any other count.

20 You're here to decide only
21 whether the People have proven, beyond a
22 reasonable doubt, that the Defendant is 23 guilty of the crimes with which he is 24 charged. The Defendant is not on trial
25 for any act, conduct or offense not

1 alleged in the Second Amended Information.
2 Nor are you concerned with the guilt or 3 innocence of any person not on trial in 4 this case.

5 If the evidence convinces you,
6 beyond a reasonable doubt, of the guilt of 7 the Defendant for one or more of the 8 crimes charged, you should so find, even 9 though you may believe that one or more
10 other persons, who are not charged in the 11 Second Amended Information, are also 12 guilty of the same or some other offense.

13 Similarly, if you are not
14 convinced, beyond a reasonable doubt, that 15 the Defendant committed one or more
16 offenses charged in the Second Amended
17 Information, you should find the Defendant
18 not guilty of those offenses, regardless
19 of whether one or more other persons, who 20 are not charged in the Second Amended
21 Information, is guilty of those or other
22 crimes.

23 I'll not read the Second
24 Amended Information to you because you'll 25 have a copy in the jury room. In summary,

1 Count I charges the Defendant with
2 conspiracy to evade or defeat gross
3 receipt taxes.

4 Count II charges willful
5 failure to collect or pay gross receipt
6 taxes.

7 And Count III charges fraud
8 and false statements.

9 I'll now instruct on the 10 elements of the offenses charged. After 11 considering all of the evidence, if you
12 find that the People have proven each and 13 every element of a crime with which the 14 Defendant is charged, beyond a reasonable
15 doubt, you should find the Defendant
16 guilty of that charge.

17 After considering all of the 18 evidence, if you find that the People have 19 not proven one or more elements of a crime
20 with which the Defendant is charged,
21 beyond a reasonable doubt, you should find
22 the Defendant not guilty of that charge.

23 In order to prove the offense
24 of conspiracy to evade or defeat gross
25 receipt taxes as charged in Count I of the

1 Second Amended Information, the People
2 must prove each of following elements
3 beyond a reasonable doubt:

4 During the period between
5 January 1st, 2002 and February 25, 2008 on 6 St. Thomas US Virgin Islands, the 7 defendant, Louis Milton Willis, conspired
8 with another person to evade or defeat
9 gross receipts tax, a tax imposed under 10 Subchapter I of Title 33 of the Virgin
11 Islands Code or by Virgin Islands Income
12 Tax Law, with intent to defraud the 13 Government of the Virgin Islands of money
14 or property, and at least one of the 15 conspirators committed at least one of the 16 following acts to affect the object of the 17 conspiracy:

18 From 2002 to 2006, while
19 Director of the Virgin Islands Bureau of 20 Internal Revenue, Louis Willis issued to 21 Balboa Construction Corporation tax
22 clearance letters that falsely stated that 23 Balbo Construction Corporation was current 24 in the filing and payment of its tax
25 obligations, although Balboa Construction

1 Corporation was in fact delinquent in the 2 filing of tax returns or the payment of 3 taxes during that period.

4 You'll note that the Second
5 Amended Information charges that the 6 offenses were committed on or about a
7 certain date or time period. The People
8 do not have to prove with certainty the 9 exact date of the alleged offense. It is 10 sufficient if the People prove beyond a
11 reasonable doubt the offense was committed
12 on a date or during a period of time
13 reasonably near the date or period
14 alleged.

15 To act fraudulently, means to 16 commit an act by knowingly misrepresenting
17 or concealing a significant fact.

18 To act knowingly, means to 19 commit an act voluntarily and 20 intentionally and not because of a mistake
21 or accident.

22 To act intentionally, means to 23 purposely commit an act without regard to 24 the law.

25 And to act unlawfully, means

1 to commit an act that is contrary to law.

2 A conspiracy is an agreement
3 or understanding between two or more
4 persons to commit a crime. The agreement
5 or understanding does not have to be 6 expressed or formal, nor does it need to 7 be in writing. The agreement need not 8 include all the details of how the 9 conspiracy is to be carried out, nor is it
10 necessary that the members of the 11 conspiracy have directly stated between 12 themselves the details or purpose of the 13 scheme.

14 And it need not be proved that 15 the conspirators actually succeeded in 16 accomplishing their unlawful plan.

17 You should understand that
18 merely being present at the scene of an 19 event or merely associating with other
20 persons, does not mean that a person has 21 joined a conspiracy. A person who has no
22 knowledge of a conspiracy, but who happens
23 to act in way that advances some purpose
24 of the conspiracy does not thereby become 25 a member of the conspiracy.

1 But, a person may join a
2 conspiracy without knowing all the details
3 of the agreement or understanding and
4 without knowing who all the other members
5 of the conspiracy are. And, it is not
6 necessary that the person agrees to play
7 any particular part in carrying out the 8 conspiracy.

9 A person may become a member
10 of a conspiracy even if that person agrees
11 to play only a minor role in the 12 conspiracy as long as the person has an 13 understanding of the unlawful nature of 14 the plan and voluntarily and intentionally
15 joins it.

16 The People must prove beyond a
17 reasonable doubt that during the existence
18 of the conspiracy, at least one member of 19 the conspiracy performed at least one of 20 the overt acts described in the Second
21 Amended Information, for the purpose of 22 furthering and helping to achieve the 23 object of the conspiracy.

24 The Second Amended Information
25 allege certain overt acts. The People do

1 not have to prove that all of these acts
2 were committed or that any of these acts
3 were themselves illegal.

4 Also, the People do not have
5 to prove that each Defendant committed any 6 of the overt acts. The People must prove 7 beyond a reasonable doubt that at least
8 one member of the conspiracy committed at 9 least one of the overt acts alleged in the 10 Second Amended Information and committed
11 it during the time that the conspiracy
12 existed for the purpose of furthering or 13 helping to achieve the objects of the 14 conspiracy.

15 In order to return a verdict
16 of guilty of the conspiracy, you must 17 unanimously agree on the overt act that 18 you find was committed. If you cannot 19 unanimously agree that the commission of 20 the overt act has been proven, by a 21 reasonable doubt, you must find the 22 Defendant not guilty.

23 You may consider acts
24 knowingly done and statements knowingly
25 made, by a Defendant's co-conspirators

1 during the existence of the conspiracy and
2 in furtherance of the conspiracy as
3 evidence pertaining to the Defendant, even 4 though the acts were done or the 5 statements were made in the absence of and 6 without the knowledge of the Defendant.

7 This include acts done or
8 statements made before the Defendant
9 joined the conspiracy, because a person
10 who knowingly, voluntarily and 11 intentionally joins an existing conspiracy
12 is responsible for all the conduct of the 13 co-conspirators from the beginning of the 14 conspiracy to the end.

15 A criminal act committed in 16 furtherance of a conspiracy by one member
17 of the conspiracy is attributable to the 18 other conspirators for the purpose of 19 holding them responsible for that criminal 20 act.

21 The People may prove the guilt
22 of the Defendant through evidence of 23 criminal acts committed within the scope
24 of and during the course of a conspiracy
25 of which the Defendant was a member

1 providing the criminal acts were
2 reasonably foreseeable as a necessary and
3 natural consequence of the conspiracy.

4 You may find the Defendant
5 guilty of a crime charged in the Second
6 Amended Information that was committed by 7 other members in a conspiracy of which the 8 Defendant was a member if the People
9 proved, beyond a reasonable doubt, that a
10 conspiracy existed, and that there was an 11 agreement or an understanding between 12 individuals to align themselves in a
13 criminal venture; the Defendant was part 14 of the conspiracy; one or more of the 15 other persons in the conspiracy with the 16 Defendant committed a substantive criminal 17 act, and the substantive criminal act was 18 committed in furtherance of and during the 19 course of the conspiracy of which the 20 Defendant was a member.

21 In order to prove the offense
22 the willful failure to collect or pay over
23 gross receipt taxes as charged in Count
24 II, the People must prove each of the 25 following elements, beyond a reasonable

1 doubt:

2 During the period between
3 approximately January 1st, 2002 and
4 February 25, 2008, the defendant, Louis
5 Milton Willis aided and abetted Balbo
6 Construction Corporation, which was 7 required by Subchapter I of Title 33 of 8 the Virgin Islands Code or by Virgin
9 Islands Income Tax Law to collect, account
10 for, and pay over gross receipts tax in 11 willfully failing to collect or truthfully
12 account for and pay over those taxes.

13 A person may be found guilty
14 of an offense even if he did not 15 personally do every act constituting the 16 offense charged, if he aided or abetted
17 the commission of the offense.

18 In order to have aided or 19 abetted the commission of an offense the 20 Defendant must, either before or at the 21 time the crime was committed; have known
22 that the offense was being committed or 23 going to be committed; have knowingly
24 acted in some way for the purpose of 25 causing, encouraging, or aiding in the

1 commission of the offense; and have
2 intended that the crime be committed.

3 For you to find the Defendant
4 guilty of an offense by reason of aiding
5 and betting, the People must prove, beyond
6 a reasonable doubt, that all of the 7 elements of the offense were committed by 8 some person or persons and that the 9 Defendant aided and abetted in the 10 commission of the crime.

11 You should understand that
12 merely being present at the scene of an
13 event or merely associating with others
14 does not prove that a person has become an 15 aider and abettor. A person who has no
16 knowledge that a crime is being committed
17 or about to be committed, but who happens
18 to act in a way that advances some offense
19 does not thereby become an aider and 20 abettor.

21 Subchapter I of Title 33 of 22 the Virgin Islands Code and Virgin Islands
23 Income Tax Law requires every individual
24 firm, corporation or association doing
25 business in the Virgin Islands to report

1 and pay a tax on its gross receipts. As
2 used in this instructions the term gross
3 receipts means all receipts, whether cash
4 or approved the tax payer receives for 5 services or derives from trade, business,
6 commerce or sales, as well as the value
7 accruing from the sale of tangible
8 personal property or services or both
9 including rentals, fees, or other
10 emoluments, however designated, without 11 any deduction on account of the cost of 12 the property sold, the cost of materials
13 used, labor costs, royalties, taxes,
14 interest or discount paid, or any expenses
15 whatsoever. These provisions apply to 16 contractors with the Government of the 17 Virgin Islands for public works projects
18 or undertakings.

19 In order to prove the offense
20 of fraud and false statements as charged
21 in Count III, the People must prove each
22 of following elements, beyond a reasonable
23 doubt:

24 On or about February 1st,
25 2008, through -- I'm sorry, 2002, through

1 -- on or about January 1st, 2002 through
2 February 25, 2008, on St. Thomas, US
3 Virgin Islands, the defendant, Louis
4 Milton Willis, willfully aided or assisted 5 in or procured, counselled or advised the 6 preparation or presentation of a return,
7 affidavit, claim or other document, in 8 connection with a matter arising under the 9 Internal Revenue Laws that was fraudulent
10 or false in any material matter.

11 A matter is material if it is 12 significant or of such a nature that 13 knowledge of the matter would have the 14 potential to affect a person's decision
15 making.

16 The intent or knowledge of a
17 person, at any given time, may not 18 ordinarily be proven directly because 19 there is no way of directly observing the 20 human mind at work. In determining what a 21 person knew or intended, at a particular
22 time, you may consider any statements made
23 or not made or any acts done or not done
24 by that person and all the other facts and 25 circumstances in evidence.

1 You may infer, but you are not
2 required to infer, that a person intends
3 the natural and probable consequences of 4 an act he knowingly does or knowingly
5 fails to do.

6 Each of the offenses charged
7 in the Second Amended Information requires
8 proof of specific intent. Counts I and II
9 require proof that the Defendant intended
10 to evade or defeat the filing and payment
11 of taxes.

12 And, Count III, requires proof
13 that the Defendant fraudulently and 14 intended to make a material false
15 statement.

16 A person acts in good faith
17 when he has an honestly held belief,
18 opinion or understanding that his conduct
19 is lawful, even though the belief, opinion
20 or understanding turns out to be 21 inaccurate or incorrect.

22 If you find that the Defendant
23 acted in good faith with regard to any 24 particular offense, his belief would be a
25 complete defense to that charge because

1 good faith on the part of the Defendant
2 would be inconsistent with the Defendant
3 acting with the required mental state.

4 But, a Defendant does not act
5 in good faith if, even though he honestly
6 held a certain belief, opinion, or 7 understanding, he also knowingly made
8 false statements or misrepresentations to 9 others.

10 It is the People's burden to 11 prove each element of the offense,
12 including the mental state element. And 13 the Defendant does not have the burden of 14 proving good faith. Good faith is a
15 defense because it is inconsistent with a 16 mental state the People are required to 17 prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, to 18 establish the Defendant's guilt to the 19 offense charged.

20 In deciding whether the People
21 proved that the Defendant acted with the 22 required mental state or instead that he 23 acted in the good faith, you should 24 consider all of the evidence presented in 25 the case that may bear on that Defendant's

1 state of mind.

2 If you find, from the
3 evidence, that the Defendant acted in good
4 faith, as I've defined it, or if you find,
5 for any other reason, that the People have
6 failed to prove, beyond a reasonable
7 doubt, that the Defendant acted with the 8 required mental state, you must find the 9 Defendant not guilty of that offense.

10 Proof of motive is not a 11 necessary element of any crime with which 12 the Defendant is charged. Proof of motive
13 does not establish guilt, nor does lack of 14 proof of motive establish that the 15 Defendant is innocent.

16 If the guilt of the Defendant
17 is shown, beyond a reasonable doubt, it is 18 immaterial what the motive for the crime
19 was or whether any motive has been shown.
20 If the presence or absence of motive is a 21 circumstance that you may consider in 22 bearing on the intent of the Defendant.
23 The People do not have to prove motive.

24 You're instructed that if I
25 have asked any questions of any of the

1 witnesses, made comments to any of the 2 Attorneys or said or done anything during
3 the trial or instructing you now, whereby
4 it seems to you that I'm inclined to favor
5 the case of either the People or the 6 Defendant, you must remove any such 7 impression from your minds and not allow 8 yourselves to be influenced by it because 9 no such impression was intended to be 10 created.

11 What the verdict shall be is 12 the exclusive duty and responsibility of 13 the Jury. As I've told you many times,
14 you are the sole judges of the fact.

15 I previously advised you that 16 you should not read any news stories or 17 articles or listen to any radio or 18 television reports about this case or 19 about anyone involved in it during the 20 trial.

21 I also suggested that you
22 avoided reading any newspapers and avoid
23 listening to any television or radio news
24 casts at all during the trial. But, there
25 has been extensive press coverage of this

1 matter and it is possible that you may
2 have accidentally found yourself reading
3 or listening to something that you should 4 not have before you could do anything
5 about it.

6 If so, you must not discuss
7 any information from news reports with 8 your fellow jurors at any time, including 9 your deliberations, you must put it out of 10 your mind and you must not consider it in 11 arriving at your verdict.

12 Reporters writing about this 13 trial may not have listened to all of the 14 evidence and may have gotten information
15 from people who did not testify under 16 oath, subject to cross examination. Or 17 the reporter may have emphasized an 18 unimportant point, made unfounded
19 inferences or simply have been wrong.

20 News reports are not part of 21 the evidence and you must not permit any 22 information from them to influence your 23 judgment in arriving at a true verdict.

24 It is important you understand
25 that this case must be decided only upon

1 the evidence presented in Court and the
2 instructions I give you.

3 The punishment provided by law
4 for the offenses charged in the First
5 Amended Information is a matter
6 exclusively for the Court to decide and 7 should never be considered by the Jury in 8 any way in arriving at an impartial
9 verdict as to the offenses charged.

10 You have been chosen and sworn
11 only to try the issues of fact presented
12 by the parties. Under no circumstances
13 should your deliberations be influenced by 14 bias, passion, prejudice, sympathy, pity
15 or public opinion. In every respect your 16 judgment should be considered deliberate
17 and objective and based on the facts and 18 reasonable inferences logically supported 19 by the evidence.

20 Also, speculation and 21 conjecture must play no role in the 22 performance of the your duties.

23 Both the People and the 24 Defendant expect that you will carefully
25 and impartially consider all of the

1 evidence, follow the law as stated by the
2 Court, and reach a just verdict regardless
3 of the consequences.

4 Some of you may have taken
5 notes. Those notes are not evidence and 6 should not -- should only aid the memory
7 of the Juror who took the notes and must 8 not be given greater weight than each of 9 your independent, individual memories of 10 the evidence in the case.

11 Any notes taken by any Juror
12 concerning this case should not be
13 disclosed to anyone other than a fellow
14 Juror and must be given to the Marshal at 15 the end of case.

16 I'm sure you'll be pleased to 17 hear that I now come to the final part of 18 these instructions, the rules for your
19 deliberations. Upon retiring to the jury
20 room, you must first elect one of your 21 members to act as your foreperson to 22 preside over your deliberations and to be
23 your spokesperson in Court.

24 The opinion or vote of the 25 foreperson carries no greater weight than

1 that of any other juror. Your verdict
2 must represent the collective judgment of 3 the jury, and in order for you to return a
4 verdict, each juror must agree to it. In 5 other words, your verdict must be 6 unanimous.

7 During the trial you may have
8 formed impressions as to how it should be 9 decided. Do not allow those impressions
10 to prevent you from fairly and frankly
11 discussing this case with any of your 12 fellow jurors who may have a different
13 point of view.

14 It is your duty to give 15 careful attention to the views of your 16 fellow jurors, to consult with one
17 another, and to deliberate with a view to 18 reaching an agreement if you can do so
19 without violence to individual judgment.

20 Each of you must decide the 21 case for yourself. Do not hesitate to 22 re-examine and change your opinion if you
23 are convinced it is wrong, but do not 24 surrender your honest belief as to the 25 weight or effect of the evidence solely

1 because of the opinion of your fellow
2 jurors or for the mere purpose of 3 returning a verdict.

4 Remember at all times you are
5 not partisans. You are judges, judges of 6 the facts. Your sole interest is to seek 7 the truth from the evidence presented
8 during the trial.

9 A copy of these instructions
10 will be available in the jury room for you
11 to consult if you find it necessary, and 12 that should avoid most, if not all,
13 questions during your deliberations. But 14 if it becomes necessary to communicate
15 with me during your deliberations, you may 16 send a note, signed by your foreperson by 17 one or more other members of Jury, through 18 the Marshal.

19 No member of the Jury should 20 ever attempt to communicate with me by any 21 means other than a signed writing. And I
22 will never communicate with any member of 23 the Jury other than in writing or orally
24 here in court. The Marshals, as well as 25 all other persons, are forbidden to

1 communicate in any way or manner with any
2 member of the jury concerning the 3 evidence, your opinions or the 4 deliberations.

5 Bear in mind also that you
6 never to reveal, to any person, not even 7 to me, how the jury stands either by the 8 number of votes for or against conviction,
9 or otherwise on the question of whether 10 the People have sustained the burden of 11 proof until you have reached a unanimous
12 verdict or have been discharged.

13 To assist you in communicating
14 your verdict, forms of verdict have been 15 prepared for you. There are two forms for 16 each offense charged in the Second Amended
17 Information, one for a not guilty verdict
18 and one for a guilty verdict.

19 When you have made a unanimous
20 determination of the guilt or innocence of 21 the Defendant as to a count of the Second 22 Amended Information, you will select and 23 complete the appropriate form indicating 24 your verdict of either guilty or not 25 guilty.

1 Your foreperson will date the
2 verdict form, and each of you will sign
3 the appropriate form for each count.
4 Then, advise the Marshal that you've
5 reached a verdict and you'll be returned
6 to the courtroom. Your foreperson must
7 bring the verdict forms with him or her.

8 I'll ask if you've reached a
9 verdict and if so the foreperson should
10 stand and either announce the Jury's
11 verdict as to each Count, one at a time,
12 by reading the completed form of verdict
13 that you've signed or ask that the Court
14 announce the verdict.

15 The foreperson should then
16 hand up verdict forms for the Court's
17 inspection. And upon request of either
18 the People or the Defendant, the Clerk
19 will poll each Juror.

20 When you receive the 21 instructions, the written instructions you
22 will see that the last portion of those
23 instructions are the verdict forms. There
24 are, as I indicated two for each offense
25 charged. One for a not guilty verdict,

1 one for a guilty verdict.

2 When you have reached a
3 verdict, you select the appropriate form,
4 this one is for Count I, you would then,
5 the foreperson would sign on the indicated
6 line and date the verdict form and each of 7 the other jurors agreeing to that verdict
8 would sign on one of the lines below.

9 You'll see that there are also
10 two forms for Count II, one for not 11 guilty, one for guilty. And two forms for 12 Count III.

13 Now, after I speak with the 14 Attorneys one last time, I'll permit you
15 to retire for your verdict. Counsel
16 approach.

17 [Sidebar conference]

18 THE COURT: I saw a few typos
19 in there that I'll correct before I send 20 them to the Jury. And I'll make sure that 21 all the references to the Information
22 include the Second Amended Information.

23 But first, are there any 24 instructions that I indicated that I would 25 give that I failed to give?

1 ATTORNEY MOORE: No.

2 ATTORNEY GEORGE-COUNTS: I

3 didn't see any.

4 ATTORNEY MOORE: Your Honor, I

5 didn't see any either. I frankly have no

6 particular objection to the instructions

7 as given.

8 I do want to renew my motion

9 for Judgment of Acquittal on the grounds

10 stated at the end of the Government's

11 case. And I have no additional argument

12 to add at this time in the interest of 13 time.

14 THE COURT: All right.

15 Certainly. All right. Do the People have 16 any objections?

17 ATTORNEY GEORGE-COUNTS:

18 Objection to the?

19 THE COURT: To the 20 instructions as given?

21 ATTORNEY GEORGE-COUNTS: No.

22 THE COURT: All right. The 23 renewed motion is denied based on the same

24 reasons previously given.

25 ATTORNEY MOORE: Thank you,

1 Your Honor.

2 [End of sidebar]

3 THE COURT: Ladies and
4 Gentlemen, at this point in the trial I'd 5 like to say that there aren't many
6 opportunities for me as a Judge to make
7 people happy, but I'm going to make three 8 of you happy at this point.

9 The alternates will not 10 deliberate with the 12 of you who will 11 decide this case. So once, I step outside 12 the courtroom and you are permitted to 13 deliberate, you three may leave.

14 However, I ask you to continue
15 to follow my instructions regarding not 16 discussing this case, not looking at the 17 news, not reading the newspapers etc.
18 Because, it's possible that you still may 19 be called to deliberate.

20 So until a verdict has been
21 reached in this case, I ask you to comply
22 with those instructions. With that, I
23 will permit the Jury to retire to 24 deliberate.

25 [JURY EXITS]

1 THE COURT: Counsel, the
2 redactions on the transcript, have you
3 taken care of that?

4 ATTORNEY GEORGE-COUNTS: Yes.
5 It's not totally finished because my 6 marker is going dry. But, I'm thinking we 7 can make a copy by just putting a white
8 paper over that.

9 THE COURT: I'll leave you to 10 that. I'll make those corrections. We 11 will stand in recess.

12 ATTORNEY MOORE: Your Honor?

13 THE COURT: Yes.

14 ATTORNEY MOORE: I apologize,
15 Your Honor, are we to stay here until then 16 and then if we are allowed to leave the 17 courtroom, are we allowed to return to our 18 offices?

19 THE COURT: Sure, as long as 20 you're on-call.

21 ATTORNEY MOORE: Thank you,
22 Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: In fact, you don't
24 have to stay. I'm going to make those 25 changes in terms of typos on the verdict

1 forms and give them to the Clerk.

2 So once the two of you have
3 agreed on the redactions to that exhibit,
4 you're free to go.

5 ATTORNEY MOORE: Thank you,
6 Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Thank you.

8 [Recess/jury deliberates, trial resumes:]

9 [Jury enters]

10 THE CLERK: Good evening,
11 People of the Virgin Islands versus Louis
12 Milton Willis.

13 ATTORNEY GEORGE-COUNTS:
14 Denise George-Counts for the People.

15 ATTORNEY MOORE: Good evening,
16 Treston Moore on behalf of Mr. Louis
17 Willis, who is present with me in Court.
18 Good evening Ladies and Gentlemen.

19 THE COURT: Ladies and
20 Gentlemen, good evening have you reached a
21 verdict?

22 JURY IN UNISON: Yes, we have,
23 Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: All right. Do you
25 wish to read the verdict or have the Court
