FOR APPELLEE:

KEDAR S. BHATIA, Assistant United States Attorney (Daniel B. Tehrani, Assistant United States Attorney, on the brief), for Geoffrey S. Berman, United States Attorney, Southern District of New York, New York, NY.

FOR DEFENDANT-APPELLANT:

ROBIN CHRISTINE SMITH, Law Office of Robin C. Smith, ESQ. P.C., New York, NY.

Appeal from an amended judgment of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York (Sidney H. Stein, Judge).

* The Clerk is directed to amend the caption as shown above.

UPON DUE CONSIDERATION, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED,
AND DECREED that the July 25, 2018 amended judgment of the District Court be and hereby is AFFIRMED.

Defendant-Appellant Kwame Anderson (“Anderson”) appeals from a July 25, 2018 amended judgment convicting him, following a guilty plea, of brandishing a firearm during and in relation to a narcotics conspiracy. The District Court originally sentenced Anderson principally to 84 months’ imprisonment, to be followed by 60 months of supervised release. Anderson appealed his conviction and sentence. We affirmed the conviction but, upon consent of the parties, remanded the cause for the limited purpose of resentencing Anderson with respect to the term of supervised release. See United States v. Blackledge, 721 F. App’x 41, 45 (2d Cir. 2018).¹

On remand, the District Court imposed a new term of supervised release of two years. On appeal, Anderson challenges his new sentence of supervised release on the grounds that: (1) the District Court did not have a new presentence investigation report (“PSR”); and (2) his counsel provided ineffective assistance by failing to object to the new sentence relying on the original PSR.² We assume the parties’ familiarity with the underlying facts, procedural history of the case, and issues on appeal.

I. Resentencing Hearing

Federal Rule 32(c)(1)(A) of Criminal Procedure provides that “[t]he probation officer must conduct a presentence investigation and submit a report to the court before it imposes sentence unless . . . (ii) the court finds that the information in the record enables it to meaningfully exercise its sentencing authority under 18 U.S.C. § 3553, and the court explains its finding on the record.” Fed.

¹ The District Court mistakenly assumed that the 60-month term of supervised release was a mandatory minimum sentence. The District Court noted at the original sentencing hearing that, absent that putative minimum, it would have sentenced Anderson to a two-year term of supervised release.

² Anderson also had challenged the imposition of a new condition of supervised release, referred to as “standard condition 12,” along with his counsel’s failure to object to the condition at sentencing. That condition stated: “If the probation officer determines that you pose a risk to another person (including an organization), the probation officer may require you to notify the person about the risk and you must comply with that instruction. The probation officer may contact the person and confirm that you have notified the person about the risk.” App’x at 92. We dismissed as moot Anderson’s challenges to the standard condition, as well as to his counsel’s failure to object to that condition, after “[t]he United States District Court for the Southern District of New York issued a standing order vacating the special condition for all defendants and no revised version [was] re-imposed on [Anderson].” September 20, 2019 Motion Order, Case No. 18-2229-cr, ECF No. 114 (denying in part and granting in part the Government’s motion to dismiss the instant appeal).

R. Crim. P. 32(c)(1)(A). Anderson argues that the District Court's resentencing of his term of supervised release violated Rule 32 because the new sentence of supervised release was imposed without an updated PSR or an express finding that the information in the record, without the updated PSR, was sufficient to impose the new sentence.

Because Anderson "did not object to the use of the original PSR at the time of resentencing, we review its use for plain error." United States v. Quintieri, 306 F.3d 1217, 1234 (2d Cir. 2002). "Plain error review requires a defendant to demonstrate that (1) there was error, (2) the error was plain, (3) the error prejudicially affected his substantial rights, and (4) the error seriously affected the fairness, integrity or public reputation of judicial proceedings." United States v. Cook, 722 F.3d 477, 481 (2d Cir. 2013) (internal quotation marks omitted).

On review, we conclude that the District Court did not err, let alone plainly err, in using the original PSR to resentence Anderson. "We have held that Rule 32 does not require 'an updated PSR in the event of resentencing' if, for example, 'the parties are given a full opportunity to be heard and to supplement the PSR as needed.'" Quintieri, 306 F.3d at 1234 (quoting United States v. Triestman, 178 F.3d 624, 633 (2d Cir. 1999)(internal quotation marks omitted)); see also Triestman, 178 F.3d at 633 ("When, for example, a court holds a resentencing hearing at which the parties are given a full opportunity to be heard and to supplement the PSR as needed, courts need not order or rely on an updated PSR." (citing United States v. Conbaim, 160 F.3d 893, 896 (2d Cir. 1998))). That is true here.

Anderson "was provided a full opportunity to supplement the original PSR" at the resentencing hearing "and the need for an updated PSR was not readily apparent." Quintieri, 306 F.3d at 1234–35. To the extent that Anderson now thinks that an updated PSR was warranted to update the District Court as to his "current physical and mental state [and] his status and circumstances[] since his original sentenc[ing]," Appellant's Br. at 15, Anderson did precisely that at the resentencing hearing. See App'x at 83–84 (statements by Anderson providing an account of the various courses and programs that Anderson had participated in while incarcerated). Additionally, Anderson submitted a letter brief to the District Court prior to resentencing addressing the issue of supervised release after the District Court had invited him to do so.

In the circumstances presented, we simply "cannot fault the district court for failing to order a new PSR" to resentence Anderson. Quintieri, 306 F.3d at 1235 (holding that the district judge did not err, much less plainly err, by resentencing the defendant without an updated PSR in part because "[t]he defendant submitted a detailed letter updating the court on his conduct while incarcerated[,] [a]nd the court provided the defendant, as well as his counsel, an opportunity to speak at the resentencing hearing"); Triestman, 178 F.3d at 633 (holding that the district court did not err by resentencing the defendant without an updated PSR in part because the defendant had an opportunity at the resentencing hearing to describe his post-conviction conduct).

II. Ineffective Assistance of Counsel

To “demonstrate a colorable claim of ineffective assistance,” the defendant “has the burden of . . . showing: (i) ‘that counsel’s performance was deficient’ and (ii) ‘that the deficient performance prejudiced the defense.’” Chang v. United States, 250 F.3d 79, 84 (2d Cir. 2001) (quoting Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 687 (1984)). “The question of whether a defendant’s lawyer’s representation violates the Sixth Amendment right to effective assistance of counsel is a mixed question of law and fact and is reviewed de novo.” Id. at 82 (quoting Triana v. United States, 205 F.3d 36, 40 (2d Cir. 2000)).

Although “a motion brought under [28 U.S.C.] § 2255 is preferable to direct appeal for deciding claims of ineffective assistance,” Massaro v. United States, 538 U.S. 500, 504 (2003), where the claim’s “resolution is beyond any doubt or . . . in the interest of justice,” the claim can be considered on direct appeal, United States v. Khedr, 343 F.3d 96, 100 (2d Cir. 2003) (quoting United States v. Matos, 905 F.2d 30, 32 (2d Cir. 1990)) (internal quotation marks omitted). Here, because the parties agree that a § 2255 motion is unnecessary, and the claim of ineffectiveness is “straightforward and susceptible to resolution as a matter of law” beyond any doubt, we agree to consider Anderson’s claim on direct appeal. United States v. De La Pava, 268 F.3d 157, 163 (2d Cir. 2001) (alteration and internal quotation marks omitted).

In the circumstances presented, we conclude that Anderson has failed to meet either prong of the Strickland test to demonstrate a colorable claim of ineffective assistance of counsel. Because there was no apparent need for an updated PSR in Anderson’s case, counsel’s failure to request one did not fall below an “objective standard of reasonableness” under “prevailing professional norms.” Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688. Nor can Anderson demonstrate that any prejudice ensued from his counsel’s alleged deficient performance. At the resentencing hearing, Anderson updated the District Court on new circumstances since he was originally sentenced. Anderson failed to show that, but for his counsel’s failure to object, there is a “reasonable probability” that he would have received a less severe sentence of supervised release. Mayo v. Henderson, 13 F.3d 528, 534 (2d Cir. 1994); see also Lafler v. Cooper, 566 U.S. 156, 163 (2012).

CONCLUSION

We have reviewed all of the arguments raised by Anderson on appeal and find them to be without merit. For the foregoing reasons, we AFFIRM the July 25, 2018 amended judgment of the District Court.

FOR THE COURT:
Catherine O’Hagan Wolfe, Clerk of Court

Catherine O'Hagan Wolfe

Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 32

(a) [Reserved]

(b) Time of Sentencing.

(1) In General. The court must impose sentence without unnecessary delay.

(2) Changing Time Limits. The court may, for good cause, change any time limits prescribed in this rule.

(c) Presentence Investigation.

(1) Required Investigation.

(A) In General. The probation officer must conduct a presentence investigation and submit a report to the court before it imposes sentence unless:

- (i) 18 U.S.C. § 3593(c) or another statute requires otherwise; or
- (ii) the court finds that the information in the record enables it to meaningfully exercise its sentencing authority under 18 U.S.C. § 3553, and the court explains its finding on the record.

(B) Restitution. If the law permits restitution, the probation officer must conduct an investigation and submit a report that contains sufficient information for the court to order restitution.

(2) Interviewing the Defendant. The probation officer who interviews a defendant as part of a presentence investigation must, on request, give the defendant's attorney notice and a reasonable opportunity to attend the interview.

(d) Presentence Report.

(1) Applying the Advisory Sentencing Guidelines. The presentence report must:

- (A) identify all applicable guidelines and policy statements of the Sentencing Commission;
- (B) calculate the defendant's offense level and criminal history category;
- (C) state the resulting sentencing range and kinds of sentences available;
- (D) identify any factor relevant to:
 - (i) the appropriate kind of sentence, or

- (ii) the appropriate sentence within the applicable sentencing range; and
 - (E) identify any basis for departing from the applicable sentencing range.
- (2) Additional Information. The presentence report must also contain the following:
 - (A) the defendant's history and characteristics, including:
 - (i) any prior criminal record;
 - (ii) the defendant's financial condition; and
 - (iii) any circumstances affecting the defendant's behavior that may be helpful in imposing sentence or in correctional treatment;
 - (B) information that assesses any financial, social, psychological, and medical impact on any victim;
 - (C) when appropriate, the nature and extent of nonprison programs and resources available to the defendant;
 - (D) when the law provides for restitution, information sufficient for a restitution order;
 - (E) if the court orders a study under 18 U.S.C. § 3552(b), any resulting report and recommendation;
 - (F) a statement of whether the government seeks forfeiture under Rule 32.2 and any other law; and
 - (G) any other information that the court requires, including information relevant to the factors under 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a).

- (3) Exclusions. The presentence report must exclude the following:
 - (A) any diagnoses that, if disclosed, might seriously disrupt a rehabilitation program;
 - (B) any sources of information obtained upon a promise of confidentiality; and
 - (C) any other information that, if disclosed, might result in physical or other harm to the defendant or others.

(e) Disclosing the Report and Recommendation.

- (1) Time to Disclose. Unless the defendant has consented in writing, the probation officer must not submit a presentence report to the court or disclose its contents to anyone until the defendant has pleaded guilty or nolo contendere, or has been found guilty.
- (2) Minimum Required Notice. The probation officer must give the presentence report to the defendant, the defendant's attorney, and an attorney for the government at least 35 days before sentencing unless the defendant waives this minimum period.

(3) Sentence Recommendation. By local rule or by order in a case, the court may direct the probation officer not to disclose to anyone other than the court the officer's recommendation on the sentence.

(f) Objecting to the Report.

(1) Time to Object. Within 14 days after receiving the presentence report, the parties must state in writing any objections, including objections to material information, sentencing guideline ranges, and policy statements contained in or omitted from the report.

(2) Serving Objections. An objecting party must provide a copy of its objections to the opposing party and to the probation officer.

(3) Action on Objections. After receiving objections, the probation officer may meet with the parties to discuss the objections. The probation officer may then investigate further and revise the presentence report as appropriate.

(g) Submitting the Report. At least 7 days before sentencing, the probation officer must submit to the court and to the parties the presentence report and an addendum containing any unresolved objections, the grounds for those objections, and the probation officer's comments on them.

(h) Notice of Possible Departure From Sentencing Guidelines. Before the court may depart from the applicable sentencing range on a ground not identified for departure either in the presentence report or in a party's prehearing submission, the court must give the parties reasonable notice that it is contemplating such a departure. The notice must specify any ground on which the court is contemplating a departure.

(i) Sentencing.

(1) In General. At sentencing, the court:

(A) must verify that the defendant and the defendant's attorney have read and discussed the presentence report and any addendum to the report;

(B) must give to the defendant and an attorney for the government a written summary of—or summarize in camera—any information excluded from the presentence report under Rule 32(d)(3) on which the court will rely in sentencing, and give them a reasonable opportunity to comment on that information;

(C) must allow the parties' attorneys to comment on the probation officer's determinations and other matters relating to an appropriate sentence; and
(D) may, for good cause, allow a party to make a new objection at any time before sentence is imposed.

(2) Introducing Evidence; Producing a Statement. The court may permit the parties to introduce evidence on the objections. If a witness testifies at sentencing, Rule 26.2(a)–(d) and (f) applies. If a party fails to comply with a Rule 26.2 order to produce a witness's statement, the court must not consider that witness's testimony.

(3) Court Determinations. At sentencing, the court:

- (A) may accept any undisputed portion of the presentence report as a finding of fact;
- (B) must—for any disputed portion of the presentence report or other controverted matter—rule on the dispute or determine that a ruling is unnecessary either because the matter will not affect sentencing, or because the court will not consider the matter in sentencing; and
- (C) must append a copy of the court's determinations under this rule to any copy of the presentence report made available to the Bureau of Prisons.

(4) Opportunity to Speak.

- (A) By a Party. Before imposing sentence, the court must:
 - (i) provide the defendant's attorney an opportunity to speak on the defendant's behalf;
 - (ii) address the defendant personally in order to permit the defendant to speak or present any information to mitigate the sentence; and
 - (iii) provide an attorney for the government an opportunity to speak equivalent to that of the defendant's attorney.
- (B) By a Victim. Before imposing sentence, the court must address any victim of the crime who is present at sentencing and must permit the victim to be reasonably heard.
- (C) In Camera Proceedings. Upon a party's motion and for good cause, the court may hear in camera any statement made under Rule 32(i)(4).

(j) Defendant's Right to Appeal.

(1) Advice of a Right to Appeal.

(A) Appealing a Conviction. If the defendant pleaded not guilty and was convicted, after sentencing the court must advise the defendant of the right to appeal the conviction.

(B) Appealing a Sentence. After sentencing—regardless of the defendant’s plea—the court must advise the defendant of any right to appeal the sentence.

(C) Appeal Costs. The court must advise a defendant who is unable to pay appeal costs of the right to ask for permission to appeal in forma pauperis.

(2) Clerk’s Filing of Notice. If the defendant so requests, the clerk must immediately prepare and file a notice of appeal on the defendant’s behalf.

(k) Judgment.

(1) In General. In the judgment of conviction, the court must set forth the plea, the jury verdict or the court’s findings, the adjudication, and the sentence. If the defendant is found not guilty or is otherwise entitled to be discharged, the court must so order. The judge must sign the judgment, and the clerk must enter it.

(2) Criminal Forfeiture. Forfeiture procedures are governed by Rule 32.2.

United States Constitution, Amendment V

“No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the militia, when in actual service in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.” USCS Const. Amend. 5.
