

No.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

---

---

LEWIS TAYLOR, JR., PETITIONER

v.

STATE OF FLORIDA, RESPONDENT.

---

ON PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE SUPREME COURT OF FLORIDA

---

APPENDIX TO PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI

---

---

CAREY HAUGHWOUT

Public Defender

Paul Edward Petillo

Assistant Public Defender

Counsel of Record

Office of the Public Defender

Fifteenth Judicial Circuit of Florida

421 Third Street

West Palm Beach, Florida 33401

(561)355-7600; (561) 624-6560

ppetillo@pd15.state.fl.us

appeals@pd15.state.fl.us

DISTRICT COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF FLORIDA
FOURTH DISTRICT

LEWIS TAYLOR, JR.,
Appellant,

v.

STATE OF FLORIDA,
Appellee.

No. 4D19-1200

[December 19, 2019]

CORRECTED OPINION

Appeal of order denying rule 3.800 motion from the Circuit Court for the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit, Broward County; Elizabeth Anne Scherer, Judge; L.T. Case No. 76002188 CF10B.

Carey Haughwout, Public Defender, and Paul Edward Petillo, Assistant Public Defender, West Palm Beach, for appellant.

Ashley Moody, Attorney General, Tallahassee, and Heidi L. Bettendorf, Assistant Attorney General, West Palm Beach, for appellee.

PER CURIAM.

Affirmed.

TAYLOR, MAY and KLINGENSMITH, JJ., concur.

* * *

Not final until disposition of timely filed motion for rehearing.

IN THE 17TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR BROWARD
COUNTY, FLORIDA

STATE OF FLORIDA,
Plaintiff,
vs.

CASE NO. 76002188CF10B

JUDGE: SCHERER

LEWIS TAYLOR,
Defendant.

MOTION TO VACATE, SET ASIDE, OR CORRECT SENTENCE

The Defendant, LEWIS TAYLOR, by and through undersigned counsel, and pursuant to Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure 3.800, as well as Graham v. Florida<sup>1</sup> and Gridine v. State,<sup>2</sup> and respectfully moves this Court for an Order vacating and setting aside the sentences imposed in this case and granting a resentencing hearing. As grounds in support of this motion, the Defendant alleges the following:

1. Mr. Taylor was convicted of Robbery Deadly Weapon in the Circuit Court for the 17th Judicial Circuit, in and for Broward County, Florida, on August 27, 1976. The conviction was the result of a trial.
2. On September 17, 1976, Mr. Taylor was sentenced to 129 years of imprisonment.
3. There is no appeal/post-conviction history relevant to the issue raised in this motion.
4. The Defendant's date of birth is June 19, 1959. The offense was committed on February 25, 1976, before the Defendant was 18 years old.
5. In Graham v. Florida, 560 U.S. 48 (2010), the United States Supreme Court held that the Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution prohibits the imposition of a life sentence without the possibility of parole for a juvenile who commits a non-homicide offense. The court created a categorical rule against the sentence of life without the possibility of parole for juvenile non-homicide offenders.

---

<sup>1</sup> 560 U.S. 48 (2010).

<sup>2</sup> 175 So. 3d 672 (Fla. 2015).

6. Subsequently, in Henry v. State, 175 So.3d 675 (Fla.2015), the Florida Supreme Court held that “Graham prohibits the state trial courts from sentencing juvenile non homicide offenders to prison terms that ensure these offenders will be imprisoned without obtaining a meaningful opportunity to obtain future early release during their natural lives based on their demonstrated maturity and rehabilitation.” Id. at 680. In so holding, the Court explained:

In light of the United States Supreme Court's long-held and consistent view that juveniles are different—with respect to prison sentences that are lawfully imposable on adults convicted for the same criminal offenses—we conclude that, when tried as an adult, the specific sentence that a juvenile non homicide offender receives for committing a given offense is not dispositive as to whether the prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment is implicated.... [W]e have determined that [Graham v. Florida, 560 U.S. 48, 130 S.Ct. 2011, 176 L.Ed.2d 825 (2010) ] applies to ensure that juvenile non homicide offenders will not be sentenced to terms of imprisonment without affording them a meaningful opportunity for early release based on a demonstration of maturity and rehabilitation.

7. Accordingly, the court determined that Henry’s 90-year sentence was unconstitutional under Graham and directed that Henry be resentenced in light of the new juvenile sentencing legislation enacted by the Florida Legislature in 2014, ch. 2014–220, Laws of Fla.
8. Additionally, the Florida Supreme Court determined that a 70-year prison sentence was the “functional equivalent” of a life sentence depriving the defendant of a meaningful opportunity for release. See Gridine v. State, 175 So. 3d 672 (Fla. 2015).
9. In Atwell v. State, 197 So. 3d. 1040 (2016), the Florida Supreme Court held that Miller applies to mandatory life sentences imposed on juveniles who were convicted and sentenced under the old parole system. In so holding, the Court explained that based on the way Florida's parole process operates under the existing statutory scheme, a life sentence with the possibility of parole actually resembles a mandatorily imposed life sentence. This is because many presumptive parole dates, especially those for first-degree murder, are set beyond an inmate’s expected lifespan. Id. This principle applies equally to non-homicide cases governed by Graham.

10. Accordingly, Mr. Taylor seeks an Order from this Court vacating and setting aside the sentence imposed in this case and granting a resentencing hearing pursuant to §§ 775.082(3)(c), 921.1401 and 921.1402, Fla. Stat.

WHEREFORE, the Defendant respectfully requests that this Court enter an order vacating his sentence and granting a resentencing hearing.

HOWARD FINKELSTEIN

Public Defender
17th Judicial Circuit

S/ ADAM ISRAEL GOLDBERG

---

ADAM ISRAEL GOLDBERG
Florida Bar No. 41079
Assistant Public Defender
Attorney for the Defendant
discovery@browarddefender.org
(954)831-8845

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I HEREBY CERTIFY that a true and correct copy of the foregoing has been furnished by e-service to the Office of the State Attorney, at courtdocs@sao17.state.fl.us, Broward County Courthouse, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, this January 10, 2017.

HOWARD FINKELSTEIN
Public Defender
17th Judicial Circuit

S/ ADAM ISRAEL GOLDBERG

---

ADAM ISRAEL GOLDBERG
Florida Bar No. 41079
Assistant Public Defender
Attorney for the Defendant
discovery@browarddefender.org
(954) 831-8845

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT IN AND FOR
BROWARD COUNTY, FLORIDA

STATE OF FLORIDA

Case No. 76-2188 CF-B

Sheriff's No. 76-5047

LEWIS TAYLOR JR.

BOOK 321 PAGE 754

FELONY
JUDGMENT ~~XXXXXXXXXXXX~~

YOU, LEWIS TAYLOR JR., being now before the Court, attended by your attorney, CHARLES VAUGHN and you having (XX) been tried and found guilty of ~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~

~~XXXXXXXXXXXX~~ ROBBERY F.S. 812.13(2)(a)

the Court now adjudges you to be guilty of said crime.

~~XX~~

~~XX~~

~~XXXXXXXXXXXX~~

SENTENCING DEFERRED TO SEPTEMBER 17, 1976 at 9:00 A.M.-P.S.I- Remand

DONE AND ORDERED in open Court at Fort Lauderdale, Broward County, Florida, this 27th day of August 1976.

Chris Weising
JUDGE, CIRCUIT COURT

I hereby certify that the above and foregoing fingerprints on this judgment are fingerprints of the defendant, LEWIS TAYLOR JR., and that they were placed thereon by said defendant in my presence, in open court, this 27th day of August 1976.

STATE OF FLORIDA, BROWARD COUNTY
This instrument filed for record
31st day August 1976
and recorded in CIRCUIT COURT MINUTES
321 page 754 Record Verified
CLYDE L. HEATH, CLERK

NUNC PRO TUNC: Aug 27, 1976
M. Mulvaney Deputy D.C.

Chris Weising
JUDGE, CIRCUIT COURT

EXHIBIT I

C

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT IN AND
FOR BROWARD COUNTY, FLORIDA

STATE OF FLORIDA

vs.

LEWIS TAYLOR, JR.Case Number 76-2188CFBSheriff's Number 76-5047BOOK 321 PAGE 1278SENTENCE

You, LEWIS TAYLOR, JR., having (X) been tried and found guilty of ( ) pleaded guilty to ( ) pleaded nolo contendere to the crime of ROBBERY (812.13(2)(a)) the Court having adjudged you to be guilty of said crime, on August 27, 1976 and Sentence having been deferred until this date. What have you to say why sentence should not be imposed?

Saying nothing sufficient, it is

THE JUDGMENT OF THE COURT and the Sentence of the Law that you be confined in the State Prison for a term of One Hundred Twenty-nine (129)

Years, plus $2.00 Assessment; with credit for One Hundred Ninety-seven (197) days served in Broward County Jail.

DONE AND ORDERED in open Court at Fort Lauderdale, Broward
County, Florida, this 17th day of September, 19 76.

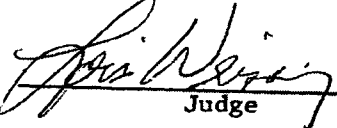

STATE OF FLORIDA, BROWARD COUNTY
This instrument filed for record

21st day September 19 76
and recorded MINUTES CIRCUIT COURT

NUNC PRO TUNC: Sept. 17, 1976

321 page 1278 Record Verified.
CLYDE L. HEATH, Clerk

By D. K. Mehiba D. C.

Judge

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF
THE SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT IN AND FOR
BROWARD COUNTY, FLORIDA

STATE OF FLORIDA

CASE NO: 76-2188 CF10B

v.

JUDGE: SCHERER

LEWIS TAYLOR

_____
Defendant

MOTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS

COMES NOW, the State of Florida, by and through the undersigned Assistant State Attorney, and moves this Honorable Court to Stay Proceedings in this matter in the above-styled cause. As grounds for this motion, the State would allege as follows:

1. The defendant in this matter was found guilty at trial of armed robbery, and sentenced to 129 years in jail on September 17, 1976 (Exhibit I).

2. On January 23, 2017, this Honorable Court issued an Order for the State to respond to a motion to correct illegal sentence in this matter.

3. The position of the State in this matter is that the motion is legally insufficient, due to the fact that the defendant has failed to allege that he has a presumptive parole release date which is the functional equivalent of a mandatory life sentence. Although the Fourth DCA held that there is no requirement to plead such a fact within a post-conviction motion in Michel v. State, 204 So.3d 101 (Fla. 4th DCA 2016), the Fifth DCA ruled to the contrary in Williams v. State, 197 So.3d 569 (Fla. 5th DCA 2016) and Stallings v. State, 198 So.3d 1081 (Fla. 5th DCA 2016).

3. Currently, the Florida Supreme Court stayed the mandate in Michel, and accepted jurisdiction over the certified conflict between the Fourth DCA in Michel, and the Fifth DCA cases in Williams and Stallings (Exhibits II and III).

4. Based on the fact that the Florida Supreme Court is reviewing the issue regarding the sufficiency of the motion, the State of Florida is requesting a stay of proceedings pending the resolution of the conflict noted in Michel v. State.

5. The State of Florida has no objection to the defendant amending his motion so that he can demonstrate that he has a presumptive parole release date in excess of that of a normal life span. Such an amended motion would alleviate the need for a stay.

WHEREFORE, the State of Florida respectfully requests this Honorable Court to stay any Order to respond to the Motion to Vacate, Set Aside, or Correct Sentence, until the conflict noted in Michel v. State is resolved by the Florida Supreme Court.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that a copy of the foregoing was furnished by e-mail to Adam Goldberg, Esquire (discovery@browarddefender.org) and (agoldberg@browarddefender.org), Attorney for the Defendant, Lewis Taylor, this 26th day of January, 2017.

MICHAEL J. SATZ
State Attorney

By:

JOEL SILVERSHEIN
Assistant State Attorney
Suite 07130
Broward County Courthouse
West Building
201 S.E. 6th Street
Fort Lauderdale, Florida
33301
Telephone: (954)831-7913
courtdocs@sao17.state.fl.us
jsilvershein@sao17.state.fl.us

IN THE 17TH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR BROWARD
COUNTY, FLORIDA

STATE OF FLORIDA,
Plaintiff,

vs.

CASE NO. 76002188CF10B

JUDGE: SCHERER

LEWIS TAYLOR,
Defendant.

_____ /

DEFENDANT'S RESPONSE TO STATE'S MOTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS

COMES NOW the Defendant, by and through his undersigned attorney, and moves this Honorable Court to deny the State's Motion to Stay filed on January 26, 2017. As grounds for this Motion, the Defendant would show that:

1. The Defense does not concede that a Defendant's Presumptive Parole Release Date is relevant based on the holding in Atwell v. State, 197 So.3d 1040 (Fla. 2016). In that case, the Supreme Court made it very clear that the parole system in Florida is not an adequate substitute for resentencing under Florida Statute 921.1401.

2. However, there is a conflict currently between the 4th DCA and the 5th DCA, as noted by the State in its motion, regarding whether the PPRD is relevant.

3. Mr. Taylor was sentenced to 129 years of imprisonment for the offense of Robbery Deadly Weapon. Mr. Taylor's current PPRD is July 4, 2062. Mr. Taylor would be 103 years old at that time (date of birth is June 19, 1959). In Kelsey v. State, 2016 WL 7159099 (Fla. 2016), the Supreme Court held that the Defendant was entitled to a resentencing and review of a 45 year sentence.

4. Regardless of whether the PPRD information is pled in the initial motion or not, it is uncontroverted that Mr. Taylor would be entitled to a resentencing hearing. If the Court granted the State's Motion to Stay, the only effect it would have would be to delay the hearing that Mr. Taylor is otherwise entitled to under the current case law and statutes.

WHEREFORE, the Defendant prays that this Court deny the State's Motion to Stay.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that a true and correct copy of the foregoing has been furnished by e-service to the Office of the State Attorney, Joel Silvershein, Esq., at courtdocs@sao17.state.fl.us, Broward County Courthouse, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, this March 3, 2017.

HOWARD FINKELSTEIN

Public Defender
17th Judicial Circuit

S/ ADAM ISRAEL GOLDBERG

---

ADAM ISRAEL GOLDBERG
Florida Bar No. 41079
Assistant Public Defender
Attorney for the Defendant
discovery@browarddefender.org
(954)831-8845

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT,
IN AND FOR BROWARD COUNTY, FLORIDA

STATE OF FLORIDA,
Plaintiff,

CASE NO.: 76-2188CF10B

JUDGE: Elizabeth Scherer

vs.

LEWIS TAYLOR,
Defendant.

_____/

ORDER GRANTING STATE'S MOTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS

THIS CAUSE is before the Court upon the State's Motion to Stay Proceedings, filed on January 26, 2017. The Defendant filed a response on March 3, 2017. Having reviewed the State's motion, the Defendant's response, the court file, and applicable law, this Court finds as follows:

On September 17, 1976, the Defendant was found guilty at trial of armed robbery, and the Court sentenced him to 129 years in jail. On January 10, 2017, the Defendant filed a motion to vacate, set aside, or correct sentence his plea because his sentence violates the Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution prohibiting the imposition of a life sentence without the possibility of parole for a juvenile who commits a non-homicide offense. Graham v. Florida, 560 U.S. 48 (2010).

This Court finds the instant motion is granted and the proceedings are stayed pending the resolution of the conflict noted in Michel v. State, 204 So. 3d 101 (Fla. 4th DCA 2016). Although the Fourth District Court of Appeal held that there is no requirement to plead that the Defendant has a presumptive parole release date, the Fifth District Court of Appeal disagreed in Williams v. State, 197 So. 3d 569 (Fla. 5th DCA 2016) and Stallings v. State, 198 So. 3d 1081 (Fla. 5th DCA 2016). The Florida Supreme Court stayed the mandate in Michel, and accepted jurisdiction over the certified conflict between the Fourth and Fifth District Court of Appeal.

Accordingly, it is,

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the State's Motion to Stay Proceedings is GRANTED, the State is not required to respond to the Defendant's post-conviction motion until the aforementioned conflict is resolved by the Florida Supreme Court.

DONE AND ORDERED in Chambers, Broward County Courthouse, Fort Lauderdale, Florida this 20 day of September, 2017.

ELIZABETH SCHERER
CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE

Copies furnished to

Joel Silvershein, Esq., State Attorney's Office, Broward County Courthouse, 201 S.E. 6th Street, Fort Lauderdale, Florida 33301

Adam Israel Goldberg, Esq., Assistant Public Defender, Broward County Courthouse, 201 S.E. 6th Street, Suite 3872, Fort Lauderdale, Florida 33301

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT,
IN AND FOR BROWARD COUNTY, FLORIDA

STATE OF FLORIDA,
Plaintiff,

CASE NO.: 76-2188CF10B

JUDGE: ELIZABETH SCHERER

vs.

LEWIS TAYLOR,
Defendant.

_____/

ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO VACATE, SET ASIDE, OR CORRECT SENTENCE

THIS CAUSE is before the Court upon the Defendant's Motion to Vacate, Set Aside, or Correct Sentence pursuant to Florida Rule of Criminal Procedure 3.800, filed on January 10, 2017. The motion was stayed pending the resolution of the conflict between Michel v. State, 204 So. 3d 101 (Fla. 4th DCA 2016), Williams v. State, 197 So. 3d 569 (Fla. 5th DCA 2016) and Stallings v. State, 198 So. 3d 1081 (Fla. 5th DCA 2016). The basis for the stay has been resolved, and the State filed its response on the merits on January 15, 2019. Having reviewed the Defendant's motion, the State's response, the court file, and applicable law, this Court finds as follows:

On September 17, 1976, a jury found the Defendant guilty of armed robbery, and the Court sentenced him to 129 years in jail with the possibility of parole. In the instant motion, the Defendant asserts that his sentence violates the Eighth Amendment of the United States Constitution prohibiting the imposition of a life sentence without the possibility of parole for a juvenile who commits a non-homicide offense. He seeks an order vacating and setting aside the sentence imposed and granting a resentencing hearing pursuant to sections 775.082(3)(c), 921.1401, and 921.1402, Florida Statutes.

The State has provided a response which refutes the Defendant's claims with relevant portions of the record attached as exhibits. This Court hereby adopts the State's response, a copy of which has previously been provided to Defendant and which remains in the court file.

The Defendant's 129 year prison sentence with the possibility of parole did not violate the categorical rule of Graham v. Florida, 560 U.S. 48, 130 S. Ct. 2011, 176 L.

Ed. 2d 825 (2010), that any life sentence for a juvenile non-homicide offender be accompanied by some meaningful opportunity to obtain release based on demonstrated maturity and rehabilitation before the end of the sentence and during the offender's natural life. Franklin v. State, 43 Fla. L. Weekly s557 (Fla. November 8, 2018); Michel v. State, 204 So. 3d 101 (Fla. 4th DCA 2016); State v. Wesby, 2019 WL 140813, 4D16-4246 (Fla. 4th DCA January 9, 2019); State v. West, 2019 WL 140816, 4D16-4252 (Fla. 4th DCA January 9, 2019). Florida's statutory parole process fulfills Graham's requirement because it includes initial and subsequent parole reviews based upon individualized considerations before the Florida Parole Commission that are subject to judicial review. Id.

Accordingly, it is,

ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the Defendant's Motion to Vacate, Set Aside, or Correct Sentence is DENIED.

Defendant has thirty (30) days from the date of this order to file an appeal.

DONE AND ORDERED in Chambers, Broward County Courthouse, Fort Lauderdale, Florida this 22 day of January, 2019.

ELIZABETH SCHERER
CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE

Copies furnished to:

Parties of Record

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF FLORIDA
FOURTH DISTRICT

---

CASE No. 4D19-1200

LEWIS TAYLOR, JR.,
Appellant

v.

STATE OF FLORIDA,
Appellee

---

INITIAL BRIEF

ON APPEAL FROM THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE SEVENTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

CAREY HAUGHWOUT
Public Defender
421 Third Street
West Palm Beach, Florida 33401
(561) 355-7600

Paul Edward Petillo
Assistant Public Defender
Florida Bar No. 508438
ppetillo@pd15.state.fl.us
appeals@pd15.state.fl.us

Attorney for Appellant

RECEIVED, 06/19/2019 02:52:30 PM, Clerk, Fourth District Court of Appeal

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES .....	ii
STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND FACTS .....	1
SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT .....	5
ARGUMENT .....	7
POINT I .....	7
THIS COURT SHOULD REVERSE THE SENTENCE AND REMAND FOR RESENTENCING. IT WAS A MANIFEST INJUSTICE TO DENY APPELLANT RELIEF WHILE SIMILARLY SITUATED DEFENDANTS RECEIVED NEW SENTENCING HEARINGS AND WERE RELEASED.....	7
POINT II.....	14
THIS COURT SHOULD CERTIFY A QUESTION OF GREAT PUBLIC IMPORTANCE .....	14
POINT III .....	22
APPELLANT’S 129-YEAR SENTENCE VIOLATES THE EIGHTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENTS TO THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION .....	22
CONCLUSION .....	37
CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE .....	37
CERTIFICATE OF FONT .....	37

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Atwell v. State , 197 So. 3d 1040 (Fla. 2016) .....	passim
Brown v. Precythe , 2:17-CV-04082-NKL, 2017 WL 4980872 (W.D. Mo. Oct. 31, 2017) .....	35
Delancy v. State , 256 So. 3d 940 (Fla. 4th DCA 2018) .....	21
Dunn v. Madison , 138 S.Ct. 9 (2017) ( per curiam ) .....	19
Florida Parole Commission v. Chapman , 919 So. 2d 689 (Fla. 4th DCA 2006) .....	28
Franklin v. State , 258 So. 3d 1239 (Fla. 2018) .....	3, 16, 21
Graham v. Florida , 560 U.S. 48 (2010) .....	passim
Greenholtz v. Inmates of Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex , 442 U.S. 1 (1979) .....	35
Greiman v. Hodges , 79 F. Supp. 3d 933 (S.D. Iowa 2015) .....	35
Gridine v. State , 175 So. 2d 672 (Fla. 2015) .....	1
Hayden v. Keller , 134 F. Supp. 3d 1000 (E.D.N.C. 2015) .....	35
Henry v. State , 175 So. 3d 675 (Fla. 2015) .....	1
Holston v. Fla. Parole &amp; Probation Commission , 394 So. 2d 1110, 1111 (Fla. 1st DCA 1981) .....	32

Madison v. Alabama , 139 S.Ct. 718 (2019) .....	16, 19, 20
May v. Florida Parole and Probation Commission , 424 So. 2d 122 (Fla. 1st DCA 1982).....	26
Meola v. Department of Corrections , 732 So. 2d 1029 (Fla. 1998) .....	26
Michel v. State , 204 So. 3d 101 (Fla. 4th DCA 2016) .....	2
Miller v. Alabama , 565 U.S. 1013 (2011) .....	passim
Montgomery v. Louisiana , 136 S.Ct. 718 (2016) .....	2, 15
Ramah Navajo Sch. Bd., Inc. v. Bureau of Revenue of New Mexico , 458 U.S. 832 (1982) .....	21
Robinson v. California , 370 U.S. 660 (1962) .....	14
Rummel v. Estelle , 445 U.S. 263 (1980) .....	32
Sigler v. State , 881 So. 2d 14 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004) .....	21
Simmons v. State , 44 Fla. L. Weekly D459 (Fla. 3d DCA Feb. 13, 2019).....	14
Solem v. Helm , 463 U.S. 277 (1983) .....	32, 33, 34
Stallings v. State , 198 So. 3d 1081 (Fla. 5th DCA 2016) .....	28
State v. Chestnut , 718 So. 2d 312 (Fla. 5th DCA 1998) .....	30

State v. Michel , 257 So. 3d 3 (2018) .....	3
Swarthout v. Cooke , 562 U.S. 216 (2011) .....	35
Timbs v. Indiana , 139 S.Ct 682 (2019) .....	14
Virginia v. LeBlanc , 137 S. Ct. 1726 (2017) ( per curiam ) .....	passim

Statutes

§ 921.002(1)(b), Fla. Stat. (2018) .....	30
§ 921.1401(2), Fla. Stat. (2014) .....	31
§ 921.1402(3)(d), Fla. Stat. (2014) .....	31
§ 921.1402(5), Fla. Stat. (2014) .....	31
§ 921.1402(6), Fla. Stat. (2014) .....	31
§ 947.002(2), Fla. Stat. (2018) .....	24, 29
§ 947.002(5), Fla. Stat. (2018) .....	23, 35
§ 947.002(8), Fla. Stat. (2018) .....	26
§ 947.005(5), Fla. Stat. (2018) .....	27
§ 947.16, Fla. Stat. (1976) .....	1
§ 947.174(1)(c), Fla. Stat. (2018) .....	26
§ 947.1745, Fla. Stat. (2018) .....	27
§ 947.18, Fla. Stat. (2018) .....	24

Other Authorities

Beth Caldwell, Creating Meaningful Opportunities for Release: Graham, Miller and
--	--

California's Youth Offender Parole Hearings , 40 N.Y.U. Rev. L. & Soc. Change 245 (2016).....	29, 30
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-002(41) .....	27
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-0155(1) .....	28
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-019(1)(b).....	27
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-019(10)(a)-(c).....	27
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.001 .....	35
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(27) .....	25
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(32) .....	23
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(44) .....	24
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(44)(a).....	24
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(44)(b) .....	24
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(44)(e).....	24
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.004(13) .....	32
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.009(6) .....	25
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.010(5)(a)1 .....	24, 25
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.010(5)(b).....	25
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.010(5)(b)2.j .....	25
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.013 .....	26
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.013(6) .....	26
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.015(13) .....	27
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.015(2) .....	27
Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.015(8) .....	27

Sarah French Russell,

Review for Release: Juvenile Offenders, State Parole Practices, and the Eighth Amendment, 89 Ind. L.J. 373 (2014) ..... 30, 32

Rules

Fla. R. App. P. 9.140(b)(1)(D).....4

Fla. R. Crim. P. 3.781 .....31

Fla. R. Crim. P. 3.802(g).....31

Constitutional Provisions

Amend VIII, U.S. Const. .... passim

Amend. XIV, U.S. Const. ....14

Art. I, § 9, Fla. Const.....6, 35

Art. VI, cl. 2, U.S. Const.....14

STATEMENT OF THE CASE AND FACTS

In 1976, Gerald Ford was president. All the President's Men, starring Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman, was in the movie theaters. Just seven years earlier, in 1969, Spencer Boyer became the first African American to teach at the University of Florida Law School, “but he and his family left abruptly after receiving threats.”<sup>1</sup>

Also in 1976, appellant was convicted of robbery with a deadly weapon. R 1. He was 17 years old (16 at the time of the offense). R 1. Broward Circuit Judge Louis Weissing sentenced him to 129 years in state prison.<sup>2</sup> R 26-27. Although this sentence is subject to parole, see section 947.16, Florida Statutes (1975), appellant has been in prison ever since—43 years. In fact, this brief was filed on June 19, 2019 (Juneteenth)—appellant’s 60th birthday. R 14.

In January 2017, appellant moved to vacate his sentence pursuant to Graham v. Florida, 560 U.S. 48 (2010); Atwell v. State, 197 So. 3d 1040 (Fla. 2016); Gridine v. State, 175 So. 2d 672 (Fla. 2015); and Henry v. State, 175 So. 3d 675 (Fla. 2015). R 1-3. In Graham, the United States Supreme Court held that that it violated the Eighth Amendment to sentence juvenile offenders to life without parole for non-homicide offenses. In Atwell, the Florida Supreme Court held that Florida’s parole system fails to comply with Graham v. Florida, 560 U.S. 48 (2010); Miller v. Alabama, 565 U.S. 1013 (2011); and Montgomery v. Louisiana, 136 S.Ct. 718 (2016). In Gridine and Henry, the Florida Supreme Court held that lengthy term-of-years sentences violate Graham because they fail to provide a meaningful opportunity for release.

---

<sup>1</sup> <https://www.law.ufl.edu/areas-of-study/experiential-learning/clinics/about-the-clinics/virgil-d-hawkins-story>

<sup>2</sup> Judge Weissing died in 1996 at age 70. <https://www.sun-sentinel.com/news/fl-xpm-1996-06-21-9606200614-story.html>

The trial court ordered the State to respond to appellant's motion. R 4. A few days later, the State moved to stay the proceedings. R 5. The State acknowledged that this Court in Michel v. State, 204 So. 3d 101 (Fla. 4th DCA 2016), had held that relief under Atwell was not dependent on the juvenile offender having a presumptive parole release date that amounted to a de facto life sentence, but it said that it was seeking review of Michel based on conflict of decisions with the Fifth District; therefore, it was moving to stay the proceedings until the supreme court decided that case. The State said that in the alternative it had "no objection to the defendant amending his motion so that he can demonstrate that he has a presumptive parole release date in excess of that of a normal life span. Such an amended motion would alleviate the need for a stay." R 6 (emphasis added).

A few weeks later, appellant filed a response to the State's motion. R 14-15. He said he was not conceding that a presumptive parole release date was relevant under Atwell, but that nonetheless his presumptive parole release date was July 4, 2062, when he would be 103 years old, and so even under the Fifth District’s rule—and the State’s concession—he was entitled to resentencing. R 14.

For three months, nothing happened. On June 1, 2017, the trial court received a letter from appellant. Appellant told the trial court he had “morphed from a juvenile to a responsible adult.” R 16. He wrote: “Judge Scherer my humble request: please make a ruling on my pending . . . motion to correct at your earliest.” R 16.

Three and a half months later, on September 20, 2017, the trial court entered an order granting the State’s motion to stay pending State v. Michel. R 20-21. The trial court made no mention of the State’s concession that if appellant demonstrated he had a presumptive parole release date that amounts to a de facto life sentence then he is entitled to resentencing; nor did the court acknowledge that appellant had established that his presumptive parole release date amounts to a de facto life sentence. R 20-21.

Over a year later, on January 15, 2019, the State filed a response to appellant’s motion to correct sentence. R 23-25. It said appellant’s motion to correct sentence should be denied on the authority of State v. Michel, 257 So. 3d 3 (2018) (decided in July 2018), and Franklin v. State, 258 So. 3d 1239 (Fla. 2018) (decided in November 2018). Id.

The trial court entered an order summarily denying appellant’s motion. R 28-29. Appellant’s petition for belated appeal was granted by this Court on April 23, 2019. R 30. This Court has jurisdiction to review the trial court's order under Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.140(b)(1)(D).

SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT

POINT I

When appellant filed his motion to correct sentence in January 2017, the law required the trial court to grant the motion and resentence him. And for the next 21 months the law required the trial court to grant the motion and resentence him. But the trial court did not comply with that law. Meanwhile, other juvenile offenders serving lengthy parole-eligible sentences were being resentenced in Broward County and released. It was a manifest injustice to deny appellant resentencing when similarly situated defendants were being resentenced and released. This Court should reverse the order denying appellant's motion to correct sentence and remand for resentencing.

POINT II

Appellant asks this Court to certify a question of great public importance. The United States Supreme Court's recent decision in Madison v. Alabama, 139 S.Ct. 718 (2019), calls into question the Florida Supreme Court's reliance on a federal habeas decision—Virginia v. LeBlanc, 137 S. Ct. 1726 (2017) (per curiam)—in overruling Atwell v. State, 197 So. 3d 1040 (Fla. 2016).

POINT III

Florida's parole process as applied to juvenile offenders violates the Eighth Amendment. Parole is so rarely granted it is like clemency. The process is saturated with a discretion not governed by any rules or standards. Parole release decisions are not based on a juvenile offender's maturity and rehabilitation. And the harm of the substantive deficiencies in the parole process is compounded by its procedural deficiencies (no right to be present at the parole hearing, no right to counsel, etc.). Florida's parole process also violates due process under the Fourteenth Amendment and article I, section 9, of the Florida Constitution.

ARGUMENT

POINT I

THIS COURT SHOULD REVERSE THE SENTENCE AND REMAND FOR RESENTENCING. IT WAS A MANIFEST INJUSTICE TO DENY APPELLANT RELIEF WHILE SIMILARLY SITUATED DEFENDANTS RECEIVED NEW SENTENCING HEARINGS AND WERE RELEASED.

When appellant filed his motion to correct sentence in January 2017, the law required the trial court to grant the motion and resentence him. This is because Atwell v. State, 197 So. 3d 1040 (Fla. 2016), was decided in May 2016, and Michel v. State, 204 So. 3d 101 (Fla. 4th DCA 2016), which held that a defendant need not assert he has a presumptive parole release date that amounts to a de facto life sentence, was decided in November 2016. Although the State sought review of Michel based on conflict with decisions from the Fifth District, the trial court was still bound by that decision.

Nonetheless, the State asked the court to stay the case pending a decision in State v. Michel. In the alternative, appellant could “demonstrate that he has a presumptive parole release date in excess of that of a normal life span,” and that, the State said, “would alleviate the need for a stay.” R 6.

A little over a month later, appellant filed a response to the State’s motion. R 14-15. He said he was not agreeing that a presumptive parole release date was required under Atwell, but that in any event his presumptive parole release date was July 4, 2062, when he would be 103 years old, and so even under the Fifth District’s decisions—and the State’s concession—he was entitled to resentencing. R 14.

Notwithstanding appellant’s presumptive parole release date and the State’s concession, the trial court did not grant the motion and order a new sentencing hearing. So three months later, appellant wrote to the trial court: “Judge Scherer my humble request: please make a ruling on my pending . . . motion to correct at your earliest.” R 16. Inexplicably, three months later, in September 2017, the trial court entered an order staying the case. Meanwhile, in August 2017, this Court reversed Tyrone Gladon’s 99-year parole-eligible sentences for offenses—four armed robberies—he committed as a juvenile. Gladon v. State, 227 So. 3d 651 (Fla. 4th DCA 2017). Like appellant, Mr. Gladon was a defendant in the Seventeenth Judicial Circuit. On January 18, 2018, Mr. Gladon’s 99-year sentences were reduced to 35 years and he was released from prison six days later.<sup>3</sup> Also in the Seventeenth Circuit, Barry Stephens was resentenced pursuant to Atwell for a first-degree murder and armed robbery he committed when he was 17 years old (see appendix and note 3). He was released June 27, 2018.

---

<sup>3</sup> See the appendix being filed simultaneously with this brief. This Court may take judicial notice of these records. “An appellate court may take judicial notice of its own records as well as those from any other court.” Floyd v. State, 257 So. 3d 1148, 1153 fn * (Fla. 1st DCA 2018) (citations omitted).

While Mr. Gladon and Mr. Stephens enjoyed their new-found freedom, appellant stayed in prison on his single charge of robbery with a deadly weapon. And as the winter of 2018 turned to spring, then to summer, then to fall, the clock ran out. On November 8, 2018, Atwell was overruled. Franklin v. State, 258 So. 3d 1239 (Fla. 2018). (State v. Michel, 257 So. 3d 3 (Fla. 2018), decided July 12, 2018, was a 3-1-3 decision of no precedential value.) The trial court denied appellant's motion.

In short, appellant was entitled to be resentenced for 21 months and he should have been resentenced:

Had appellant been resentenced, it is highly like that he, like Mr. Gladon and Mr. Stephens, would have been sentenced to time served and released. After all, appellant was in prison for 43 years for a single count of robbery with a deadly weapon. The average sentence of inmates convicted of robbery and admitted to prison in fiscal year 2017-2018 was 7.6 years. FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS ANNUAL REPORT 2017-18 at 16 (available at http://www.dc.state.fl.us/pub/annual/1718/FDC\_AR2017-18.pdf).

It was a manifest injustice to improperly deny appellant the relief afforded other defendants identically situated. In Stephens v. State, 974 So. 2d 455 (Fla. 2d DCA 2008), the Second District granted postconviction relief on that basis. The trial court had sentenced Stephens to life imprisonment as a habitual felony offender for armed burglary on the mistaken assumption that it was required to do so. Stephens appealed and the Second District remanded for resentencing. But the district court made its own mistake: it assumed Stephens was sentenced under the unconstitutional 1995 guidelines, and it remanded for resentencing on the authority of Heggs v. State, 759 So. 2d 620 (Fla. 2000). Stephens, 974 So. 2d at 457. On remand, the trial court was puzzled by the district court's opinion and it left the sentence intact—life imprisonment. Id. “Thus, Mr. Stephens was deprived of a real opportunity to have his sentence reconsidered.” Id.

Stephens filed a motion for postconviction relief; the trial court denied the motion; and Stephens appealed. The Second District reversed. The court highlighted, as had Stephens, the court's opinion in Bristol v. State, 710 So. 2d 761 (Fla. 2d DCA 1998). In that case, Bristol was mistakenly sentenced to life imprisonment as an habitual felony offender on the same day as Stephens and by the same judge. On appeal, the Second District reversed Bristol's life sentence and it remanded for the trial court to reconsider the sentence with the correct understanding that a life sentence was not mandatory.

The Second District granted Stephens relief: "To give Mr. Bristol relief but to deny Mr. Stephens the same relief for virtually identical circumstances is a manifest injustice that does not promote—in fact, it corrodes—uniformity in the decisions of this court." Stephens, 974 So. 2d at 457. The court granted Stephens relief "to avoid [this] incongruous and manifestly unfair result[]." Id.

This Court followed Stephens in Johnson v. State, 9 So. 3d 640 (Fla. 4th DCA 2009). In that case, Johnson, like Stephens and Bristol, was sentenced to life imprisonment as an habitual felony offender because the trial court was under the mistaken impression that the sentence was mandatory. Johnson raised that issue on appeal, but this Court affirmed without written opinion. Johnson subsequently raised the issue "at least three times" but this Court "denied such relief on procedural grounds." Johnson, 9 So. 3d at 642. Johnson eventually filed an All Writs petition in the Florida Supreme Court, citing Stephens. The supreme court transferred the petition to the trial court for consideration as a rule 3.800(a) motion to correct. The trial court denied the motion on the ground that Johnson's claim was barred by law of the case. Johnson appealed and this Court reversed.

Key to this Court's decision, as it was for the Second District's decision in Stephens, was that this Court had granted "relief to other defendants whose direct appeals were contemporary with Johnson's." Johnson, 9 So. 3d 642 (citations omitted). And there were factors "supporting a sentence significantly less than Johnson's life sentence." Id. Johnson's jury had recommended leniency, for example; and under the current statute, Johnson would not qualify as a habitual felony offender. Id.

This Court agreed with Johnson that "it is a manifest injustice to deny him the same relief afforded other defendants identically situated." Id. This Court reversed and remanded for resentencing. Id.

This Court followed Johnson in Prince v. State, 98 So. 3d 768 (Fla. 4th DCA 2012), and McMillan v. State, 254 So. 3d 1002 (Fla. 4th DCA 2018). In both cases, the judges imposed life sentences under the mistaken belief the sentences were mandatory, and in both cases this Court reversed years later and remanded for resentencing. And the Second District followed Stephens in Haager v. State, 36 So. 3d 883, 884 (Fla. 2d DCA 2010), finding a manifest injustice and remanding for resentencing given that a codefendant and others obtained relief on the same claim.

As explained above, it is a manifest injustice to deny appellant the same relief afforded other defendants identically situated. And in fact appellant is more favorably situated. Unlike Mr. Gladon, appellant was in prison on only one count of robbery with a deadly weapon. And unlike Barry Stephens, appellant was in prison for a non-homicide offense. Further, the average sentence of inmates convicted of robbery and admitted to prison in fiscal year 2017-2018 was 7.6 years. Appellant has been in prison for 43 years for a non-homicide offense he committed as a juvenile. These are factors supporting a sentence significantly less than his 129-year sentence.

Arbitrary and disparate punishment like this violates the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment and the Cruel and Unusual Punishments Clause of the Eighth Amendment. State Farm Mut. Automobile Ins. Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 416 (2003) (Fourteenth Amendment prohibits “arbitrary punishments”); Cromartie v. State, 70 So. 3d 559, 564 (Fla. 2011) (arbitrary incarceration violates due process); State v. Rousseau, 509 So. 2d 281, 284 (Fla. 1987) (“case-to-case sentencing based on identical acts” is “arbitrary”).

This Court should reverse the trial court’s order and remand for resentencing.

POINT II

THIS COURT SHOULD CERTIFY A QUESTION OF GREAT PUBLIC IMPORTANCE

The Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution provides: “Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.” The Eighth Amendment is made applicable to the States by the Fourteenth Amendment. Timbs v. Indiana, 139 S.Ct 682 (2019); Robinson v. California, 370 U.S. 660 (1962). Of course, the United States Constitution is the “supreme Law of the Land.” Art. VI, cl. 2, U.S. Const. The standard of review of the constitutionality of a sentence is de novo. Simmons v. State, 44 Fla. L. Weekly D459 (Fla. 3d DCA Feb. 13, 2019).

Certain punishments are disproportionate and unconstitutional when applied to children because children are different in three ways relevant to punishment: first, they are immature and therefore have “an underdeveloped sense of responsibility, leading to recklessness, impulsivity, and heedless risk-taking”; second, they are “more vulnerable to negative influences and outside pressures, including from their family and peers,” and they have “limited control over their own environment and lack the ability to extricate themselves from horrific, crime-producing settings”; and, third, their characters are not “as well formed as an adult’s,” their traits “less fixed,” and their “actions less likely to be evidence of irretrievable depravity.” Miller v.

Alabama, 567 U.S. 460, 471 (2012). In short, they are immature, vulnerable, reformable.

“[B]ecause juveniles have lessened culpability they are less deserving of the most severe punishments.” Graham v. Florida, 560 U.S. 48, 68 (2010) (citing Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551, 569 (2005)). Thus, life sentences are categorically forbidden for juvenile nonhomicide offenders. Graham. And mandatory life sentences are forbidden for juvenile homicide offenders. Miller; Montgomery v. Louisiana, 136 S.Ct. 718 (2016).

In Miller the Court said it is the “rare juvenile offender whose crime reflects irreparable corruption,” id. at 567 U.S. at 479-80 (quoting Roper, 543 U.S. at 573; Graham, 560 U.S. at 68), and that the “appropriate occasions for sentencing juveniles to [life imprisonment] will be uncommon.” Id. at 479. This means the “sentence of life without parole is disproportionate for the vast majority of juvenile offenders” and “raises a grave risk that many are being held in violation of the Constitution.” Montgomery, 136 S. Ct. at 736.

Appellant received a parole-eligible 129-year sentence for a robbery he committed when he was 16 years old. In Atwell v. State, 197 So. 3d 1040 (Fla. 2016), the supreme court conducted an in-depth analysis of Florida’s parole system as applied to juvenile offenders and found that it failed to comply with Graham, Miller, and Montgomery. Two years later the court overruled Atwell on the authority of Virginia v. LeBlanc, 137 S. Ct. 1726 (2017) (per curiam). Franklin v. State, 258 So. 3d 1239 (Fla. 2018).

This Court is bound by Franklin. (State v. Michel, 257 So. 3d 3 (Fla. 2018), was a 3-1-3 decision.) However, a recent United States Supreme Court decision—Madison v. Alabama, 139 S.Ct. 718 (2019), discussed below—calls into question the basis of the supreme court’s ruling in Franklin.

In overruling Atwell, the Florida Supreme Court did not engage in a rigorous reexamination of Florida’s parole process. Instead, it used LeBlanc as a proxy for such an analysis:

[I]nstructed by a more recent United States Supreme Court decision, Virginia v. LeBlanc, — U.S. —, 137 S.Ct. 1726, 198 L.Ed.2d 186 (2017), we have since determined that the majority’s analysis in Atwell improperly applied Graham and Miller.” See State v. Michel, 257 So.3d 3, 6 (Fla. 2018) (explaining that LeBlanc made clear that it was not an unreasonable application of Graham “to conclude that, because the [state’s] geriatric release program employed normal parole factors, it satisfied Graham’s requirement that juveniles convicted of a nonhomicide crime have a meaningful opportunity to receive parole”) (quoting LeBlanc, 137 S.Ct. at 1729)). As we held in Michel,<sup>[4]</sup> involving a juvenile homicide offender sentenced to life with the possibility of parole after 25 years, Florida’s statutory parole process fulfills Graham’s requirement that juveniles be given a “meaningful opportunity” to be considered for release during their natural life based upon “normal parole factors,” LeBlanc, 137 S.Ct. at 1729, as it includes initial and subsequent parole reviews based upon individualized considerations before the Florida Parole Commission

---

<sup>4</sup> Again, the decision in Michel was 3-1-3, so this language is puzzling to say the least.

that are subject to judicial review, Michel, 257 So.3d at 6 (citing §§ 947.16-.174, Fla. Stat.).

Franklin, 258 So. 3d at 1241.

The supreme court overlooked that LeBlanc was a federal habeas decision that employed the deferential standard of review required by the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA).

LeBlanc was a juvenile offender sentenced to life imprisonment for nonhomicide offenses. His sentence was subject to Virginia's geriatric release program, which would allow him to petition for release at age 60. After arguing unsuccessfully in state court that his sentence violated Graham, he filed a habeas petition under 28 U.S.C. § 2254. The district court granted the writ and the Fourth Circuit affirmed, holding that the geriatric release program did not provide juvenile offenders a meaningful opportunity for release based on demonstrated maturity and rehabilitation, and therefore the state court's ruling was an unreasonable application of Graham. LeBlanc, 137 S.Ct. at 1728. Virginia petitioned for a writ of certiorari and the Court granted it.

The Court held that the Fourth Circuit "erred by failing to accord the state court's decision the deference owed under AEDPA." Id. The Court stated that "[i]n order for a state court's decision to be an unreasonable application of this Court's case law, the ruling must be 'objectively unreasonable, not merely wrong; even clear error will not suffice.'" Id. (quoting Woods v. Donald, 135 S.Ct. 1372, 1376 (2015)) (per curiam)). The Court looked at the factors that the Virginia Parole Board must consider in determining whether to release a prisoner. Those factors include the “‘individual’s history ... and the individual’s conduct ... during incarceration,’ as well as the prisoner’s ‘inter-personal relationships with staff and inmates’ and ‘[c]hanges in attitude toward self and others.’” Id. at 1729. “Consideration of these factors,” this Court said, “could allow the Parole Board to order a former juvenile offender’s conditional release in light of his or her ‘demonstrated maturity and rehabilitation.’” Id. (citing Graham, 560 U.S., at 75). Accordingly, it was not “objectively unreasonable” to hold that the geriatric release provision satisfied Graham.

The Court made it clear that it was not ruling on the underlying Eighth Amendment claim. There were “reasonable arguments on both sides.” Id. (quoting White v. Woodall, 572 U.S. 415, 427 (2014)). “With regards to [LeBlanc], these [arguments] include the contentions that the Parole Board’s substantial discretion to deny geriatric release deprives juvenile nonhomicide offenders a meaningful opportunity to seek parole and that juveniles cannot seek geriatric release until they have spent at least four decades in prison.” Id. But those arguments “cannot be resolved on federal habeas review.” Id. The Court said it “expresses no view on the merits of the underlying Eighth Amendment claim” and it does not “suggest or imply that the underlying issue, if presented on direct review, would be insubstantial.” Id. at 1729 (brackets, internal quotation marks, and citations omitted).

The Florida Supreme Court did not acknowledge this clear language; and it did not discuss the deferential AEDPA standard applied in LeBlanc. It said the Supreme Court had “clarified” and “delineated” the requirements of the Eighth Amendment when the high court explicitly stated it was not doing that. Further, the Florida Supreme Court lumped LeBlanc in with Graham and Miller, two cases decided on direct review.

The recent case of Madison v. Alabama brings all of this into focus. On direct review, the Court granted Madison relief on his Eighth Amendment claim that his dementia prevented him from understanding his death sentence. The Court noted that in Dunn v. Madison, 138 S.Ct. 9 (2017) (per curiam), it had denied Madison relief when his case was before the Court on habeas review. The Court said that in Dunn v. Madison “we made clear that our decision was premised on AEDPA’s ‘demanding’ and ‘deferential standard.’” Madison v. Alabama, 139 S.Ct. at 725 (quoting Dunn v. Madison, 138 S.Ct. at 11-12). The Court stated that in Dunn v. Madison it had “‘express[ed] no view’ on the question of Madison’s competency ‘outside of the AEDPA context.’” Id. (quoting Dunn v. Madison, 138 S.Ct. at 11-12).

The Court said: “Because the case now comes to us on direct review of the state court’s decision (rather than in a habeas proceeding), AEDPA’s deferential standard no longer governs.” Madison, 139 S. Ct. at 726. The Court said:

When we considered this case before, using the deferential standard applicable in habeas, we held that a state court could allow such an execution without committing inarguable error. See Madison, 583 U.S., at —, 138 S.Ct., at 11-12 (stating that no prior decision had “clearly established” the opposite); supra, at —. Today, we address the issue straight-up, sans any deference to a state court.

Madison v. Alabama, 139 S.Ct. at 727. And after addressing the “issue straight-up, sans any deference to a state court,” id., it granted Madison relief.

The United States Supreme Court said in LeBlanc, as it had in Dunn v. Madison, that it “expresses no view on the merits of the underlying Eighth Amendment claim” does not “suggest or imply that the underlying issue, if presented on direct review, would be insubstantial.” LeBlanc, 137 S.Ct. at 1729 (brackets, internal quotation marks, and citations omitted). It is hard to get much clearer than that, but if more clarity were needed, Madison v. Alabama supplies it. In short, when the United States Supreme Court states in one of its habeas decisions that it is not ruling on the merits, then it is not ruling on the merits. “[A] good rule of thumb for reading [Supreme Court] decisions is that what they say and what they mean are one and the same[.]” Mathis v. United States, 136 S.Ct. 2243, 2254 (2016).

And lower courts must pay attention to what they say. “It is not within [a state court’s] province to reconsider and reject” decisions of the United States Supreme Court. Delancy v. State, 256 So. 3d 940, 947 (Fla. 4th DCA 2018). And just as “state statutes do not control over United States Supreme Court decisions on matters of federal constitutional law,” Sigler v. State, 881 So. 2d 14, 19 (Fla. 4th DCA 2004), aff’d, 967 So. 2d 835 (Fla. 2007), state court decisions don’t either. “It is, rather, the other way around.” Id.

State courts must “follow both the letter and the spirit of [United States Supreme Court’s] decisions.” Ramah Navajo Sch. Bd., Inc. v. Bureau of Revenue of New Mexico, 458 U.S. 832, 846 (1982). Given Madison v. Alabama, the Florida Supreme Court needs to reconsider Franklin and its reliance on LeBlanc. The Florida Supreme Court should not adhere to its error in overruling Atwell and willfully ignore the United States Supreme Court’s clarification in Madison. Someone has to say that the LeBlanc emperor has no clothes. Therefore, this Court should certify the following question as one of great public importance:

GIVEN THAT VIRGINIA V. LEBLANC WAS A FEDERAL HABEAS DECISION GOVERNED BY THE DEFERENTIAL AEDPA STANDARD, AND GIVEN THAT MADISON V. ALABAMA DEMONSTRATES THAT AEDPA DECISIONS LIKE LEBLANC ARE NOT RULINGS ON THE MERITS, WAS ATWELL V. STATE CORRECTLY OVERRULED ON THE AUTHORITY OF LEBLANC?

POINT III

APPELLANT’S 129-YEAR SENTENCE VIOLATES THE EIGHTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENTS TO THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION

For a robbery he committed when he was a 16 years old, appellant was sentenced to 129 years in prison. He has been in prison for 43 years. Although he is parole eligible, parole is so rarely granted in Florida that appellant has little chance of ever being released. Here is a summary of the Florida Commission on Offender Review’s release decisions for the last six years:

Fiscal Year	Parole Eligible	Parole Release Decisions	Parole Granted	Percentage Release Decisions Granted	Percentage Eligible Granted
2017-18 <sup>5</sup>	4275	1499	14	0.93%	0.33%
2016-17 <sup>6</sup>	4438	1242	21	1.69%	0.47%
2015-16 <sup>7</sup>	4545	1237	24	1.94%	0.53%
2014-15 <sup>8</sup>	4561	1300	25	1.92%	0.55%
2013-14 <sup>9</sup>	4626	1437	23	1.60%	0.50%
2012-	5107	1782	22	1.23%	0.43%

---

<sup>5</sup> Fla. Commission on Offender Review 2018 Annual Report 6, available at <https://www.fcor.state.fl.us/docs/reports/Annual%20Report%202018%20WEB.pdf>

<sup>6</sup> Fla. Commission on Offender Review 2017 Annual Report 8, available at <https://www.fcor.state.fl.us/docs/reports/Annual%20Report%202017%20for%20web.pdf>

<sup>7</sup> Fla. Commission on Offender Review 2016 Annual Report 8, available at <https://www.fcor.state.fl.us/docs/reports/FCORannualreport201516.pdf>

<sup>8</sup> Fla. Commission on Offender Review 2015 Annual Report8, available at <https://www.fcor.state.fl.us/docs/reports/FCORannualreport201415.pdf>

<sup>9</sup> Fla. Commission on Offender Review 2014 Annual Report 6, 8, available at <https://www.fcor.state.fl.us/docs/reports/FCORannualreport201314.pdf>

<sup>10</sup> Fla. Commission on Offender Review 2013 Annual Report 8, available at <https://www.fcor.state.fl.us/docs/reports/FCORannualreport201213.pdf>

Only one-half of one percent of parole-eligible inmates, or one to two percent of inmates receiving a parole release decision, are granted parole each year: approximately 22 per year. Last year, for example, only 14 of the 1499 parole release decisions, or 0.93%, were granted. By contrast, the overall parole approval rate in Texas for fiscal year 2017 was 34.94 percent.<sup>11</sup>

At this rate, and with 4,275 parole eligible inmates remaining in 2018, it will take 194 years to parole these inmates. This means the vast majority of them will die in prison. Indeed, given the age of this population, few parole-eligible inmates will be alive within 20 years. Consider, for example, that there were 5107 parole eligible inmates in 2013; last year that number was down to 4275. Of those 832 inmates, 129 were paroled. The rest—703 of them—undoubtedly died in prison, though a few might have been released as old men and women at the expiration of lengthy sentences.

The rarity with which parole is granted should not be surprising. Parole is “an act of grace of the state and shall not be considered a right.” § 947.002(5), Fla. Stat. (2018); Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(32). It is not enough to be rehabilitated. “No person shall be placed on parole merely as a reward for good conduct or efficient performance of duties assigned in prison.” § 947.18, Fla. Stat. (2018). “Primary weight” must be given to the “seriousness of the offender’s present criminal offense and the offender’s past criminal record.” § 947.002(2), Fla. Stat. (2018).

---

<sup>11</sup> TEX. BD OF PARDONS & PAROLES, ANNUAL STATISTICAL REPORT FY 2017, at 4, available at: <https://www.tdcj.texas.gov/bpp/publications/FY%202017%20AnnualStatistical%20Report.pdf>

No inmate will be released without a “satisfactory release plan.” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(44). This has two components: gainful employment and suitable housing. Id. Thus, the inmate must show he “will be suitably employed in self-sustaining employment or that he will not become a public charge.” § 947.18, Fla. Stat. (2018); Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(44)(b). And the inmate must show he has a “transitional housing program or residence confirmed by field investigation to be sufficient to meet the living needs of the individual seeking parole, or sufficient financial resources or assistance to secure adequate living accommodations.” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(44)(a). If the inmate shares housing, the commission must be satisfied that the other occupants will not “pose an undue risk to the inmate’s ability to reintegrate into society.” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(44)(e).

The parole process begins with the calculation of a “presumptive parole release date.” This date is established by selecting the number of months within a matrix time range and adding months for factors that aggravate the “severity of offense behavior.” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.010(5)(a)1. The commission’s discretion to choose aggravating factors and the number of months to assign those factors is not limited by rule, standard, or guideline. (The aggravating factors listed in rule 23-21.010(5)(a)1. are examples only.) And it should be self-evident that the commission knows the number of months that an inmate has served and that it assigns the number of months in view of that fact.

The commission may consider whether there are “[r]easons related to mitigation of severity of offense behavior” or “[r]easons related to likelihood of favorable parole outcome....” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.010(5)(b). In keeping with the statutory directive that rehabilitation is not enough, the commission will not consider even “clearly exceptional program achievement” but it may “after a substantial period of incarceration.” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.010(5)(b)2.j.

The matrix time range is the intersection of the “salient factor score,” which is a “numerical score based on the offender’s present and prior criminal behavior and related factors found to be predictive in regard to parole outcome,” Atwell v. State, 197 So. 3d at 1040, 1047 (Fla. 2016), and the “offender’s severity of offense behavior.” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.002(27). The only concession that Florida’s parole process makes to juvenile offenders is the use of a “Youthful Offender Matrix,” which modestly reduces the matrix time ranges. Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.009(6). However, this meager reduction is easily nullified by assigning more months in aggravation.

The presumptive parole release date—even if it is within the inmate’s lifetime—merely puts the inmate at the base of the mountain. It is not a release date.

“[A] presumptive parole release date is only presumptive. It is discretionary prologue to the Commission’s final exercise of its discretion in setting an inmate’s effective parole release date.” May v. Florida Parole and Probation Commission, 424 So. 2d 122, 124 (Fla. 1st DCA 1982) (emphasis in original). It is “only an estimated release date.” Meola v. Department of Corrections, 732 So. 2d 1029, 1034 (Fla. 1998); § 947.002(8), Fla. Stat. (2018) (stating it is only a “tentative parole release date as determined by objective parole guidelines.”). “The Parole Commission reserves the right (and the duty) to make the final release decision when the [presumptive parole release date] arrives.” Meola, 732 So. 2d at 1034. There are many more steps along the way that can derail an inmate’s chance at release.

After the presumptive parole release date is established, a subsequent interview will be conducted to determine if there is new information that might affect that date. Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.013; § 947.174(1)(c), Fla. Stat. (2018). After the subsequent interview, the commission investigator will make another recommendation, which the commission is free to reject, and the commission may modify the presumptive parole release date “whether or not information has been gathered which affects the inmate’s presumptive parole date.” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.013(6).

The next step requires the presumptive parole release date to become the “effective parole release date,” which is the “actual parole release date as determined by the presumptive release date, satisfactory institutional conduct, and an acceptable parole plan.” § 947.005(5), Fla. Stat. (2018); § 947.1745, Fla. Stat. (2018). The inmate is again interviewed by the commission investigator. Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.015(2). The investigator discusses the inmate’s institutional conduct and release plan and makes a recommendation. Id. If the commission finds that the inmate’s release plan is unsatisfactory, it may extend the presumptive parole release date up to a year. Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.015(8).

If the commission orders an effective parole release date, it can postpone that date based on an “unsatisfactory release plan, unsatisfactory institutional conduct, or any other new information previously not available to the Commission at the time of the effective parole release date interview that would impact the Commission’s decision to grant parole....” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.015(13).

If the effective parole release date is postponed, the commission investigator may conduct a rescission hearing to withdraw it. Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-002(41). Rescission can be based on “infraction(s), new information, acts or unsatisfactory release plan....” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-019(1)(b).

Following a rescission hearing, the commission may: proceed with parole; vacate the effective parole release date and extend the presumptive parole release date; or “vacate the prior effective parole release date, and decline to authorize parole....” Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-019(10)(a)-(c).

In addition to the hurdles outlined above, the commission is also authorized to suspend the presumptive parole release date on a finding that the inmate is a “poor candidate” for parole release. Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-0155(1); Florida Parole Commission v. Chapman, 919 So. 2d 689, 691 (Fla. 4th DCA 2006). In her dissent in State v. Michel, 257 So. 3d 3 (Fla. 2018), Justice Pariente pointed out that the inmate’s presumptive parole release date in Stallings v. State, 198 So. 3d 1081 (Fla. 5th DCA 2016), had been suspended since 1999. Michel, 257 So. 3d at 17-18 (Pariente, J., dissenting). There appear to be no standards governing how long the commission may suspend a parole date.

As noted in Point II, the touchstone of the United States Supreme Court’s juvenile-sentencing jurisprudence is the “basic precept of justice that punishment for crime should be graduated and proportioned to both the offender and the offense.” Miller v. Alabama, 567 U.S. 460, 469 (2012) (quoting Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551, 560 (2005) (internal quotation marks omitted)). Certain punishments are disproportionate when applied to children because children are different. They lack maturity; they are more vulnerable and easy to influence; and their traits are less fixed, so they are more likely to become responsible, law-abiding adults. Miller, 567 U.S. at 471. In short, “because juveniles have lessened culpability they are less deserving of the most severe punishments.” Graham v. Florida, 560 U.S. 48, 68 (2010) (citing Roper, 543 U.S. at 569).

“From a moral standpoint it would be misguided to equate the failings of a minor with those of an adult, for a greater possibility exists that a minor’s character deficiencies will be reformed.” Graham, 560 U.S. at 68 (quoting Roper, 543 U.S. at 570). But Florida’s parole process does not recognize this. The commission is not required to consider either the mitigating attributes of youth or the juvenile offender’s maturity and rehabilitation.

Instead of maturity, rehabilitation, and the diminished culpability of youth, Florida’s parole process focuses on the “seriousness of the offender’s present offense and the offender’s past criminal record.” § 947.002(2), Fla. Stat. (2018). These are static factors that the offender cannot change. Whether a juvenile offender has reformed should be “weighed more heavily than the circumstances of the crime itself.” Beth Caldwell, Creating Meaningful Opportunities for Release: Graham, Miller and California’s Youth Offender Parole Hearings, 40 N.Y.U. Rev. L. & Soc. Change 245, 294 (2016). Florida’s parole process fails to weigh it at all. Rehabilitation is not enough. Even clearly exceptional program achievement will normally not be considered in establishing a presumptive parole release date.

Further, parole is less likely to be granted to juvenile offenders than adult offenders. To be released, inmates must have gainful employment and suitable housing. Adult offenders are more likely to have the resources—education, job skills, and family support—to obtain those things. Juvenile offenders, on the other hand, often have been imprisoned since they were children, and imprisoned in an environment that focuses on punishment rather than rehabilitation. See § 921.002(1)(b), Fla. Stat. (2018) (“The primary purpose of sentencing is to punish the offender.”); State v. Chestnut, 718 So. 2d 312, 313 (Fla. 5th DCA 1998) (“[T]he first purpose of sentencing is to punish, not rehabilitate.”). It is unlikely they obtained job skills before they were incarcerated, and it is more likely they have lost contact with friends and family. “[J]uvenile offenders who have been detained for many years are typically isolated, and many will lack connections and support from the community. This isolation makes it more difficult for them to present a solid release plan to the decision maker, and it means that they are less likely to have individuals in the community advocate for their release.” Sarah French Russell, Review for Release: Juvenile Offenders, State Parole Practices, and the Eighth Amendment, 89 Ind. L.J. 373, 421 (2014). This is one example of a parole standard that is “systematically biased against juvenile offenders.” Caldwell, 40 N.Y.U. Rev. L. & Soc. Change at 292.

The harm of the substantive deficiencies in the parole process is compounded by its procedural deficiencies. Both deficiencies are made vivid by Florida’s juvenile sentencing statutes, enacted in response to Graham and Miller. Juvenile homicide offenders serving the more serious sentence of life without the possibility of parole have a meaningful opportunity to obtain release based on demonstrated maturity and rehabilitation. Those offenders will be sentenced by judges who “seek with diligence and professionalism to take account of the human existence of the offender and the just demands of a wronged society.” Graham, 560 U.S. at 77. Those judges will be required to consider ten factors “relevant to the offense and the defendant’s youth and attendant circumstances.” § 921.1401(2), Fla. Stat. (2014). If a lengthy sentence is imposed, the juvenile offender will be entitled to a subsequent sentence-review hearing, at which the judge will determine whether the offender is “rehabilitated and is reasonably believed to be fit to reenter society....” § 921.1402(6), Fla. Stat. (2014). If the offender committed a crime other than first-degree murder, the offender is eligible for a sentence-review hearing after serving 20 years (unless the offender was previously convicted of certain felonies). §§ 775.082(3)(c), 921.1402(3)(d), Fla. Stat. (2014). If release is denied in the initial hearing, the offender is eligible for an additional sentence-review hearing after serving 30 years. § 921.1402(3)(d), Fla. Stat. (2014).

At sentencing, and at the sentence-review hearing, those offenders will be entitled to be present, to be represented by counsel, to present mitigating evidence on their own behalf, and, if the offender cannot afford counsel, to appointed counsel. § 921.1402(5), Fla. Stat. (2014); Fla. R. Crim. P. 3.781; Fla. R. Crim. P. 3.802(g). But there is no right to appointed counsel in parole proceedings. “Appointing counsel for indigent juvenile offenders would go a long way toward ensuring a meaningful hearing for juvenile offenders.” Russell, 89 Ind. L.J. at 425. Counsel can do what an inmate cannot: investigate, collect, and present “factual information so that the release decision is based on a full presentation of the relevant evidence.” Id. at 426.

Further, the Florida Commission on Offender Review is not a “sentencing court.” Holston v. Fla. Parole & Probation Commission, 394 So. 2d 1110, 1111 (Fla. 1st DCA 1981). The commission never sees or hears the inmate, as inmates are prohibited from attending the commission meeting. Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.004(13). “Certainly, it is important for the prisoner to speak directly to the decision maker. A decision maker needs to be persuaded by the prisoner that he or she is truly remorseful and reformed.” Russell, 89 Ind. L.J. at 402.

The rarity with which parole is granted makes it more like clemency. In Graham, 560 U.S. at 71, the Court stated that the “remote possibility” of clemency “does not mitigate the harshness of [a life] sentence.” The Court cited Solem v. Helm, 463 U.S. 277 (1983), where that argument had been rejected. Id.

In Solem, the defendant was sentenced to life imprisonment without parole for a nonviolent offense under a recidivist statute. Solem argued that his sentence violated the Eighth Amendment. The state argued that the availability of clemency made the case similar to Rummel v. Estelle, 445 U.S. 263 (1980), in which the Court upheld a life sentence with the possibility of parole. The Court rejected that argument because clemency was not comparable to the Texas parole system it reviewed in Rummel. Solem, 463 U.S. at 300-03.

In Rummel, the Court agreed that even though Rummel was parole eligible after serving 12 years “his inability to enforce any ‘right’ to parole precludes us from treating his life sentence as if it were equivalent to a sentence of 12 years.” Rummel, 445 U.S. at 280. However, “because parole is ‘an established variation on imprisonment of convicted criminals,’ . . . a proper assessment of Texas’ treatment of Rummel could hardly ignore the possibility that he will not actually be imprisoned for the rest of his life.” Id. at 280-81 (quoting Morrissey v. Brewer, 408 U.S. 471, 477 (1972)).

The Court said in Solem that in affirming Rummel’s sentence it “did not rely simply on the existence of some system of parole”; it looked “to the provisions of the system presented....” Solem, 463 U.S. at 301. Parole in Texas was a “regular part of the rehabilitative process”; it was “an established variation on imprisonment of convicted criminals”; and “assuming good behavior it is the normal expectation in the vast majority of cases.” Id. at 300-01 (citation omitted). And because the law “generally specifies when a prisoner will be eligible to be considered for parole, and details the standards and procedures applicable at that time[,] . . . it is possible to predict, at least to some extent, when parole might be granted.” Id. By contrast, clemency was “an ad hoc exercise of executive clemency.” Id. at 301.

In Florida, parole is no longer a “regular part of the rehabilitative process.” Solem, 463 U.S. at 300. It is almost impossible “to predict . . . when parole might be granted.” Id. at 301. It is not “the normal expectation in the vast majority of cases”; and it is not “an established variation on imprisonment of convicted criminals.” Id. at 300-01. Instead, it is more like commutation: “an ad hoc exercise of executive clemency” (id. at 301) and a “remote possibility.” Graham, 560 U.S. at 71.

In Miller the Court said it is the “rare juvenile offender whose crime reflects irreparable corruption”, id. 567 U.S. at 479-80 (quoting Roper, 543 U.S. at 573; Graham, 560 U.S. at 68), and that the “appropriate occasions for sentencing juveniles to [life imprisonment] will be uncommon.” Id. at 479. This means the “sentence of life without parole is disproportionate for the vast majority of juvenile offenders” and “raises a grave risk that many are being held in violation of the Constitution.” Montgomery, 136 S. Ct. at 736. But if parole is rarely granted, or if the parole procedures for sorting the rehabilitated from the irreparably corrupt are inadequate, then there is the “grave risk” that many juvenile offenders “are being held in violation of the constitution.” Id. That grave risk is present in Florida. Accordingly, appellant’s sentences violate the Eighth Amendment.

Juvenile offenders like appellant also have a liberty interest in a realistic opportunity for release based on demonstrated maturity and rehabilitation. Florida’s parole system denies him this liberty interest without due process of law.

For adults, there is no liberty interest in parole to which due process applies unless that interest arises from statutes or regulations. Swarthout v. Cooke, 562 U.S. 216 (2011); Greenholtz v. Inmates of Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex, 442 U.S. 1, 7 (1979). Florida tries not to create a liberty interest in parole. § 947.002(5), Fla. Stat. (2018) (“It is the intent of the Legislature that the decision to parole an inmate is an act of grace of the state and shall not be considered a right.”); Fla. Admin. Code R. 23-21.001 (“There is no right to parole or control release in the State of Florida.”).

Again, however, children are different. The Eighth Amendment requires that they be sorted from adults and given a meaningful opportunity to demonstrate maturity and rehabilitation, as argued above. Accordingly, they do have a liberty interest to which due process applies. See Brown v. Precythe, 2:17-CV-04082-NKL, 2017 WL 4980872 (W.D. Mo. Oct. 31, 2017); Hayden v. Keller, 134 F. Supp. 3d 1000, 1009 (E.D.N.C. 2015); Greiman v. Hodges, 79 F. Supp. 3d 933 (S.D. Iowa 2015).

As argued above, the Florida Commission on Offender Review does not comply with Miller’s substantive and procedural requirements. Therefore, appellant’s sentence violates not only the Cruel and Unusual Punishment Clauses, but also his right to due process pursuant under the Fourteenth Amendment and article I, section 9, of the Florida Constitution.

For these reasons, this Court should reverse the sentence and remand for resentencing.

CONCLUSION

This Court should reverse the order denying the motion for post-conviction relief (Points I and III) or certify a question of great public importance (Point II).

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I certify that this brief was served to Assistant Attorney General Celia Terenzio, 1515 N. Flagler Drive, West Palm Beach, Florida 33401, through the e-filing portal to CrimAppWPB@MyFloridaLegal.com this 19th day of June, 2019.

/s/ PAUL EDWARD PETILLO
PAUL EDWARD PETILLO

CERTIFICATE OF FONT

I certify that this brief was prepared with Times New Roman 14-point font in compliance with Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.210(a)(2).

/s/ PAUL EDWARD PETILLO
PAUL EDWARD PETILLO

Atwell Releasees
	Name	County	Case No.	Offense Date	DOC No.	Release Date
1	BARTH, CLIFFORD	ESCAMBIA	9100606	1/26/1991	216317	9/14/2017
2	GONZALEZ, ENRIQUE LIONEL	MIAMI-DADE	8840832B	11/21/1988	186274	4/19/2017
3	COATES, TYRONE	MIAMI-DADE	9130032A	7/18/1991	192711	8/25/2017
4	CLARINGTON, JERMAINE	MIAMI-DADE	9000354C	12/30/1989	192304	2/22/2018
5	HILTON, PERRY TEE	MIAMI-DADE	8421439	8/11/1984	096132	11/16/2017
6	MCMILLAN, WILLIE L	MIAMI-DADE	7610125	10/13/1976	059094	3/23/2018
7	REDDICK, ANGELO MAURICE	MIAMI-DADE	8712283	9/19/1986	184389	7/12/2017
8	COURTNEY, BRANDON PHILLIP	MIAMI-DADE	7604179B	9/1/1974	874784	10/26/2017
9	RIMPEL, ALLAN	MIAMI-DADE	9038716	9/6/1990	191195	11/1/2017
10	GRANT, ALAN RUDOLPH	MIAMI-DADE	8226401	9/23/1982	087912	4/11/2017
11	MILLER, RICARDO	MIAMI-DADE	7208754	4/16/1972	038649	4/11/2018
12	GONZALEZ, TITO	MIAMI-DADE	8411547	4/29/1984	099087	7/17/2017
13	MURRAY, HERBERT	MIAMI-DADE	7813136C	8/21/1978	067530	4/7/2017
14	TERRILL, CHRISTOPHER	MIAMI-DADE	9217844	5/3/1992	195060	12/22/2017
15	STIDHUM, JAMES RICKY	MIAMI-DADE	8222073D	9/6/1982	90384	4/20/2018
16	SHEPHERD, TINA KAY	MIAMI-DADE	8216103	6/29/1982	160407	11/7/2017
17	THOMAS, LESTER	MIAMI-DADE	8023444	10/7/1980	080877	12/22/2017
18	RIBAS, URBANO	MANATEE	8201196	10/8/1982	093472	5/11/2017
19	EVERETT, STEVEN L	MANATEE	7400468	7/11/1974	046717	4/12/2017
20	WORTHAM, DANIEL	MANATEE	9001844	7/3/1990	582950	10/20/2017
21	BRAXTON, CHARLES	MANATEE	8601920	11/28/1985	107687	7/7/2017
22	JOHNSON, ADRIAN LENARD	HILLSBOROUGH	8904764	3/17/1989	117404	6/14/2020
23	BEFORT, MARK R	HILLSBOROUGH	7905526	7/4/1979	072657	7/20/2017
24	IRVING, DEAN SWANSON	BAY	8201173	3/19/1981	092278	4/11/2018
25	CROOKS, DEMOND	BAY	9302523	12/15/1993	961761	1/22/2018
26	LEONARD, CARLOS	PALM BEACH	9204775	3/25/1992	896909	3/8/2017
27	THURMOND, KEVIN	PALM BEACH	8906616	5/5/1998	187400	2/6/2017
28	DOBARD, ANTHONY	PALM BEACH	8206935	1/7/1982	0953393	9/6/2017
29	BROWN, RUBEN	PALM BEACH	9204063	3/27/1992	780560	5/4/2017
30	LECROY, CLEO	PALM BEACH	104528	1/4/1981	104528	10/22/2018
31	STEPHENS, BARRY	BROWARD	8808481A	3/31/1988	186984	6/27/2018
32	CREAMER, DENNIS M	BREVARD	43686	5/30/1968	023801	6/27/2017
33	LAMB, WILBURN AARON	BREVARD	8600394	1/20/1986	106546	7/13/2018
34	ROBERSON, EUGENE	BREVARD	9100072A	12/10/1990	711333	12/12/2017
35	BISSONETTE, ROY I	BREVARD	7300440	5/12/1973	039295	7/3/2017
36	KENNEDY, BRIAN PATRICK	BREVARD	9100072	12/10/1990	704395	5/9/2017
37	ADAMS, RONNIE G	GLADES	7600025	7/6/1976	056056	2/16/2017
38	BRUNSON, THORNTON EMERY	DUVAL	9009095	5/19/1990	121312	6/18/2018
39	EDWARDS, EUGENE	DUVAL	9311766B	10/21/1993	123739	6/20/2018

40	THOMAS, CALVIN W	DUVAL	609501	6/9/1960	000984	4/24/2017
41	COOPER, ANTHONY JEROME.	DUVAL	7800349	2/2/1978	065615	2/21/2017
42	DIXON, ANTHONY A	DUVAL	7501613	6/4/1975	049671	5/9/2018
43	KELLY, CHRIS	PASCO	8902393	7/29/1989	118965	12/8/2019
44	HINKEL, SHAWN	PASCO	8300717	1/21/1983	089850	3/2/2018
45	SMITH, BENNY EUGENE	PINELLAS	8006738	8/2/1980	078908	11/14/2017
46	BELLOMY, TONY	PINELLAS	8510529	8/5/1985	100677	10/9/2017
47	CLARK, CHANTAY CELESTE	PINELLAS	9215418	8/15/1992	272025	11/3/2017
48	HARRIS, SYLVESTER A	PINELLAS	7505907	4/3/1975	054563	9/22/2017
49	DAVIS, HENRY M	PINELLAS	7223700	1/26/1972	033944	12/19/2017
50	STAPLES, BEAU	PINELLAS	265159	4/10/1989	265159	2/24/2019
51	FLEMMING, LIONEL	PINELLAS	842319	1/24/1984	095533	2/16/2018
52	ILLIG, LEON	PINELLAS	105411	1/1/1986	105411	10/24/2016
53	BLOCKER, TROY	PINELLAS	8714776	10/30/1987	115114	10/13/2016
54	BRYANT, DWIGHT	PINELLAS	15352	9/30/1964	015352	8/16/2018
55	DUNBAR, MICHAEL	PINELLAS	6415223	9/30/1965	015228	7/13/2018
56	JOHNSON, ROY L	ALACHUA	7109405	10/5/1970	029350	2/1/2018
57	DIXON, CHARLEY L.	BAKER	7000173	4/12/1970	027515	6/8/2018
58	LEISSA, RICHARD W	ORANGE	7502220	1/6/1975	049956	3/30/2017
59	SILVA, JAIME H	ORANGE	9212802	11/16/1992	371145	8/25/2016
60	WALLACE, GEORGE	PALM BEACH	8804700	3/11/1988	187487	1/3/2020
61	GLADON, TYRONE	BROWARD	796274	6/20/1979	072257	1/24/2018
62	SIMMONS, LESTER	ESCAMBIA	6700967	3/3/1951	019690	8/16/2019
63	STALLINGS, JACKSON	ORANGE	7201219	9/4/1955	038415	9/12/2019
64	COGDELL, JACKI	DUVAL	917406	11/2/1973	298848	9/12/2019
65	LEFLEUR, ROBERT	BROWARD	8803950	12/9/1988	184417	12/6/2019
66	LAWTON, TORRENCE	MIAMI-DADE	8708000	2/21/1987	182233	7/29/2016