PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI

Petitioner Jesus Manuel Anchondo-Quezada seeks a writ of certiorari to review the judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

OPINIONS BELOW

The opinion of the Court of Appeals is located within the Federal Appendix at United States v. Jesus Manuel Anchondo-Quezada, 831 Fed. Appx. 138 (5th Cir. December 10, 2020) (unpublished). It is reprinted in Appendix A to this Petition. The district court's judgment and sentence is attached as Appendix B.

JURISDICTION

The panel opinion and judgment of the Fifth Circuit were entered on December 20, 2020. The 90-day deadline for filing a petition for writ of certiorari provided for in Supreme Court Rule 13 has been extended to 150 days from the date of the lower court judgment by order of this Court on March 19, 2020. This Court has jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1254(1).

STATUTORY AND RULES PROVISIONS

The Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution provides:

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law;

This Petition involves 8 U.S.C. § 1326, which states:

(a) In general. Subject to subsection (b), any alien who—

(1) has been denied admission, excluded, deported, or removed or has departed the United States while an order of exclusion, deportation, or removal is outstanding, and thereafter

(2) enters, attempts to enter, or is at any time found in, the United States, unless (A) prior to his reembarkation at a place outside the United States or his application for admission from foreign contiguous territory, the Attorney General has expressly consented to such alien's reapplying for admission; or (B) with respect to an alien previously denied admission and removed, unless such alien shall establish that he was not required to obtain such advance consent under this or any prior Act, shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, or imprisoned not more than 2 years or both.

(b) Criminal penalties for reentry of certain removed aliens. Notwithstanding subsection (a), in the case of any alien described in such subsection--

(1) whose removal was subsequent to a conviction for commission of three or more misdemeanors involving drugs, crimes against the person, or both, or a felony (other than an aggravated felony), such alien shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, imprisoned not more than 10 years, or both;

(2) whose removal was subsequent to a conviction for commission of an aggravated felony, such alien shall be fined under such title, imprisoned not more than 20 years, or both;

(3) who has been excluded from the United States pursuant to section 235(c) [8 USCS § 1225(c)] because the alien was excludable under section 212(a)(3)(B) [8 USCS § 1182(a)(3)(B)] or who has been removed from the United States pursuant to the provisions of title V [8 USCS §§ 1531 et seq.], and who thereafter, without the permission of the Attorney General, enters the United States, or attempts to do so, shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, and imprisoned for a period of 10 years, which sentence shall not run concurrently with any other sentence.[:] or

(4) who was removed from the United States pursuant to section 241(a)(4)(B) [8 USCS § 1231(a)(4)(B)] who thereafter, without the permission of the Attorney General, enters, attempts to enter, or is at any time found in, the United States (unless the Attorney General has expressly consented to such alien's reentry) shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, imprisoned for not more than 10 years, or both.

LIST OF PROCEEDINGS BELOW

1. United States v. Jesus Manuel Anchondo-Quezada, 4:20-CR-00025-O-1, United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas. Judgment and sentence entered on June 2, 2020. (Appendix B).
2. United States v. Jesus Manuel Anchondo-Quezada, 831 Fed. Appx. 138 (5th Cir. December 10, 2020), CA No. 20-10552, Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. Judgment affirmed on December 10, 2020. (Appendix A)

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On January 28, 2020, Jesus Gomez-Gomez (Anchondo-Quezada)¹ was charged in a one-count indictment with illegal re-entry after deportation, in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1326. (ROA.7). Other than citing 8 U.S.C. §1326(b)(1), the indictment contained no allegations of the factors that would invoke the sentencing enhancement provisions of 8 U.S.C. § 1326(b). On February 18, 2020, Anchondo-Quezada entered a guilty plea without a plea agreement. (ROA.3,29). As a part of the guilty plea, Anchondo-Quezada signed a written factual resume which contained the following stipulation of facts:

Jesus Anchondo-Quezada (Anchondo) is a citizen and national of Mexico, born in Chihuahua, Mexico. On about July 16, 2012, Anchondo was deported and removed to Mexico at Laredo, Texas. On or about June 3, 2018, Anchondo was encountered by immigration officials at the Fort Worth Police Department in Fort Worth, Texas, within the Federal Northern District of Texas. Anchondo had re-entered the United States illegally, and he had not applied for nor received permission from the Attorney General of the United States or the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security to re-enter the United States at any time after being deported.

(ROA.30).

Although the factual resume purported to set forth the elements of the offense, it did not state that the sentencing enhancement provisions of 8 U.S.C. § 1326(b) were elements that had to be alleged in the indictment and proven to a jury beyond a reasonable doubt. See (ROA.30). The factual resume contained no stipulation establishing the facts necessary to invoke those sentencing enhancements. See

¹ At his initial appearance, the defendant advised that his true name was Jesus Manuel Anchondo-Quezada. (ROA.3,10). At the re-arraignment hearing, the record was clarified once again to reflect that the correct spelling of the name was “Anchondo”. (ROA.50-51).

(ROA.30). The PSR calculated Anchondo-Quezada's base offense level at 13 and his criminal history category at IV, resulting in an advisory Guideline imprisonment range of 24-30 months. (ROA.87).

Anchondo-Quezada filed written objections to the PSR raising the issue that Almendarez-Torres was wrongly decided and that his sentence should be limited to a statutory maximum 2 years imprisonment and a one-year term of supervised release. (ROA.91-94). In the addendum to the PSR, the probation officer rejected Anchondo-Quezada's objection. (ROA.98). At the sentencing hearing, the district court overruled the objection. (ROA.66). The district court sentenced Anchondo-Quezada to a term of imprisonment of 30 months and a term of supervised release of three years. (ROA.40,69-70).

On appeal, Anchondo-Quezada argued that the statutory maximum term of supervised release was one year. The Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment and sentence finding that the issue was foreclosed by Almendarez-Torres v. United States, 523 U.S. 224 (1998). See United States v. Anchondo-Quezada, 831 Fed. Appx. at 138, Appendix A.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THIS PETITION

I. This Court should reconsider Almendarez-Torres v. United States.

Petitioner was subjected to an enhanced statutory maximum under 8 U.S.C. §1326(b) because the removal or deportation charged in the indictment followed a prior felony conviction. Petitioner's sentence thus depends on the judge's ability to find the existence and date of a prior conviction, and to use that date to increase the statutory maximum. This power was affirmed in Almendarez-Torres v. United States, 523 U.S. 224 (1998), which held that the enhanced maximums of 8 U.S.C. §1326 represent sentencing factors rather than elements of an offense, and that they may be constitutionally determined by judges rather than juries. See Almendarez-Torres, 523 U.S. at 244.

This Court, however, has repeatedly limited Almendarez-Torres. See Alleyne v. United States, 133 S. Ct. 2151, 2160 n.1 (2013) (characterizing Almendarez-Torres as a narrow exception to the general rule that all facts that increase punishment must be alleged in the indictment and proved to a jury beyond a reasonable doubt); Descamps v. United States, 133 S. Ct. 2276, 2295 (Thomas, J., concurring) (stating that Almendarez-Torres should be overturned); Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466, 490 (2000) (stressing that Almendarez-Torres represented “a narrow exception” to the prohibition on judicial fact-finding to increase a defendant's sentence); United States v. Shepard, 544 U.S. 13 (2005) (Souter, J., controlling plurality opinion) (“While the disputed fact here can be described as a fact about a prior conviction, it is too far removed from the conclusive significance of a prior judicial record, and too much like the findings subject to Jones and Apprendi, to say that Almendarez-Torres clearly authorizes a judge to resolve the dispute.”); Dretke v. Haley, 541 U.S. 386, 395-396 (2004) (concluding that the application of Almendarez-Torres to the sequence of a defendant’s prior convictions represented a difficult constitutional question to be avoided if possible); Nijhawan v. Holder, 129 S.Ct. 2294, 2302 (2009) (agreeing with the Solicitor General that the loss amount of a prior offense would represent an element of an 8 U.S.C. §1326(b) offense, to the extent that it boosted the defendant’s statutory maximum).

Further, any number of opinions, some authored by Justices among the Almendarez-Torres majority, have expressed doubt about whether it was correctly decided. See Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 490; Haley, 541 U.S. at 395-396; Shepard, 544 U.S. at 26 & n.5 (Souter, J., controlling plurality opinion); Shepard, 544 U.S. at 26-28 (Thomas, J., concurring); Rangel-Reyes v. United States, 547 U.S. 1200, 1201 (Stevens, J., concurring in denial of certiorari); Rangel-Reyes, 547 U.S. at 1202-1203 (Thomas, J., dissenting from denial of certiorari); James v. United States, 550 U.S. 192, 231-232 (2007) (Thomas, J., dissenting). And this Court has also repeatedly cited authorities as exemplary of the original meaning of the constitution that do not recognize a distinction between prior convictions and facts about the instant offense. See Blakely v. Washington, 542 U.S. 296, 301-302 (2004) (quoting W. Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England 343 (1769), 1 J. Bishop, Criminal Procedure § 87, p 55 (2d ed. 1872)); Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 478-479 (quoting J. Archbold, Pleading and Evidence in Criminal Cases 44 (15th ed. 1862), 4 Blackstone 369-370).

In Alleyne, this Court applied Apprendi's rule to mandatory minimum sentences, holding that any fact that produces a higher sentencing range—not just a sentence above the mandatory maximum—must be proved to a jury beyond a reasonable doubt. 133 S. Ct. at 2162–63. In its opinion, the Court apparently recognized that Almendarez-Torres's holding remains subject to Fifth and Sixth Amendment attack. Alleyne characterized Almendarez-Torres as a “narrow exception to the general rule” that all facts that increase punishment must be alleged in the indictment and proved to a jury beyond a reasonable doubt. Id. at 2160 n.1. But because the parties in Alleyne did not challenge Almendarez-Torres, this Court said that it would “not revisit it for purposes of [its] decision today.” Id.

The Court's reasoning nevertheless demonstrates that Almendarez-Torres's recidivism exception may be overturned. Alleyne traced the treatment of the relationship between crime and punishment, beginning in the Eighteenth Century, repeatedly noting how “[the] linkage of facts with particular sentence ranges . . . reflects the intimate connection between crime and punishment.” Id. at 2159 (“[i]f a fact was by law essential to the penalty, it was an element of the offense”); see id. (historically, crimes were defined as “the whole of the wrong to which the law affixes [] punishment . . . include[ing] any fact that annexes a higher degree of punishment”) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); id. at 2160 (“the indictment must contain an allegation of every fact which is legally essential to the punishment to be inflicted”) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). This Court concluded that, because “the whole of the” crime and its punishment cannot be separated, the elements of a crime must include any facts that increase the penalty. The Court recognized no limitations or exceptions to this principle.

Alleyne's emphasis that the elements of a crime include the "whole" of the facts for which a defendant is punished seriously undercuts the view, expressed in Almendarez-Torres, that recidivism is different from other sentencing facts. See Almendarez-Torres, 523 U.S. at 243–44; see also Apprendi, 530 U.S. at 490 ("Other than the fact of a prior conviction, any fact that increases the penalty for a crime beyond the prescribed statutory maximum must be submitted to a jury, and proved beyond a reasonable doubt."). Apprendi tried to explain this difference by pointing out that, unlike other facts, recidivism "does not relate to the commission of the offense' itself[.]" 530 U.S. at 496 (quoting Almendarez-Torres, 523 U.S. at 230). But this Court did not appear committed to that distinction; it acknowledged that Almendarez-Torres might have been "incorrectly decided." Id. at 489; see also Shepard v. United States, 544 U.S. 13, 26 n.5 (2005) (acknowledging that Court's holding in that case undermined Almendarez-Torres); Cunningham v. California, 549 U.S. 270, 291 n.14 (2007) (rejecting invitation to distinguish between "facts concerning the offense, where Apprendi would apply, and facts [like recidivism] concerning the offender, where it would not," because "Apprendi itself ... leaves no room for the bifurcated approach").

Three concurring justices in Alleyne provide additional reason to believe that the time is ripe to revisit Almendarez-Torres. See Alleyne, 133 S. Ct. at 2164 (Sotomayor, Ginsburg, Kagan, J.J., concurring). Those justices noted that the viability of the Sixth Amendment principle set forth in Apprendi was initially subject to some doubt, and some justices believed the Court “might retreat” from it. Id. at 2165. Instead, Apprendi’s rule “has become even more firmly rooted in the Court’s Sixth Amendment jurisprudence.” Id. Reversal of precedent is warranted when “the reasoning of [that precedent] has been thoroughly undermined by intervening decisions.” Id. at 2166.

The validity of Almendarez-Torres is accordingly subject to reasonable doubt. If Almendarez-Torres is overruled, the result will obviously undermine the use of Petitioner’s prior conviction to increase his statutory maximum. Petitioner’s 30-month term of imprisonment and three-year term of supervised release would exceed the statutory maximum of two years imprisonment and one year supervised release.

CONCLUSION

Petitioner respectfully submits that this Court should grant certiorari to review the judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Respectfully submitted this 10th day of May, 2021.
