MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

Before the Court is the motion of Robert Bolden, Sr., for leave to amend his motion to vacate, set aside, or correct sentence pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255. The United States has filed a response in opposition.

Following a jury trial, Bolden was found guilty of conspiring and attempting to commit bank robbery and, in so doing, killing a security guard with a firearm, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §§ 2113(a), (e) and (f) (Counts I and II); using a firearm during and in relation to the attempted bank robbery in Count II, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §§ 924(c)(1),(j)(1) and 2 (Count III); and being a convicted felon in possession of a firearm, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(1) (Count IV). He received the death sentence on Counts II and III. After the convictions were affirmed on appeal, Bolden filed a motion to vacate, set aside, or correct sentence pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255. On March 21, 2016, the Court denied the motion to vacate.

Bolden now seeks leave to amend his motion to vacate in order to assert a new claim based on the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Johnson v. United States, 135 S.Ct. 2551 (2015). In the proposed new claim, Bolden asserts that the attempted bank robbery charge in Count II no longer qualifies as a "crime of violence” after Johnson. Thus, he argues, his conviction under 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)—using a firearm during and in relation to a crime of violence, i.e., the attempted bank robbery—is invalid.

In Johnson, the Supreme Court held that the “residual clause” of the Armed Career Criminal Act (ACCA), 18 U.S.C. § 924(e), is unconstitutionally vague. The ACCA enhances the punishment for firearms offenses under 18 U.S.C. § 922(g) when the defendant has at least three prior convictions for a serious drug offense or a “violent felony.” 18 U.S.C. § 924(e)(1). The term “violent felony” is defined in the ACCA as felony offense that “(1) has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person of another, or (ii) is burglary, arson, or extortion, involves the use of explosives, or otherwise involves conduct that presents a serious potential risk of physical injury to another.” 18 U.S.C. § 924(e)(2)(B) (emphasis added). The “otherwise involves” language of the ACCA is the residual clause that the Supreme Court found unconstitutional. Johnson, 135 S.Ct. at 2563.

Bolden was not sentenced under the ACCA. Instead, he was found guilty of violating 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1) by using a firearm during a “crime of violence.” The term “crime of violence” as used in § 924(c)(1) means a felony offense that “(A) has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person or property of another, or (B) that by its nature, involves a substantial risk that physical force against the person or property of another may be used in the course of committing the offense.” 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(3). The “elements” language in § 924(c)(3)(A) is almost identical to that in 924(e)(2)(B)(i). In Johnson the Court made it clear that its ruling pertained only to the residual clause of the ACCA. Johnson, 135 S.Ct. at 2563 (“Today’s decision does not call into question application of the Act to the four enumerated offenses, or the remainder of the Act's definition of a violent felony."]. Thus, Bolden cannot claim that Johnson invalidated the "elements" language of § 924(c)(3)(A).

The definition of "crime of violence" in § 924(c)(3) contains no "otherwise involves" language like the definition of "violent felony" in 924(e)(2)(B)(ii) which the Supreme Court found unconstitutional. Nevertheless, Bolden asserts that the "risk" clause of § 924(c)(3)(B) is not materially different from the "otherwise involves" language in 924(e)(2)(B)(ii) and, thus by extrapolation, the "risk" clause is equally unconstitutional. Thus, he argues, his conviction under § 924(c)(1) can be sustained only if the offense of bank robbery under 18 U.S.C. § 2113(a) meets the definition of crime of violence in § 924(c)(3)(A)—i.e., it "has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person or property of another."

Section 2113(a), the bank robbery statute under which Bolden was convicted provides, in relevant part:

Whoever, by force and violence, or by intimidation, takes, or attempts to take from the person or presence of another, or obtains or attempts to obtain by extortion any property or money or any other thing of value belonging to, or in the care, custody, control, management, or possession of, any bank, credit union, or any savings and loan association . . . [s]hall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than twenty years, or both. [emphasis added]

In United States v. Boman, 810 F.3d 534 (8th Cir. 2016), a case decided after Johnson, the court held that the defendant's prior conviction for using a firearm during the commission of a violent crime was a predicate offense that qualified him as an armed career criminal. The "violent crime" in dispute was federal robbery under 18 U.S.C. § 2111, which the court held was a "crime of violence" as defined in § 924(c)(3)(A). Id. at 542-43. In reaching its decision, the court considered the statutory language of § 2111 which provides that robbery is committed when a person “by force and violence, or by intimidation, takes or attempts to take from the person or presence of another anything of value.” Thus, the court reasoned, the defendant’s federal robbery conviction “had as an element the ‘attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person of another.’” Id. at 543 [quoting 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(3)(A)].

More recently, in United States v. Allen, 836 F.3d 894 (8th Cir. 2016), the Eighth Circuit considered the motion of a movant convicted of armed bank robbery for authorization to file a successive § 2255 motion based on the Johnson decision. The court denied the motion, “because bank robbery in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2113(a) and (e) is a ‘crime of violence’ under 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(3)(A).” Id. [citing Boman, 810 F.3d at 543]. Courts in other circuits have reached the same conclusion. In United States v. Armour, 2016 WL 6440383 at *2 (7th Cir. 2016), the court held that the Johnson decision was inapplicable to a defendant convicted under 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1)(A), “because the federal crime of attempted bank robbery qualifies as a crime of violence under the ‘elements’ clause of the definition, which is not unconstitutionally vague.” Likewise, in In re Hines, 824 F.3d 1334, 1337 (11th Cir. 2016), the court wrote “a conviction for armed bank robbery clearly meets the requirement . . . to include as an element, ‘the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person or property of another.’” Finally, in United States v. McNeal, 818 F.3d 141, 152-53 (4th Cir. 2016), the court ruled that “armed bank robbery is unquestionably a crime of violence, because it ‘has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force . . .’”.

Based on the foregoing, the Court concludes that Bolden’s conviction under § 924(c) is not invalidated by the decision in Johnson. Therefore, he would not be entitled to relief based on the claim asserted in the proposed amendment.

Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the movant's motion to amend the motion to vacate, set aside, or correct sentence [Doc. # 235] is denied.

1 deserves, considering the witness' education, experience, and 2 the soundness of the reasons given for the opinion; the 3 acceptability of the methods used; and all the other evidence 4 in the case.

5 Certain summaries were also admitted in evidence
6 during the trial. These summaries will be provided to you, 7 and you may use the summaries as evidence, even though the 8 underlying documents and records are not here.

9 Intent or knowledge may be proved like anything 10 else. You may consider any statements made and acts done by 11 the defendant and all the facts and circumstances in evidence 12 which may aid in a determination of the defendant's knowledge 13 and intent. You may but are not required to infer that a 14 person intends the natural and probable consequences of acts 15 that are knowingly done or knowingly omitted.

16 The government and the defendant have stipulated -- 17 that is, they have agreed -- that certain facts are, as 18 counsel stated, in the stipulation. You must therefore treat 19 those facts as having been proved.

20 The indictment in this case charges the defendant
21 with four different crimes. Under Count 1, the indictment 22 charges that the defendant committed the crime of conspiracy
23 to rob the Bank of America on October 7, 2002. Under Count 24 2, the indictment charges that the defendant committed the 25 crime of attempting to rob the Bank of America on October 7,

1 2002; and that, in committing that offense, did kill Nathan 2 Ley.

3 Under Count 3, the indictment charges that the 4 defendant committed the crime of using, carrying, brandishing
5 and discharging a firearm during the attempt to rob the Bank
6 of America on October 7th, 2002; and that, in so doing, 7 murdered Nathan Ley.

8 Under Count 4, the indictment charges that the 9 defendant committed the crime of being a previously convicted 10 felon and possessing a firearm on October 7, 2002, that had 11 been transmitted in interstate commerce.

12 The defendant has pleaded "not guilty" to each of 13 the four charges. As I told you at the beginning of the 14 trial, an indictment is simply an accusation. It is not 15 evidence of anything. The defendant, to the contrary, is 16 presumed to be innocent. So the defendant, even though 17 charged, begins the trial with no evidence against him.

18 The presumption of innocence alone is sufficient to 19 find the defendant not guilty and may be overcome only if the 20 government proves beyond a reasonable doubt each essential 21 element of the crime charged. Please keep in mind that each 22 count charges a separate crime. So you must consider each 23 count separately and return a separate verdict for each 24 count.

25 A "reasonable doubt" is a doubt based upon reason

1 and common sense and not the mere possibility of innocence.
2 A "reasonable doubt" is the kind of doubt that would make a
3 reasonable person hesitate to act. "Proof beyond a 4 reasonable doubt" must be proof of such a convincing 5 character that a reasonable person would not hesitate to rely 6 and act upon it; however, proof beyond a reasonable doubt 7 does not mean proof beyond all possible doubt.

8 The indictment is based upon federal statutes which 9 are federal law. Section 371 of Title 18 of the United 10 States provisions in part that, "It is unlawful if two or 11 more persons to conspire to commit any offense against the 12 United States and one or more of such persons do any act to 13 affect the object of the conspiracy."

14 Section 922(g)(1) of Title 18 United States Code 15 provides that, "It shall be unlawful for any person who has 16 been convicted in any court of a crime punishable by 17 imprisonment for a term exceeding one year to possess in or 18 affecting commerce any firearm."

19 Section 924(c)(1)(a) of Title 18 of the United 20 States Code provides in part that, "It is unlawful for any 21 person during and in relation to any crime of violence for 22 which the person may be prosecuted in a court of the United 23 States to use or carry or brandish or discharge a firearm."

24 Section 924(j) of Title 18 United States Code 25 provides in part that, "It is unlawful for a person who, in

1 the course of a violation of Subsection C, to cause the death 2 of any person through the use of a firearm if the killing is 3 a 'murder,' as defined in Section 1111 of the Title 18."

4 Section 1111(a) of Title 18 of the United States
5 Code provides in part that, "'Murder' is the unlawful killing 6 of a human being with malice aforethought. Every murder 7 perpetrated committed in the perpetration of or attempt to 8 perpetrate any robbery is murder in the first degree."

9 Section 9213(a) of Title 18 United States Code 10 provides in part that, "Whoever by force and violence or by 11 intimidation takes or attempts to take from the person or 12 presence of another or obtains or attempts to obtain any 13 property or money or any other thing of value belonging to or 14 in the care, custody, control, management, or possession of 15 any bank shall be guilty of an offense against the United 16 States."

17 Section 2113(e) of Title 18 of the United States 18 Code provides in part that, "Whoever in committing any 19 offense defined in this section or in avoiding or attempting 20 to avoid apprehension for the commission of such offense or 21 in freeing himself or attempting to free himself from arrest
22 or confinement for such offense kills any person or forces 23 any person to accompany him without the consent of such 24 person shall be guilty of an offense against the United 25 States."

1           One of the instructions that will be provided to 2 you -- and all of them is numbered. This one is numbered 3 17(a) -- is a replication of the indictment in this case; and 4 I'm not going to read it to you. You'll have the opportunity 5 to read it, and you should read it when you get the written 6 instructions.

7           The crime of conspiracy as charged in Count 1 of the 8 indictment has four essential elements, which are, one, on or 9 about October 7, 2002, two or more persons reached an 10 agreement or came to an understanding to rob the Bank of 11 America; two, the defendant voluntarily and intentionally 12 joined in the agreement or understanding either at the time 13 it was first reached or at some later time while it was still 14 in effect; three, at the time the defendant joined in the 15 agreement or understanding, he knew the purpose of the 16 agreement or understanding; and, four, while the agreement or 17 understanding was in effect, a person or persons who had 18 joined in the agreement knowingly did one or more of the 19 overt acts listed in the indictment for the purpose of 20 carrying out or carrying forward the agreement or 21 understanding.

22           If all of the essential elements of the crime of 23 conspiracy have been proved beyond a reasonable doubt as to 24 the defendant and if it has further been proved beyond a 25 reasonable doubt -- I am sorry. There is a mistake here.

1 Let me reread that paragraph. If all of these essential
2 elements for the charge of conspiracy have been proved beyond 3 a reasonable doubt as to the defendant, then you must find 4 the defendant guilty of the crime charged under Count 1; 5 otherwise, you must find the defendant not guilty of the 6 crime charged under Count 1.

7 The government must prove that the defendant reached 8 an agreement or understanding with at least one other person.
9 It makes no difference whether that other person is a 10 defendant or named in the indictment. You do not have to 11 find that all of the persons charged were members of the 12 conspiracy. The agreement or understanding need not be an 13 expressed or formal agreement or be in writing or cover all 14 of the details as to how it is to be carried out, nor is it 15 necessary that the members have directly stated between 16 themselves the details or purpose of the scheme.

17 You should understand that merely being present at 18 the scene of an event or merely acting in the same way as 19 others or merely associating with others does not prove that 20 a person has joined in an agreement or understanding. A 21 person who has no knowledge of a conspiracy but who happens 22 to act in a way which advances some purpose of a conspiracy 23 does not thereby become a member.

24 But a person may join in an agreement or 25 understanding as required by this element without knowing all

1 of the details of the agreement or understanding and without 2 knowing who all of the other members are. Further, it is not 3 necessary that a person agree to play any particular part in 4 carrying out the agreement or understanding. A person may 5 become a member of a conspiracy even if that person agrees to 6 play only a minor part in the conspiracy, as long as that 7 person has an understanding of the unlawful nature of the 8 plan and voluntarily and intentionally joins in it.

9           You must decide, after considering all of the 10 evidence, whether the conspiracy alleged in Count 1 of the 11 indictment existed. If you find that the alleged conspiracy 12 did exist, then you must also decide whether the defendant 13 voluntarily and intentionally joined the conspiracy either at 14 the time it was first formed or at some later time while it 15 was still in effect.

16           In making that decision, you must consider only 17 evidence of the defendant's open actions and statements. You 18 may not consider the actions and pretrial statements of 19 others, except to the extent that the pretrial statements of 20 others describe something that had been said or done by the 21 defendant.

22           To assist you in determining whether there was an 23 agreement or understanding to rob the Bank of America, you 24 are advised that the elements of bank robbery are, first, 25 taking money from the presence of another while that money

1 was in the care or custody of the Bank of America; second, 2 such taking was by force and violence; and, third, the 3 deposits of the Bank of America were then insured by the 4 FDIC.

5 Keep in mind that the indictment in Count 1 charges
6 a conspiracy to commit bank robbery and not that bank robbery 7 was committed.

8 It is not necessary that the overt act done in 9 furtherance of the conspiracy be in itself unlawful. It may 10 be perfectly innocent in itself. I should mention to you 11 that in the indictment in Count 1 there are allegations of 12 overt acts committed in furtherance of the alleged 13 conspiracy. So in these instructions, when I refer to "overt 14 acts," I'm referring to the allegations that are in the 15 indictment, which you will see when you read Instruction 16 17(a).

17 It is not necessary that the defendant have 18 personally committed the act; known about it; or witnessed 19 it. It makes no difference which of the conspirators did the 20 acts. This is because a conspiracy is a kind of partnership.
21 So that, under the law, each member of the conspiracy is an 22 agent or partner of every other member; and each member is 23 bound by or responsible for the acts of every other member 24 that is done to further their scheme.

25 It is not necessary that the government prove beyond

1 a reasonable doubt that more than one act was done in 2 furtherance of the conspiracy. It is sufficient if the 3 government proves beyond a reasonable doubt one such act.
4 But in that event, in order to return a verdict of guilty,
5 you must unanimously agree on which act was done.

6           You may consider acts knowingly done and statements 7 knowingly made by a defendant's co-conspirators during the 8 existence of the conspiracy and in furtherance of it as 9 evidence pertaining to the defendant, even though they were 10 done or made in the absence of and without the knowledge of 11 the defendant. This includes acts done or statements made 12 before the defendant joined the conspiracy, because a person 13 who knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally joins an 14 existing conspiracy is responsible for all of the conduct of 15 the co-conspirators from the very beginning of the 16 conspiracy.

17           In Count 2, which alleges attempted bank robbery in 18 which Nathan Ley was killed, that charge has four essential 19 elements, which are, one, the defendant attempted to take 20 money from the presence of another while that money was in 21 the care or custody of the Bank of America; two, such 22 attempted taking was by force or violence; three, the 23 deposits of the Bank of America were then insured by the 24 FDIC; and, four, in committing such offense, the defendant
25 did kill Nathan Ley.

1           If all of these essential elements have been proved 2 beyond a reasonable doubt as to the defendant, then you must 3 find the defendant guilty of the crime charged under Count 2; 4 otherwise, you must find the defendant not guilty of the 5 crime under Count 2.

6           Excuse me. The crime charged in Count 2 of the 7 indictment is an attempt to rob a federally insured bank. A 8 person may be found guilty of an attempted if he intended to 9 rob a bank and voluntarily and intentionally carried out some 10 act which was a substantial step toward that bank robbery.

11           A "substantial step," as used in the previous 12 instruction, must be something more than mere preparation; 13 yet it may be less than the last act necessary before the 14 actual commission of the substantive crime. In order for 15 behavior to be punishable as an "attempt," it need not be 16 incompatible with innocence; yet, it must be necessary for 17 the consummation of the crime and be of a nature that a 18 reasonable observer, viewing it in context could conclude 19 beyond a reasonable doubt that it was undertaken in 20 accordance with the design to violate the statute.

21           If your verdict under Count 2 is "not guilty" or if 22 after all reasonable efforts you are unable to reach a
23 verdict on Count 2, then you should record that decision on 24 the verdict form which will be provided to you and then go on 25 to consider whether the defendant is guilty of the crime of 1 attempted bank robbery under this instruction.

2           The crime of attempted bank robbery, which is 3 separate from the -- a different offense than the crime
4 charged under Count 2. The crime of attempted bank robbery
5 is a lesser-included offense of the crime charged in Count 2 6 of the indictment. And it has three essential elements which 7 are, one, the defendant attempted to take money from the 8 presence of another while that money was in the care and 9 custody of the Bank of America; two, such attempted taking 10 was by force and violence and; three, the deposits of the 11 Bank of America were then insured by the FDIC.

12           For you to find the defendant guilty of this crime
13 of a lesser-included offense under Count 2, the government 14 must prove all of these essential elements beyond a 15 reasonable doubt; otherwise, you must find the defendant not 16 guilty of this crime.

17           The crime of using, carrying, brandishing, and 18 discharging a firearm in furtherance of a crime of violence
19 which results in murder as charged Count 3 of the indictment 20 has four essential elements, which are, one, the defendant 21 committed the crime of attempted bank robbery as charged in 22 Count 2; second, the defendant knowingly used or carried or 23 brandished or discharged a firearm during and in relation to 24 that crime; and three, the defendant used the firearm to 25 cause the death of Nathan Ley; and four, the killing of

1 Nathan Ley was murder in the perpetration of an attempted 2 bank robbery.

3 "Murder" is the unlawful killing of a human being 4 with malice aforethought. A killing is unlawful if done
5 without legal justification. Killing is done with malice 6 aforethought if it results from the perpetration of an 7 attempted bank robbery in which the defendant was aware of a 8 serious risk of death attending his conduct. Malice 9 aforethought does not necessarily imply any ill-will, spite, 10 or hatred toward the individual killed.

11 If all of the essential elements of this offense has 12 been proved beyond a reasonable doubt as to the defendant, 13 then you must find the defendant guilty of the crime charged 14 under Count 3; otherwise, you must find the defendant "not 15 guilty" of the crime under Count 3.

16 Count 3 of the indictment charges a crime that may 17 be committed in one or more ways: One, use; two, carry; 18 three, brandish; or four, discharge a firearm during and in 19 relation to a crime of violence and in doing so committed 20 murder. It is not necessary for the defendant to prove all 21 of these. I am sorry. Excuse me. It is not necessary for 22 the government to prove all of these. It is sufficient if 23 the government proves beyond a reasonable doubt one of these.

24 But in that event in order to return a verdict of 25 guilty, you must unanimously agree upon which of these the

1 government has proven beyond a reasonable doubt. If you
2 cannot agree in that manner, then you must find the defendant
3 not guilty as to Count 3. In this case, you must decide 4 whether the defendant used, carried, brandished, or 5 discharged a firearm or all of these.

6 To "use a firearm" means that it was actively 7 employed in the course of the commission of the crime of 8 attempted bank robbery. To "carry a firearm" means that 9 means to have the firearm on the person of the defendant.
10 "To brandish a firearm" means to display all or part of the 11 firearm or otherwise make the presence of the firearm known 12 to another person in order to intimidate that person, 13 regardless of whether the firearm is directly visible to the 14 person. "To discharge a firearm" means to expel a projectile 15 by means of an explosive from the firearm.

16 If your verdict under Count 3 is "not guilty," or if 17 after all reasonable efforts you are unable to reach a
18 verdict on Count 3, then you should record that decision on 19 the verdict form and then go on to consider whether the 20 defendant is guilty of the crime of using, carrying, 21 brandishing, or discharging a firearm during a crime of 22 violence under this instruction.

23 The crime of using, carrying, brandishing, or 24 discharging a firearm during a crime of violence is a
25 lesser-included offense of the crime charged in Count 3 of

1 the indictment, and it has three essential elements, which 2 are, one, the defendant committed the crime of attempted bank
3 robbery as charged in Count 2. And, two, the -- would you 4 all step up, please?

5 (Whereupon, the following sidebar conference took 6 place:)

7 THE COURT: Should have three elements.

8 MR. HOLTSHOUSER: I think it is two.

9 THE COURT: I don't know where this came from.

10 MR. HOLTSHOUSER: That should be a "three."

11 THE COURT: Oh, I'm sorry.

12 MR. HOLTSHOUSER: Yes, that should be "three."

13 MR. REILLY: You said "three," when you read the 14 instruction. But it needs to be changed.

15 THE COURT: I'll read it again.

16 MR. HOLTSHOUSER: Two elements.

17 THE COURT: Two elements? Okay.

18 (Whereupon, the sidebar conference concluded.)

19 THE COURT: No matter how many pairs of eyes that 20 look at these, there is always a mistake that we all miss.
21 So I'm sorry. I've caught a couple of typographical errors.
22 So I'm going to reread this instruction to you.

23 If your verdict under Count 3 is "not guilty" or if 24 after all reasonable efforts you are unable to reach a
25 verdict on Count 3, then you should record that decision on

1 the verdict form and go on to consider whether the defendant 2 is guilty of the crime of using, carrying, brandishing, or 3 discharging a firearm during a crime of violence under this 4 instruction. The crime of using, carrying, brandishing, or 5 discharging a firearm during a crime of violence is a
6 lesser-included offense of the crime charged in Count 3 of 7 the indictment.

8 And it has two essential elements, which are, one,
9 that the defendant committed the crime of attempted bank
10 robbery as charged in Count 2; and two, that the defendant 11 knowingly used or carried or brandished or discharged a 12 firearm during and in relation to that crime.

13 For you to find the defendant guilty of this crime, 14 which is a lesser-included offense under Count 3, the 15 government must prove all of these essential elements beyond 16 a reasonable doubt; otherwise, you must find the defendant 17 not guilty of this crime.

18 The crime of being a felon-in-possession of a 19 firearm as charged in Count 4 of the indictment has three 20 essential elements, which are, one, the defendant had been 21 convicted of a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term 22 exceeding one year; two, the defendant thereafter knowingly 23 possessed a firearm, to wit, a Harrington & Richardson
24 .22-caliber nine-shot revolver bearing serial number W2252;
25 and, three, that at sometime prior to the defendant's

1 possession of the firearm, it was transported across a state 2 line.

3           You are instructed that the government and the 4 defendant have stipulated -- that is, they have agreed -- 5 that, prior to October 7, 2002, the defendant was convicted 6 of a felony crime. That is, a crime punishable by 7 imprisonment for a term of more than one year. Accordingly, 8 you must consider the first essential element of this offense
9 in Count 4 as having been proved.

10           If you have found beyond a reasonable doubt that the 11 firearm in question was manufactured in a state other than 12 Missouri and that the defendant possessed that firearm in the 13 State of Missouri, then you may but are not required to find 14 that it was transported across a state line.

15           The term "firearm" means any weapon which will or is 16 designed to or may readily be converted to expel a projectile
17 by the action of an explosive. If all of these essential 18 elements have been proved beyond a reasonable doubt as to the 19 defendant, then you must find the defendant guilty of the 20 crime charged under Count 4; otherwise, you must find the 21 defendant not guilty of the crime charged in Count 4.

22           I believe in my earlier instructions to you I told 23 you that sometimes evidence may be admitted for a limited 24 purpose. It can be used for one purpose and not for any 25 other. That has happened in this case. The parties have

1 stipulated that the defendant has been convicted of one or 2 more felony offenses. This stipulation may be considered 3 only as it relates to Count 4, the charge of 4 felon-in-possession of a firearm. You may not consider the 5 fact that the defendant has been convicted of one or more 6 felony offenses in determining whether the government has 7 proved the first three counts of the indictment.

8 Under the statute on which Count 4 is based, the 9 length of time that a firearm was possessed is not relevant.
10 Also, the mere possession of a firearm by a previously 11 convicted felon is a violation of the laws of the United 12 States. It is not necessary for the government to prove that 13 the defendant knew it was unlawful for him to possess the 14 firearm or to prove that the defendant knew that the firearm 15 had travelled in interstate commerce. It is sufficient if 16 you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant 17 knowingly possessed the firearm.

18 Under the statute on which Count 4 is based, the 19 government must prove that the defendant possessed the 20 firearm. The issue of who actually owned the firearm is not 21 relevant to the issue of whether the defendant possessed it.

22 As you conduct your deliberations and return your 23 verdict, there are certain rules that you all will have to 24 follow. First of all, when you go to the jury room, you will 25 select a member of the jury to serve as the foreperson. That
