These appeals arise from an action for patent infringement. Drs. Nazir Khan and Iftikhar Khan accused Hemosphere Inc., CryoLife Inc., and Merit Medical Systems, Inc., along with over 300 hospitals and individual physicians, of infringing a claim of U.S. Patent No. 8,747,344, directed to an arteriovenous shunt. The Khans challenge the district court's decision dismissing the action with prejudice for want of prosecution due to the Khans' insufficient and untimely service of their complaint and, alternatively, for improper venue and misjoinder. The Khans also challenge the district court's decisions granting the defendants' motion for sanctions and denying the Khans' cross-motion for sanctions. Merit Medical cross-appeals the district court's decision denying its motion to declare the case exceptional and to award attorney fees under 35 U.S.C. § 285. Because the district court did not abuse its discretion in dismissing the action, granting the defendants' sanctions motion, denying the Khans' sanctions motion, or denying Merit Medical's motion for attorney fees under § 285, we affirm.

BACKGROUND

The Khans are Illinois physicians and have exclusive rights to the '344 patent. In their complaint filed on August 7, 2018, the Khans alleged that the defendant corporations, hospitals, and physicians directly and indirectly infringed claim 13 of the '344 patent by manufacturing or implanting into patients the accused HeRO® Graft shunt. The Khans sent a waiver of service of summons form and their complaint by mail to the over 300 defendants, the vast majority of whom resided and practiced outside of Illinois. With the exception of three physicians, none of the defendants returned a completed waiver form.

Following an initial status conference in November 2018, the district court dismissed without prejudice the Khans' claims against Merit Medical, CryoLife, and three physicians for improper venue. Order at 2–3, Khan v. Hemosphere Inc., No. 18-cv-05368 (N.D. Ill. Jan. 23, 2019), ECF No. 76. According to the district court, the Khans had not contended that any of these defendants resided in the Northern District of Illinois, and the Khans had failed to plausibly allege that any of them infringed the asserted claim in the district and had a "regular and established place of business" in the district, as required under 28 U.S.C. § 1400(b). Id. at 2. The district court "caution[ed] plaintiffs to take heed of the potentially meritorious arguments raised by defendants thus far in considering the proper and most effective way to prosecute their case going forward." Id. at 3. The district court also held its second status conference that same day. While the Khans insisted at the conference that they had completed proper service for all defendants, by that date—more than 150 days after the filing of the complaint—they had filed proof of waiver for only one defendant. In response to the Khans' argument that placing the waiver request in the mail is equivalent to service, the district court informed the Khans that a request to waive service is merely a request and that waiver by the defendants is not mandatory.

The district court subsequently denied the Khans' motion to reconsider the dismissal order because the motion "impermissibly rehash[ed] previously unsuccessful arguments." Order at 2, Khan v. Hemosphere Inc., No. 18-cv-05368 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 13, 2019), ECF No. 84. The district court "again caution[ed] Plaintiffs that prosecuting a patent case of any size, much less one against three hundred defendants, is a complex endeavor," and that they "should carefully evaluate clearly established requirements set forth in governing statutes and other applicable authority so as not to unnecessarily occupy the time and resources of the Court and other involved parties." Id.

Thereafter, more than 100 of the remaining defendants filed 11 separate motions to dismiss on various grounds, including insufficient service, untimely service, improper venue, misjoinder, and lack of personal jurisdiction. A subset of the non-Illinois-resident defendants also moved for sanctions against the Khans pursuant to Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for the Khans' repeated assertions that venue was proper and that service was properly completed. The district court granted the motions and dismissed the claims against the defendants for want of prosecution. Khan v. Hemosphere Inc., No. 18-cv-05368, 2019 WL 2137378, at *1 (N.D. Ill. May 16, 2019).

The district court held that dismissal of all remaining defendants was warranted due to the Khans' "insufficient and untimely attempts at service." Id. at *2. The district court rejected the Khans' argument that they had complied with the requirements of Rule 4 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure by simply requesting waivers from the defendants. Id. The district court also found that the Khans had not attempted to personally serve any defendant. Id. Instead, the Khans asserted that they completed service by mailing the summons and complaint to the defendants, despite contrary instruction from the district court. The district court explained that Rule 4(e) does not permit personal service via mail and the Khans had not identified any state laws that would otherwise allow service by mail. Id. The district court further found that the Khans had failed to comply with the timeliness requirement of Rule 4(m). Id. at *3. In addition, the district court held that dismissal was warranted on the alternative grounds of improper venue under § 1400(b) and improper joinder under 35 U.S.C. § 299. Id.

Next, the district court granted the non-Illinois-resident defendants' motion for sanctions based on the Khans' assertions regarding venue and service, which they had maintained despite repeated warnings and guidance from the court. Id. at *4–5. The district court recognized that the Khans were proceeding pro se and thus were "entitled to some leniency before being assessed sanctions for frivolous litigation." Id. at *5 (quoting Thomas v. Foster, 138 F. App'x 822, 823 (7th Cir. 2005)). But the district court explained that the Khans "not only acted in direct contravention to clear procedural rules, statutes, and governing law, but continued to do so after being repeatedly warned at hearings by the Court, in written orders, and in correspondence with defense counsel." Id. The district court thus found that it was "more than objectively reasonable to believe that the [Khans] should have known their positions on venue and service were groundless." Id. Accordingly, the district court ordered the Khans to pay attorney fees associated with the defendants' filing fees, motions to dismiss, and motion for sanctions in the amount of $95,966.90. Order at 1, Khan v. Hemosphere Inc., No. 18-cv-05368 (N.D. Ill. July 15, 2019), ECF No. 175.

For their part, the Khans moved for sanctions against the physician defendants and their attorneys for alleged violations of Rule 11(b). The district court denied the motion on the ground that the Khans failed to provide proper notice to the defendants of their motion under Rule 11(c) or properly present their motion to the court as required by the court's local rules. Id. at 3. The district court later denied the Khans' motion for reconsideration of the court's dismissal and sanctions orders.

Merit Medical thereafter moved the district court to declare the case exceptional and to award attorney fees under § 285 in the amount of $292,693. The district court denied the motion. Minute Entry, Khan v. Hemosphere Inc., No. 18-cv-05368 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 4, 2019), ECF No. 213. The district court found that the motion "cite[d] largely identical conduct that was previously before the Court on the initial motion for sanctions," and that "[t]he Court ha[d] already extensively considered this conduct in determining whether sanctions were appropriate and indeed ruled in Defendants['] favor on this matter." Id. The district court also found that, although the Khans had "litigated this case in an unorthodox manner," none of their conduct following the court's grant of sanctions could be considered "exceptional." Id.

The Khans and Merit Medical appeal. We have jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1295(a)(1).

DISCUSSION

The Khans request that this court reverse the decisions of the district court dismissing their complaint, granting sanctions against the Khans, and denying the Khans' motion for sanctions. Merit Medical cross-appeals, seeking a reversal of the district court's order denying its motion for attorney fees under § 285. For the reasons discussed below, we discern no abuse of discretion in the district court's rulings and, accordingly, we affirm.

I

We first consider the Khans' challenge to the district court's dismissal of their complaint for failure to effectuate proper and timely service on the defendants as required under Rule 4 and, alternatively, for improper venue.

A

We apply the law of the regional circuit, here the Seventh Circuit, in resolving whether a district court properly dismissed a case for want of prosecution. See Bowling v. Hasbro, Inc., 403 F.3d 1373, 1375 (Fed. Cir. 2005). The Seventh Circuit reviews a district court's dismissal for want of prosecution for an abuse of discretion. Williams v. Illinois, 737 F.3d 473, 476 (7th Cir. 2013); see also Cardenas v. City of Chicago, 646 F.3d 1001, 1005 (7th Cir. 2011) (a district court's dismissal based on untimely service of process is reviewed for an abuse of discretion).

"A district court may not exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant unless the defendant has been properly served with process, and the service requirement is not satisfied merely because the defendant is aware that he has been named in a lawsuit or has received a copy of the summons and the complaint." United States v. Ligas, 549 F.3d 497, 500 (7th Cir. 2008) (citations omitted). Rule 4 specifies acceptable methods for service. For instance, a plaintiff may request a waiver of service from a defendant by mailing a copy of the complaint, two copies of the waiver form, and a prepaid means for returning the form. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d). "But if the defendant does not waive service and if no federal statute otherwise supplies a method for serving process, then Rule 4(e)'s list of methods is exclusive." Ligas, 549 F.3d at 501. Those methods consist of "following state law for serving a summons in an action brought in courts of general jurisdiction in the state where the district court is located or where service is made"; "delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the individual personally"; "leaving a copy of each at the individual's dwelling or usual place of abode with someone of suitable age and discretion who resides there"; and "delivering a copy of each to an agent authorized by appointment or by law to receive service of process." Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(e). "Unless service is waived, proof of service must be made to the court." Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(l)(1).

Rule 4 also provides that "[i]f a defendant is not served within 90 days after the complaint is filed, the court—on motion or on its own after notice to the plaintiff—must dismiss the action without prejudice against that defendant or order that service be made within a specified time." Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(m). "[I]f the plaintiff shows good cause for the failure," however, "the court must extend the time for service for an appropriate period." Id. A district court has the discretion to dismiss a complaint with prejudice "for want of prosecution if the plaintiff's delay in obtaining service is so long that it signifies failure to prosecute." Williams, 737 F.3d at 476 (citations omitted). A defendant may move to dismiss based on the court's lack of personal jurisdiction, the insufficiency of process, or the insufficiency of service of process. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(2), (4), (5).

Here, the district court properly exercised its discretion in dismissing the Khans' complaint due to their insufficient and untimely attempts at service. Although the Khans endeavored to obtain waivers from all of the defendants, with very few exceptions, the defendants did not return signed waiver forms. Thus, the Khans were required to serve the non-waiving defendants by the other methods set forth under Rule 4(e). See Ligas, 549 F.3d at 501. As the district court correctly observed, the Khans' mailing of the complaint and the summons does not constitute service under Rule 4(e).

The Khans argue that each defendant had a duty under Rule 4 to sign the waiver form and return it within 30 days or otherwise show good cause for not doing so. Appellants' Br. 13, 15. They contend that "service is complete when the signed waiver form is returned by the defendant and filed by the plaintiff for entry into the District Court." Id. at 13. In their view, the district court lacked jurisdiction to decide the motions to dismiss because the defendants did not return the waiver forms back to the Khans. Id. at 15–16.

The Khans misinterpret the provisions of Rule 4. While Rule 4(d) obligates defendants "to avoid unnecessary expenses of serving the summons," it does not require defendants to waive formal service. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d)(1). Nor did the defendants' decisions to forgo waiving service in this case strip the district court of its authority to decide the motions to dismiss on the basis of insufficient service. The Khans cite subsection (e) of Illinois statute 735 ILCS 5/2-201, in conjunction with Rule 4(e)(1), as permitting service by mail, but subsection (e) of Illinois statute 735 ILCS 5/2-201 does not appear to exist. The Khans also cite subsection (e) of Illinois statute 735 ILCS 5/2-202, but this subsection concerns the housing authority police force's service of process for eviction actions and is thus inapplicable to this civil action. The Illinois statute that governs service of individuals in civil actions is 735 ILCS 5/2-203, which does not allow service by mail. Absent proof under Rule 4(l) that proper service was made on any of the nonwaiving defendants, the district court properly held that the Khans had failed to provide proper service.

The district court also correctly concluded that the Khans failed to comply with Rule 4(m)'s timeliness requirement. In the more than 250 days between the filing of the complaint and the district court's dismissal decision, nearly all of the over 300 defendants had not been properly served. The district court did not abuse its discretion in determining that the Khans did not show good cause to justify such "extreme delay"—nearly three-fold the amount of time allotted to complete service. Khan, 2019 WL 2137378, at *3.

Accordingly, we conclude that the district court was well within its discretion to dismiss the complaint with prejudice for want of prosecution due to the Khans' insufficient and untimely service.

Turning to the issue of venue, the governing statute provides that "[a]ny civil action for patent infringement may be brought in the judicial district where the defendant resides, or where the defendant has committed acts of infringement and has a regular and established place of business." 28 U.S.C. § 1400(b). A "regular and established place of business" requires a "place of business" in the district, i.e., "a physical, geographical location in the district from which the business of the defendant is carried out." In re Cray Inc., 871 F.3d 1355, 1362 (Fed. Cir. 2017). The place of business must be the defendant's, "not solely a place of the defendant's employee." Id. at 1363. We review de novo the question of proper venue under § 1400(b). Westech Aerosol Corp. v. 3M Co., 927 F.3d 1378, 1381 (Fed. Cir. 2019).

The district court correctly concluded that venue was improper under § 1400(b). As to Merit Medical, CryoLife, and the three physicians dismissed earlier in the action, the district court found that the Khans had not contended that any of these defendants resided in the district. The district court also found that the Khans had failed to plausibly allege that any of them infringed the asserted claim in the district or had a "regular and established place of business" in the district. As to the remaining defendants, the district court found that the complaint and related filings were "devoid of any facts establishing that the infringing acts occurred in" the district or that the defendants "reside in the district." Khan, 2019 WL 2137378, at *3. The district court also found that the Khans instead "allege[d] that the acts of infringement took place in the states in which the Defendants reside," and that "nearly all of the Defendants are not residents of Illinois and are instead scattered throughout the country in dozens of different states." Id.

These findings remain largely unchallenged on appeal. Indeed, the Khans concede that their complaint names "more than 300 defendants residing in 43 states and two manufacturers who are on opposite sides of the country." Appellants' Br. 17. The Khans also admit that "the venue for non-Illinois defendant physicians is improper here." Id.; see also id. at 22 ("[T]he plaintiffs made it clear in our pleadings that the venue is improper for non-Illinois defendant physicians."); id. at 11 ("The totality of the record shows that the plaintiffs have never said that the venue is proper for the 106 non-Illinois defendant physicians."). The Khans instead focus their challenge on the district court's findings that Merit Medical and CryoLife each lack a "regular and established place of business" in the district. For instance, they contend that these corporations have sales representatives in the district that promote the accused HeRO® Graft shunt. Id. at 18. But the fact that certain employees live or conduct business in the district does not establish proper venue over defendants in the district. See Cray, 871 F.3d at 1363.

We are also unpersuaded by the Khans' contention that venue in the district is proper because it is the most convenient forum to all parties under 28 U.S.C. § 1404(a). Appellants' Br. 17. Section 1404(a) governs transfers of actions to other judicial districts for convenience; it does not set the standard for whether venue is proper. Section 1400(b) governs that issue, and the Khans have failed to convince us that the district court erred in determining that venue under that statute was improper.

We have considered the Khans' other arguments regarding service and venue, but do not find them persuasive. Accordingly, we conclude that the district court did not abuse its discretion in dismissing the action with prejudice.

II

We next consider the Khans' challenge to the district court's decision granting the non-Illinois-resident defendants' motion for Rule 11 sanctions. We apply the law of the regional circuit, here the Seventh Circuit, to review an award of Rule 11 sanctions. See Eon-Net LP v. Flagstar Bancorp, 653 F.3d 1314, 1328 (Fed. Cir. 2011) (citing Power Mosfet Techs., L.L.C. v. Siemens AG, 378 F.3d 1396, 1406–07 (Fed. Cir. 2004)). The Seventh Circuit reviews decisions regarding Rule 11 sanctions for an abuse of discretion. Bell v. Vacuforce, LLC, 908 F.3d 1075, 1079 (7th Cir. 2018) (citing Cooter & Gell v. Hartmarx Corp., 496 U.S. 384, 405 (1990)).

The district court properly exercised its discretion in sanctioning the Khans under Rule 11(b) for their frivolous arguments regarding venue and service of process. The district court found that the Khans had repeatedly asserted throughout the litigation that venue was proper in the Northern District of Illinois. In support of this argument, the Khans relied on this court's decision in In re TC Heartland LLC, 821 F.3d 1338 (Fed. Cir. 2016), despite the fact that the Supreme Court had reversed that decision prior to the Khans' lawsuit, see TC Heartland LLC v. Kraft Foods Grp. Brands LLC, 137 S. Ct. 1514 (2017). The district court also noted that it had cited the Supreme Court's TC Heartland decision both in its order granting Merit Medical's and CryoLife's motions to dismiss based on improper venue and in status hearings. Despite this guidance from the court, the Khans "again raised their baseless argument in their Motion to Reconsider." Khan, 2019 WL 2137378, at *4. The district court further found that the Khans' complaint "undercut[] any good faith basis for asserting venue is proper in th[e] district," since it alleged that the non-Illinois-resident defendants' infringing acts occurred "at their addresses in their respective states." Id. (quoting Complaint at 41, Khan v. Hemosphere Inc., No. 18-cv-05368 (N.D. Ill. Aug. 7, 2018), ECF No. 1). Finally, the district court found that the Khans had maintained their baseless assertion that service by mail was sufficient under Rule 4, again despite contrary guidance from the court. Id. at *5.

The Khans do not challenge any of these factual findings on appeal. Instead, they contend that sanctions are inappropriate because the defendants violated Rule 11(c)(2), which prohibits the filing of a sanctions motion "if the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, or denial is withdrawn or appropriately corrected within 21 days after service or within another time the court sets." Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(c)(2). Specifically, they argue that the defendants did not serve them with the sanctions motion more than 21 days prior to filing it with the district court. But the district court found the opposite—namely, that the defendants put the Khans "on notice of their intent to seek sanctions as early as September 24, 2018"—more than five months before they filed their sanctions motion in March 2019. See Khan, 2019 WL 2137378, at *5. The district court also found that the Khans were notified on several more occasions before the defendants moved for sanctions. Id. The Khans offer no response to the district court's finding that the defendants' "'early and often' approach in corresponding with [the Khans] regarding their desire to pursue sanctions no doubt satisfies the 21-day requirement of Rule 11(c)." Id.; see also Matrix IV, Inc. v. Am. Nat'l Bank & Tr. Co., 649 F.3d 539, 552–53 (7th Cir. 2011) (concluding that "a letter informing the opposing party of the intent to seek sanctions and the basis for the imposition of sanctions" sent more than two years before the motion was filed was "sufficient for Rule 11 purposes" (citations omitted)).

The Khans also argue that a sanctions award cannot be based on their assertions regarding service and venue because such assertions are "ancillary issues" that are "unrelated to the merits of the claim." Appellants' Br. 24. The Khans cite Rule 41(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Moeck v. Pleasant Valley School District, 844 F.3d 387 (3d Cir. 2016), to support their argument. Id. at 24–25. Rule 41(b) provides that an involuntary dismissal or other dismissal except "for lack of jurisdiction, improper venue, or failure to join a party under Rule 19 . . . operates as an adjudication on the merits," Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b), but this rule does not preclude sanctions for frivolous venue and service assertions. The Khans' reliance on Moeck is similarly misplaced. In Moeck, the Third Circuit discerned no error in the district court's observations that the defendants' numerous sanctions motions were a "waste of judicial resources" and that discovery, motion practice, and trial were better vehicles than sanctions motions to determine the truth of a plaintiff's allegations. 844 F.3d at 389–92 & n.9. Nothing in Moeck suggests, however, that sanctions are precluded for frivolous venue and service assertions, even if those assertions are considered "ancillary" to the merits of a plaintiff's infringement claims.

We have considered the Khans' other arguments, but do not find them persuasive. Accordingly, we conclude that the district court did not abuse its discretion in granting the defendants' motion for sanctions.

III

We next consider the Khans' challenge to the district court's denial of their cross-motion for Rule 11 sanctions against the physician defendants and their attorneys. In their motion, the Khans sought $250,000 in damages based on the defendants' and their attorneys' alleged violations of Rule 11(b), including their "inadequate pre-filing investigation" preceding their sanctions motion and "prosecuti[on] [of] the case for [the] improper purpose of harass[ing]" the Khans and "for causing mental anguish." Request for Sanctions, Khan v. Hemosphere Inc., No. 18-cv-05368 (N.D. Ill. June 13, 2019), ECF No. 155.

We conclude that the district court did not abuse its discretion in denying the Khans' cross-motion for sanctions. The district court denied the motion for failure to comply with the safe harbor provisions of Rule 11(c) and the requirement of the district court's Local Rule 5.3(b) to accompany a motion with "a notice of presentment specifying the date and time on which, and judge before whom, the motion or objection is to be presented." The Khans do not address either of these defects on appeal. Instead, they merely reiterate that the defendant physicians and their attorneys should be sanctioned for their assertions that the HeRO® Graft shunt does not infringe the asserted claim of the '344 patent and for filing a motion for sanctions against the Khans. Under these circumstances, we conclude that the district court was well within its discretion to deny the Khans' cross-motion for Rule 11 sanctions.

IV

Lastly, we turn to Merit Medical's cross-appeal from the district court's decision denying its motion to declare the case exceptional and to award attorney fees in the amount of $292,693. "The court in exceptional cases may award reasonable attorney fees to the prevailing party." 35 U.S.C. § 285. "[A]n 'exceptional case' is simply one that stands out from others with respect to the substantive strength of a party's litigating position (considering both the governing law and the facts of the case) or the unreasonable manner in which the case was litigated." Octane Fitness, LLC v. Icon Health & Fitness, Inc., 572 U.S. 545, 554 (2014). "District courts may determine whether a case is 'exceptional' in the case-by-case exercise of their discretion, considering the totality of the circumstances." Id. We review a district court's denial of a motion for attorney fees under § 285 for an abuse of discretion. Highmark Inc. v. Allcare Health Mgmt. Sys., Inc., 572 U.S. 559, 561, 564 (2014).

We conclude that the district court did not abuse its discretion in denying Merit Medical's motion for attorney fees under § 285. The district court found that the conduct described in the motion was largely identical to the conduct already presented in the defendants' earlier sanctions motion and was already considered by the court in granting sanctions against the Khans. The district court also determined that, although the Khans' litigation strategy was "unorthodox," their conduct following the district court's grant of sanctions did not rise to the level of "exceptional." The district court further found that the previous sanctions amount of $95,966.90 was appropriate and reasonable given the Khans' conduct in the case, but that imposing a three-fold increase in those fees was not warranted. We are unpersuaded that the district court "based its ruling on an erroneous view of the law or on a clearly erroneous assessment of the evidence." Highmark, 572 U.S. at 563 n.2 (quoting Cooter & Gell, 496 U.S. at 405).

Merit Medical cites Rothschild Connected Devices Innovations LLC v. Guardian Protection Services, Inc., 858 F.3d 1383 (Fed. Cir. 2017), to support its argument that the district court "improperly conflated" Rule 11 with § 285 rather than accounting for the totality of the circumstances. Cross-Appellant's Br. 80. In Rothschild, the district court denied a motion for fees under § 285 based on its finding that the patent owner's "decision to voluntarily withdraw its complaint within [Rule 11's] safe harbor period [wa]s the type of reasonable conduct [that] Rule 11 is designed to encourage" and, thus, awarding fees under § 285 would "'contravene[] the aims of Rule 11['s]' safe-harbor provision." 858 F.3d at 1390 (latter three alterations in original) (quoting Rothschild Connected Devices Innovations, LLC v. Guardian Prot. Servs., Inc., No. 15-cv-1431, 2016 WL 3883549, at *2 (E.D. Tex. July 18, 2016)). We held that the district court's decision was contrary to the Supreme Court's admonition that "[w]hether a party avoids or engages in sanctionable conduct under Rule 11(b) 'is not the appropriate benchmark'" for an award of fees under § 285. Id. (quoting Octane Fitness, 572 U.S. at 555).

By contrast, here, the district court considered the totality of the circumstances, including the Khans' litigation approach and the substantial overlap between the complained-of conduct in Merit Medical's motion and the earlier sanctions motion. Based on its assessment of the procedural history and parties' briefing, the district court determined that the Khans' conduct in this case—while sanctionable—was not so unreasonable so as to make this case one of the rare cases worthy of a three-fold increase in fees imposed against them. Octane Fitness gives district courts broad discretion in such exceptional-case determinations. We are not persuaded that the district court abused its discretion in determining that this case is not exceptional.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, we affirm the district court's decisions dismissing the action with prejudice, granting the defendants' motion for sanctions, denying the Khans' cross-motion for sanctions, and denying Merit Medical's motion for attorney fees under § 285. Because we have affirmed the district court's dismissal and award of sanctions based on the issues of insufficient service of the complaint under Rule 4 and improper venue, we need not reach the district court's determination of misjoinder.

ORDER

Since the filing of the Complaint in this matter, Plaintiffs have exhibited a complete disregard of the Court's procedures, Federal Rules, and controlling precedent. This pattern of indifference has resulted in their Complaint being dismissed and sanctions being granted in favor of Defendants. Such actions have not abated since the granting of Defendants' Motions to Dismiss and Motion for Sanctions. Instead, Plaintiffs have continued to pepper the Court's docket with unsolicited filings while attempting to advance arguments that have long been deemed wholly irrelevant.

The Court granted Defendants' Motion for Sanctions and instructed Plaintiffs to pay Defendants' fees associated with the filing of the Motions to Dismiss and Motion for Sanctions. Rather than challenge the fees that Defendants seek, Plaintiffs continue their misguided efforts in asserting the validity of their patent. See e.g., Dkts. 151, 155, 156, 165, 167, 168. For the reasons stated within, Defendants' Motion for Attorney Fees is granted in the amount of $95,966.90.[1] (Dkt. 144).

The first step in determining the fees a prevailing party is entitled to is to calculate the lodestar amount or "the hours reasonably expended multiplied by the reasonable hourly rate." Johnson v. GDF, Inc., 668 F.3d 927, 929 (7th Cir. 2012). Then, only in limited circumstances can the lodestar amount be adjusted. Id. "The best evidence of an attorney's market rate is his or her actual billing rate for similar work." Id. at 933. Once this lodestar amount is calculated, it is considered "presumptively reasonable" and it then

[1] The Court notes that it did not consider Defendants' Supplemental Information (Dkt. 169) regarding Plaintiffs' litigation activity in Illinois state court while reaching the current decision. The Court declines to wade into state court waters and instead reaches this decision solely based on the issues properly before it. Therefore, Defendants' Motion to file Supplemental Information is denied as moot. (Dkt. 169).

becomes the opposing party's burden to convince the court that a lower rate is "required." Robinson v. City of Harvey, 489 F.3d 864, 872 (7th Cir. 2007) (emphasis in original). General objections will not suffice. The opposing party must state its objections "with particularity and clarity." Hutchison v. Amateur Elec. Supply, Inc., 42 F.3d 1037, 1048 (7th Cir. 1994) (quoting Ohio-Sealy Mattress Mfg. Co. v. Sealy Inc., 776 F.2d 646, 664 (7th Cir. 1985)); see also Farmer v. DirectSat USA, 2015 WL 13699343, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Mar. 18, 2015).

Here, Defendants have submitted a detailed accounting of their work pertaining to the Motions to Dismiss and Motion for Sanctions. Such efforts amounted to 233.7 hours worked, generating $95,966.90 in fees. Brent Lorimer, lead counsel for the moving Defendants, is an attorney with 37 years of experience and billed at an hourly rate of $472.50. See Dkt. 144. Thomas Vuksinick and Vladimir Arezina are similarly experienced attorneys with hourly billing rates of $414.00 and $560.00/$480.00 an hour, respectively. Id. Facially, these rates are perfectly reasonable billing rates for attorneys of this caliber, as demonstrated in their respective supporting declarations and materials citing to comparable rates for similar attorneys. See Dkts. 145 and 146.

With Defendants demonstrating both a reasonable hourly rate and a reasonable amount of hours billed, the burden shifts to Plaintiffs to lodge specific objections. See Hutchison, 42 F.3d at 1048. Despite filing several briefs and responses to Defendants' Motion, Plaintiffs' managed to mount only general objections to Defendants' fee petition while instead devoting significant time to trying to litigate the merits of their patent—well after their case has been dismissed. Without citing to any authority, Plaintiffs make the general statement that "in any state, the reasonable cost for [a motion to dismiss] by any form is at most $1000-$2000, as Drs Khan have confirmed with their many attorney friends." (Dkt. 151, pg. 2). The bald assertion that the petitioned fees are too expensive falls well short of the burden Plaintiffs have. See e.g., Berg v. Culhane, 2011 WL 589631, at *2 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 10, 2011). Plaintiffs assert that it is simply unreasonable for Defendants' counsel to have spent over 200 hours litigating the Motions to Dismiss and Motion for Sanctions. Even if generalized statements were a proper challenge to Defendants' fee petition, it falls flat in the context of this case. Patent infringement cases are inherently complex. Here, this litigation was made all the more complicated by the affirmative actions of Plaintiffs, namely, choosing to sue more than 300 defendants from across the country in a single venue all the while ignoring consistent warnings from the Court and opposing counsel. As a result, counsel briefed multiple Motions to Dismiss on behalf of dozens of individual Defendants. Plaintiffs' additional complaints regarding receiving "unsolicited" emails from counsel are similarly deficient. In raising this challenge, Plaintiffs ignore the inescapable fact that, as pro se Plaintiffs, Defendants' counsel had no choice but to correspond with them directly. These objections provide no specific justification as to why a downward departure from the calculated lodestar amount is required.

The unique burden placed on Defendants was of Plaintiffs' own creation as masters of their Complaint and they cannot now cry foul. The time spent by counsel on this case is a direct reflection of how Plaintiffs' chose to conduct themselves throughout this litigation. As such, the presumptively valid lodestar amount of $95,966.90 stands without valid objection from Plaintiffs and the Court grants the fee petition in its entirety in favor of Defendants, including Defendant Dr. Brooks. Robinson, 489 F.3d at 872.

Finally, the Court addresses Plaintiffs' Request for Sanctions against Defendants. Again, Plaintiffs seek to use this Request as an opportunity to litigate the merits of the underlying Patent. (Dkt. 155). The Court need not address the merits of this Request as it is brought improperly under both the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and this Court's Local Rules. Rule 11 does not permit parties to freely seek sanctions whenever they please. Instead, parties must comply with the safe harbor provisions of the Rule by providing the opposing party timely notice of the alleged violation. Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(c). Plaintiffs' have not established their compliance with this provision and therefore the Request for Sanctions is denied. The Request similarly warrants dismissal for failure to be properly presented before the Court. Local Rule 5.3(b).

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Plaintiffs Nazir Khan and Iftikhar Khan filed this action against more than 300 defendants alleging patent infringement under 35 U.S.C. § 112. Five of these Defendants were previously dismissed for improper venue. (Dkt. 76). As a byproduct of how the Plaintiffs have chosen to structure and litigate their case, the moving Defendants have presented the Court with a selection of paths the Court might take to dispose of this case. Currently pending before the Court are eleven separate Motions to Dismiss from 116 of the remaining Defendants. Defendants' Motions seek dismissal for lack of personal jurisdiction, improper venue, misjoinder, insufficient service, and untimely service. (Dkts. 88, 90, 93, 96, 99, 100, 102, 105, 107, 111, 131). Despite these eleven Motions brought by more than 100 Defendants, a significant number of named Defendants have not yet joined the Court and the parties on this adventure due to Plaintiffs' inability to effect service. Additionally, a selection of the non-resident Defendants seek sanctions against Plaintiffs for their repeated assertions that venue is proper in the Northern District of Illinois and that service was properly completed. (Dkt. 113). For the following reasons, Defendants' Motions to Dismiss are granted, the claims against all non-moving Defendants are dismissed for want of prosecution, and the non-resident Defendants' Motion for Sanctions is granted.

BACKGROUND

For purposes of evaluating a Motion to Dismiss, the Court takes all well-pleaded facts as true. Calderon-Ramirez v. McCament, 877 F.3d 272, 275 (7th Cir. 2017). Plaintiffs bring this action pro se and filed their Complaint on August 7, 2018. (Dkt. 1). Plaintiffs are Illinois surgeons who have the exclusive rights to Patent 8,747,344, "[a] Hybrid arteriovenous shunt that serves as a conduit connecting an artery to the right atrium of the heart whereby the impure arterial blood flows continuously to the right atrium." (Id. at 43). Defendants, a collection of corporations, hospitals, and individual physicians, allegedly infringed on the Patent by implanting the HeRO Graft into patients. (Id. at 40.)

Defendants, almost exclusively, reside and practice outside the Northern District of Illinois and outside the State of Illinois entirely. (Id. at 1-38). Plaintiffs allege that the individual physicians are guilty of infringement by way of implanting the HeRO Graft into patients after receiving it from Hemosphere Inc., Cryolife Inc., and Merit Medical Systems Inc.[1]

At the parties' initial status conference, the Court informed Plaintiffs that patent law is unique and requires a certain level of knowledge, they were encouraged to hire counsel, and warned that as pro se plaintiffs they will be held to the same level of knowledge with respect to court rules and proceedings. (Dkt. 48). The Court also informed Plaintiffs of the pro se Help Desk in the building and gave them a paper informing them how they could schedule an appointment. Id. At the following status hearing, more than 150 days after the filing of the Complaint, Plaintiffs insisted that proper service had been completed for all Defendants despite Plaintiffs having filed proof of waiver regarding just a single Defendant. (Dkt. 74, Dkt. 53). Plaintiffs maintained that they had requested a waiver of service from all Defendants by certified mail. Id. In an attempt to clarify apparent confusion by Plaintiffs that simply placing the waiver request in the mail is equivalent to service, the Court informed Plaintiffs that a request to waive service is only a request and waiver by Defendants is not mandatory. Id. At each status hearing and in the Court's written Orders (Dkts. 76, 84), Plaintiffs were instructed by the Court to think strategically about their litigation approach and that they would greatly benefit from hiring an attorney who understands the Federal Rules and the intricacies of patent law. (See e.g., Dkt. 120). Plaintiffs' continued disregard of this Court's warnings, binding Supreme Court precedent, and the Federal Rules has led them to the precarious position they now find themselves—facing dismissal of their Complaint and potential sanctions.

[1] Defendants Merit Medical and Cryolife were dismissed as a result of the Court's Order on January 23, 2019. (Dkt. 76). Defendant Hemosphere was never successfully served and never filed an appearance in this matter (Dkt. 13) and is part of the non-moving Defendants discussed within this Opinion.

DISCUSSION

I. Motions to Dismiss

As listed above, the more than 100 moving Defendants seeking dismissal do so on a variety of grounds. Regardless of the path, this litigation yields the same, inevitable ending. Accordingly, the Court primarily addresses the issue of insufficient and untimely service, an issue universal to all Defendants.

A. Insufficient Service

"A district court may not exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant unless the defendant has been properly served with process …" United States v. Ligas, 549 F.3d 497, 500 (7th Cir. 2008). Rule 4 allows plaintiffs to obtain waiver of service from defendants, but defendants are not required to waive formal service. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(d). To properly request waiver of service, plaintiffs must send a copy of the complaint, two copies of the waiver form, and a prepaid means to allow defendants to return the form. Id. When

service is not waived, plaintiff must effect service by (1) delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the defendant personally, (2) leaving a copy of the summons and complaint and the defendant's dwelling with someone who resides there, (3) delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to an agent authorized to receive service, or (4) by other means permissible by state law in the state where the complaint was filed or where service is made. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(e); see also Ligas, 549 F.3d at 501. Rule 4 also requires that service be completed within 90 days after the filing of the complaint. Fed. R. Civ. P. 4(m). The Court "must dismiss" the complaint if plaintiff fails to do so. Id. Such a dismissal may be with prejudice "if the plaintiff's delay in obtaining service is so long that it signifies failure to prosecute." Williams v. Illinois, 737 F.3d 473, 476 (7th Cir. 2013).

Dismissal of all remaining Defendants is warranted due to Plaintiffs' insufficient and untimely attempts at service. Plaintiffs claim they sought waiver of service from the more than 300 Defendants and therefore they have complied with the conditions of Rule 4. It is Plaintiffs' position that Defendants are required to waive service. (Dkt. 127, at 2). This position is misplaced as waiver of service is merely offered as an alternative to litigating parties and defendants are by no means required to accept waiver. Troxell v. Fedders of North America, Inc., 160 F.3d 381, 383 (7th Cir. 1998). With very limited exceptions, Defendants did not waive service in this matter[2]. In the absence of waiver,

[2] Plaintiffs filed executed waivers of service for three Defendants. Plaintiffs first filed a waiver of service executed by Dr. Mark

Plaintiffs have not attempted to personally serve Defendants and instead have insisted throughout the course of this litigation that they completed service by mailing the summons and Complaint to Defendants. Rule 4(e)(2) does not permit personal service via mail and Plaintiffs have not identified any state laws which would otherwise allow service by mail.

Plaintiffs also failed to comply with the timeliness requirements of Rule 4(m). Still, more than 250 days after Plaintiffs filed their Complaint, nearly all of the Defendants have still not been properly served. The Plaintiffs provide no justification for this extreme delay besides their tired refrain that service was completed by U.S. Mail. By maintaining this contention, in the face of directly contrary instruction from the Court, Plaintiffs have failed to comply with the necessary procedural rules for litigating their case. Therefore, due to insufficient and untimely service, Plaintiffs' Complaint is dismissed for want of prosecution. Williams, 737 F.3d at 476.

Rosenbloom (Dkt. 53) and later voluntarily dismissed him. (Dkt. 98). Dr. Joseph Griffin waived service and seeks dismissal for improper venue, lack of personal jurisdiction, and improper joinder. (Dkt. 88). Finally, Plaintiffs filed the executed waiver of service for Dr. Robert Jubelirer. (Dkt. 78). Dr. Jubelirer has not yet filed an appearance on the docket and has not otherwise moved to dismiss. Nonetheless, the claims against Dr. Jubelirer are dismissed for improper service along with the other grounds mentioned in this Opinion and the Court's previous Order—improper venue and misjoinder. The executed waiver of service pertaining to Dr. Jubelirer was filed with the Court on January 28, 2019, well after the 90 days permitted by Rule 4(m) and without any indication as to when waiver was actually executed.

B. Improper Venue

Alternatively, Plaintiffs' Complaint is dismissed for improper venue. The Court adopts its analysis pertaining to improper venue as laid out in its January 23, 2019 and February 13, 2019 Orders. (Dkts. 76, 84). In short, venue is proper only where the defendant resides or where the defendant committed the infringement and has a regular place of business. See 28 U.S.C. § 1400(b). The Complaint, in conjunction with Plaintiffs' related filings, is devoid of any facts establishing that the infringing acts occurred in this judicial district or that Defendants reside in the district. To the contrary, the Complaint alleges that the acts of infringement took place in the states in which the Defendants reside. (Dkt. 1, at 41). Further, nearly all of the Defendants are not residents of Illinois and are instead scattered throughout the country in dozens of different states. See e.g., (Dkt. 89-2).

C. Misjoinder

Relatedly, were the claims not dismissed on other grounds, they would be dropped pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 299 which governs joinder of patent cases. Joinder in patent infringement matters is proper only when the alleged infringement arises:

> out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences relating to the making, using, importing into the United States, offering for sale, or selling of the same accused product or process; and questions of fact common > to all defendants or counterclaim defendants will arise in the action.

35 U.S.C. §299; see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 20(a)(2). Further, the mere fact that multiple infringers each allegedly infringed on the patent is not sufficient for joining them as defendants in a single action. Id. The joinder statute "looks for a 'logical relationship' between the claims linking the underlying facts." In re Apple Inc., 650 F.App'x 771, 775 (Fed. Cir. 2015) (quoting In re EMC Corp., 677 F.3d 1351, 1358-59 (Fed. Cir. 2012)). Here, the Plaintiffs have cast as wide of a net as possible in attempt to capture all potential infringers. This practice is plainly forbidden by § 299. The Complaint simply alleges that each of the individual Defendants infringed on the patent in their home state where they reside. There are no allegations that the Defendants' actions were performed in concert or connected in any way. Joinder is not suitable where a party completely fails to satisfy the "requirement of a common transaction or occurrence where unrelated defendants, based on different acts, are alleged to have infringed the same patent." Rudd v. Lux Prod. Corp. Emerson Climate Techs. Braeburn Sys., LLC, 2011 WL 148052, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Jan. 12, 2011). Without any "logical relationship" between the facts associated with the more than 300 Defendants, joinder is wholly inappropriate. See In re Apple Inc., 650 App'x at 775. As a result, each of the remaining Defendants are dismissed for improper joinder under § 299.

II. Non-Resident Defendants' Motion for Sanctions

A subset of the non-resident Defendants in this case also move for sanctions under Rule 11(b)[3]. (Dkt. 113). The moving non-resident Defendants assert that Plaintiffs should be sanctioned for their arguments regarding venue and service of process. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11(b) entails that by presenting papers to the court, the party certifies that the filing is formed after a reasonable inquiry and:

> (1) it is not being presented for any improper purpose, such as to harass, cause unnecessary delay, or needlessly increase the cost of litigation;
> (2) the claims, defenses, and other legal contentions are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for extending, modifying, or reversing existing law or for establishing new law;
> (3) the factual contentions have evidentiary support or, if specifically so identified, will likely have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery…

Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(b). A frivolous argument is one that is baseless or made without reasonable and competent

[3] The list of non-resident Defendants seeking sanctions is attached as Exhibit A to Defendants' Motion. (Dkt. 113-1). Defendants Thomas Hatsukami, Todd Smith, Angelo Santos, and Thomas Winek also join this Motion. (Dkt. 113, at 1).

inquiry and therefore subject to the consequences of Rule 11. See Berwick Grain Co., Inc. v. Ill. Dep't of Agric., 217 F.3d 502, 504 (7th Cir. 2000). Rule 11 "plainly authorizes a district court to sanction a lawyer who without reasonable inquiry tenders a submission that includes legal contentions not warranted…" Id. at 504. While the Court does have the discretion to issue sanctions, such authority should be used sparingly in recognition of the impact sanctions can have beyond the merits of the case. Hartmarx Corp. v. Abboud, 326 F.3d 862, 867 (7th Cir. 2003). The Court reviews the allegedly sanctionable conduct under a standard of objective reasonableness and considers whether the offending party should have known his position was groundless. Cuna Mut. Ins. Soc. v. Office and Prof'l Emp. Int'l Union, Local 39, 443 F.3d 556, 560 (7th Cir. 2006).

A. Sanctions for assertions regarding venue

Throughout this litigation, Plaintiffs have repeatedly asserted that venue is proper in the Northern District of Illinois. Early on, Merit Medical and Cryolife moved to dismiss or sever based on improper venue. (Dkts. 17, 26). In their response, Plaintiffs relied on the Federal Circuit's decision in TC Heartland. (Dkt. 21). This reliance was sorely misplaced though as the Federal Circuit was clearly reversed by the Supreme Court in May 2017, well over a year before Plaintiffs filed their response. TC Heartland LLC v. Kraft Foods Group Brans LLC, 137 S. Ct. 1514, 1519 (2017). The Court specifically cited to the Supreme Court's decision in its Order granting dismissal and in status hearings. (Dkt. 76). Indeed, the Court "caution[ed] plaintiffs to take heed of the potentially meritorious arguments raised by defendants thus far in considering the proper and most effective way to prosecute their case going forward." Id.

Along with governing precedent, the relevant statute concerning venue in patent matters is clear. "Any civil action for patent infringement may be brought in the judicial district where the defendant resides, or where the defendant has committed acts of infringement and has a regular and established place of business." 28 U.S.C. § 1400(b). The Plaintiffs' own Complaint undercuts any good faith basis for asserting venue is proper in this district. All of the Defendants seeking sanctions practice and reside outside of the state of Illinois and the Complaint claims that the alleged infringement, with respect to each doctor, occurred "at their addresses in their respective states." (Dkt. 1, at 41). Despite guidance from this Court, Plaintiffs again raised their baseless argument in their Motion to Reconsider. (Dkt. 77). No reasonable person would have concluded that such an argument had support in the law or in the facts of this case and accordingly Plaintiffs actions are sanctionable.

B. Sanctions for assertions regarding service

Plaintiffs similarly made consistent representations in their filings and in hearings that they had complied with the requirements for perfecting service of process. Plaintiffs attempted to serve all Defendants by requesting a waiver of service as contemplated in Rule 4(d). However, Plaintiffs filed only three waivers of service with the Court out of the more than 300 purportedly sent. (Dkt. 53, 78). Plaintiffs asserted that service by certified mail was sufficient as early as October 2, 2018 (Dkt. 21) and maintained this position through their most recent filing with the Court on March 26, 2019. (Dkt. 130). See also (Dkt. 46, at 1; Dkt. 83, at 4). Throughout this time, the Court instructed Plaintiffs that waiver of service is merely optional for Defendants to comply with and in the absence of waiver, they must accomplish service through other means. (Dkt. 74). The Federal Rules do not permit service by mail and Plaintiffs have failed to identify any case law or procedural rules permitting service by mail in the dozens of different states where Defendants reside. Plaintiffs' stubborn assertions to the contrary are without any merit and no reasonable person would have believed otherwise.

Rule 11(c) requires that a party seeking sanctions must wait 21 days after the offending party is put on notice of the possibly sanctionable offense. Fed. R. Civ. P. 11(c)(2). This 21-day window is intended to serve as a safe harbor to allow the challenged party to withdraw or correct offending activity. Defendants put Plaintiffs on notice of their intent to seek sanctions as early as September 24, 2018, then again on October 3, 2018, January 28, 2019, February 13, 2019, and February 15, 2019. See (Dkt. 114, Exhibits B, C, E, F, G, I). Defendants' "early and often" approach in corresponding with Plaintiffs regarding their desire to pursue sanctions no doubt satisfies the 21-day requirement of Rule 11(c).

As pro se plaintiffs, the Khan's are "entitled to some leniency before being assessed sanctions for frivolous litigation." Thomas v. Foster, 138 Fed.Appx. 822, 823

(7th Cir. 2005) (citing Pryzina v. Ley, 813 F.2d 821, 823-24 (7th Cir. 1987)). However, this leniency is not without limits. See Bacon v. Am. Fed'n of State, Cty., & Mun. Emps. Council, No. 13, 795 F.2d 33, 35 (7th Cir. 1986) ("[W]hen a layman persists in a hopeless cause long after it should have been clear to him, as a reasonable (though not law-trained) person, that his cause was indeed hopeless, sanctions should be imposed…."). The Court allowed Plaintiffs to respond to the Motion for Sanctions orally (Dkt. 120) and provided them with the opportunity to file multiple responses. (Dkts. 118, 118, 128, 130). Plaintiffs not only acted in direct contravention to clear procedural rules, statutes, and governing law, but continued to do so after being repeatedly warned at hearings by the Court, in written orders, and in correspondence with defense counsel. It is more than objectively reasonable to believe that the Plaintiffs should have known their positions on venue and service were groundless. While patent law can no doubt be a thorny area of the law, Plaintiffs missteps came far short of the substantive merits of this dispute. Nor can it be said that these Plaintiffs are naïve; being both medical doctors and the alleged inventors of a complicated medical device. Governing authority regarding proper service of process and venue render Plaintiffs repetitive assertions and arguments nothing more than frivolous.

The non-resident Defendants' Motion for Sanctions is granted. (Dkt. 113). Sanctions shall include Pro Hac Vice filing fees and costs incurred by the non-resident Defendants in association with their Motion to Dismiss and Motion for Sanctions. The non-resident Defendants shall file a breakdown of the fees they intend to recover within 21 days.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons detailed above, Defendants' Motions to Dismiss are granted and Plaintiffs' Complaint is dismissed with prejudice for want of prosecution due to Plaintiffs' delay in obtaining proper service and alternatively for improper venue and misjoinder. (Dkts. 88, 90, 93, 96, 99, 100, 102, 105, 107, 111, 131). The non-resident Defendants' Motion for Sanctions is granted. (Dkt. 113). Plaintiffs shall pay reasonable fees associated with Defendants' filing fees, Motion to Dismiss, and Motion for Sanctions.

Originating Case Information:
District Court No: 1:18-cv-05368 Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division District Judge Virginia M. Kendall

Upon consideration of the MOTION TO DISMISS CASE PURSUANT TO FEDERAL RULE OF APPELLATE PROCEDURE 42(B), filed on September 12, 2019, by the pro se appellants,

IT IS ORDERED that this case is DISMISSED, pursuant to Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 42(b).

APPENDIX I

Rule 11. Signing Pleadings, Motions, and Other Papers; Representations to the Court; Sanctions

(a) SIGNATURE. Every pleading, written motion, and other paper must be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's name—or by a party personally if the party is unrepresented. The paper must state the signer's address, e-mail address, and telephone number. Unless a rule or statute specifically states otherwise, a pleading need not be verified or accompanied by an affidavit. The court must strike an unsigned paper unless the omission is promptly corrected after being called to the attorney's or party's attention.

(b) REPRESENTATIONS TO THE COURT. By presenting to the court a pleading, written motion, or other paper—whether by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating it—an attorney or unrepresented party certifies that to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances:

(1) it is not being presented for any improper purpose, such as to harass, cause unnecessary delay, or needlessly increase the cost of litigation;

(2) the claims, defenses, and other legal contentions are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for extending, modifying, or reversing existing law or for establishing new law;

(3) the factual contentions have evidentiary support or, if specifically so identified, will likely have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery; and

(4) the denials of factual contentions are warranted on the evidence or, if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on belief or a lack of information.

(c) SANCTIONS.

(1) In General. If, after notice and a reasonable opportunity to respond, the court determines that Rule 11(b) has been violated, the court may impose an appropriate sanction on any attorney, law firm, or party that violated the rule or is responsible for the violation. Absent exceptional circumstances, a law firm must be held jointly responsible for a violation committed by its partner, associate, or employee.

(2) Motion for Sanctions. A motion for sanctions must be made separately from any other motion and must describe the specific conduct that allegedly violates Rule 11(b). The motion must be served under Rule 5, but it must not be filed or be presented to the court if the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, or denial is withdrawn or appropriately corrected within 21 days after service or within another time the court sets. If warranted, the court may award to the prevailing party the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred for the motion.

(3) On the Court's Initiative. On its own, the court may order an attorney, law firm, or party to show cause why conduct specifically described in the order has not violated Rule 11(b).

(4) Nature of a Sanction. A sanction imposed under this rule must be limited to what suffices to deter repetition of the conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated. The sanction may include nonmonetary directives; an order to pay a penalty into court; or, if imposed on motion and warranted for effective deterrence, an order directing payment to the movant of part or all of the reasonable attorney's fees and other expenses directly resulting from the violation.

(5) Limitations on Monetary Sanctions. The court must not impose a monetary sanction:

(A) against a represented party for violating Rule 11(b)(2); or

(B) on its own, unless it issued the show-cause order under Rule 11(c)(3) before voluntary dismissal or settlement of the claims made by or against the party that is, or whose attorneys are, to be sanctioned.

(6) Requirements for an Order. An order imposing a sanction must describe the sanctioned conduct and explain the basis for the sanction.

(d) INAPPLICABILITY TO DISCOVERY. This rule does not apply to disclosures and discovery requests, responses, objections, and motions under Rules 26 through 37.

Notes of Advisory Committee on Rules—1937

This is substantially the content of [former] Equity Rules 24 (Signature of Counsel) and 21 (Scandal and Impertinence) consolidated and unified. Compare [former] Equity Rule 36 (Officers Before Whom Pleadings Verified). Compare to similar purposes, English Rules Under the Judicature Act (The Annual Practice, 1937) O. 19, r. 4, and Great Australian Gold Mining Co. v. Martin, L. R., 5 Ch.Div. 1, 10 (1877). Subscription of pleadings is required in many codes. 2 Minn.Stat. (Mason, 1927) §9265; N.Y.R.C.P. (1937) Rule 91; 2 N.D.Comp.Laws Ann. (1913) §7455.

This rule expressly continues any statute which requires a pleading to be verified or accompanied by an affidavit, such as:

U.S.C., Title 28:

§381 [former] (Preliminary injunctions and temporary restraining orders)

§762 [now 1402] (Suit against the United States).

U.S.C., Title 28, §829 [now 1927] (Costs; attorney liable for, when) is unaffected by this rule.

For complaints which must be verified under these rules, see Rules 23(b) (Secondary Action by Shareholders) and 65 (Injunctions).

For abolition of the rule in equity that the averments of an answer under oath must be overcome by the testimony of two witnesses or of one witness sustained by corroborating circumstances, see Pa.Stat.Ann. (Purdon, 1931) see 12 P.S.Pa., §1222; for the rule in equity itself, see Greenfield v. Blumenthal, 69 F.2d 294 (C.C.A. 3d, 1934).

Notes of Advisory Committee on Rules—1983 Amendment

Since its original promulgation, Rule 11 has provided for the striking of pleadings and the imposition of disciplinary sanctions to check abuses in the signing of pleadings. Its provisions have always applied to motions and other papers by virtue of incorporation by reference in Rule 7(b)(2). The amendment and the addition of Rule 7(b)(3) expressly confirms this applicability.

Experience shows that in practice Rule 11 has not been effective in deterring abuses. See 6 Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil §1334 (1971). There has been considerable confusion as to (1) the circumstances that should trigger striking a pleading or motion or taking disciplinary action, (2) the standard of conduct expected of attorneys who sign pleadings and motions, and (3) the range of available and appropriate sanctions. See Rodes, Ripple & Mooney, Sanctions Imposable for Violations of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 64–65, Federal Judicial Center (1981). The new language is intended to reduce the reluctance of courts to impose sanctions, see Moore, Federal Practice 7.05, at 1547, by emphasizing the responsibilities of the attorney and reenforcing those obligations by the imposition of sanctions.

The amended rule attempts to deal with the problem by building upon and expanding the equitable doctrine permitting the court to award expenses, including attorney's fees, to a litigant whose opponent acts in bad faith in instituting or conducting litigation. See, e.g., Roadway Express, Inc. v. Piper, 447 U.S. 752, (1980); Hall v. Cole, 412 U.S. 1, 5 (1973). Greater attention by the district courts to pleading and motion abuses and the imposition of sanctions when appropriate, should discourage dilatory or abusive tactics and help to streamline the litigation process by lessening frivolous claims or defenses.

The expanded nature of the lawyer's certification in the fifth sentence of amended Rule 11 recognizes that the litigation process may be abused for purposes other than delay. See, e.g., Browning Debenture Holders' Committee v. DASA Corp., 560 F.2d 1078 (2d Cir. 1977).

The words "good ground to support" the pleading in the original rule were interpreted to have both factual and legal elements. See, e.g., Heart Disease Research Foundation v. General Motors Corp., 15 Fed.R.Serv. 2d 1517, 1519 (S.D.N.Y. 1972). They have been replaced by a standard of conduct that is more focused.

The new language stresses the need for some prefiling inquiry into both the facts and the law to satisfy the affirmative duty imposed by the rule. The standard is one of reasonableness under the circumstances. See Kinee v. Abraham Lincoln Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 365 F.Supp. 975 (E.D.Pa. 1973). This standard is more stringent than the original good-faith formula and thus it is expected that a greater range of circumstances will trigger its violation. See Nemeroff v. Abelson, 620 F.2d 339 (2d Cir. 1980).

The rule is not intended to chill an attorney's enthusiasm or creativity in pursuing factual or legal theories. The court is expected to avoid using the wisdom of hindsight and should test the signer's conduct by inquiring what was reasonable to believe at the time the pleading, motion, or other paper was submitted. Thus, what constitutes a reasonable inquiry may depend on such factors as how much time for investigation was available to the signer; whether he had to rely on a client for information as to the facts underlying the pleading, motion, or other paper; whether the pleading, motion, or other paper was based on a plausible view of the law; or whether he depended on forwarding counsel or another member of the bar.

The rule does not require a party or an attorney to disclose privileged communications or work product in order to show that the signing of the pleading, motion, or other paper is substantially justified. The provisions of Rule 26(c), including appropriate orders after in camera inspection by the court, remain available to protect a party claiming privilege or work product protection.

Amended Rule 11 continues to apply to anyone who signs a pleading, motion, or other paper. Although the standard is the same for unrepresented parties, who are obliged themselves to sign the pleadings, the court has sufficient discretion to take account of the special circumstances that often arise in pro se situations. See Haines v. Kerner 404 U.S. 519 (1972).

The provision in the original rule for striking pleadings and motions as sham and false has been deleted. The passage has rarely been utilized, and decisions thereunder have tended to confuse the issue of attorney honesty with the merits of the action. See generally Risinger, Honesty in Pleading and its Enforcement: Some "Striking" Problems with Fed. R. Civ. P. 11 , 61 Minn.L.Rev. 1 (1976). Motions under this provision generally present issues better dealt with under Rules 8, 12, or 56. See Murchison v. Kirby, 27 F.R.D. 14 (S.D.N.Y. 1961); 5 Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil §1334 (1969).

The former reference to the inclusion of scandalous or indecent matter, which is itself strong indication that an improper purpose underlies the pleading, motion, or other paper, also has been deleted as unnecessary. Such matter may be stricken under Rule 12(f) as well as dealt with under the more general language of amended Rule 11.

The text of the amended rule seeks to dispel apprehensions that efforts to obtain enforcement will be fruitless by insuring that the rule will be applied when properly invoked. The word "sanctions" in the caption, for example, stresses a deterrent orientation in dealing with improper pleadings, motions or other papers. This corresponds to the approach in imposing sanctions for discovery abuses. See National Hockey League v. Metropolitan Hockey Club, 427 U.S. 639 (1976) (per curiam). And the words "shall impose" in the last sentence focus the court's attention on the need to impose sanctions for pleading and motion abuses. The court, however, retains the necessary flexibility to deal appropriately with violations of the rule. It has discretion to tailor sanctions to the particular facts of the case, with which it should be well acquainted.

The reference in the former text to wilfullness as a prerequisite to disciplinary action has been deleted. However, in considering the nature and severity of the sanctions to be imposed, the court should take account of the state of the attorney's or party's actual or presumed knowledge when the pleading or other paper was signed. Thus, for example, when a party is not represented by counsel, the absence of legal advice is an appropriate factor to be considered.

Courts currently appear to believe they may impose sanctions on their own motion. See North American Trading Corp. v. Zale Corp., 73 F.R.D. 293 (S.D.N.Y. 1979). Authority to do so has been made explicit in order to overcome the traditional reluctance of courts to intervene unless requested by one of the parties. The detection and punishment of a violation of the signing requirement, encouraged by the amended rule, is part of the court's responsibility for securing the system's effective operation.

If the duty imposed by the rule is violated, the court should have the discretion to impose sanctions on either the attorney, the party the signing attorney represents, or both, or on an unrepresented party who signed the pleading, and the new rule so provides. Although Rule 11 has been silent on the point, courts have claimed the power to impose sanctions on an attorney personally, either by imposing costs or employing the contempt technique. See 5 Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil §1334 (1969); 2A Moore, Federal Practice 11.02, at 2104 n.8. This power has been used infrequently. The amended rule should eliminate any doubt as to the propriety of assessing sanctions against the attorney.

Even though it is the attorney whose signature violates the rule, it may be appropriate under the circumstances of the case to impose a sanction on the client. See Browning Debenture Holders' Committee v. DASA Corp., supra. This modification brings Rule 11 in line with practice under Rule 37, which allows sanctions for abuses during discovery to be imposed upon the party, the attorney, or both.

A party seeking sanctions should give notice to the court and the offending party promptly upon discovering a basis for doing so. The time when sanctions are to be imposed rests in the discretion of the trial judge. However, it is anticipated that in the case of pleadings the sanctions issue under Rule 11 normally will be determined at the end of the litigation, and in the case of motions at the time when the motion is decided or shortly thereafter. The procedure obviously must comport with due process requirements. The particular format to be followed should depend on the circumstances of the situation and the severity of the sanction under consideration. In many situations the judge's participation in the proceedings provides him with full knowledge of the relevant facts and little further inquiry will be necessary.

To assure that the efficiencies achieved through more effective operation of the pleading regimen will not be offset by the cost of satellite litigation over the imposition of sanctions, the court must to the extent possible limit the scope of sanction proceedings to the record. Thus, discovery should be conducted only by leave of the court, and then only in extraordinary circumstances.

Although the encompassing reference to "other papers" in new Rule 11 literally includes discovery papers, the certification requirement in that context is governed by proposed new Rule 26(g). Discovery motions, however, fall within the ambit of Rule 11.

Notes of Advisory Committee on Rules—1987 Amendment

The amendments are technical. No substantive change is intended.

Notes of Advisory Committee on Rules—1993 Amendment

Purpose of revision. This revision is intended to remedy problems that have arisen in the interpretation and application of the 1983 revision of the rule. For empirical examination of experience under the 1983 rule, see, e.g., New York State Bar Committee on Federal Courts, Sanctions and Attorneys' Fees (1987); T. Willging, The Rule 11 Sanctioning Process (1989); American Judicature Society, Report of the Third Circuit Task Force on Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11 (S. Burbank ed., 1989); E. Wiggins, T. Willging, and D. Stienstra, Report on Rule 11 (Federal Judicial Center 1991). For book-length analyses of the case law, see G. Joseph, Sanctions: The Federal Law of Litigation Abuse (1989); J. Solovy, The Federal Law of Sanctions (1991); G. Vairo, Rule 11 Sanctions: Case Law Perspectives and Preventive Measures (1991).

The rule retains the principle that attorneys and pro se litigants have an obligation to the court to refrain from conduct that frustrates the aims of Rule 1. The revision broadens the scope of this obligation, but places greater constraints on the imposition of sanctions and should reduce the number of motions for sanctions presented to the court. New subdivision (d) removes from the ambit of this rule all discovery requests, responses, objections, and motions subject to the provisions of Rule 26 through 37.

Subdivision (a). Retained in this subdivision are the provisions requiring signatures on pleadings, written motions, and other papers. Unsigned papers are to be received by the Clerk, but then are to be stricken if the omission of the signature is not corrected promptly after being called to the attention of the attorney or pro se litigant. Correction can be made by signing the paper on file or by submitting a duplicate that contains the signature. A court may require by local rule that papers contain additional identifying information regarding the parties or attorneys, such as telephone numbers to facilitate facsimile transmissions, though, as for omission of a signature, the paper should not be rejected for failure to provide such information.

The sentence in the former rule relating to the effect of answers under oath is no longer needed and has been eliminated. The provision in the former rule that signing a paper constitutes a certificate that it has been read by the signer also has been eliminated as unnecessary. The obligations imposed under subdivision (b) obviously require that a pleading, written motion, or other paper be read before it is filed or submitted to the court.

Subdivisions (b) and (c). These subdivisions restate the provisions requiring attorneys and pro se litigants to conduct a reasonable inquiry into the law and facts before signing pleadings, written motions, and other documents, and prescribing sanctions for violation of these obligations. The revision in part expands the responsibilities of litigants to the court, while providing greater constraints and flexibility in dealing with infractions of the rule. The rule continues to require litigants to "stop-and-think" before initially making legal or factual contentions. It also, however, emphasizes the duty of candor by subjecting litigants to potential sanctions for insisting upon a position after it is no longer tenable and by generally providing protection against sanctions if they withdraw or correct contentions after a potential violation is called to their attention.

The rule applies only to assertions contained in papers filed with or submitted to the court. It does not cover matters arising for the first time during oral presentations to the court, when counsel may make statements that would not have been made if there had been more time for study and reflection. However, a litigant's obligations with respect to the contents of these papers are not measured solely as of the time they are filed with or submitted to the court, but include reaffirming to the court and advocating positions contained in those pleadings and motions after learning that they cease to have any merit. For example, an attorney who during a pretrial conference insists on a claim or defense should be viewed as "presenting to the court" that contention and would be subject to the obligations of subdivision (b) measured as of that time. Similarly, if after a notice of removal is filed, a party urges in federal court the allegations of a pleading filed in state court (whether as claims, defenses, or in disputes regarding removal or remand), it would be viewed as "presenting"—and hence certifying to the district court under Rule 11—those allegations.

The certification with respect to allegations and other factual contentions is revised in recognition that sometimes a litigant may have good reason to believe that a fact is true or false but may need discovery, formal or informal, from opposing parties or third persons to gather and confirm the evidentiary basis for the allegation. Tolerance of factual contentions in initial pleadings by plaintiffs or defendants when specifically identified as made on information and belief does not relieve litigants from the obligation to conduct an appropriate investigation into the facts that is reasonable under the circumstances; it is not a license to join parties, make claims, or present defenses without any factual basis or justification. Moreover, if evidentiary support is not obtained after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery, the party has a duty under the rule not to persist with that contention. Subdivision (b) does not require a formal amendment to pleadings for which evidentiary support is not obtained, but rather calls upon a litigant not thereafter to advocate such claims or defenses.

The certification is that there is (or likely will be) "evidentiary support" for the allegation, not that the party will prevail with respect to its contention regarding the fact. That summary judgment is rendered against a party does not necessarily mean, for purposes of this certification, that it had no evidentiary support for its position. On the other hand, if a party has evidence with respect to a contention that would suffice to defeat a motion for summary judgment based thereon, it would have sufficient "evidentiary support" for purposes of Rule 11.

Denials of factual contentions involve somewhat different considerations. Often, of course, a denial is premised upon the existence of evidence contradicting the alleged fact. At other times a denial is permissible because, after an appropriate investigation, a party has no information concerning the matter or, indeed, has a reasonable basis for doubting the credibility of the only evidence relevant to the matter. A party should not deny an allegation it knows to be true; but it is not required, simply because it lacks contradictory evidence, to admit an allegation that it believes is not true.

The changes in subdivisions (b)(3) and (b)(4) will serve to equalize the burden of the rule upon plaintiffs and defendants, who under Rule 8(b) are in effect allowed to deny allegations by stating that from their initial investigation they lack sufficient information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegation. If, after further investigation or discovery, a denial is no longer warranted, the defendant should not continue to insist on that denial. While sometimes helpful, formal amendment of the pleadings to withdraw an allegation or denial is not required by subdivision (b).

Arguments for extensions, modifications, or reversals of existing law or for creation of new law do not violate subdivision (b)(2) provided they are "nonfrivolous." This establishes an objective standard, intended to eliminate any "empty-head pure-heart" justification for patently frivolous arguments. However, the extent to which a litigant has researched the issues and found some support for its theories even in minority opinions, in law review articles, or through consultation with other attorneys should certainly be taken into account in determining whether paragraph (2) has been violated. Although arguments for a change of law are not required to be specifically so identified, a contention that is so identified should be viewed with greater tolerance under the rule.

The court has available a variety of possible sanctions to impose for violations, such as striking the offending paper; issuing an admonition, reprimand, or censure; requiring participation in seminars or other educational programs; ordering a fine payable to the court; referring the matter to disciplinary authorities (or, in the case of government attorneys, to the Attorney General, Inspector General, or agency head), etc. See Manual for Complex Litigation, Second, §42.3. The rule does not attempt to enumerate the factors a court should consider in deciding whether to impose a sanction or what sanctions would be appropriate in the circumstances; but, for emphasis, it does specifically note that a sanction may be nonmonetary as well as monetary. Whether the improper conduct was willful, or negligent; whether it was part of a pattern of activity, or an isolated event; whether it infected the entire pleading, or only one particular count or defense; whether the person has engaged in similar conduct in other litigation; whether it was intended to injure; what effect it had on the litigation process in time or expense; whether the responsible person is trained in the law; what amount, given the financial resources of the responsible person, is needed to deter that person from repetition in the same case; what amount is needed to deter similar activity by other litigants: all of these may in a particular case be proper considerations. The court has significant discretion in determining what sanctions, if any, should be imposed for a violation, subject to the principle that the sanctions should not be more severe than reasonably necessary to deter repetition of the conduct by the offending person or comparable conduct by similarly situated persons.

Since the purpose of Rule 11 sanctions is to deter rather than to compensate, the rule provides that, if a monetary sanction is imposed, it should ordinarily be paid into court as a penalty. However, under unusual circumstances, particularly for [subdivision] (b)(1) violations, deterrence may be ineffective unless the sanction not only requires the person violating the rule to make a monetary payment, but also directs that some or all of this payment be made to those injured by the violation. Accordingly, the rule authorizes the court, if requested in a motion and if so warranted, to award attorney's fees to another party. Any such award to another party, however, should not exceed the expenses and attorneys' fees for the services directly and unavoidably caused by the violation of the certification requirement. If, for example, a wholly unsupportable count were included in a multi-count complaint or counterclaim for the purpose of needlessly increasing the cost of litigation to an impecunious adversary, any award of expenses should be limited to those directly caused by inclusion of the improper count, and not those resulting from the filing of the complaint or answer itself. The award should not provide compensation for services that could have been avoided by an earlier disclosure of evidence or an earlier challenge to the groundless claims or defenses. Moreover, partial reimbursement of fees may constitute a sufficient deterrent with respect to violations by persons having modest financial resources. In cases brought under statutes providing for fees to be awarded to prevailing parties, the court should not employ cost-shifting under this rule in a manner that would be inconsistent with the standards that govern the statutory award of fees, such as stated in Christiansburg Garment Co. v. EEOC, 434 U.S. 412 (1978).

The sanction should be imposed on the persons—whether attorneys, law firms, or parties—who have violated the rule or who may be determined to be responsible for the violation. The person signing, filing, submitting, or advocating a document has a nondelegable responsibility to the court, and in most situations is the person to be sanctioned for a violation. Absent exceptional circumstances, a law firm is to be held also responsible when, as a result of a motion under subdivision (c)(1)(A), one of its partners, associates, or employees is determined to have violated the rule. Since such a motion may be filed only if the offending paper is not withdrawn or corrected within 21 days after service of the motion, it is appropriate that the law firm ordinarily be viewed as jointly responsible under established principles of agency. This provision is designed to remove the restrictions of the former rule. Cf. Pavelic & LeFlore v. Marvel Entertainment Group, 493 U.S. 120 (1989) (1983 version of Rule 11 does not permit sanctions against law firm of attorney signing groundless complaint).

The revision permits the court to consider whether other attorneys in the firm, co-counsel, other law firms, or the party itself should be held accountable for their part in causing a violation. When appropriate, the court can make an additional inquiry in order to determine whether the sanction should be imposed on such persons, firms, or parties either in addition to or, in unusual circumstances, instead of the person actually making the presentation to the court. For example, such an inquiry may be appropriate in cases involving governmental agencies or other institutional parties that frequently impose substantial restrictions on the discretion of individual attorneys employed by it.

Sanctions that involve monetary awards (such as a fine or an award of attorney's fees) may not be imposed on a represented party for causing a violation of subdivision (b)(2), involving frivolous contentions of law. Monetary responsibility for such violations is more properly placed solely on the party's attorneys. With this limitation, the rule should not be subject to attack under the Rules Enabling Act. See Willy v. Coastal Corp., ____ U.S. ____ (1992); Business Guides, Inc. v. Chromatic Communications Enter. Inc., ____ U.S. ____ (1991). This restriction does not limit the court's power to impose sanctions or remedial orders that may have collateral financial consequences upon a party, such as dismissal of a claim, preclusion of a defense, or preparation of amended pleadings.

Explicit provision is made for litigants to be provided notice of the alleged violation and an opportunity to respond before sanctions are imposed. Whether the matter should be decided solely on the basis of written submissions or should be scheduled for oral argument (or, indeed, for evidentiary presentation) will depend on the circumstances. If the court imposes a sanction, it must, unless waived, indicate its reasons in a written order or on the record; the court should not ordinarily have to explain its denial of a motion for sanctions. Whether a violation has occurred and what sanctions, if any, to impose for a violation are matters committed to the discretion of the trial court; accordingly, as under current law, the standard for appellate review of these decisions will be for abuse of discretion. See Cooter & Gell v. Hartmarx Corp., 496 U.S. 384 (1990) (noting, however, that an abuse would be established if the court based its ruling on an erroneous view of the law or on a clearly erroneous assessment of the evidence).

The revision leaves for resolution on a case-by-case basis, considering the particular circumstances involved, the question as to when a motion for violation of Rule 11 should be served and when, if filed, it should be decided. Ordinarily the motion should be served promptly after the inappropriate paper is filed, and, if delayed too long, may be viewed as untimely. In other circumstances, it should not be served until the other party has had a reasonable opportunity for discovery. Given the "safe harbor" provisions discussed below, a party cannot delay serving its Rule 11 motion until conclusion of the case (or judicial rejection of the offending contention).

Rule 11 motions should not be made or threatened for minor, inconsequential violations of the standards prescribed by subdivision (b). They should not be employed as a discovery device or to test the legal sufficiency or efficacy of allegations in the pleadings; other motions are available for those purposes. Nor should Rule 11 motions be prepared to emphasize the merits of a party's position, to exact an unjust settlement, to intimidate an adversary into withdrawing contentions that are fairly debatable, to increase the costs of litigation, to create a conflict of interest between attorney and client, or to seek disclosure of matters otherwise protected by the attorney-client privilege or the work-product doctrine. As under the prior rule, the court may defer its ruling (or its decision as to the identity of the persons to be sanctioned) until final resolution of the case in order to avoid immediate conflicts of interest and to reduce the disruption created if a disclosure of attorney-client communications is needed to determine whether a violation occurred or to identify the person responsible for the violation.

The rule provides that requests for sanctions must be made as a separate motion, i.e., not simply included as an additional prayer for relief contained in another motion. The motion for sanctions is not, however, to be filed until at least 21 days (or such other period as the court may set) after being served. If, during this period, the alleged violation is corrected, as by withdrawing (whether formally or informally) some allegation or contention, the motion should not be filed with the court. These provisions are intended to provide a type of "safe harbor" against motions under Rule 11 in that a party will not be subject to sanctions on the basis of another party's motion unless, after receiving the motion, it refuses to withdraw that position or to acknowledge candidly that it does not currently have evidence to support a specified allegation. Under the former rule, parties were sometimes reluctant to abandon a questionable contention lest that be viewed as evidence of a violation of Rule 11; under the revision, the timely withdrawal of a contention will protect a party against a motion for sanctions.

To stress the seriousness of a motion for sanctions and to define precisely the conduct claimed to violate the rule, the revision provides that the "safe harbor" period begins to run only upon service of the motion. In most cases, however, counsel should be expected to give informal notice to the other party, whether in person or by a telephone call or letter, of a potential violation before proceeding to prepare and serve a Rule 11 motion.

As under former Rule 11, the filing of a motion for sanctions is itself subject to the requirements of the rule and can lead to sanctions. However, service of a cross motion under Rule 11 should rarely be needed since under the revision the court may award to the person who prevails on a motion under Rule 11—whether the movant or the target of the motion—reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred in presenting or opposing the motion.

The power of the court to act on its own initiative is retained, but with the condition that this be done through a show cause order. This procedure provides the person with notice and an opportunity to respond. The revision provides that a monetary sanction imposed after a court-initiated show cause order be limited to a penalty payable to the court and that it be imposed only if the show cause order is issued before any voluntary dismissal or an agreement of the parties to settle the claims made by or against the litigant. Parties settling a case should not be subsequently faced with an unexpected order from the court leading to monetary sanctions that might have affected their willingness to settle or voluntarily dismiss a case. Since show cause orders will ordinarily be issued only in situations that are akin to a contempt of court, the rule does not provide a "safe harbor" to a litigant for withdrawing a claim, defense, etc., after a show cause order has been issued on the court's own initiative. Such corrective action, however, should be taken into account in deciding what—if any—sanction to impose if, after consideration of the litigant's response, the court concludes that a violation has occurred.

Subdivision (d). Rules 26(g) and 37 establish certification standards and sanctions that apply to discovery disclosures, requests, responses, objections, and motions. It is appropriate that Rules 26 through 37, which are specially designed for the discovery process, govern such documents and conduct rather than the more general provisions of Rule 11. Subdivision (d) has been added to accomplish this result.

Rule 11 is not the exclusive source for control of improper presentations of claims, defenses, or contentions. It does not supplant statutes permitting awards of attorney's fees to prevailing parties or alter the principles governing such awards. It does not inhibit the court in punishing for contempt, in exercising its inherent powers, or in imposing sanctions, awarding expenses, or directing remedial action authorized under other rules or under 28 U.S.C. §1927. See Chambers v. NASCO, ____ U.S. ____ (1991). Chambers cautions, however, against reliance upon inherent powers if appropriate sanctions can be imposed under provisions such as Rule 11, and the procedures specified in Rule 11—notice, opportunity to respond, and findings—should ordinarily be employed when imposing a sanction under the court's inherent powers. Finally, it should be noted that Rule 11 does not preclude a party from initiating an independent action for malicious prosecution or abuse of process.

Committee Notes on Rules—2007 Amendment

The language of Rule 11 has been amended as part of the general restyling of the Civil Rules to make them more easily understood and to make style and terminology consistent throughout the rules. These changes are intended to be stylistic only.
