FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

MOLLY C. DWYER, CLERK
U.S. COURT OF APPEALS

SEDFREY M. LINSANGAN,

No. 20-15103

Plaintiff-Appellant,

D.C. No. 1:17-cv-00128

v.

MEMORANDUM*

ALICE M. TAIJERON; et al.,

Defendants-Appellees.

Appeal from the United States District Court for the District of Guam
Frances Tydingco-Gatewood, Chief District Judge, Presiding

Submitted August 4, 2020
San Francisco, California

Before: THOMAS, Chief Judge, and HAWKINS and McKEOWN, Circuit
Judges.

Sedfrey Linsangan appeals pro se from the district court's order dismissing his 42 U.S.C. § 1983 action because he lacked standing. We have jurisdiction under 28

* This disposition is not appropriate for publication and is not precedent except as provided by Ninth Circuit Rule 36-3.

 The panel unanimously concludes this case is suitable for decision without oral argument. See Fed. R. App. P. 34(a)(2).

U.S.C. § 1291. We review de novo, Whitmore v. Fed. Election Comm'n, 68 F.3d 1212, 1214 (9th Cir.1996), and we affirm.

“The ‘irreducible constitutional minimum of standing’ contains three parts: (1) injury in fact; (2) causation; and (3) likelihood that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.” Am. Civil Liberties Union of Nev. v. Lomax, 471 F.3d 1010, 1015 (9th Cir. 2006) (citation omitted).

The district court properly dismissed Linsangan’s action for lack of standing because Linsangan’s allegations of harm are not particularized or imminent. See Lujan v. Defs. of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560 (1992). A plaintiff “must show that he has suffered, or will imminently suffer, a concrete and particularized injury to a judicially cognizable interest.” Davis v. Guam, 785 F.3d 1311, 1314 (9th Cir. 2015) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). Linsangan’s allegation that “he would like to run for Governor” but cannot under the current statutory limitations does not state an imminent harm. See Lujan, 504 U.S. at 564 (“an ‘inten[t]’ ...is simply not enough”); Scott v. Pasadena Unified Sch. Dist., 306 F.3d 646, 656 (9th Cir. 2002) (“The mere existence of a statute, which may or may not ever be applied to plaintiffs, is not sufficient to create a case or controversy within the meaning of Article III.” (quotation marks and citation omitted)). The remaining alleged injuries are not particularized to his situation; rather, they are generalized grievances. See Carroll v. Nakatani, 342 F.3d 934, 940 (9th Cir. 2003) vs.

(holding that a “generalized grievance against allegedly illegal government conduct” is insufficient to confer standing).

ALICE M. TAIJERON, JADEEN L.

CIVIL CASE NO. 17-00128

ORDER RE MOTION TO DISMISS, REPORT & RECOMMENDATION, AND OBJECTIONS

Before the Court are Defendants' motion to dismiss (ECF No. 41) the Amended Complaint ("Compl.") (ECF No. 33), the U.S. Magistrate Judge's report and recommendation on said motion (ECF No. 48), and the parties' respective objections thereto (ECF Nos. 49, 51, 52). For the reasons stated below, the Court concludes that Plaintiff lacks standing to pursue his claims and, alternatively, that Plaintiff's claims are not ripe for adjudication. The Court also concludes that further amendment of the complaint would be futile. Accordingly, the Court dismisses the Amended Complaint without leave to amend. In light of this ruling, the parties' other objections to the Report & Recommendation are moot and are therefore not considered.

I. BACKGROUND

The Guam Election Commission ("GEC") held a meeting in May 2017, at which Plaintiff told the members of the commission that he would like to run for Governor of Guam. Compl. at 4. Plaintiff was informed that Guam law, 3 G.C.A. § 15404(a), requires gubernatorial candidates to have a running mate in order to be placed on the ballot in the primary election. Id. Plaintiff challenged this provision, as well as the requirement that nominating petitions for the positions

1 of governor and lieutenant governor bear the signatures of 500 qualified electors, 3 G.C.A.
2 § 15205, which Plaintiff contends is excessive. Compl. at 4. Members of the Guam election
3 commission informed Plaintiff that the commission is “just following the law” and that he 4 “would have to see the Legislature” to obtain redress regarding the challenged provisions. Id.

5 Plaintiff did not obtain a gubernatorial candidate packet or submit an application, but 6 instead filed the present lawsuit, challenging the provisions noted above. Plaintiff seeks an order
7 declaring the GEC’s conduct of the primary election “unconstitutional, unorganic, undemocratic,
8 and a deprivation of the rights of US citizens.” Id. at 5. Plaintiff also requests that the Court 9 “order [the GEC] to accept and certify all the Governor and Lt. Governor candidates even 10 without a running mate in the primary election,” id., and lower the number of petition signatures 11 required from 500 to 50, id. at 6.

12 On July 12, 2018, Defendants filed a motion to dismiss, arguing that Plaintiff lacks 13 standing to bring the present claims and that the operative complaint fails to state a claim upon 14 which relief can be granted. See ECF No. 41. The Magistrate Judge issued a Report &
15 Recommendation on April 12, 2019, recommending that Defendant’s motion be denied insofar as 16 it seeks dismissal for lack of standing, but that the motion be granted with leave to amend insofar 17 as it seeks dismissal for failure to state a claim. See ECF No. 48. Defendants objected to the 18 Report & Recommendation’s finding that Plaintiff has standing and its recommendation that 19 leave to amend should be granted. See ECF No. 52. Plaintiff objected to the Report &
20 Recommendation’s finding that the operative complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief
21 can be granted. See ECF Nos. 49, 51. Plaintiff also filed a request for a hearing on the matter, see 22 ECF No. 50, which the Court granted, see ECF No. 53. The hearing was held on January 9, 23 2020. See ECF No. 56.

24 II. LEGAL STANDARD

25 The Magistrates Act requires the court to “make a de novo determination of those 26 portions of the report or specified proposed findings or recommendations to which objection is 27 made.” 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). In conducting such review, the court “may accept, reject, or 28 modify, in whole or in part, the findings or recommendations made by the magistrate judge.” Id.

1 “To satisfy the standing requirements imposed by the ‘case’ or ‘controversy’ provision of 2 Article III, [Plaintiff] must show that he has suffered, or will imminently suffer, a concrete and 3 particularized injury to a judicially cognizable interest.” Davis v. Guam, 785 F.3d 1311, 1314
4 (9th Cir. 2015) (internal quotations, citations omitted). “That injury must be fairly traceable to 5 the challenged action of the defendants, and it must appear likely that the injury would be 6 prevented or redressed by a favorable decision.” Id. The standing issues raised by Defendants
7 could, in many ways, be characterized as questions of ripeness. “Sorting out where standing ends
8 and ripeness begins is not an easy task.” Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm’n, 220 F.3d 9 1134, 1138 (9th Cir. 2000). Indeed, “[t]he constitutional component of the ripeness inquiry is 10 often treated under the rubric of standing and, in many cases, ripeness coincides squarely with 11 standing’s injury in fact prong.” Id.

12 In addition to its constitutional component, the ripeness inquiry also contains a prudential 13 component. Id. “In evaluating the prudential aspects of ripeness, [the Court’s] analysis is guided 14 by two overarching considerations: ‘the fitness of the issues for judicial decision and the 15 hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration.’” Id. at 1141 (quoting Abbott 16 Laboratories v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 149 (1967)).

17 III. DISCUSSION

18 Defendants object to the Magistrate Judge’s finding that Plaintiff has suffered or will 19 imminently suffer a particularized and concrete injury sufficient to confer standing. ECF No. 52 20 (“Defs.’ Objections”) at 3. Plaintiff alleges that “Defendants[’] actions deprived [him] of [his] 21 right to run for Governor.” Compl. at 4. Defendants, on the other hand, contend that they “did not 22 and could not deny his candidacy” because he “did not obtain or submit a gubernatorial 23 candidate packet or application.” Defs.’ Objections at 3. As noted above, “in measuring whether 24 the litigant has asserted an injury that is real and concrete rather than speculative and 25 hypothetical, the ripeness inquiry merges almost completely with standing.” Thomas, 220 F.3d at 26 1139.

1 A. Constitutional Inquiry

2 In order to have standing to assert his claims, Plaintiff must allege facts establishing a 3 past, present, or imminent concrete injury, fairly traceable to the challenged conduct of 4 Defendants, that is likely to be redressed or prevented by a favorable decision by the Court.
5 Reading the complaint liberally, in light of Plaintiff's pro se status, the Court finds that Plaintiff
6 has sufficiently alleged that he wishes to appear as a candidate for governor in the primary
7 election and that one or more defendants informed Plaintiff of the existence of certain provisions
8 of law that apply to those seeking such placement on the ballot. The Court concludes, however,
9 that these allegations—in the absence of any allegations that Defendants denied an application
10 by Plaintiff on the basis of those provisions—are not sufficient to establish standing to challenge 11 those provisions of law.

12 The Court notes that this case is significantly different from Davis v. Guam, 785 F.3d 13 1311 (9th Cir. 2015), where the plaintiff was found to have standing to stage a facial challenge to 14 a law restricting his access to a particular voter registry. In Davis, the plaintiff “tried to register 15 with the Decolonization Registry, but the application was rejected” because of the challenged
16 provision of law. Id. at 1314. The Ninth Circuit found that the rejection of Davis's application 17 constituted sufficient injury to confer standing. Here, Plaintiff attempts to challenge the 18 provisions at issue without first submitting an application and receiving a rejection from the 19 GEC. However, “[t]he mere existence of a statute, which may or may not ever be applied to 20 plaintiffs, is not sufficient to create a case or controversy within the meaning of Article III.” Scott
21 v. Pasadena Unified Sch. Dist., 306 F.3d 646, 656 (9th Cir. 2002). Plaintiff's allegation that he 22 “would like to run for Governor” is simply not enough to establish an “imminent” injury to 23 Plaintiff resulting from the challenged provisions of law. Cf. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504
24 U.S. 555, 564 (1992) (“[T]he affiants' profession of an ‘inten[t]’ to return to the places they had 25 visited before—where they will presumably, this time, be deprived of the opportunity to observe 26 animals of the endangered species—is simply not enough. Such ‘some day’ intentions—without 27 any description of concrete plans, or indeed even any specification of when the some day will 28

1 be—do not support a finding of the ‘actual or imminent’ injury that our cases require.”)
2 (emphasis in original).

3 Even if Plaintiff had alleged plans to run for Governor specific enough to establish the 4 imminent submission of an application, his alleged injury would still be too speculative. The 5 harm alleged by Plaintiff assumes not only that Plaintiff’s application will in fact be submitted 6 without listing a running mate and without the requisite number of signatures, but also that the 7 basis for any rejection of the application by the GEC will be one or both of these reasons, rather 8 than a failure to timely file the application, a failure to properly fill out the application, or a 9 failure to meet any other criterion for placement on the primary ballot. The complaint essentially 10 asks the court to presume that Plaintiff’s hypothetical application will not only be filed, but that 11 the GEC will have no basis for rejecting the application other than the legal provisions he seeks 12 to challenge.

13 The fact that Plaintiff has neither filed an application with nor received a rejection from 14 the GEC also raises serious redressability concerns. For example, Plaintiff requests that the Court
15 order the GEC to lower the number of petition signatures required to run for Governor from 500
16 to 50. If the GEC had rejected a petition in support of Plaintiff’s candidacy that contained 50
17 signatures, then it would be clear that the relief requested by Plaintiff would effectively remedy
18 his exclusion from the primary ballot.¹ As the case is currently presented to the Court, however,
19 the ability of Plaintiff’s requested relief to remedy his exclusion from the primary ballot depends 20 on Plaintiff’s ability to obtain at least 50 signatures in support of his candidacy for Governor. The 21 efficacy of the relief sought therefore depends on the actions of third parties that the Court has no 22 power to control.

23 The Court accordingly finds that the complaint fails to allege facts establishing an 24 imminent, concrete injury that is likely to be prevented or redressed by a favorable court decision 25 and that his claims are therefore constitutionally unripe.

26
27
28 ¹ This, again, assumes that the GEC would have no other valid basis for excluding Plaintiff from the ballot.

1 B. Prudential Inquiry

2 Even if the Court were to find that Plaintiff has “present[ed] a ripe case or controversy in 3 the constitutional sense,” the Court would nonetheless “decline to exercise jurisdiction under the 4 prudential component of the ripeness doctrine.” Thomas v. Anchorage Equal Rights Comm’n, 5 220 F.3d 1134, 1141 (9th Cir. 2000). “In evaluating the prudential aspects of ripeness, [the 6 Court’s] analysis is guided by two overarching considerations: ‘the fitness of the issues for 7 judicial decision and the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration.’” Id. (quoting
8 Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 149 (1967)).

9 1. Fitness for Judicial Resolution

10 Although Plaintiff’s challenges to the statutory provisions at issue are facial challenges—
11 which makes the issues more amenable to early judicial resolution than an as-applied
12 challenge—the court nonetheless concludes that Plaintiff’s challenges are more appropriately
13 adjudicated in the context of a specific application for candidacy. “Determination of the scope
14 and constitutionality of legislation in advance of its immediate adverse effect in the context of a 15 concrete case involves too remote and abstract an inquiry for the proper exercise of the judicial 16 function.” Renne v. Geary, 501 U.S. 312, 323 (1991). Accordingly, the Supreme Court has 17 cautioned against zealously proceeding to “resolv[e] the facial constitutionality of [a statute]
18 without first addressing its application to a particular set of facts.” Id. This is because “[a] 19 concrete factual situation is necessary to delineate the boundaries of what conduct the 20 government may or may not regulate.” Thomas, 220 F.3d at 1141.

21 For example, here, Plaintiff does not dispute that the Government may permissibly
22 require some number of voter signatures in support of a candidate before placing that candidate
23 on the primary ballot; he simply argues that the requirement of 500 signatures is too burdensome
24 to be permissible. However, under the current posture of this case, there is no record to indicate
25 how many signatures Plaintiff was able to obtain and with what effort, so the Court is essentially 26 being asked to determine, in the abstract, the level of burden imposed by a 500-signature
27 requirement. “This case is a classic one for invoking the maxim that [the Court] do[es] not 28 decide constitutional questions in a vacuum.” Thomas, 220 F.3d at 1141.

1 Other considerations also counsel in favor of deciding Plaintiff's challenge in the context
2 of a specific application for candidacy. If Plaintiff were to file a gubernatorial application without 3 a running mate and without the requisite number of signatures, upholding one of the challenged
4 provisions would be sufficient to uphold the rejection of Plaintiff's application, and would 5 therefore render moot any challenge to the other provision. In the present context, however,
6 without knowing which of the two challenged provisions Plaintiff might be able to meet, the 7 Court would have no choice but to consider each in turn, even if it upheld the first provision 8 considered and even though that provision, as a practical matter, might be dispositive of 9 Plaintiff's ability to obtain placement on the primary ballot. Such gratuitous constitutional 10 rulings are to be avoided wherever possible, and a concrete factual scenario is necessary to 11 ensure that the Court does not unnecessarily pass on the constitutionality of both provisions.

12 2. Hardship of Withholding Court Consideration

13 The Court further notes that the hardship of withholding court consideration until a 14 concrete factual scenario arises is relatively small. First, "[t]he acts necessary to make 15 plaintiff[s] injury ... materialize are almost entirely within plaintiff[s] own control." San Diego
16 County Gun Rights v. Reno, 98 F.3d 1121, 1127 (9th Cir. 1996). Second, unlike in the context of 17 a criminal statute, where "[t]he alternative to compliance ... would risk serious criminal and civil 18 penalties," Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 153 (1967), the consequences of 19 proceeding without a ruling from this Court are relatively low, even in the event the challenged
20 provisions are ultimately upheld. Although Plaintiff will have wasted whatever time was spent 21 filling out and submitting an application for candidacy, he will otherwise be in the same position
22 as he would be were the provisions upheld without his first submitting an application. The Court
23 therefore finds that withholding Court consideration will impose little hardship on the parties.

24 IV. CONCLUSION

25 Whether framed as an issue of imminent, redressable injury in fact or as a matter of 26 prudential ripeness, the court concludes that Plaintiff's challenge—in the absence of any 27 application for candidacy rejected by the GEC—is premature, his alleged injury too remote and 28 speculative. Accordingly, the Court rejects the Report & Recommendation's finding that Plaintiff

1 has standing and DISMISSES the action, both for lack of jurisdiction and alternatively on 2 prudential ripeness grounds. Because the facts forming the basis for this decision are undisputed,
3 the Court DENIES LEAVE TO AMEND as futile. In light of this ruling, the Court has no
4 occasion to consider the merits of Plaintiff's case and therefore OVERRULES AS MOOT
5 Plaintiff's objections to the proposed finding that the Amended Complaint fails to state a claim
6 and Defendants' objections to the proposed finding that leave to amend should be granted as to 7 Plaintiff's equal protection claim.

Plaintiff,

and BENNY A. PINAULA,

CIVIL CASE NO. 17-00128

REPORT & RECOMMENDATION to Deny in Part and Grant in Part Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (ECF No. 41)

Before the court is the Defendants' Motion to Dismiss the Amended Complaint. See ECF No. 41. Neither party requested the court schedule the motion for oral argument, and having read the motion and related filings, the court, in the exercise of its discretion, finds that oral argument is unnecessary.

NATURE OF PLAINTIFF'S ACTION

On November 30, 2017, the Plaintiff filed suit against the Guam Election Commission ("GEC") pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. See Compl. at ¶II, ECF No. 1. The Complaint asserted that the GEC violated the Plaintiff's Fourteenth Amendment right and "various provisions of the Bill of Rights contained within the Organic Act of Guam of 1950. Section 1421b(u), Section 1421b(n), Section 1423d, Section 1421b(h)." Id. at ¶II.B.

According to the Complaint, the Plaintiff attended a GEC meeting in May 2017. Id. at ¶¶III.A and B. At said meeting, the Plaintiff claims he was informed by the Commissioners and legal counsel that he could not run for Governor if he did not have a team or running mate because

1 Guam law (3 GUAM CODE ANN. §15404(a)) required that gubernatorial candidates have a running
2 mate in the primary election. Id. at ¶II.D. He asserted that the Chairwoman said “they are just 3 following the law” and was told he “would have to see the Legislature.” Id. at ¶III.A. The Plaintiff
4 also challenged the number of signatures required on the nominating petitions. Id. He contended 5 that the requirement was “excessive” and unfair since candidates for other elected offices (such as 6 the Office of the Public Auditor, the Attorney General of Guam and the Consolidated Commission
7 on Utilities) were not required to have nominating petitions. Id.

8 On December 21, 2017, the GEC filed a Motion to Dismiss the Complaint. See ECF No. 4.
9 The Plaintiff opposed the motion, but on June 18, 2018, the Chief Judge granted the Motion to 10 Dismiss but permitted the Plaintiff to file an amended complaint to name the appropriate Section 11 1983 parties and allege facts which establish that his claims are ripe. See Order, ECF No. 31.

12 On June 21, 2018, the Plaintiff filed an Amended Complaint. See ECF No. 33. The 13 Amended Complaint is essentially identical to the original Complaint except that (1) the seven 14 members comprising the Guam Election Commission were named as the Defendants, and (2)
15 additional language was handwritten at the end of ¶¶ II.D¹ and V.² Among other relief and just as 16 he requested in the original Complaint, the Plaintiff asks the court to order the Defendants to accept 17 and certify all Governor and Lt. Governor candidates even without a running mate in the primary 18 election and to reduce the signatures required on the nominating petitions for said candidates. Id.
19 at ¶V.

20 LEGAL STANDARDS

21 The Defendants' Motion to Dismiss is brought pursuant to Rule 12(b)(1) and (b)(6) of the 22 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, arguing that the court lacks subject matter jurisdiction because 23 the Plaintiff has failed to demonstrate his standing and that the Amended Complaint fails to state 24

25 ¹ The additional language handwritten by the Plaintiff was “I informed them that I would 26 like to run for Governor. Defendants['] actions deprived me of my right to run for Governor.”
27 Am. Compl. at ¶ II.D.

28 ² The added language the Plaintiff wrote was “I pray that the court grant all the relief I'm requesting so that me [sic] and other people could run for elected offices.” Am. Compl. at ¶ V.

1 a claim upon which relief can be granted.

2 Article III of the Constitution limits federal court jurisdiction to actual “cases” and 3 “controversies.” See U.S. Const. art. III § 1. To “satisfy the standing requirements imposed by the 4 ‘case’ or ‘controversy’ provision of Article III,” a plaintiff must show that he has suffered, or will 5 imminently suffer, a “concrete and particularized” injury to a “judicially cognizable interest.”
6 Bennett v. Spear, 520 U.S. 154, 167 (1997). The plaintiff’s injury must be “fairly traceable to the 7 challenged action of the defendant[s],” and it must appear likely that the injury would be prevented
8 or redressed by a favorable decision. Id. When determining Article III standing the court must 9 “accept as true all material allegations of the complaint” and “construe the complaint in favor of 10 the complaining party.” Maya v. Centex Corp., 658 F.3d 1060, 1068 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting Warth 11 v. Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 501 (1975)).

12 A defendant is entitled to dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6) when a complaint fails to state a 13 cognizable legal theory or alleges insufficient facts under a cognizable legal theory. Somers v.
14 Apple, Inc., 729 F.3d 953, 959 (9th Cir. 2013). The Ninth Circuit has explained that the purpose 15 of a Rule 12(b)(6) motion is to test a complaint’s legal sufficiency. N. Star Int’l v. Ariz. Corp.
16 Comm’n, 720 F.2d 578, 571 (9th Cir. 1963). Generally, the plaintiff’s burden at this stage is light 17 since Rule 8(a) requires only that a complaint “shall contain . . . a short and plain statement of the 18 claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a). “All allegations of 19 material fact are taken as true and construed in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party.”
20 Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir. 2001). The court may dismiss based 21 on lack of cognizable legal theory or on the absence of facts that would support a cognizable theory.
22 Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep’t, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1990). And, while the plaintiff’s 23 burden is light, it is not nonexistent – the complaint must “contain either direct or inferential
24 allegations respecting all the material elements necessary to sustain recovery under some viable
25 legal theory.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 562 (2007) (internal quotation marks 26 omitted). “To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, 27 accepted as true, to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S.
28 662, 678 (2009) (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570) (internal quotation marks omitted). A claim

1 is facially plausible if “the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the 2 reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Id. at 678 (citing
3 Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556). The court must “draw on its judicial experience and common sense”
4 to determine the plausibility of a claim given the specific context of each case. Id. at 679.

5 The court has an obligation, especially in civil rights actions, to construe pro se pleading
6 liberally and gives the pro se plaintiff the benefit of any doubt. Bretz v. Kelman, 773 F.2d 1026,
7 1027 n.1 (9th cir. 1985); see also Butler v. Long, 752 F.3d 1177, 1180 (9th Cir. 2014). However,
8 the court’s liberal interpretation of a pro se complaint may not supply essential elements of the 9 claim that were not pled. Ivey v. Bd. of Regents of Univ. of Alaska, 673 F.2d 266, 268 (9th Cir.
10 1982). Generally, if a court dismisses a pro se complaint it should “grant leave to amend . . . unless 11 it determines that the pleading could not possibly be cured by the allegation of other facts.” Lopez
12 v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1130 (9th Cir. 2000).

13 DISCUSSION

14 The motion seeks dismissal of the instant action on various grounds, including (1) that the 15 Plaintiff lacks standing, (2) that the Amended Complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief
16 can be granted and (3) the Defendants are not “persons” under Section 1983. The court will address 17 each of these arguments below.

18 1. Whether the Plaintiff has established standing

19 The Defendants challenge the Plaintiff’s standing to bring the instant action. The 20 Defendants argue that although the Amended Complaint now states that the Plaintiff informed the 21 Defendants that he “would like to run for Governor,” Am. Compl. at ¶ II.D, ECF No. 33, “the desire 22 to do an act does not equate to performing the act or actually carrying through with it.” Defs.’ Mot.
23 Dismiss at 5,³ ECF No. 41. The Defendants further contend that the Plaintiff did not take the steps
24 necessary to run as a gubernatorial candidate during the last primary election since he failed to pick 25 up a candidate packet and submit the necessary forms before June 26, 2018. Id. The Defendants

1 assert that "there was never any follow-through to show that [the Plaintiff] actually intended to run
2 for office" and the "new statement in the Amended Complaint . . . is still not clear and unequivocal
3 evidence of his intent to run for office." Id. at 5-6.

4 The court disagrees with the Defendants. "Article III of the Constitution requires that a 5 plaintiff have standing before a case may be adjudicated." Covington v. Jefferson Cty., 358 F.3d
6 626, 637 (9th cir. 2004). Standing requires that a plaintiff show (1) an injury in fact that is (a)
7 concrete and particularized and (b) actual or imminent; (2) that the injury is fairly traceable to the 8 challenged action of the defendant; and (3) it is likely, as opposed to merely speculative, that the 9 injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. Id. at 637-38 (footnote, citation and internal 10 quotation marks omitted).

11 As noted above, the court must construe the pleadings of the Plaintiff, a pro se filer, liberally
12 and in his favor. Taking the factual allegations as true and reading them in the light most favorable
13 to the Plaintiff, he has standing in this matter. The Amended Complaint states that the Plaintiff
14 "would like to run for Governor" but the Defendants' "actions deprived [him] of [his] right to run
15 for Governor." Am. Compl. at ¶ II.D, ECF No. 33. He requests that the court grant him relief "so 16 that [he] and other people could run for elected offices." Id. at 6. Reading the Plaintiff's
17 handwritten statements liberally, the court finds that the Amended Complaint establishes that (1) 18 the Plaintiff wanted to run as a gubernatorial candidate, (2) he was told by the Defendants that he 19 needed a running mate, and (3) his access to the primary election ballot was blocked as a result.
20 His alleged injury is concrete and particularized, not hypothetical as the Defendants claim, and is 21 traceable to the challenged actions of the Defendants.

22 The Defendants next argue that the Plaintiff has not established standing because his alleged 23 injury is not likely to be redressed by a favorable court decision. The Defendants assert that they 24 were "merely carrying out and enforcing the election laws set in place by [the] U.S. Congress and 25 Guam's Legislature." Defs.' Mot. Dismiss at 6, ECF No. 41. The Defendants contend that even if 26 the court were to rule in the Plaintiff's favor after trial, the court cannot direct the Defendants to 27 change Guam's election laws or force them to break the laws. Id. The Defendants argue that any 28 ruling by the court will not provide the Plaintiff with substantial and meaningful relief unless the

1 United States and the Government of Guam are named as Defendants.

2 The court again disagrees with the Defendants. The Plaintiff's alleged injury can be
3 redressed by a favorable court decision. As the Plaintiff notes in his Opposition and the Defendants
4 themselves concede, this court "has the authority to find laws unconstitutional when they run afoul
5 of the provisions and protections of the Constitution. Defs.' Reply Br. at 6, ECF No. 43. If the 6 court were to strike down the provisions of Guam law that the Plaintiff challenges, then certainly 7 the Plaintiff will receive meaningful relief because he will no longer be required to have a running
8 mate to run for as a gubernatorial candidate in the primary election, nor will he be required to obtain 9 the minimum 500 signatures on the nominating petition.

10 Therefore, insofar as the Defendants' Motion to Dismiss seeks dismissal of the instant action
11 for lack of standing, the court recommends the Chief Judge deny the motion.

12 2. Whether the Amended Complaint states a claim upon which relief can be granted

13 Liberally construed, the Amended Complaint appears to assert that the Defendants have 14 restricted the Plaintiff's access to be placed on the primary election ballot because (1) he was told 15 he could not run for governor if he did not have a running mate and (2) he is required to obtain 500
16 signatures on the nominating petition, but the Plaintiff asserts this is "excessive." The court will 17 address these claims separately.

18 A. Requirement for running mate

19 It is not clear to the court whether the Plaintiff's Section 1983 claim is premised on a 20 potential violation of the Fourteenth Amendment Due Process Clause or the Equal Protection
21 Clause so the court will address both in its analysis.

22 "To state a substantive due process claim, the plaintiff must show as a threshold matter that 23 a state actor deprived [him] of a constitutionally protected life, liberty or property interest." Shanks
24 v. Dressel, 540 F.3d. 1082, 1087 (9th Cir. 2008). The Plaintiff asserts that the Defendants' reliance
25 on Guam law (3 GUAM CODE ANN. §15404(a)) prohibited him from running for office.

26 Despite the Plaintiff's claims, there is no "fundamental right to run for public office," 27 Lindsay v. Brown, 750 F.3d 1061, 1064 (9th Cir. 2014) (quoting NAACP v. Jones, 131 F.3d 1317, 28 1324 (9th Cir. 1997)), nor is there a cognizable liberty interest in pursuing or obtaining an elected

1 position. Snowden v. Hughes, 321 U.S. 1, 7 (1944) ("More than forty years ago this Court
2 determined that an unlawful denial by state action of a right to state political office is not a denial
3 of a right of property or of liberty secured by the due process clause [W]e reaffirm it now.").
4 Accordingly, to the extent that the Plaintiff's Section 1983 claim is premised on a due process
5 violation in relation to his disqualification from candidacy because of the lack of a running mate,
6 the court recommends that said claim be dismissed without leave to amend since he has not stated
7 a legally cognizable claim under the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.

8 The court next discusses whether the requirement to have a running mate in order to run for 9 governor in the primary election violates the Equal Protection Clause. The Supreme Court has 10 explained that "[t]he purpose of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment is to 11 secure every person within the State's jurisdiction against intentional and arbitrary discrimination, 12 whether occasioned by express terms of a statute or by its improper execution through duly 13 constituted agents." Sioux City Bridge Co. v. Dakota County, 260 U.S. 441, 445 (quoting Sunday 14 Lake Iron Co. v. Township of Wakefield, 247 U.S. 350, 352 (1918)).

15 An equal protection claim may be established in two ways. First, a plaintiff may show that 16 the defendant intentionally discriminated against the plaintiff on the basis of the plaintiff's
17 membership in a protected class, such as race. See e.g., Thornton v. City of St. Helens, 425 F.3d
18 1158, 1167 (9th Cir. 2005); Lee v. City of L.A., 250 F.3d 668, 686 (9th Cir. 2001). Alternatively, 19 an equal protection claim may be established if the plaintiff alleges that: "(1) he is a member of an 20 identifiable class; (2) he was intentionally treated differently from others similarly situated; and (3)
21 there is no rational basis for the difference in treatment." Vill. of Willowbrook v. Olech, 528 U.S.
22 562, 564 (2000).

23 Here, the Plaintiff does not allege that he is a member of a protected class, nor does he allege 24 that he is a member of an identifiable class. And, as noted by the Defendants, the bare conclusory 25 assertions in the Amended Complaint, without any other factual allegations, does not establish that 26 the Defendants intentionally discriminated against the Plaintiff or treated him differently from 27 others who sought to run for governor without a running mate. There simply is no allegation of 28 purposeful discrimination on the part of the Defendants. Accordingly, the court recommends that

1 to the extent that the Plaintiff asserts an equal protection claim, that said claim be dismissed without 2 prejudice. The court recommends the Chief Judge allow the Plaintiff to file a second amended
3 complaint to cure the deficiencies noted above since it is not absolutely clear that the amendment 4 would not be futile.

5 B. Requirement for 500 signatures on nominating petition

6 Plaintiff appears to claim that the signature requirement is a violation of his equal protection
7 rights under the Fourteenth Amendment. Unfortunately, this claim suffers several of the same 8 deficiencies identified above with regard to the Plaintiff's purported equal protection claim in 9 relation to the need for a running mate. The Amended Complaint does not allege that the Plaintiff 10 is a member of a protected class or a member of an identifiable class. The Amended Complaint also 11 contains no allegation of purposeful discrimination on the part of the Defendants against the 12 Plaintiff in requiring that he obtain 500 signatures. Finally, although the Amended Complaint
13 asserts that this requirement is "excessive," the Plaintiff fails to include any relevant facts or legal 14 authority to support his conclusion that 500 signatures is excessive or whether he even attempted
15 to comply with the requirement. The fact that California or other states may require less signatures
16 on a nominating petition or that candidates for other political offices on Guam, such as senators or 17 mayors, need less signatures on the nominating petitions does not, standing alone, establish that the 18 government of Guam has no rational basis for the difference in treatment.

19 As the Supreme Court has recognized, some state regulation that affects political parties
20 serves a compelling interest in protecting "the integrity of the electoral process." Rosario v.
21 Rockefeller, 410 U.S. 752, 761. "[A]s a practical matter, there must be a substantial regulation of 22 elections if they are to be fair and honest and if some sort of order, rather than chaos, is to 23 accompany the democratic processes." Storer v. Brown, 415 U.S. 724, 730 (1974). Thus, a state 24 may restrict access to the ballot. See Bullock v. Carter, 405 U.S. 134, 145 (1972) (a state "has a 25 legitimate interest in regulating the number of candidates on the ballot"). The Court has upheld a 26 requirement that independent candidates be required to present nominating petitions that 27 demonstrate "a significant modicum of [electoral] support." Jenness v. Fortson, 403 U.S. 431, 442 28 (1971).

1 Despite the Supreme Court's rulings, the court believes it is premature to conclude that the 2 Plaintiff can not assert additional facts to cure the deficiencies identified by the court. Accordingly,
3 the court recommends that this claim be dismissed with leave to amend.

4 3. Whether Defendants are "persons" under Section 1983

5 Finally, the Defendants argue that the action should be dismissed because the Defendants
6 are not "persons" under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Defs.' Mot. Dismiss at 11, ECF No. 41. Specifically,
7 the Defendants cite to the case of Ngirangas v. Sanchez, 495 U.S. 182 (1990). There, the Supreme 8 Court held that "neither the Territory of Guam nor its officers acting in their official capacities are 9 'persons' under § 1983." Id. at 192.

10 Despite the Ngirangas holding, the Ninth Circuit in Guam Society of Obstetricians &
11 Gynaecologists v. Ada held that a Guam officer sued in his official capacity is a "person" within the 12 meaning of Section 1983 when sued for prospective relief. 962 F.2d 1366, 1370 (9th Cir. 1992).
13 The Ninth Circuit reaffirmed this holding in Paeste v. Government of Guam, 798 F.3d 1228, 1237
14 (9th Cir. 2015). The Ninth Circuit distinguished Ngirangas by noting that the plaintiffs in that case 15 were suing Guam and several Guam officials in their official capacities for damages. In Ada and 16 Paeste, however, the plaintiffs were seeking prospective injunctive relief.

17 In this case, the Plaintiff seeks declaratory and injunctive relief. Based on Ada and Paeste, 18 the Defendants in their official capacities are "persons" within the meaning of Section 1983.
19 Accordingly, insofar as the Defendants' Motion to Dismiss seeks dismissal of the instant action
20 because the Defendants are not "persons" under Section 1983, the court recommends the Chief
21 Judge deny the motion.⁴

22 CONCLUSION

23 Based on the above, the court recommends that the Chief Judge grant in part and deny in 24 part the Motion to Dismiss. The motion should be denied in part because the Plaintiff has 25 demonstrated standing to challenge the election laws at issue here and because the Defendants are 26 persons within the meaning of Section 1983 for purposes of the declaratory and injunctive relief

27
28 ⁴ To the extent that the Amended Complaint seeks an award of damages against the Defendants, then such relief is barred by Ngirangas.

sought by the Plaintiff. As to whether the Amended Complaint should be dismissed because it fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted, the court recommends the Chief Judge grant the motion in part and deny it in part as follows: (1) dismiss with prejudice the Plaintiff's claim of a violation of the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment and (2) dismiss without prejudice the Plaintiff's claims that the Defendants violated his Equal Protection Clause rights under the Fourteenth Amendment.

IT IS SO RECOMMENDED.

II. Basis for Jurisdiction

Under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, you may sue state or local officials for the "deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and [federal laws]." Under Bivens v. Six Unknown Named Agents of Federal Bureau of Narcotics, 403 U.S. 388 (1971), you may sue federal officials for the violation of certain constitutional rights.

A. Are you bringing suit against (check all that apply):

- ☐ Federal officials (a Bivens claim)
☒ State or local officials (a § 1983 claim)

B. Section 1983 allows claims alleging the "deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and [federal laws]." 42 U.S.C. § 1983. If you are suing under section 1983, what federal constitutional or statutory right(s) do you claim is are being violated by state or local officials?

Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, various provisions of the Bill of Rights contained within the Organic Act of Guam of 1950, Section 1421b(u), Section 1421b(n), Section 1423d, Section 1421b(h).

- C. Plaintiffs suing under Bivens may only recover for the violation of certain constitutional rights. If you are suing under Bivens, what constitutional right(s) do you claim is/are being violated by federal officials?

- D. Section 1983 allows defendants to be found liable only when they have acted "under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State or Territory or the District of Columbia." 42 U.S.C. § 1983. If you are suing under section 1983, explain how each defendant acted under color of state or local law. If you are suing under Bivens, explain how each defendant acted under color of federal law. Attach additional pages if needed.

Guam Election Commission is enforcing subsection (a) of § 15404 of Ch15 of 3GCA. It mandates that gubernatorial candidates need to have a running mate in the primary election. The Commissioners and legal counsel informed me that I cannot run for Governor if I don't have a team or running mate. They are also requiring all candidates to seek nominating petitions that are too excessive. They are also practicing inequality issues by not requiring candidates running for other elected offices such as OPA, AG, and CCU offices to seek nominating petitions. I informed them that I would like to run for Governor. Defendants actions deprived me of my right to run for Governor

State as briefly as possible the facts of your case. Describe how each defendant was personally involved in the alleged wrongful action, along with the dates and locations of all relevant events. You may wish to include further details such as the names of other persons involved in the events giving rise to your claims. Do not cite any cases or statutes. If more than one claim is asserted, number each claim and write a short and plain statement of each claim in a separate paragraph. Attach additional pages if needed.

III Statement of Claim

- A. Where did the events giving rise to your claim(s) occur?

Guam Election Commission meeting held May 2017. I raised my issues in the public participation. Executive director and the rest of the Commission were present. The Chairwoman told me they are just following the law. They asserted their position of the requirements of running mate and nominating petition, and that I would have to see the Legislature.

- B. What date and approximate time did the events giving rise to your claim(s) occur?

Events occurred in the past elections and up to present, when I attended the Guam Election Commission meeting held on May 2017 around 7:00 pm.

- What are the facts underlying your claim(s)? (For example: What happened to you? Who did what? Was anyone else involved? Who else saw what happened?)

My claim is that they are denying me of my constitutional, organic, and US rights. They are also practicing inequality on nominating petition requirements that are also excessive. The Guam Election Commission Legal Counsel told me that I have to go to Congress for my concerns. At the Guam Election Commission meeting, I reasoned out that Section 1422 of the Organic Act of Guam does not mandate that the Gubernatorial candidate is required to have a running mate/team in the primary election. Section 1422 is referring to the general election. Since it is specified in the provision that the Governor of Guam together with the Lt. Governor shall be elected by a majority of votes cast by the people who are qualified to vote for members of the Legislature of Guam. In the primary election, candidates are not yet elected as Governor and Lt. Governor. They are voted to represent their party in the general election by plurality or most votes not by majority.

Section 1422 also specifies that the Governor and Lt. Governor shall be chosen jointly by the casting by each voter of a single vote applicable to both offices. This provision will be satisfied since the candidates for Governor and Lt. Governor that received the most votes in the primary election can team up for the general election.

In California and all other US states, Governor and Lt. Governor can run separately and are voted as such. In the presidential primary election, the candidates do not need a running mate until the general election. Guam should follow that system otherwise Guam will be in violation.

IV Injuries

If you sustained injuries related to the events alleged above, describe your injuries and state what medical treatment, if any, you required and did or did not receive.

V. Relief

State briefly what you want the court to do for you. Make no legal arguments. Do not cite any cases or statutes. If requesting money damages, include the amounts of any actual damages and/or punitive damages claimed for the acts alleged. Explain the basis for these claims.

I want the court to declare the current conduct of primary election for Governor and Lt. Governor unconstitutional, unorganic, undemocratic, and a deprivation of rights of US citizens.

I want the court to order Guam Election Commission to accept and certify all the Governor and Lt. Governor candidates even without a running mate in the primary election. GEC allows Mayoral candidates to run separately, but not gubernatorial.

I want the court to order Guam Election Commission to accept and certify the Governor and Lt. Governor candidates if they have a team or running mate, but they will be voted separately in the primary election. Each voter will cast a single vote applicable to one office only in the primary election for all candidates with or without a running mate.

I want the court to allow or authorize the winning candidates for Governor of each party to select his running mate in case the winning Lt. Governor candidate of each party declines to team up or if something should happen to him by an act of God.

I want the court to reduce the nominating petition requirement for candidates. The current law mandates 500 for Governor and Lt. Governor, 250 for Senator, 100 for Mayor and Vice Mayor. This practice is excessive and a violation of the Bill of Rights. In California, only 65 nominating petitions is needed for Gubernatorial candidates. California has 39.6 million in population while Guam is only 174,000.

I want the court to order Guam Election Commission to practice equality for all candidates. OPA, AG, CCU candidates should also seek nominating petitions. Right now, they are not required to seek any.

I want the court to order Guam Election Commission to require a fair, impartial nominating petition to all (50 for Governor, Lt. Governor, and Congress, 30 for Senator, OPA, AG, 25 for Mayor and Vice Mayor, 10 for CCU Board Member).

I want the court to award costs, fees, and expenses, as authorized by all provisions of law.

I want the court to expedite the trial in January 2018 since my pleading sets out a claim for relief that does not require a responsive pleading.

*I pray that the court grant all the relief
I'm requesting so that me and other people could run for elected offices.*
