QUESTION(S) PRESENTED

- 1) Did the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals err in denying jurisdiction from the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Oklahoma (Appx. "A") after issuing a stay in the Court of Appeals to allow Petitioner to return to the District Court for a Rule 54(b) Order of finality, the District Court Denied the Rule 54(b) motion, and instead issued ORDER and JUDGMENT any claims remaining open (Appx. "A", exhibits "A" and "B")?
- 2) Did the District Court err in DENYING Petitioner's motion for Rule 54(b) Order of Finality, and instead issuing a new ORDER and Judgment (Appx. "F", exhibits "A" and "B")?
- 3) Was a Rule 54(b) appropriate resolution of Finality considering the Tenth Circuit's reliance on Heimann v. Sneed, 133 F.3d 767, 769 (10th Cir. 1998) in its 15-Fed-19 ORDER raising questions, sua sponte, about jurisdiction, when Heimann resolution of a jurisdictional question was Rule 54(b). (Appx. "B")?

CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS INVOLVED

U.S. and Oklahoma Due Process and Equal Protection

42 U.S.C. § 1983

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

See Appendix "G" and "H"

This case began as an illegal Brady stop, arrest under false pretense, and false prosecution of an Iranian Immigrant who police had been harrasing for several years. Police seized the opportunity when a tip came in that Appellant was in possession of a stolen generator. (The generator turned out to have been stolen by the tipster's drug addict son and sold to Appellant's business associate.)

After considerable cost to Appellant, the state dropped the charges. Appellant sued in Oklahoma County District Court. The District Court subsequently dismissed the case.

Appellant moved in the Tenth Circuit to overrule the Tenth Circuit. Based upon the false argument of Appellee's the Tenth Circuit dismissed the case as out-of-time.

But the case was timely filed.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

See Appendix "G"

The Tenth Circuit dismissed the matter below on the false argument of Appellees, in what could only be characterized as deliberate indifference. The false argument is glaring. Appellant was not out of time; and if he was late it was through no fault of his own.

From inception of investigation Appellant's rights were trampled upon by police. As detailed in Appendix "G" the so-called search of Appellant's business was conducted by police with no regard for Appellant's right to be free from unconstitutional warrantless invasion of his personal property.

The police, prosecutors, and counsel for Appellees have never even suggested that a warrant was being considered by police. All they assert is hyper-technical excuses and diversions.

And the courts below (District and 10th circuit) have ignored the arguments of pro se Appellant.

The Government agents did not even consider getting a warrant. They had plenty of time. Just did not seem to care.

CONCLUSION

The petition for a writ of certiorari should be granted.

Respectfully submitted,

Ali Mehdi Pour
