

No. _____

---

---

In The
Supreme Court of the United States

---

---

STEPHEN ALEXANDER,

Petitioner,

vs.

THE STATE OF GEORGIA,

Respondent.

---

---

On Petition For Writ Of Certiorari
To The Supreme Court Of Georgia

---

---

PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

---

---

BRIAN STEEL
Counsel of Record
THE STEEL LAW FIRM, P.C.
1800 Peachtree Street NW
Suite 300
Atlanta, Ga 30309
thesteellawfirm@msn.com
(404) 605-0023
Counsel for Petitioner

TYLER CONKLIN
CONKLIN LAW FIRM
1800 Peachtree Street NW
Suite 300
Atlanta, Ga 30309
tyler@conklinlaw.com
(404) 254-3194
Counsel for Petitioner

---

---

COCKLE LEGAL BRIEFS (800) 225-6964
WWW.COCKLELEGALBRIEFS.COM

RECEIVED
JUN 7 2 2022
OFFICE OF THE CLERK
SUPREME COURT, U.S.

QUESTION PRESENTED

When Defense Counsel errs by not objecting to an improper courtroom closure, should reviewing courts apply a “fundamental unfairness” test, or the traditional test (reasonable probability of a different outcome) when analyzing prejudice under the second prong of Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668 (1984)?

PARTIES TO PROCEEDING AND RELATED CASES

There is no parent or publicly held company owning 10% or more of the corporation's stock involved in this case. Rules 14.1(b)(ii) and 29.6.

A list of all proceedings in other courts that are directly related to the case appear below. Rule 14.1(b)(iii).

- State v. Alexander, No. 14-CR-487 (Ga. Super. June 25, 2019).
- Alexander v. State, 356 Ga. App. 392 (2020).
- Alexander v. State, 313 Ga. 521 (2022).

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Page
QUESTION PRESENTED.....	i
PARTIES TO PROCEEDING AND RELATED CASES .....	ii
TABLE OF CONTENTS .....	iii
TABLE OF AUTHORITIES .....	v
OPINIONS BELOW.....	1
JURISDICTION.....	1
RELEVANT CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS ....	1
STATEMENT OF THE CASE.....	2
REASONS FOR GRANTING THE WRIT.....	4
Courts across the country have interpreted Weaver in vastly disparate ways .....	5
This is the ideal case to answer the unresolved question in Weaver .....	8
This question must be resolved in order to ensure an evenhanded and uniform application of the Sixth Amendment .....	8
CONCLUSION.....	9

APPENDIX

APPENDIX A Opinion of the Supreme Court of Georgia .....	App. 1
APPENDIX B Opinion of the Georgia Court of Appeals .....	App. 23

TABLE OF CONTENTS – Continued

	Page
APPENDIX C Order from the Superior Court of Banks County (trial court) denying the motion for new trial .....	App. 32
APPENDIX D Amended Motion for New Trial wherein Petitioner alleged that his trial counsel rendered ineffective assistance by failing to object to the courtroom closure .....	App. 64
APPENDIX E Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution (U.S. Const. amend. VI) .....	App. 71

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

	Page
CASES
FEDERAL CASES
Canfield v. Lumpkin , 998 F.3d 242 (5th Cir. 2021) .....	5, 6
Johnson v. Raemisch , 779 F. App'x 507 (10th Cir. 2019) .....	6
Meadows v. Lind , 996 F.3d 1067 (10th Cir. 2021) .....	6
Pirela v. Horn , 710 F. App'x 66 (3d Cir. 2017) .....	6
Strickland v. Washington , 466 U.S. 668 (1984) .....	4, 5, 6, 8, 9
United States v. Aguiar , 894 F.3d 351 (D.C. Cir. 2018) .....	6, 9
United States v. Thomas , 750 F. App'x 120 (3d Cir. 2018) .....	6
Weaver v. Massachusetts , 137 S. Ct. 1899, 198 L.Ed.2d 420 (2017) .....	passim
Williams v. Burt , 949 F.3d 966 (6th Cir. 2020) .....	6, 9
STATE CASES
Alexander v. State , 356 Ga.App. 392 (2020) .....	1
Alexander v. State , 313 Ga. 521 (2022) .....	7, 9
Cabrera v. State , 173 A.3d 1012 (Del. 2017) .....	7
Commonwealth v. Diaz , 183 A.3d 417 (2018) .....	7
Danforth v. Minnesota , 552 U.S. 264 (2008) .....	9

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES – Continued

	Page
Khalil-Alsalaami v. State , 486 P.3d 1216 (2021) .....	7
Newton v. State , 168 A.3d 1 (Md. Ct. Spec. App. 2017) .....	7
Reid v. State , 286 Ga. 484, 690 S.E.2d 177 (2010).....	4
State v. Garcia , 424 P.3d 171 (Utah 2017) .....	6

STATUTES AND CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS

28 U.S.C. § 1257(a).....	1
U.S. Const. amend. VI.....	1, 5, 7, 8, 9

PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

Stephen Alexander respectfully petitions for a writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of Georgia.

---

OPINIONS BELOW

The published opinion of the Supreme Court of Georgia can be found at 870 S.E.2d 729. The published opinion of the Georgia Court of Appeals can be found at 356 Ga.App. 392. The relevant trial court proceeding and order are unpublished.

---

JURISDICTION

The Supreme Court of Georgia affirmed Alexander's convictions on March 15, 2022. This Court has jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1257(a).

---

RELEVANT CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS

The Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution provides:

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial[.]

---

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner was charged and tried in Banks County, Georgia on multiple sexual offenses against his two (2) stepdaughters. (Appendix A page 3 (hereinafter App. A. 3); App. C. 1). At the time of trial, Petitioner's stepdaughters were both under 16 years of age. (App. A. 3).

Prior to trial, the prosecution moved to close the courtroom while the two (2) victims testified. (App. C. 2). Without any objection and, in fact, with the consent of Petitioner's trial counsel, the trial court cleared the courtroom of all spectators, except the alleged victims' uncle and the prosecution called, as its first witness, Petitioner's stepdaughter M.A. (App. C. 2).

In a closed courtroom, M.A. testified to the incidents with, and acts of, Petitioner that took place. (T. 71-99). M.A. testified to the sexual abuse she first experienced in Habersham County, Georgia and the abuse that continued after they moved to Banks County, Georgia. (App. C. 2).

While the Courtroom was still closed to the public, Director of Forensic Services for Treehouse, Jason Simpson, without objection, was accepted as an expert in forensic interviewing and child sexual abuse and testified to a forensic interview he conducted with the victims. (App. C. 2-3). Simpson testified that he detected signs that M.A. was coached and attributed same to Petitioner's comments not to tell anyone about this abuse. (App. C. 2-3). Mr. Simpson testified that

M.A.'s disclosure was consistent with a child who has experienced sexual abuse. (App. C. 2-3).

With the courtroom still closed, M.A. then testified to the Petitioner's sexual abuse that she experienced (App. C. 3). At the conclusion of M.A.'s testimony, the trial court then opened the Courtroom and the trial continued (App. C. 3).

The record is devoid of any indication that the trial judge made any findings of fact, much less adequate findings of fact, pursuant to the closure of the courtroom.

At the close of trial, Petitioner was convicted of multiple counts of rape, aggravated child molestation, aggravated sexual battery, incest, and false imprisonment. (App. B. 1). Petitioner made a timely motion for new trial, enumerating multiple errors including ineffective assistance of counsel based on the failure to object to the courtroom closure. (App. C. 8-9). Hearings commenced pursuant thereto on August 10, 2018, and November 15, 2018. (App. C. 8). Motion for new trial was denied on June 25, 2019. (App. C. 1).

The Honorable Georgia Court of Appeals denied petitioner's request for relief based upon trial counsel's ineffective assistance, among other enumerated errors. (App. B. 1-9). The Honorable Supreme Court of Georgia granted certiorari to determine the question of whether trial counsel's failure to object to an improper closure of the courtroom, a structural error, requires a showing of actual prejudice, or some lesser standard, to succeed on an ineffective assistance of counsel claim.

(App. A. 1–2). Specifically, the Honorable Supreme Court of Georgia would review whether its prior decision in Reid v. State, 286 Ga. 484, 690 S.E.2d 177 (2010), which states that a defendant claiming structural error must still show prejudice where that error was not objected to, is sound considering the U.S. Supreme Court’s opinion in Weaver v. Massachusetts, 137 S. Ct. 1899, 198 L.Ed.2d 420 (2017). (App. A. 1–2).

The Honorable Supreme Court of Georgia, determining the language of the opinion in Weaver v. Massachusetts, supra, regarding fundamental unfairness as it relates to the prejudice inquiry of ineffective assistance to be “merely dicta,” denied petitioner’s request for relief based on his ineffective assistance claim because he failed to make a showing of prejudice. (App. A. 27–28).

---

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE WRIT

In Weaver v. Massachusetts, 137 S. Ct. 1899, 1907–1913 (2017), this Court held that when defense counsel fails to object to an improper courtroom closure, a defendant must establish some form of prejudice under Strickland to obtain a new trial. Under the facts in Weaver, the petitioner could not demonstrate prejudice, through either the traditional test or by a showing of fundamental unfairness. Weaver, 137 S. Ct. at 1913. The Court went on to state that when a courtroom is closed under different circumstances than those present in Weaver, such as where closure occurs during the presentation of evidence, “the remaining question [would be] whether petitioner has shown that counsel’s failure to object rendered the trial fundamentally unfair.” Id.

This open question of which test to apply under the prejudice prong of Strickland in courtroom closure cases – and some other categories of cases involving structural error – has sowed confusion amongst courts across the country. The difficulty that courts have had interpreting Weaver has led to inconsistent results for criminal defendants in our court system. Because the Sixth Amendment should be applied uniformly across all jurisdictions, this Court should take the opportunity presented here to clarify its holdings in Weaver.

Courts across the country have interpreted Weaver in vastly disparate ways.

In Weaver, this Court explained that “[f]or the analytical purposes of this case, [it] will assume that petitioner’s interpretation of Strickland [that relief can be granted if the errors made the trial fundamentally unfair; even if there was no reasonable probability of a different outcome] is the correct one.” But, the Court went on to write that, “in light of the Court’s ultimate holding, however, the Court need not decide that question here.” Because this Court left this question unresolved, courts across the country rendered substantially different interpretations of Weaver.

The dissenting opinion in Canfield v. Lumpkin, 998 F.3d 242, 257 (5th Cir. 2021), concluded that

Weaver itself left open the issue of which test for prejudice governs a “fundamental unfairness” structural error when viewed through the lens of Strickland. The dissent in Canfield also recognized, however, that circuit courts differ on whether this is the correct interpretation of Weaver. See Canfield, 998 F.3d at 258 n.57.

As noted in Canfield, several circuits have considered how to interpret the meaning of prejudice in the wake of Weaver. The Tenth Circuit holds that Weaver left the issue open when it “expressly withheld judgment on this issue.” Meadows v. Lind, 996 F.3d 1067, 1080 (10th Cir. 2021). See also Johnson v. Raemisch, 779 F. App’x 507, 513 n.5 (10th Cir. 2019) (determining that Weaver did not alter the prejudice prong under Strickland). Other circuits, however, have construed Weaver to hold that a showing of prejudice is met where there has been a structural violation that rendered the “trial fundamentally unfair.” Williams v. Burt, 949 F.3d 966, 978 (6th Cir. 2020); United States v. Aguiar, 894 F.3d 351, 356 (D.C. Cir. 2018); United States v. Thomas, 750 F. App’x 120, 128 (3d Cir. 2018); Pirela v. Horn, 710 F. App’x 66, 83 n.16 (3d Cir. 2017) (unpublished).

Likewise, State courts also remain split on how to interpret Weaver. Many conclude that Weaver permits a defendant to show prejudice by (“either a reasonable probability of a different outcome in his or her case or . . . that the particular public-trial violation was so serious as to render his or her trial fundamentally unfair.”) State v. Garcia, 424 P.3d 171, 180 (Utah 2017).

See also Newton v. State, 168 A.3d 1, 10 (Md. Ct. Spec. App. 2017). Others have expressed uncertainty as to Weaver's meaning. Commonwealth v. Diaz, 183 A.3d 417, 431 (2018), aff'd, 226 A.3d 995 (Pa. 2020) ("[T]he Court did not clearly set forth how prejudice was to be applied when reviewing a claim of structural error in the collateral context."). See also Khalil-Alsalaami v. State, 486 P.3d 1216, 1238 (2021) (under Weaver, "we must look to the circumstances of each case to determine whether counsel's deficient performance . . . rendered the proceedings fundamentally unfair or otherwise affected the outcome of the verdict").

And yet, at least one state, Georgia, where this case arises, has held that the "fundamental unfairness" test espoused in Weaver constitutes dicta. Alexander v. State, 313 Ga. 521, 531 (2022). Georgia rejected the "fundamental unfairness" test altogether and applied the traditional "reasonable probability of a different outcome" test. Id.; Cabrera v. State, 173 A.3d 1012, 1022–1023 (Del. 2017) (apparently using the traditional prejudice test in a case where "the same factors at play in Weaver" were present).

Given the discord among courts' interpretations of Weaver, this Court should now answer the question left open in Weaver. By granting certiorari in this case, the Court can not only answer the unresolved question, but also provide guidance to lower courts on the proper application of prejudice under the Sixth Amendment in structural error cases.

This is the ideal case to answer the unresolved question in Weaver.

When this Court found that the petitioner in Weaver could not meet his burden of showing prejudice, it specifically noted that “[i]n other circumstances a different result might obtain. If for instance, defense counsel errs in failing to object when the government’s main witness testifies in secret, then the defendant might be able to show prejudice with little more detail.” Here, the petitioner was charged with several sexual offenses against his stepdaughters. The stepdaughters, who were the State’s two main witnesses, testified while the courtroom was improperly closed. Considering that this Court explicitly stated that a different result may be obtained under these facts, it makes this case ideally positioned to clarify any ambiguities in the Weaver decision that have plagued the lower courts.

This question must be resolved in order to ensure an evenhanded and uniform application of the Sixth Amendment.

The circuit and state splits on the interpretation of Weaver make clear that, depending on the jurisdiction in which a criminal defendant asserts a Sixth Amendment claim under Strickland that their right to a public trial was violated, the outcomes may differ. One court may impose the more stringent standard of prejudice that the closure caused a different outcome, while others may allow for a lower showing of prejudice by simply showing a fundamental unfairness based on the type of closure.

Weaver discussed a “fundamental unfairness” test as a potential alternative to demonstrating prejudice arising from counsel’s failure to object to a courtroom closure, but some circuits have held that the United States Supreme Court did not adopt that test, while others have held that Weaver adopts the fundamental unfairness test. Alexander, 313 Ga. 521; Aguiar, 436 U.S. App. D.C. 409; Williams, 949 F.3d 966. Which test for prejudice to apply is an important question that this Court should address to ensure consistency in the administration of individual rights under the Sixth Amendment.

---

CONCLUSION

This Court should grant certiorari to resolve conflicts among circuits and states on this question. States and lower federal courts are not at liberty to apply Strickland – which is rooted in the Sixth Amendment – in whatever manner they choose. Instead, they must apply the Sixth Amendment as directed and interpreted by this Court. The various interpretations of Weaver call for this Court’s clarification. See Danforth v. Minnesota, 552 U.S. 264, 291–292 (2008) (“State courts are the final arbiters of their own state law; this Court is the final arbiter of federal law.”).

Respectfully submitted this 13th day of June, 2022
by:

BRIAN STEEL Counsel of Record THE STEEL LAW FIRM, P.C. 1800 Peachtree Street NW Suite 300 Atlanta, Ga 30309 thesteellawfirm@msn.com (404) 605-0023 Counsel for Petitioner	TYLER CONKLIN CONKLIN LAW FIRM 1800 Peachtree Street NW Suite 300 Atlanta, Ga 30309 tyler@conklinlaw.com (404) 254-3194 Counsel for Petitioner
--	--