Thanks for your email. Alabama grants blanket consent to the filing of amicus briefs. Thanks again.

Eddie,

I hope you are doing well. I saw that you entered your appearance in McMillan v. Alabama, No. 20-193, and that you requested an extension. In the event the Court asks our position, we'll make clear that we have no objection.

Before you entered your appearance yesterday, I sent the email below to James Houts. When you have a minute, would you mind letting me know if you would grant blanket consent to the filing of amicus briefs in support of either or neither party? If so, I'll provide that information to the Court.

Thank you,
Mike

Hi James:

I hope you are well. It is our understanding that there will be a few amicus briefs in support of Mr. McMillan's petition, including from LDF and the Innocence Project. We are going to provide the Clerk with our blanket consent to the filing of amicus briefs in support of either or neither party, and I am writing to see if you will provide the same. If so, I can contact the Clerk with your response to this email so that they have that information on file.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,
Mike
