

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11 12
13 14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Appendix A

FILED

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS

FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

DEC 14 2020

MOLLY C. DWYER, CLERK
U.S. COURT OF APPEALS

GEORGE BRASS,

Petitioner-Appellant,

v.

BRIAN WILLIAMS, SR., ATTORNEY
GENERAL FOR THE STATE OF NEVADA,

Respondents-Appellees.

No. 20-16004

D.C. No. 2:13-cv-02020-GMN-VCF
District of Nevada,
Las Vegas

ORDER

Before: BYBEE and HURWITZ, Circuit Judges.

The request for a certificate of appealability (Docket Entry No. 2) is denied because appellant has not shown that “jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the petition states a valid claim of the denial of a constitutional right and that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the district court was correct in its procedural ruling.” Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000); see also 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2); Gonzalez v. Thaler, 565 U.S. 134, 140-41 (2012); Miller-El v. Cockrell, 537 U.S. 322, 327 (2003).

Any pending motions are denied as moot.

DENIED.

05/26/2020	<input type="checkbox"/> 1 3 pg, 272.49 KB	Open 9th Circuit docket: needs certificate of appealability. Date COA denied in DC: 05/01/2020. Record on appeal included: Yes. [11700431] (JBS) [Entered: 05/26/2020 10:31 AM]
05/26/2020	<input type="checkbox"/> 2 24 pg, 183.46 KB	Filed (ECF) Appellant George Brass Motion for certificate of appealability. Date of service: 05/26/2020. [11700551] [20-16004] (Eibert, Mark) [Entered: 05/26/2020 11:26 AM]
06/19/2020	<input type="checkbox"/> 3	Criminal Justice Act electronic voucher created. (Counsel: Mr. Mark Eibert, Esquire for George Brass) [11727345] (DO) [Entered: 06/19/2020 10:07 AM]
12/14/2020	<input type="checkbox"/> 4 1 pg, 155.64 KB	Filed order (JAY S. BYBEE and ANDREW D. HURWITZ): The request for a certificate of appealability (Docket Entry No. [2]) is denied because appellant has not shown that "jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the petition states a valid claim of the denial of a constitutional right and that jurists of reason would find it debatable whether the district court was correct in its procedural ruling." Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484 (2000); see also 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2); Gonzalez v. Thaler, 565 U.S. 134, 140-41 (2012); Miller-El v. Cockrell, 537 U.S. 322, 327 (2003). Any pending motions are denied as moot. DENIED. [11926149] (AF) [Entered: 12/14/2020 12:07 PM]

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11 12
13 14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Appendix B

Appendix B

1
2
3
4
5
6 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

7 DISTRICT OF NEVADA

8 GEORGE M. BRASS,

9 Petitioner

10 v.

11 BRIAN WILLIAMS, SR., et al.,

12 Respondents.

Case No.: 2:13-cv-02020-GMN-VCF

13 Order

14 Petitioner George M. Brass filed a petition for writ of habeas corpus under 28 U.S.C. § 15 2254. This matter is before the Court for adjudication of the merits of the remaining grounds in 16 the petition. For the reasons discussed below, this court denies the petition, denies a certificate of 17 appealability, and directs the Clerk of the Court to enter judgment accordingly.

18 Background

19 Brass was charged with crimes related to events that occurred in Clark County, Nevada
20 on September 15, 2006, and September 22, 2006. ECF No. 32-1. On September 15, 2006, 21 Graciela Saavedra de Cerdá was sitting in a van with her son at a business complex in Las 22 Vegas, Nevada. ECF No. 33-2 at 43. Saavedra de Cerdá testified that there were several Mexican 23 men standing outside of the business complex talking. Id. at 51. Saavedra de Cerdá noticed three

1 young African American men “walking from a path that was coming from some apartments
2 nearby” towards the group of Mexican men, and a few minutes later, she heard six gunshots. Id.
3 at 44, 50.

4 One of the Mexican men, Martin Candelos, testified that he was standing outside of a
5 counseling meeting with his friend, Antonio Perez-Martinez, and a new acquaintance, Mario
6 Mendez. Id. at 61-62. They were approached by three African American men who pointed two 7 guns at them and demanded money. Id. at 67-68. Candelos managed to get away after struggling 8 with one of the African American men and was shot at as he was running away. Id. at 71-73.
9 Perez-Martinez was shot and killed in the confrontation, and Mendez managed to hide behind a 10 palm tree. Id. at 90, 95.

11 One week later, on September 22, 2006, Victor Manuel Abris, Leodelgado Leon Carlos, 12 Lovardo Ledesma Nunez, Cesar Carrizales, and Saul Nunez-Suastegui were outside of the 13 Village Palm Apartments in Las Vegas, Nevada. ECF No. 33-2 at 213-215. The five men were 14 standing around talking when they heard “the cocking of a weapon or something.” Id. at 217.
15 Thereafter, four African American men, each with a handgun and wearing a face-covering scarf, 16 approached and demanded money. Id. at 219-220. Even though some of the five men attempted
17 to give the African American men their wallets or jewelry, all four African American men started 18 firing their weapons. Id. at 222, 233. Carrizales was shot in the head and survived; however, 19 Nunez-Suastegui suffered a fatal gunshot wound. Id. at 234-35; ECF No. 33-3 at 12-13.

20 Regarding the September 15, 2006 crime scene, Brass’s fingerprints were found on a gate
21 near the scene, and the casings and bullets recovered from the scene and the bullet recovered
22 from the autopsy of Perez-Martinez were linked to a .9-millimeter handgun belonging to one of 23 Brass’s co-defendants, Eugene Nunnery. ECF No. 33-2 at 141-42, 151-54, 189; ECF No. 33-3 at

1 109-112. Regarding the September 22, 2006 events, it was determined that Nunez-Suastegui was 2 shot by the same .9-millimeter handgun belonging to Nunnery. ECF No. 33-3 at 113-116. There
3 were also casings found at the scene linked to a .45-caliber gun and bullets linked to a medium
4 caliber gun. Id. at 113-114, 118. Brass's cell phone was recovered near the scene. Id. at 96, 149-
5 52, 167. During a police interview, Brass admitted that he was with Nunnery on September 22, 6 2006, but Brass alleged that Nunnery got into an altercation with one of the victims and starting 7 shooting after Brass had already started to walk away. ECF No. 33-3 at 182-83, 188. Later, during 8 a search of Brass's parents' residence, a revolver was located. ECF No. 33-4 at 27-28.

9 Following a jury trial, on October 20, 2009, Brass was found guilty of the charges related
10 to the September 22, 2006 incident: one count of murder with the use of a deadly weapon, two 11 counts of attempted murder with the use of a deadly weapon, one count of conspiracy to commit 12 robbery, one count of robbery with the use of a deadly weapon, and two counts of attempted 13 robbery with the use of a deadly weapon. ECF No. 34-1. Brass was found not guilty of the 14 September 15, 2006 events. Id. The state district court sentenced Brass to two consecutive terms
15 of life with the possibility of parole. ECF No. 34-6. Brass appealed, and the Nevada Supreme 16 Court affirmed. ECF No. 36-1. Remittitur issued on January 4, 2011. ECF No. 36-2.

17 Brass filed a pro se state habeas petition and a counseled, supplemental memorandum in 18 support of his petition on April 5, 2011 and January 9, 2012, respectively. ECF Nos. 36-4, 38-3.
19 An evidentiary hearing was held on June 18, 2012, and on July 30, 2012, the state district court
20 denied Brass's state habeas petition. ECF Nos. 39, 39-1. Brass appealed, and the Nevada
21 Supreme Court affirmed. ECF No. 40-2. Remittitur issued on October 18, 2013. ECF No. 40-3.

22 Brass filed a pro se federal habeas petition and a counseled, first amended petition on 23 November 22, 2013 and December 17, 2014, respectively. ECF Nos. 7, 24. On January 9, 2015,

1 Brass moved for a stay and abeyance of his federal habeas action in order to exhaust his 2 remedies in state district court. ECF No. 43. The Respondents moved to dismiss Brass's first
3 amended petition and opposed his motion for a stay and abeyance. ECF Nos. 47, 48.

4 On September 18, 2015, Brass filed a second state habeas petition. ECF No. 73-1. The 5 state district court denied the petition, and the Nevada Court of Appeals affirmed on October 18, 6 2016. ECF Nos. 73-3, 73-5.

7 On September 7, 2017, this court denied Brass's motion for stay and abeyance as moot
8 and denied the Respondents' motion to dismiss without prejudice. ECF No. 65. The Respondents
9 renewed their motion to dismiss Brass's first amended federal habeas petition on February 2, 10 2018. ECF No. 72. This court granted the renewed motion to dismiss in part. ECF No. 84.
11 Specifically, this court dismissed Grounds Four and Nine. Id. at 10. The Respondents answered
12 the remaining claims on August 23, 2018. ECF No. 89. Brass replied on November 5, 2018. ECF
13 No. 98.

14 In his remaining ground for relief, Brass alleges the following violations of his federal 15 constitutional rights:

- 16 1. The state district court impermissibly admitted the revolver.
- 17 2. Joinder of the two September 2006 instances for trial was fundamentally unfair.
- 18 3. The state district court improperly allowed the prior testimony of two witnesses.
- 19 5. The state district court impermissibly denied his theory of defense instruction and allowed other instructions that contradicted the mere presence instruction given.
- 20 6a. His trial counsel failed to investigate or hire experts related to the revolver, the bullet fragment, or the gun powder residue.
- 21 6b. His trial counsel refused to allow him to testify.
- 22 6c. His trial counsel failed to object to prosecutorial misconduct.
- 23 6d. His trial counsel failed to object to the unlawfully composed jury.
- 6e. His trial counsel failed to object to improper jury instructions.
- 7a. His appellate counsel failed to federalize claims.

- 7b. His appellate counsel failed to raise ineffective-assistance-of-counsel claims.
- 7c. His appellate counsel failed to argue error in granting the motion to withdraw his guilty plea.
- 8. His trial counsel failed to investigate and erroneously advised him in relation to the plea agreement.
- 10. There were cumulative errors.

5 ECF No. 24.

Discussion

7 A. Standard of review

8 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d) sets forth the standard of review generally applicable in habeas 9 corpus cases under the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act (“AEDPA”):

An application for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a person in custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court shall not be granted with respect to any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in State court proceedings unless the adjudication of the claim –

(1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or

(2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding.

16 A state court decision is contrary to clearly established Supreme Court precedent, within the 17 meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2254, “if the state court applies a rule that contradicts the governing 18 law set forth in [the Supreme Court’s] cases” or “if the state court confronts a set of facts that 19 are materially indistinguishable from a decision of [the Supreme] Court.” Lockyer v. Andrade, 20 538 U.S. 63, 73 (2003) (quoting Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 405-06 (2000), and citing 21 Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 694 (2002)). A state court decision is an unreasonable application 22 of clearly established Supreme Court precedent within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d) “if 23 the state court identifies the correct governing legal principle from [the Supreme] Court’s

1 decisions but unreasonably applies that principle to the facts of the prisoner's case." Id. at 75
2 (quoting Williams, 529 U.S. at 413). "The 'unreasonable application' clause requires the state
3 court decision to be more than incorrect or erroneous. The state court's application of clearly
4 established law must be objectively unreasonable." Id. (quoting Williams, 529 U.S. at 409-10)
5 (internal citation omitted).

6 The Supreme Court has instructed that "[a] state court's determination that a claim lacks 7 merit precludes federal habeas relief so long as 'fairminded jurists could disagree' on the 8 correctness of the state court's decision." Harrington v. Richter, 562 U.S. 86, 101 (2011) (citing
9 Yarborough v. Alvarado, 541 U.S. 652, 664 (2004)). The Supreme Court has stated "that even a 10 strong case for relief does not mean the state court's contrary conclusion was unreasonable." Id.
11 at 102 (citing Lockyer, 538 U.S. at 75); see also Cullen v. Pinholster, 563 U.S. 170, 181 (2011)
12 (describing the standard as a "difficult to meet" and "highly deferential standard for evaluating 13 state-court rulings, which demands that state-court decisions be given the benefit of the doubt" 14 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted)).

15 B. Ground 1

16 In Ground 1, Brass alleges that his federal constitutional rights were violated when the 17 state district court impermissibly admitted the revolver. ECF No. 24 at 23. Because the revolver
18 and ammunition were not the same type found at the crime scenes and because there was no 19 evidence that he actually owned or possessed the revolver, Brass alleges that this evidence was 20 not relevant, was unfairly prejudicial, and confused and misled the jury. Id. at 23-24. In Brass's
21 appeal of his judgment of conviction, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

22 Brass argues that the district court erred in admitting evidence related to a firearm
23 recovered from his parents' home. We discern no abuse of discretion. See Archanian v. State, 122 Nev. 1019, 1029, 145 P.3d 1008, 1016 (2006) ("District courts are vested with considerable discretion in determining the relevance and

1 admissibility of evidence.”). As the firearm was recovered days after the shooting
2 from a home where Brass had been staying and was of a similar caliber to bullet
3 fragments recovered at the scene, Brass did not demonstrate that the district court’s 4 decision was “manifestly wrong.” Id. Moreover, as Brass was acquitted of the 5 charges resulting from the incident where only two of the three assailants were 6 armed, he did not demonstrate that the jury was misled. See NRS 48.035(1)
7 (“Although relevant, evidence is not admissible if its probative value is 8 substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice, of confusion of the 9 issues or of misleading the jury.”).

10 ECF No. 36-1 at 1-2. The Nevada Supreme Court’s rejection of this claim was neither contrary
11 to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by the United States
12 Supreme Court.

13 Prior to trial, Brass moved to suppress “the weapons seized from [his] parent’s house”
14 because “they [were] not tied in any way to the two robberies for which [he was] charged.” ECF
15 No. 32-5 at 5. A hearing was held on Brass’s motion. See ECF No. 32-6. The state district court
16 declined to determine whether it would admit the revolver found at Brass’s parents’ house;
17 rather, the state district court indicated that it was “going to have to hear the testimony” first. Id.
18 at 67. The state district court explained that “[i]f [the evidence led it] to believe that [Brass was] 19 probably there [at the crime scene] and he probably had a gun, then . . . the fact that a gun was 20 recovered in a time not too distant in terms of proximity” was relevant and the revolver would be 21 admitted; however, “if it appear[ed] that he’s there and nobody has any reason to place a gun in 22 his hand, it’s probably not coming in.” Id. at 67-68.

23 Later, during the second day of trial, Victor Manuel Abris and Lovardo Ledesma Nunez, 24 victims of the September 22, 2006 events, both testified that all four African American men had 25 handguns. ECF No. 33-2 at 219-220, 232. Similarly, a witness to the September 22, 2006 events, 26 Oscar Carcamo, testified that each of the four African American men had a gun. Id. at 244, 249.
27 At the close of testimony on the second day of trial, the state district court indicated that “we’ve

1 got three different witnesses who all say four [of the individuals] were armed and four were 2 shooting," which puts Brass "in at last constructive possession of a gun." Id. at 259. Therefore,
3 the state district court explained that it thought "the relevance [of the revolver found in Brass's
4 parents' house] is great and the probative [value] outweighs the prejudice." Id.

5 The following day, Jessie Sams, a crime scene analyst, testified that she "was called in on 6 a search warrant to recover evidence" from Brass's parents' residence. ECF No. 33-4 at 21-22.
7 Sams testified that she located a black backpack in the residence that contained some 8 ammunition and a "Taurus .38 special ultra light revolver." Id. at 27-28. Sams explained that the 9 latent fingerprints on the revolver "were not of sufficient quality" for comparison purposes, and 10 that there were no "identifiers to determine who owned th[e] backpack." Id. at 28, 32-33. It was 11 later determined that "[t]he evidence bullets and cartridge cases [recovered from the scene] had 12 not been fired by the Taurus revolver." ECF No. 63-1.

13 "A habeas petitioner bears a heavy burden in showing a due process violation based on 14 an evidentiary decision." Boyde v. Brown, 404 F.3d 1159, 1172 (9th Cir. 2005), as amended on 15 reh'g, 421 F.3d 1154 (9th Cir. 2005). "[C]laims deal[ing] with admission of evidence" are 16 "issue[s] of state law," Holley v. Yarborough, 568 F.3d 1091, 1101 (9th Cir. 2009), and "federal 17 habeas corpus relief does not lie for errors of state law." Lewis v. Jeffers, 497 U.S. 764 (1990).
18 Thus, the issue before this court is "whether the state proceedings satisfied due process." Jammal
19 v. Van de Kamp, 926 F.2d 918, 919-20 (9th Cir. 1991). In order for the admission of evidence to 20 provide a basis for habeas relief, the evidence must have "rendered the trial fundamentally unfair 21 in violation of due process." Johnson v. Sublett, 63 F.3d 926, 930 (9th Cir. 1995) (citing Estelle
22 v. McGuire, 502 U.S. 62, 67 (1991)). Not only must there be "no permissible inference the jury
23

1 may draw from the evidence," but also the evidence must "be of such quality as necessarily 2 prevents a fair trial." Jammal, 926 F.2d at 920 (emphasis in original) (citation omitted).

3       Although the revolver found at Brass's parents' residence was not linked to the physical 4 evidence recovered from the crime scene and there was nothing connecting Brass to the revolver
5 other than the location where it was found, it cannot be concluded that the admission of the 6 revolver rendered Brass's trial fundamentally unfair in violation of his due process rights.

7 Estelle, 502 U.S. at 67; Sublett, 63 F.3d at 930; Jammal, 926 F.2d at 920. As the state district
8 court noted, two victims and one witness testified that all four African American men had 9 handguns during the events on September 22, 2006. ECF No. 33-2 at 219-220, 232, 244, 249.
10 Therefore, there was a permissible inference to be drawn from the admission of the revolver: that 11 Brass was potentially one of the four armed individuals because he had access to a handgun.
12 Jammal, 926 F.2d at 920. Further, "[u]nder AEDPA, even clearly erroneous admissions of 13 evidence that render a trial fundamentally unfair may not permit the grant of federal habeas 14 corpus relief if not forbidden by 'clearly established Federal law,' as laid out by the Supreme 15 Court." Yarborough, 568 F.3d at 1101 (citing 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d)); see also Dowling v. United 16 States, 493 U.S. 342, 352 (1990) (explaining that the Supreme Court has "defined the category of 17 infractions that violate 'fundamental fairness' very narrowly"). And importantly, the Supreme 18 Court "has not yet made a ruling that admission of irrelevant or overtly prejudicial evidence 19 constitutes a due process violation sufficient to warrant issuance of the writ." Id. Accordingly, 20 because the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably denied Brass relief on this claim, Brass is denied 21 federal habeas relief for Ground 1.

22 ///

23 ///

1 C. Ground 2

2 In Ground 2, Brass alleges that his federal constitutional rights were violated when the 3 state district court joined the two September 2006 incidents at trial. ECF No. 24 at 24. In 4 Brass's appeal of his judgment of conviction, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

5 Brass argues that the district court improperly joined two separate instances for 6 trial. However, because the two separate transactions, which were temporally and 7 geographically proximate as well as methodically similar, "constitute[ed] parts of 8 a common scheme or plan," see NRS 173.115(2), we conclude that the district court
9 did not abuse its discretion. See Graves v. State, 112 Nev. 118, 128, 912 P.2d 234, 10 240 (1996) (concluding that defendant's systematic walk from one casino to 11 another where he attempted to steal while in each constituted a common scheme); 12 Tillema v. State, 112 Nev. 266, 268, 914 P.2d 605, 606-07 (1996) (holding that 13 vehicle burglaries 17 days apart were part of a common scheme or plan). Moreover,
14 as Brass was acquitted of the charges resulting from the September 15, 2006, 15 incident, he did not demonstrate "a substantial and injurious effect on the jury's 16 verdict," Weber v. State, 121 Nev. 554, 570-71, 119 P.3d 107, 119 (2005), as the 17 jury carefully considered the evidence relating to each charge did not infer from the 18 joinder of charges that Brass had a criminal disposition.

19 ECF No. 36-1 at 2. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of this claim was neither contrary to 20 nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by the United States
21 Supreme Court.

22 The State moved to join Brass's two cases. See ECF No. 32-3 at 2. Brass opposed the 23 motion. ECF No. 31-6. Following oral argument, the state district court granted the motion.
24 ECF No. 32-3 at 8. The state district court explained that it

25 finds that the State has shown that the two incidents are connected together and that 26 there is cross-admissibility regarding the two incidents. This cross-admissibility
27 pursuant to NRS 48.045 could be used to show motive, intent, preparation, plan, 28 knowledge, identity, absence or lack of mistake. The Court finds that the cases are 29 so highly similar, in that they occurred one week apart, both occurred on Friday 30 evenings between 10:00 and approximately 10:30, they occurred in relatively close 31 areas of town, their factually and similar - - factually similar in that they involve 32 black males who are approaching groups of Hispanic males. In both cases these 33 Hispanic males were robbed at gunpoint by the black males; in both cases there 34 were shots fired when the Hispanics did not comply or chose to run from the scene.

1       Based up on these similarities, the Court finds that the probative value outweighs
 2       the prejudicial, the possibility of prejudice to the defendant.

3       Id. at 8-9. The jury was later instructed that “[e]ach charge and the evidence pertaining to it
 4       should be considered separately. The fact that you may find a defendant guilty or not guilty as 5       to one of the offenses charged should not control your verdict as to any other offense charged.”
 6       ECF No. 33-6 at 12.

7       A court “may grant habeas relief on a joinder challenge only if the joinder resulted in an 8       unfair trial. There is no prejudicial constitutional violation unless simultaneous trial of more 9       than one offense . . . actually render[ed] petitioner’s state trial fundamentally unfair and hence, 10      violative of due process.” Davis v. Woodford, 384 F.3d 628, 638 (9th Cir. 2004) (internal 11      quotation marks omitted) (quoting Sandoval v. Calderon, 241 F.3d 765, 771-72 (9th Cir.
 12      2001)); see also Bean v. Calderon, 163 F.3d 1073, 1084 (9th Cir. 1998) (“[M]isjoinder must 13      have ‘result[ed] in prejudice so great as to deny [Petitioner] his Fifth Amendment right to a fair 14      trial’ in order for us to find that [Petitioner] suffered a constitutional violation.”). As to 15      prejudice, the court must ask ““if the impermissible joinder had a substantial and injurious
 16      effect or influence in determining the jury’s verdict.”” Davis, 384 F.3d at 638 (quoting 17      Sandoval, 241 F.3d at 772). The Ninth Circuit explained that it “focuses particularly on cross-18      admissibility of evidence and the danger of ‘spillover’ from one charge to another, especially 19      where one charge or set of charges is weaker than another.” Id.; see also Sandoval, 241 F.3d at 20      772 (“[R]ecogniz[ing] that the risk of undue prejudice is particularly great whenever joinder of 21      counts allows evidence of other crimes to be introduced in a trial where the evidence would 22      otherwise be inadmissible.”) Reversal of a conviction is not warranted if “the evidence was so 23      strong that any due process violation in the joinder had no ‘substantial and injurious effect or

1 influence in determining the jury's verdict' with regard to that offense." Bean, 163 F.3d at 1086
2 (citing Brecht v. Abramson, 507 U.S. 619, 637 (1993)).

3 Based upon this court's review of the record, it cannot be determined that the joinder of 4 the two September 2006 incidents rendered Brass's trial fundamentally unfair. Davis, 384 F.3d
5 at 638. Due to the location of Brass's cellular telephone and his police interview statements, it
6 appears that evidence related to the September 22, 2006 events was somewhat stronger than the 7 evidence related to the September 15, 2006 events, which only amounted to a fingerprint found
8 near the scene and Brass's association with the shooter. However, it also appears that pursuant 9 to Nevada law, the evidence from the two incidents would be cross-admissible because, as the 10 state district court explained, the incidents were similar and connected. ECF No. 32-3 at 8-9; 11 see also Nev. Rev. Stat. § 48.045(2) ("Evidence of other crimes, wrongs or acts . . . may . . . be 12 admissible . . . as proof of motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, knowledge, identity, or 13 absence of mistake or accident."). Moreover, as was the case here, see ECF No. 33-6 at 12, 14 prejudice can be "limited through an instruction directing the jury to consider each count
15 separately." Davis, 384 F.3d at 639 (citing United States v. Lane, 474 U.S. 438, 450 n.13
16 (1986)). Finally, because Brass was only found guilty of the charges related to the September 17 22, 2006 events, ECF No. 34-1, it cannot be concluded that the joinder "had a substantial and 18 injurious effect or influence in determining the jury's verdict." Davis, 384 F.3d at 638. Indeed, 19 the Ninth Circuit has explained that acquittal on one joined charge establishes that the jury
20 successfully compartmentalized the evidence. See Featherstone v. Estelle, 948 F.2d 1497, 21 1503-04 (9th Cir. 1991) ("[I]t is apparent from the jury's discerning verdict that it followed the 22 court's instructions to regard each count as separate and distinct."). Accordingly, because the 23

1 Nevada Supreme Court reasonably denied Brass relief on this claim, Brass is denied federal 2 habeas relief for Ground 2.

3 D. Ground 3

4 In Ground 3, Brass argues that his federal constitutional rights to confront and cross-
 5 examine witnesses and to a fair trial were violated when the state district court improperly
 6 allowed the prior testimony of two unavailable witnesses, Leodelgado Leon Carlos and Cezar
 7 Carrizales. ECF No. 24 at 26. Brass contends that the State did not specifically identify the 8 efforts it made to secure the attendance of these witnesses for trial, his previous cross-9 examination of these witnesses did not touch upon his later-developed theory of defense, and 10 the jury never heard these witnesses' live testimony. Id. at 26-27. In Brass's appeal of his 11 judgment of conviction, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

12 Brass argues that the district court erred in permitting the introduction of the 13 preliminary hearing testimony of two witnesses as violative of Crawford v.
Washington, 541 U.S. 36 (2004), and unfairly prejudicial. We disagree. The 14 admission of the preliminary hearing testimony did not violate the Confrontation
 15 Clause because Brass was represented by counsel at the preliminary hearing, 16 counsel cross-examined the witnesses at the hearing, and the witnesses were not in 17 the United States at the time of trial. See Chavez v. State, ___ Nev. ___, ___, 213
 18 P.3d 476, 485-86 (2009) (providing that admission of deceased victim's 19 preliminary hearing testimony did not violate defendant's Confrontation rights); Grant v. State, 117 Nev. 427, 432, 24 P.3d 761, 764 (2001) ("[T]he admission of 20 prior testimony comports with the requirements of the Sixth Amendment of the 21 United States Constitution provided that defense counsel had the opportunity to, 22 and in fact did, thoroughly cross-examine the witness, and the witness was actually 23 unavailable for trial."); see also Funches v. State, 113 Nev. 916, 920, 944 P.2d 775, 777-78 (1997). Moreover, both witnesses testified to the manner in which they were accosted and the injuries they received in the shooting and thus their testimony had probative value that was not outweighed by the prejudicial effect. See NRS 48.035(1). Therefore, the district court did not err in admitting the preliminary hearing testimony.

1 ECF No. 36-1 at 3. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of this claim was neither contrary to
2 nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by the United States
3 Supreme Court.

4 The Sixth Amendment's Confrontation Clause provides: "In all criminal prosecutions,
5 the accused shall enjoy the right . . . to be confronted with the witnesses against him." "[A]
6 primary interest secured by [the Confrontation Clause] is the right of cross-examination."
7 Douglas v. Alabama, 380 U.S. 415, 418 (1965). While "the Confrontation Clause guarantees an 8 opportunity for effective cross-examination," it does guarantee "cross-examination that is 9 effective in whatever way, and to whatever extent, the defense might wish." Delaware v. Van 10 Arsdall, 475 U.S. 673, 679 (1986) (internal quotation marks omitted); see also Kentucky v.
11 Stincer, 482 U.S. 730, 739 (1987) ("[T]he Confrontation Clause's functional purpose i[s]
12 ensuring a defendant an opportunity for cross-examination."). The Confrontation Clause bars 13 "admission of testimonial statements of a witness who did not appear at trial unless he was 14 unavailable to testify, and the defendant had had a prior opportunity for cross-examination."
15 Crawford v. Washington, 541 U.S. 36, 53-54 (2004). "[A] witness is not 'unavailable' . . .
16 unless the prosecutorial authorities have made a good-faith effort to obtain his presence at 17 trial." Barber v. Page, 390 U.S. 719, 724-25 (1968); see also Christian v. Rhode, 41 F.3d 461, 18 467 (9th Cir. 1994) ("The lengths to which a prosecutor must go to establish good faith is a 19 question of reasonableness."). If "[a] Confrontation Clause violation" occurs, this court
20 conducts a harmless error analysis. Hernandez v. Small, 282 F.3d 1132, 1144 (9th Cir. 2002)
21 (citing Brecht v. Abrahamson, 507 U.S. 619 (1993) (holding that habeas relief is proper only if 22 an error by the state courts "had substantial and injurious effect or influence in determining the 23 jury's verdict")).

1 On October 30, 2006, a preliminary hearing was held for Brass and his three co-
2 defendants, Nunnery, Brandon Bland, and Carlton Fowler. See ECF No. 89-1. Brass was 3 represented by counsel at this hearing. See id. at 3. Carrizales and Leon-Carlos testified and 4 were cross-examined by Brass's counsel and the other three defense attorneys. Id. at 5-28.

5 Prior to Brass's trial, the State moved to use Leon-Carlos's and Carrizales's preliminary 6 hearing testimonies at Brass's trial, explaining that Leon-Carlos and Carrizales resided in rural 7 Mexico, were not subject to the subpoena power of the state district court, and had no legal 8 ability to enter the United States following their previous deportations. ECF No. 31-1 at 2. The 9 State also explained that it "contacted various surviving victims and friends of these two 10 witnesses in hopes of getting contact information," but "[n]o person contacted ha[d] an 11 address" for either witness, and the State was unsuccessful at contacting either witness using 12 one potential telephone number given to the State by an acquaintance of the witnesses. Id. at 3-13 4. The state district court granted the motion. See ECF No. 33-3 at 8-9. Thereafter, at Brass's
14 trial, the State read its prior questions and the witnesses' answers from the preliminary hearing 15 transcript, and Brass's trial counsel read the four defense attorneys' prior questions and the 16 witnesses' answers. Id. at 9-72.

17 Based on these facts, the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably concluded that there was 18 no Confrontation Clause violation. Crawford, 541 U.S. at 53-54. First, as previously discussed, 19 Brass's counsel cross-examined Leon-Carlos and Carrizales at the preliminary hearing. See 20 Barber, 390 U.S. at 725 ("[T]here may be some justification for holding that the opportunity 21 for cross-examination of a witness at a preliminary hearing satisfies the demand of the 22 confrontation clause where the witness is shown to be actually unavailable."); see also 23 California v. Green, 399 U.S. 149, 166 (1970) ("If [the witness] had died or was otherwise

1 unavailable, the Confrontation Clause would not have been violated by admitting his testimony
2 given at the preliminary hearing—the right of cross-examination then afforded provides 3 substantial compliance with the purposes behind the confrontation requirement, as long as the 4 declarant’s inability to give live testimony is in no way the fault of the State.”) And second,
5 Leon-Carlos and Carrazales resided in rural Mexico at the time of Brass’s trial and were 6 reasonably unreachable. Accordingly, because there was no Confrontation Clause violation, the 7 Nevada Supreme Court reasonably denied relief. Brass is denied federal habeas relief for 8 Ground 3.

9 E. Ground 5

10 In Ground 5, Brass alleges that his federal constitutional rights were violated when the 11 state district court impermissibly denied his theory of defense instruction, instead giving a mere 12 presence instruction, and then allowed a conspiracy instruction that contradicted the mere 13 presence instruction. ECF No. 24 at 28-30. In Brass’s appeal of his judgment of conviction, the 14 Nevada Supreme Court held:

15 Brass argues that the district court erred when it denied his instruction on the theory
16 of defense. We disagree. While a defendant “is entitled, upon request, to a jury 17 instruction on his theory of the case so long as there is some evidence . . . to support it” Harris v. State, 106 Nev. 667, 670, 799 P.2d 1104, 1105-06 (1990) (quoting 18 Roberts v. State, 102 Nev. 170, 172-73, 717 P.2d 1115, 1116 (1986)), the district court may refuse such an instruction if it is substantially covered by other 19 instructions, Earl v. State, 111 Nev. 1304, 1308, 904 P.2d 1029, 1031 (1995). As the district court provided a correct “mere presence” instruction, see Walker v.
20 State, 113 Nev. 853, 869, 944 P.2d 762, 772-73 (1997), we discern no abuse of discretion in denying the proposed instruction, see Nelson v. State, 123 Nev. 534, 21 548, 170 P.3d 517, 527 (2007) (reviewing district court’s decision concerning jury instructions for abuse of discretion).

22
23

1 ECF No. 36-1 at 2-3. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of this claim was neither contrary
2 to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by the United States
3 Supreme Court.

4 Issues relating to jury instructions are not cognizable in federal habeas corpus unless 5 they violate due process. Estelle v. McGuire, 502 U.S. 62, 72 (1991); see also Gilmore v.
6 Taylor, 508 U.S. 333, 342 (1993) ("[W]e have never said that the possibility of a jury
7 misapplying state law gives rise to federal constitutional error."). The question is "“whether the 8 ailing instruction by itself so infected the entire trial that the resulting conviction violates due 9 process’, . . . not merely whether ‘the instruction is undesirable, erroneous, or even universally 10 condemned.”” Henderson v. Kibbe, 431 U.S. 145, 154 (1977) (quoting Cupp v. Naughten, 414
11 U.S. 141, 146-47 (1973)). A challenged instruction ““may not be judged in artificial isolation,” 12 but must be considered in the context of the instructions as a whole and the trial record.”
13 Estelle, 502 U.S. at 72 (quoting Cupp, 414 U.S. at 147); see also United States v. Frega, 179
14 F.3d 793, 806 n.16 (9th Cir. 1999) (explaining that a court inquires as to ““whether the 15 instructions as a whole are misleading or inadequate to guide the jury’s deliberation” (internal 16 citations omitted)). Furthermore, jurors are presumed to follow the instructions that they are 17 given. United States v. Olano, 507 U.S. 725, 740 (1993). Even if an instruction contains a 18 constitutional error, the court must then ““apply the harmless-error analysis mandated by 19 Brecht[ v. Abrahamson, 507 U.S. 619 (1993)].”” Calderon v. Coleman, 525 U.S. 141, 146
20 (1998). The question is whether the error had a ““substantial and injurious effect or influence in 21 determining the jury’s verdict.”” Id. at 145.

22 The heart of Brass’s argument is that the district court prevented him from establishing 23 his defense theory by denying his proposed instructions. See Mathews v. United States, 485

1 U.S. 58, 63 (1988) ("As a general proposition a defendant is entitled to an instruction as to any
2 recognized defense for which there exists evidence sufficient for a reasonable jury to find in his
3 favor."). Brass's proposed jury instruction provided:

4 It is the defendant's theory of defense that he was not present on the night of 9/15/06
5 on Eastern where the robbery occurred. The defense maintains he was merely 6 present sometime around the date of the robbery as evidenced by his fingerprint on 7 the gate. It is also the defendant's theory of defense that he was merely present at 8 the scene of the robbery which occurred on 9/22/06 on Pecos, and did not know Eugene Nunnery was going to rob and shoot the victims. It is the State's burden to prove that the defendant was present at the scene of the crimes and knowingly, voluntarily and willfully participated in the robberies. If the State fails to prove this beyond a reasonable doubt, you must find the defendant not guilty.

9 ECF No. 33-5 at 2. The state district court refused to give this instruction, explaining "the law
10 says the defense is entitled to an instruction on their theory of the case, but I think their theory
11 of the case is mere presence and we have a mere presence instruction and so I think the defense
12 theory of the case is being instructed." ECF No. 33-4 at 5. The mere presence instruction given 13 by the state district court provided:

14 Mere presence at the scene of the crime and knowledge that a crime is being 15 committed are not sufficient to establish that the defendant aided and abetted the 16 crime, unless you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant is a participant 17 and not merely a knowing spectator. However, the presence of a person at the scene of a crime and companionship with another person engaged in the commission of the crime and a course of conduct before and after the offense are circumstances which may be considered in determining whether such person aided and abetted the commission of that crime.

18
19 ECF No. 33-6 at 38.

20 The jury was also instructed on conspiracies:

21 Evidence that a person was in the company or associated with one or more other 22 persons alleged or proven to have been members of a conspiracy is not, in itself, sufficient to prove that such person was a member of the alleged conspiracy.
However, you are instructed that presence, companionship, and conduct before, during and after the offense are circumstances from which one's participation in the criminal intent may be inferred.

1
2 Id. at 36. Brass's trial counsel objected to this instruction because it "contradict[ed] the mere 3 presence instruction." ECF No. 33-4 at 13. The state district court overruled the objection. Id.

4 The Nevada Supreme Court reasonably denied relief to Brass. Brass's proposed 5 instruction on mere presence was rejected in favor of another mere presence instruction. See
6 ECF Nos. 33-5 at 2, ECF No. 33-6 at 38. Although it was not given in the manner Brass
7 desired, Brass's theory of defense—that he was merely present during the September 22, 2006
8 events—was presented in the jury instructions. See Mathews, 485 U.S. at 63. Therefore, this 9 court cannot conclude that Brass's due process rights were violated. Estelle, 502 U.S. at 72
10 (1991). Turning to the conspiracy jury instruction, the Court disagrees that this instruction
11 contradicts the mere presence instruction. Rather, both instructions, although stated in slightly 12 different ways, provide that while presence is one circumstance which may be considered in 13 determining participation, evidence only of mere presence or association alone is not sufficient 14 evidence. Thus, Brass fails to demonstrate a violation of his due process rights. Id. Because the 15 Nevada Supreme Court reasonably denied this claim, Brass is denied federal habeas relief for 16 Ground 5.

17 F. Ground 6

18 In Ground 6, Brass raises six allegations of ineffectiveness of his trial counsel. In 19 Strickland, the Supreme Court propounded a two-prong test for analysis of claims of ineffective 20 assistance of counsel requiring the petitioner to demonstrate (1) that the attorney's 21 "representation fell below an objective standard of reasonableness," and (2) that the attorney's 22 deficient performance prejudiced the defendant such that "there is a reasonable probability that, 23 but for counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different."

1 Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 688, 694 (1984). A court considering a claim of 2 ineffective assistance of counsel must apply a “strong presumption that counsel’s conduct falls
 3 within the wide range of reasonable professional assistance.” Id. at 689. The petitioner’s burden 4 is to show “that counsel made errors so serious that counsel was not functioning as the 5 ‘counsel’ guaranteed the defendant by the Sixth Amendment.” Id. at 687. Additionally, to 6 establish prejudice under Strickland, it is not enough for the habeas petitioner “to show that the 7 errors had some conceivable effect on the outcome of the proceeding.” Id. at 693. Rather, the 8 errors must be “so serious as to deprive the defendant of a fair trial, a trial whose result is 9 reliable.” Id. at 687.

10 Where a state district court previously adjudicated the claim of ineffective assistance of 11 counsel under Strickland, establishing that the decision was unreasonable is especially difficult.
 12 See Harrington, 562 U.S. at 104–05. In Harrington, the United States Supreme Court 13 instructed:

14 The standards created by Strickland and § 2254(d) are both “highly deferential,” 15 [Strickland, 466 U.S. at 689]; Lindh v. Murphy, 521 U.S. 320, 333, n.7, 117 S.Ct.
 16 2059, 138 L.Ed.2d 481 (1997), and when the two apply in tandem, review is 17 “doubly” so, Knowles [v. Mirzayance, 556 U.S. 111, 123 (2009)]. The Strickland
 18 standard is a general one, so the range of reasonable applications is substantial. 556
 19 U.S., at 123, 129 S.Ct. at 1420. Federal habeas courts must guard against the danger 20 of equating unreasonableness under Strickland with unreasonableness under § 21 2254(d). When § 2254(d) applies, the question is not whether counsel’s actions
 22 were reasonable. The question is whether there is any reasonable argument that 23 counsel satisfied Strickland’s deferential standard.

20 562 U.S. at 105; see also Cheney v. Washington, 614 F.3d 987, 995 (9th Cir. 2010) (internal 21 quotation marks omitted) (“When a federal court reviews a state court’s Strickland
 22 determination under AEDPA, both AEDPA and Strickland’s deferential standards apply;
 23 hence, the Supreme Court’s description of the standard as doubly deferential.”).

1 //

2       1.     Subpart a

3       In Ground 6(a), Brass alleges that his trial counsel failed to investigate the physical 4 evidence presented at trial or to hire appropriate experts to refute that physical evidence. ECF
 5 No. 24 at 30. Specifically, Brass argues that his trial counsel failed to secure an expert to 6 independently test the bullet fragment found at the September 22, 2006 crime scene or offer
 7 testimony that the bullet fragment could not be attributed to the revolver found at his parents'
 8 residence, failed to investigate whether the revolver actually belonged to Brass, and failed to test
 9 Brass's sweatshirts for gun powder residue. Id. at 31-32. In Brass's appeal of the denial of his 10 state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

11       [A]ppellant claimed counsel was ineffective for failing to retain and present 12 evidence by a ballistics expert to prove that a bullet fragment recovered from the 13 second crime scene was not fired from a revolver found in appellant's home.
 14 Appellant failed to demonstrate deficiency or prejudice. Counsel was not 15 objectively unreasonable for not retaining such an expert when no evidence 16 suggested that the revolver was at the crime scene. Further, despite having been 17 granted an evidentiary hearing, appellant presented no evidence of what such an 18 expert would have said and thus failed to demonstrate a reasonable probability of a 19 different outcome had counsel investigated the bullet fragment. See Molina v. State, 20 120 Nev. 185, 192, 87 P.3d 533, 538 (2004). We therefore conclude that the district
 21 court did not err in denying this claim.

22       [A]ppellant [also] claimed counsel was ineffective for failing to retain and present
 23 evidence by a forensic expert that appellant's hoodies did not have any gunshot
 1 residue on them. Appellant failed to demonstrate deficiency or prejudice. Appellant
 2 did not demonstrate that it was objectively unreasonable for counsel to not have 3 tested clothing that was retrieved nearly a week after one crime and nearly two 4 weeks after another. Further, appellant presented no evidence of what such an 5 expert would have said and thus failed to demonstrate a reasonable probability of a 6 different outcome had counsel investigated the hoodies. See id. We therefore 7 conclude that the district court did not err in denying this claim.

1 ECF No. 40-2 at 3-4. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of Brass's Strickland claim was
2 neither contrary to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by
3 the United States Supreme Court.

4 Defense counsel has a "duty to make reasonable investigations or to make a reasonable
5 decision that makes particular investigations unnecessary." Strickland, 466 U.S. at 691.
6 Additionally, "[i]n any ineffectiveness case, a particular decision not to investigate must be 7 directly assessed for reasonableness in all the circumstances, applying a heavy measure of 8 deference to counsel's judgments." Id. This investigatory duty includes investigating the 9 defendant's "most important defense," Sanders v. Ratelle, 21 F.3d 1446, 1457 (9th Cir. 1994), 10 and investigating and introducing evidence that demonstrates factual innocence or evidence that 11 raises sufficient doubt about the defendant's innocence. Hart v. Gomez, 174 F.3d 1067, 1070
12 (9th Cir. 1999). When the record demonstrates that trial counsel was well-informed, and the 13 defendant fails to provide what additional information would have been gained by the 14 investigation he now claims was necessary, an ineffective assistance claim fails. Eggleston v.
15 United States, 798 F.2d 374, 376 (9th Cir. 1986).

16 First, Brass contends that his trial counsel should have independently tested the bullet 17 fragment found at the September 22, 2006 crime scene to show that it could not have been from 18 the revolver found at his parents' residence. ECF No. 24 at 30-32. During Brass's trial counsel's 19 cross-examination of the State's firearm expert, Brass's trial counsel clarified that the "chunk of 20 lead" that was found at the September 22, 2006 crime scene could have come from a variety of 21 different types of guns, not just from a revolver. ECF No. 33-3 at 121-22. And during his closing
22 argument, Brass's trial counsel argued that the bullet fragment found at the September 22, 2006
23 crime scene "could have been from five different calibers of guns," not necessarily the revolver.

1 ECF No. 33-4 at 118. Because Brass's trial counsel was able to highlight the fact that the bullet
2 fragment may not have come from the revolver during cross-examination, it cannot be 3 determined that Brass's trial counsel was deficient for failing to call his own expert witness to 4 accomplish the same task. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688; see also Harrington, 562 U.S. at 111 ("In 5 many instances cross-examination will be sufficient to expose defects in an expert's
6 presentation.")

7 Second, Brass contends that his trial counsel should have investigated whether the 8 revolver belonged to Brass. ECF No. 24 at 30-32. During Brass's trial counsel's cross-
9 examination of the State's crime scene analyst, Brass's trial counsel clarified that there was no 10 evidence linking the revolver specifically to Brass. ECF No. 33-4 at 31-33. And during his 11 closing argument, Brass's trial counsel argued that "[t]here's absolutely no evidence" that the 12 revolver was Brass's gun. ECF No. 33-4 at 117. Later, during Brass's post-conviction 13 evidentiary hearing, Brass's trial counsel testified that he did not consider hiring an expert to 14 challenge the admissibility of the revolver because "nobody was claiming that [the revolver] was 15 the same weapon involved in the murders, in the robberies." ECF No. 39 at 7. Because it was 16 undisputed that the revolver did not kill the two victims and because Brass's trial counsel was 17 able to cast doubt about Brass's link to the revolver during cross-examination, it cannot be 18 concluded that Brass's trial counsel was deficient for failing to fulfill his investigative duties.
19 Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688, 691.

20 Third, Brass contends that his trial counsel should have investigated whether his 21 sweatshirts contained gun powder residue. ECF No. 24 at 30-32. It does not appear that this was 22 an issue discussed at Brass's trial or post-conviction evidentiary hearing. Thus, it is difficult to 23 assess whether Brass's trial counsel was deficient. In fact, it may have been a strategic decision

1 to not test the sweatshirt, if there was any possible residue still available to test. See, e.g., Skinner
2 v. Quartermann, 576 F.3d 214 (5th Cir. 2009) (counsel was not deficient for failing to conduct
3 DNA tests of crime scene evidence because there was a risk that such testing would reveal that 4 the DNA belonged to the defendant).

5 However, regardless of whether Brass's trial counsel was deficient regarding the 6 foregoing investigatory decisions, Brass must also demonstrate that "there is a reasonable 7 probability that, but for counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have 8 been different." Strickland, 466 U.S. at 694. As the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably 9 concluded, Brass cannot meet this burden. There is no evidence that a test of the bullet fragment
10 would have shown that it was not from the revolver, that the revolver was not Brass's, or that 11 Brass's sweatshirts lacked gun powder residue. See Djerf v. Ryan, 931 F.3d 870, 881 (9th Cir.
12 2019) ("Strickland prejudice is not established by mere speculation.").

13 Because the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably determined that Brass failed to 14 demonstrate that this trial counsel was ineffective, Brass is denied federal habeas relief for 15 Ground 6(a).

16 2. Subpart b

17 In Ground 6(b), Brass alleges that his trial counsel refused to allow him to testify at trial.
18 ECF No. 24 at 32. Brass elaborates that his trial counsel advised him that the State "was 19 aggressive in its tactics" and "would twist the meaning of [his] words," and that this advice made 20 him "felt [sic] as if he had no meaningful choice to testify." Id. at 33. In Brass's appeal of the 21 denial of his state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

22 [A]ppellant claimed counsel was ineffective for refusing to allow him to testify at 23 trial. Appellant failed to demonstrate deficiency or prejudice. Appellant, who posed no questions to counsel and presented no other evidence to support his claim, failed to demonstrate the facts underlying his claim by a preponderance of the evidence.

1       Further, the district court's finding that appellant was advised that the right to testify
 2       was his, not counsel's, choice, is supported by substantial evidence in the record.
 3       We therefore conclude that the district court did not err in denying this claim.

4       ECF No. 40-2 at 5. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of Brass's Strickland claim was 5       neither contrary to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by
 6       the United States Supreme Court.

7       "[A] defendant in a criminal case has the right to take the witness stand and to testify in 8       his or her own defense." Rock v. Arkansas, 483 U.S. 44, 49 (1987). And this decision of 9       whether to testify on his own behalf is one "the accused has the ultimate authority to make."
 10      Jones v. Barnes, 463 U.S. 745, 751 (1983).

11      The state district court canvassed Brass about his right to testify. See ECF No. 33-2 at 5-12      7. Among other things, the state district court explained that it "want[ed] Brass] to talk to [his 13       trial counsel] about it when the time comes and make a joint decision on whether or not [Brass
 14       was] going to testify." Id. at 7. The state district court continued, "[u]ltimately, the decision is 15       yours. [Trial counsel] can only give you advice, but he's pretty good at giving advice, so you 16       need to take that into consideration." Id. Brass indicated that he understood. Id. at 5-7.

17      The state district court's proper advisement that only Brass could decide whether to 18       testify refutes Brass's argument that he felt that he had no choice regarding testifying.
 19       Additionally, beyond his own self-serving statements in his petition, Brass fails to present any 20       evidence regarding his trial counsel's actions in this regard. Rather, it appears that Brass's trial
 21       counsel was simply giving Brass candid advice about the consequences of testifying.
 22       Accordingly, the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably concluded that Brass failed to demonstrate 23       deficiency. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688. Brass is denied federal habeas relief for Ground 6(b).

3.       Subpart c

1 In Ground 6(c), Brass alleges that his trial counsel failed to object to two instances of 2 alleged prosecutorial misconduct during closing argument. ECF No. 24 at 33. Specifically, Brass
3 alleges that the State suggested that he was a liar and vouched for the credibility of a witness. Id.
4 at 33-34. In Brass's appeal of the denial of his state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court
5 held:

6 [A]ppellant claimed counsel was ineffective for failing to object to prosecutorial
7 misconduct in opening and closing statements where the State inferred that 8 appellant was a story-changing liar and vouched for the credibility of a witness.
9 Appellant failed to demonstrate deficiency or prejudice. The State neither called 10 appellant a liar nor vouched for any witness's credibility. Rather, the State listed 11 appellant's various charges in his version of events and suggested why the ultimate version was not likely. Such inferences are permissible in closing argument. *Ross
v. State*, 106 Nev. 924, 927, 803 P.2d 1104, 1106 (1990). Further, the State simply pointed out the lack of motive for its witness [to] fabricate, which did not rise to vouching. See Browning v. State, 120 Nev. 347, 359, 91 P.3d 39, 48 (2004). We therefore conclude that the district court did not err in denying this claim.

12 ECF No. 40-2 at 4. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of Brass's Strickland claim was 13 neither contrary to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by 14 the United States Supreme Court.

15 The State made the following comments during its closing argument:

16 . . . I want you to think about common sense when you consider the explanation 17 George Brass provided to Detective McGrath. Now, I'm going to start in reverse order in this case; that is, with the crime scene of September 22, 2006.

18 The defendant's explanation, ultimately his explanation was that he was with three 19 other guys, Eugene Nunnery, Brandon Bland and Carlton Fowler when the three of them, unbeknownst to George Brass, decided apparently to commit a robbery when 20 shots rang out. And think about that explanation in light of your common sense because remember it was his third or fourth version of events.

21 Initially George Brass said to Detective McGrath, I don't know anything about this.
22 Explanation number one. And when Detective McGrath, now Sergeant McGrath, pulled out that cell phone that belonged to the defendant, the explanation changed.
23 The defendant said, Well, somebody else may have had my phone and dropped it here.

1 And eventually that morphed into yet a third version of events, which was, I walked 2 alone to this apartment complex and ran into a couple of friends of mine named 3 Drey and Money Mac and I heard some gunshots. And that version too morphed in 4 yet -- into yet another version, which was, Okay, I was in a car with Eugene Nunnery, Brandon Bland and Carlton Fowler. Indeed we ended up at this apartment complex and something happened between Eugene Nunnery and one of these Hispanic guys and shots rang out and I ran.

5 At least four different versions of events. Deny and then adapt your story to fit the evidence you know the police have against you. That's what George Brass did.
6

7 ECF No. 33-4 at 77-78. Later, the State commented:

8 And think about this: David, the young man on the balcony who saw this, doesn't 9 even know the victims in this case. What possible reason would he have to fabricate and make up this notion that all four robbers had guns if they didn't? A completely 10 objective independent eyewitness.

11 Id. at 79-80.

12 The Nevada Supreme Court reasonably concluded that Brass failed to demonstrate 13 deficiency on the part of his trial counsel for failing to object to these comments. Strickland, 14 466 U.S. at 688. Indeed, “[t]he relevant question” regarding prosecutorial misconduct, “is 15 whether the prosecutors’ comments ‘so infected the trial with unfairness as to make the 16 resulting conviction a denial of due process.’” Darden v. Wainwright, 477 U.S. 168, 181 (1986)
17 (quoting Donnelly v. DeChristoforo, 416 U.S. 637, 643 (1974)). It cannot be concluded that 18 either of the foregoing comments infected Brass’s trial with unfairness.

19 First, the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably concluded that the State did not suggest 20 that Brass was a liar. Rather, the State merely commented on the evidence presented at trial and 21 reasonable inferences that could be drawn from that evidence. See Drayden v. White, 232 F.3d
22 704, 713 (9th Cir. 2000) (concluding that the State’s closing argument did not infect the trial 23 with unfairness because “the prosecutor’s statements were supported by the evidence and

1 reasonable inferences that could be drawn from the evidence"). In fact, Detective Michael 2 McGrath testified that Brass initially told him that he “[d]idn’t know anything” about the 3 second shooting incident, then he said that he was in the area of the shooting, then he said that 4 one of his co-defendants may have had his cellular telephone and left it at the scene, and then 5 he said that he was with his co-defendants when Nunnery bumped shoulders with one of the 6 victims resulting in Nunnery firing his weapon. ECF No. 33-3 at 140, 166, 168, 178-79, 182-
 7 83. The State’s closing argument was supported by this testimony. See ECF No. 33-4 at 77-78.

8 Second, the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably concluded that the State did not vouch
 9 for any witness’s credibility. “Vouching consists of placing the prestige of the government 10 behind a witness through personal assurances of the witness’s veracity, or suggesting that 11 information not presented to the jury supports the witness’s testimony.” United States v.
 12 Necochea, 986 F.2d 1273, 1276 (9th Cir. 1993). Here, the State merely contended that a 13 witness, David, was telling the truth. The State did not personally assure David’s veracity or 14 suggest that it had extra-record facts supporting David’s testimony. See ECF No. 33-4 at 79-80.
 15 This was proper. See Necochea 986 F.2d at 1279 (“The prosecutor here argued that [the 16 witness] told the truth because, if she were lying, she would have done a better job. This is 17 simply an inference from evidence in the record. It is not . . . a reference to extra-record facts or 18 a personal guarantee of [the witness]’s veracity. The prosecutor merely argued that [the 19 witness] was telling the truth, an argument the prosecutor had to make in order to convict [the 20 defendant]. These statements do not imply that the government is assuring [the witness]’s 21 veracity, and do not reflect the prosecutor’s personal beliefs.”).

22 Because the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably denied Brass’s Strickland claim, Brass
 23 is denied federal habeas relief for Ground 6(c).

1   ///

2   ///

3           4.    Subpart d

4       In Ground 6(d), Brass alleges that his trial counsel failed to object to the unlawfully
5   composed jury that was void of African Americans. ECF No. 24 at 34. Brass elaborates that he 6   recalls there only being two African Americans in the entire venire, no African American jurors
7   in the petit jury, and a great portion of members of Hispanic descent in the final petit jury. Id. at 8   34-35. In Brass's appeal of the denial of his state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court
9   held:

10      [A]ppellant claimed counsel was ineffective for failing to object to the jury being 11   void of a cross-section of African Americans. Appellant failed to demonstrate 12   deficiency or prejudice. "The Sixth Amendment does not guarantee a jury or even 13   a venire that is a perfect cross section of the community," and appellant neither 14   made any argument nor presented any evidence that African Americans were 15   systematically excluded from the venire. Williams v. State, 121 Nev. 934, 939-40, 16   125 P.3d 627, 631 (2005). Indeed, appellant conceded that the venire contained at 17   least two African Americans. We therefore conclude that the district court did not 18   err in denying this claim.

19      ECF No. 40-2 at 5. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of Brass's Strickland claim was 20   neither contrary to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by 21   the United States Supreme Court.

22      Although "petit juries must be drawn from a source fairly representative of the 23   community," there is "no requirement that petit juries actually chosen must mirror the 24   community and reflect the various distinctive groups in the population." Taylor v. Louisiana, 25   419 U.S. 522, 538 (1975). Indeed, "Defendants are not entitled to a jury of any particular 26   composition." Id. The United States Supreme Court has established the following requirements 27   for establishing a prima facie violation of the fair-cross-section requirement:

1 In order to establish a prima facie violation of the fair-cross-section requirement,
2 the defendant must show (1) that the group alleged to be excluded is a “distinctive”
3 group in the community; (2) that the representation of this group in venires from 4 which juries are selected is not fair and reasonable in relation to the number of such 5 persons in the community; and (3) that this underrepresentation is due to systematic 6 exclusion of the group in the jury-selection process.

7 Duren v. Missouri, 439 U.S. 357, 364 (1979). Under the third prong, “[a] showing that a jury 8 venire underrepresents an identifiable group is, without more, an insufficient showing of 9 systematic exclusion.” See Randolph v. California, 380 F.3d 1133, 1141 (9th Cir. 2004).

10 Brass has not alleged that African Americans were systematically excluded from the 11 venire. Duren, 439 U.S. at 364. Rather, Brass admits that there were two African Americans in 12 the venire. ECF No. 24 at 34. Accordingly, because Brass fails to meet the third Duren prong 13 demonstrating systematic exclusion, the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably concluded that 14 Brass’s trial counsel was not deficient for not objecting to the venire. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688.
15 Brass is denied federal habeas relief for Ground 6(d).

16 5. Subpart e

17 In Ground 6(e), Brass alleges that his trial counsel failed to object Jury Instruction Nos. 8, 18 11, 12, and 33. ECF No. 24 at 35.

19 a. Jury Instruction No. 8

20 Jury Instruction No. 8 provided, in part:

21 Murder of the first degree is murder which is perpetrated by means of any kind of 22 willful, deliberate, and premeditated killing. All three elements—willfulness, 23 deliberation, and premeditation—must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt before an accused can be convicted of first-degree murder. Willfulness is the intent to kill.
There need be no appreciable space of time between formation of the intent to kill and the act of killing.

1 ECF No. 33-6 at 17. And Jury Instruction No. 13 provided: “All murder which is not murder of 2 the first degree of murder is murder of the second degree. Murder of the second degree is 3 murder with malice aforethought, but without the admixture of premeditation and deliberation.”
4 Id. at 22.

5 Brass argues that, when read in conjunction, Jury Instruction Nos. 8 and 13 cause
6 confusion because Jury Instruction No. 13, by employing the term “malice aforethought”
7 instead of “willfulness,” impresses upon the jury that “willfulness” and “malice aforethought”
8 are separate and mutually exclusive elements. ECF No. 24 at 36. In Brass’s appeal of the denial 9 of his state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

10 [A]ppellant claimed counsel was ineffective for failing to object to jury instruction
11 no. 8, which defined willful, deliberate, and premeditated first-degree murder, on 12 the ground that it erased the distinction between first- and second-degree murder.
13 Appellant failed to demonstrate deficiency or prejudice. The language in jury 14 instruction nos. 8 and 9 tracks verbatim that set forth in Byford v. State, 116 Nev.
15 215, 236-37, 994 P.2d 700, 714-15 (2000). Further, even if the instruction were 16 erroneous, appellant was convicted not only of first-degree murder but also of the 17 robbery during the course of which the murder occurred such that he would have 18 been liable for first-degree murder under the felony-murder rule. We therefore 19 conclude that the district court did not err in denying this claim.
20

21 ECF No. 40-2 at 2-3. This ruling was reasonable.

22 Jury Instruction No. 8 mirrors the instruction formulated by the Nevada Supreme Court 23 “for use by the district courts in cases where defendants are charged with first-degree murder
24 based on willful, deliberate, and premeditated killing.” Byford v. State, 116 Nev. 215, 236, 994 25 P.2d 700, 714 (2000). Further, Nev. Rev. Stat. § 200.010(1) provides that “[m]urder is the 26 unlawful killing of a human being . . . [w]ith malice aforethought,” and Nev. Rev. Stat. §
27 200.030(2) provides that “[m]urder of the second degree is all other kinds of murder” not 28 amounting to first-degree murder. Jury Instruction No. 13 echoes these statutes. Therefore,

1 because Jury Instruction Nos. 8 and 13 comply with Nevada law, the Nevada Supreme Court
2 reasonably concluded that Brass's trial counsel was not deficient for not objecting to these
3 instructions. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688.

b. Jury Instruction Nos. 11 and 12

Jury Instruction No. 11 provided:

There is a kind of murder which carries with it conclusive evidence of premeditation and malice aforethought. This class of murder is murder committed in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of robbery. Therefore, a killing which is committed in the perpetration of robbery or attempted robbery is deemed to be Murder of the First Degree, whether the killing was intentional or unintentional or accidental. This is called the Felony-Murder Rule. The intent to perpetrate or attempt to perpetrate robbery must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. In order for the Felony-Murder rule to apply under a robbery theory, the intent to take the property must be formed prior to the act constituting the killing.

ECF No. 33-6 at 20. And Jury Instruction No. 12 provided, in part:

The State has alleged that the defendant is criminally liable for the charge of First Degree Murder under one or more principles . . . of criminal liability. . . . Your verdict must be unanimous as to the charge. However, you do not have to agree on the theory of guilt or the principle of criminal liability. It is sufficient that each of you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the murder, under any one of the principles of criminal liability, was Murder of the First Degree. Therefore, even if you cannot agree on whether the facts establish that the Defendant (1) is guilty of Premeditated & Deliberate Murder, or (2) is guilty of Felony Murder, or (3) is liable as an aider & abettor or (4) is liable as a co-conspirator, your verdict shall be murder of the first degree so long as all of you agree that the evidence establishes the Defendant's guilt of murder in the first degree under any one of the principles of criminal liability.

Id. at 21.

Brass argues that Jury Instructions No. 8, which was discussed previously, and Jury Instruction No. 11, when presented together, create gross ambiguity. ECF No. 24 at 37. And Brass argues that Jury Instruction No. 12 suggests that the jurors did not have to come to a

1 unanimous decision and reinforces the ambiguity of Jury Instruction Nos. 8 and 11. Id. In
2 Brass's appeal of the denial of his state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

3 Second, appellant claimed counsel was ineffective for failing to object to jury
4 instruction nos. 11 and 12, on the theories that they conflict with jury instruction
5 no. 8 and that jury instruction no. 12 forced him to defend against the various 6 theories of liability without any proof of their underlying elements. Appellant failed
7 to demonstrate deficiency or prejudice. Jury instruction no. 12 informed the jury of 8 the State's alternate theories of liability while other jury instructions informed the 9 jury of the elements necessary for each of those alternate theories: jury instruction 10 no. 8 for willful, deliberate, and premeditated murder; jury instruction no. 11 for 11 felony murder; jury instruction no. 21 for conspiracy; and jury instruction no. 28
12 for aiding and abetting. Cf. Tanksley v. State, 113 Nev 844, 849, 944 P.2d 240, 243
13 (1997) (noting that any ambiguity may be cured by taking the jury instructions as a 14 whole). We therefore conclude that the district court did not err in denying these 15 claims.

16 ECF No. 40-2 at 2-3. This ruling was reasonable.

17 As the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably noted, Jury Instruction No. 12 discussed the 18 theories of liability upon which the State relied upon for first-degree murder. See ECF No. 33-6
19 at 21. Jury Instruction Nos. 8 and 11 further described two of those alternate theories: willful,
20 deliberate, and premeditated murder in Jury Instruction No. 8, and felony murder in Jury
21 Instruction No. 11. See id. at 17, 20. Therefore, Jury Instruction Nos. 8, 11, and 12, when read
22 together, did not create confusion. Brass's second contention—that Jury Instruction No. 12
23 allowed the jury to come to a decision that was not unanimous—also lacks merit. See Crawford
24 v. State, 121 Nev. 744, 750, 121 P.3d 582, 586 (2005) (“Where the State proceeds on 25 alternative theories of first-degree felony murder and willful, deliberate, and premeditated first-26 degree murder, we have consistently held that the jury need not unanimously agree on a single 27 theory of the murder.”); Walker v. State, 113 Nev. 853, 870, 944 P.2d 762, 773 (1997) (“[W]e 28 conclude that the trial court did not err in instructing the jury that it did not have to 29 unanimously agree upon a theory of murder”). Accordingly, the Nevada Supreme Court

1 reasonably concluded that Brass's trial counsel was not deficient for not objecting to these
2 instructions. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688.

3                   c.       Jury Instruction No. 33

4                   Jury Instruction No. 33 provided:

5                   The Defendant is presumed innocent until the contrary is proved. This presumption
6                   places upon the State the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt every 7                   material element of the crime charged and that the Defendant is the person who 8                   committed the offense. A reasonable doubt is one based on reason. It is not mere 9                   possible doubt but is such a doubt as would govern or control a person in the more 10                  weighty affairs of life. If the mind of the jurors, after the entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, are in such a condition that they can say they feel an abiding conviction of the truth of the charge, there is not a reasonable doubt.
                        Doubt to be reasonable must be actual, not mere possibility or speculation. If you have a reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the Defendant, he is entitled to a verdict of not guilty.

11 ECF No. 33-6 at 42.

12                  Brass argues that Jury Instruction No. 33 relieves the State of its burden of proof
13                  because the word "comparison" suggests that the defense has a duty to put forth evidence 14                  refuting the State's evidence, which improperly shifts the burden of proof onto the defense, and 15                  the word "feel" allows the jury to convict based upon emotions rather than reason. ECF No. 24
16                  at 38. In Brass's appeal of the denial of his state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court
17                  held:

18                  [A]ppellant claimed counsel was ineffective for failing to object to jury instruction 19                  no. 33, which defined reasonable doubt, on the grounds that it allowed the jury to 20                  convict based on emotion and it shifted the burden of proof to appellant. Appellant failed to demonstrate deficiency or prejudice. The challenged instruction was mandated by NRS 175.211, which this court has repeatedly upheld. Buchanan v.
                        State, 119 Nev. 201, 221, 69 P.3d 694, 708 (2003). We therefore conclude that the 21                  district court did not err in denying this claim.

22 ECF No. 40-2 at 2-3. This ruling was reasonable.

23

1        “[T]he Due Process Clause protects the accused against conviction except upon proof
 2 beyond a reasonable doubt of every fact necessary to constitute the crime with which he is 3 charged.” In re Winship, 397 U.S. 358, 364 (1970). “[T]he Constitution does not require that 4 any particular form of words be used in advising the jury of the government’s burden of proof.
 5 Rather, ‘taken as a whole, the instructions [must] correctly conve[y] the concept of reasonable
 6 doubt to the jury.’” Victor v. Nebraska, 511 U.S. 1, 5 (1994) (internal citation omitted) (quoting
 7 Holland v. United States, 348 U.S. 121, 140 (1954)). In assessing the constitutionality of a jury
 8 instruction, it must be determined “whether there is a reasonable likelihood that the jury
 9 understood the instructions to allow conviction based on proof insufficient to meet the Winship
 10 standard.” Id. at 6.

11        The Ninth Circuit evaluated the same reasonable doubt instruction in Ramirez v.
 12 Hatcher, 136 F.3d 1209, 1210-11 (9th Cir. 1998). The Ninth Circuit held that “[a]lthough [it
 13 did] not herald the Nevada instruction as exemplary, [it] conclude[d] that the overall charge left 14 the jury with an accurate impression of the government’s heavy burden of proving guilt beyond 15 a reasonable doubt” such that “the jury charge satisfied the requirements of due process.” Id. at 16 1215; see also Nevius v. McDaniel, 218 F.3d 940, 944 (9th Cir. 2000) (holding that the 17 reasonable doubt jury instruction was identical to the one in Ramirez, so “[t]he law of this 18 circuit thus forecloses Nevius’s claim that his reasonable doubt instruction was 19 unconstitutional”).

20        Additionally, Jury Instruction No. 33 complied with Nevada law. See Nev. Rev. Stat. §
 21 175.211 (defining reasonable doubt and mandating that “[n]o other definition of reasonable 22 doubt may be given by the court to juries in criminal actions in this State”); see also Buchanan 23 v. State, 119 Nev. 201, 221, 69 P.3d 694, 708 (2003) (explaining that the Nevada Supreme

1 Court “has repeatedly reaffirmed the constitutionality of Nevada’s reasonable doubt
2 instruction” codified in Nev. Rev. Stat. § 175.211). Because Jury Instruction No. 33’s language
3 has been determined to be constitutional by the Ninth Circuit and because it complied with 4 Nevada law, the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably concluded that Brass’s trial counsel was 5 not deficient for not objecting to the instruction. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688.

6 Brass is denied federal habeas relief for Ground 6(e).

7 G. Ground 7

8 In Ground 7, Brass raises three allegations of ineffectiveness of his appellate counsel.
9 The Strickland standard outlined in Ground 6 is also utilized to review appellate counsel’s
10 actions: a petitioner must show “that [appellate] counsel unreasonably failed to discover 11 nonfrivolous issues and to file a merits brief raising them” and then “that, but for his [appellate] 12 counsel’s unreasonable failure to file a merits brief, [petitioner] would have prevailed on his 13 appeal.” Smith v. Robbins, 528 U.S. 259, 285 (2000).

14 1. Subpart a

15 In Ground 7(a), Brass alleges that his appellate counsel failed to federalize his claims and 16 that he was prejudiced by this failure because he was deprived the opportunity to obtain the most 17 favorable standard of federal review available. ECF No. 24 at 39-40. In Brass’s appeal of the 18 denial of his state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

19 [A]ppellant claimed that appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to federalize
20 his claims on direct appeal. Appellant failed to demonstrate prejudice. Appellant 21 failed to demonstrate that he would have gained a more favorable standard of review on direct appeal had appellate counsel federalized the arguments. See 22 Browning, 120 Nev. at 365, 91 P.3d at 52. We therefore conclude that the district court did not err in denying this claim.

23

1 ECF No. 40-2 at 6. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of Brass's claim was neither contrary
 2 to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by the United States
 3 Supreme Court.

4 Brass's appellate counsel testified at the post-conviction evidentiary hearing that 5 “[f]ederalizing [an] issue is making sure that you're preserving the issue for a federal court when 6 the time comes for the client.” ECF No. 39 at 11. Brass's appellate counsel explained that there
 7 was no reason he could think of why “Brass' direct appeal did not include any federal citations.”
 8 Id. at 12. However, when asked if, “[i]n retrospect, [he thought] that it would've been better 9 practice . . . to federalize th[e] issues [in Brass's] direct appeal,” Brass's appellate counsel
 10 answered in the affirmative. Id. at 12-13.

11 Brass's appellate counsel raised four issues on direct appeal: the state district court 12 erred in admitting the revolver, joining the two robbery incidents at trial, denying his theory of 13 defense jury instruction, and allowing the previous testimony of two witnesses. See ECF No.
 14 35-4 at 2. Even if Brass's appellate counsel was deficient for failing to federalize these claims, 15 the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably concluded that Brass fails to demonstrate prejudice.
 16 Strickland, 466 U.S. at 694; Smith, 528 U.S. at 285. Indeed, as the Nevada Supreme Court
 17 reasonably determined, Brass fails to show that his claims would have been reviewed by it 18 under more favorable standards had his appellate counsel acted differently. See Browning v.
 19 State, 120 Nev. 347, 365, 91 P.3d 39, 52 (2004) (dismissing the argument that the defendant's 20 “appellate counsel should have ‘federalized’ the issue and gained a more favorable standard of 21 review”). Further, regarding federal review, this court did not find that any of Brass's direct 22 appeal claims were unexhausted; rather, each of these claims have been reviewed by this court.
 23 See Grounds 1, 2, 3, and 5 supra; see also ECF No. 84 at 5. Accordingly, because the Nevada

1 Supreme Court reasonably denied Brass's ineffective-assistance-of-appellate-counsel claim,
2 Brass is denied federal habeas relief for Ground 7(a).

3 ///

4 2. Subpart b

5 In Ground 7(b), Brass alleges that his appellate counsel failed to raise ineffective-
6 assistance-of-counsel claims. ECF No. 24 at 40. In Brass's appeal of the denial of his state
7 habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

8 [A]ppellant argued that appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to raise all of 9 the substantive claims that underlaid his ineffective-assistance-of-trial-counsel 10 claims. For the reasons discussed previously, appellant failed to demonstrate that appellate counsel was deficient or that he was prejudiced. We therefore conclude that the district court did not err in denying this claim.

11 ECF No. 40-2 at 6. This ruling was reasonable.

12 To the extent that Brass argues that his appellate counsel should have raised ineffective-
13 assistance-of-counsel claims in his direct appeal, such an argument lacks merit. See Gibbons v.
14 State, 97 Nev. 520, 523, 634 P.2d 1214, 1216 (1981) (concluding "that the more appropriate
15 vehicle for presenting a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel is through post-conviction 16 relief"); Corbin v. State, 111 Nev. 378, 381, 892 P.2d 580, 582 (1995) (explaining that the 17 Nevada Supreme Court "has consistently concluded that it will not entertain claims of 18 ineffective assistance of counsel on direct appeal"). Furthermore, regarding any argument that 19 Brass's appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to raise any of the substantive claims that 20 underlaid his ineffective-assistance-of-trial-counsel claims, the Nevada Supreme Court
21 reasonably determined that Brass failed to demonstrate deficiency on the part of his appellate 22 counsel. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688. None of the underlying claims presented in Ground 6 had 23 any merit, see Ground 6 supra, so Brass fails to demonstrate "that, but for his [appellate]

1 counsel's" alleged deficiencies, he "would have prevailed on his appeal." Smith, 528 U.S. at 2 285. Because the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably denied this claim, Brass is denied federal 3 habeas relief for Ground 7(b).

4 3. Subpart c

5 In Ground 7(c), Brass alleges that his appellate counsel failed to argue that the state
 6 district court erred in granting his motion to withdraw his guilty plea. ECF No. 24 at 40. In 7 Brass's appeal of the denial of his state habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

8 [A]ppellant claimed that appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to argue that 9 the district court erred when it granted appellant's presentence motion to withdraw
 10 his guilty plea. Appellant failed to demonstrate deficiency or prejudice. The district 11 court may grant a motion to withdraw a guilty plea "for any 'substantial reason' if 12 it is 'fair and just,'" and this court reviews that decision for an abuse of discretion.
Woods v. State, 114 Nev. 468, 475, 958 P.2d 91, 95 (1998) (quoting State v. Second 13 Judicial Dist. Court, 85 Nev. 381, 385, 455 P.2d 923, 926 (1969)). Appellant failed 14 to demonstrate that the district court abuse its discretion in granting appellant's
 15 motion to withdraw and, thus, that his claim would have had a reasonable 16 probability of success on appeal. We therefore conclude that the district court did 17 not err in denying this claim. [Footnote 2: To the extent appellant claimed that the 18 district court erred in granting the motion to withdraw guilty plea, appellant's claim 19 could have been raised on direct appeal and was thus procedurally barred absent a 20 demonstration of good cause and actual prejudice. NRS 34.810(1)(b)(2). For the 21 reasons discussed above, appellant's claim of ineffective assistance of appellate 22 counsel did not demonstrate good cause or actual prejudice.].

23 ECF No. 40-2 at 6-7. The Nevada Supreme Court's rejection of Brass's claim was neither 17 contrary to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established law as determined by the 18 United States Supreme Court.

20 On April 2, 2008, Brass pleaded guilty to two counts of robbery with the use of a deadly
 21 weapon. ECF No. 29-4 at 7; see also ECF No. 29-1 (signed guilty plea agreement). In response
 22 to the state district court's questioning, Brass indicated that he believed it was in his best interest 23 to take the plea deal rather than "to go to trial and risk getting convicted of murder and attempted

1 murder.” Id. at 8. The state district court found Brass’s “plea of guilt [was] freely and voluntarily
2 given,” and that Brass “underst[ood] the nature of the offense and consequences of the plea.” Id.
3 at 14.

4 On June 6, 2008, Brass’s trial counsel filed a motion to withdraw Brass’s guilty plea.
5 ECF No. 29-6. Brass’s trial counsel explained that Brass “allege[d] his factual innocence in this 6 matter” and that “the Court’s comments immediately prior to the entry of [his] plea unduly 7 coerced him to enter into these negotiations.” Id. at 3. The State opposed the motion. ECF No.
8 30. A hearing was held on June 16, 2008, in which the state district court granted the motion.
9 ECF No. 30-1 at 2. The state district court indicated,

10 Mr. Brass, I believe, simply has buyer’s remorse. He knew exactly what he was 11 pleading to. However, sometimes people who make their own bed should then sleep
12 in the bed that they make. And I think that Mr. Brass, who has not been sentenced, 13 should have the benefit of going to trial. And, Mr. Brass, should you be convicted,
14 I don’t want you crying to me. I don’t want you crying to me if you get convicted 15 of murder that you could have had 12 years. Oh, Judge, oh, Judge, I don’t want to 16 go to prison for life because I could have had 12 years. You have to understand 17 that. You’re making the decision. It’s your decision. Nobody else can make that 18 decision for you, but at the end of the line if you get convicted, I don’t want you 19 crying to me.

20 ECF No. 89-2 at 6. Brass’s trial counsel explained that he met with Brass “informing him of the 21 good points and bad points about withdrawing his plea,” including “discuss[ing] the potential 22 sentencing range if he is ultimately found guilty.” Id. at 6-7. Brass’s trial counsel informed the 23 state district court that “Brass still . . . want[ed] to go forward with th[e] motion.” Id. at 7.

20 A post-conviction evidentiary hearing was held four years later. See ECF No. 39. Brass 21 testified at that hearing that he entered his guilty plea knowingly, voluntarily, and intelligently.
22 Id. at 33-34. However, Brass did not understand the grounds necessary to later withdraw his 23 guilty plea. Id. at 34. In response to cross-examination by the State, Brass indicated that he

1 probably learned of his co-defendants' sentences after pleading guilty but before he withdrew 2 his guilty plea. Id. at 36.

3 Brass's original counsel, who represented him during the plea process, testified at the 4 post-conviction evidentiary hearing that "there were several meetings [that he] had with Mr.
5 Brass prior to his entry of the plea and then subsequent to his entry of the plea." Id. at 23.
6 Brass's trial counsel elaborated that he "was pleased when [Brass accepted the plea], since it
7 did limit his exposures and since the plea implicated both the murder case in which [Brass's
8 trial counsel] represented him and then an unrelated murder." Id. at 27. Brass's counsel had "no
9 reason to think [Brass's guilty plea] was not" legally entered; however, he later filed a motion
10 to withdraw the guilty plea. Id. at 25-26. Brass's counsel explained that Brass filed "a Pro Per 11 motion" to withdraw his guilty plea and that the state district court "requested that [he] file a 12 brief on [Brass's] behalf regarding that particular issue." Id. at 24. Brass's counsel testified that 13 it was Brass's desire to have his guilty plea withdrawn. Id. at 29.

14 Brass's second counsel, who represented him during the trial and the appeal, testified 15 that he was surprised that the state district court "let [Brass] withdraw [his guilty] plea under 16 th[e] circumstances." Id. at 15. He also testified about not raising an issue about the state
17 district court's granting of the motion in Brass's direct appeal:

18 The only thing I can think of is that I would've thought it would be better for post-19 conviction relief, because I didn't have the record necessarily as to why, you know, as to why it would've been done. But other than that, I don't know why, 'cause as 20 I sit here now, perhaps we would've had the record well enough, but I just didn't think the Supreme Court would be interested in that issue.

21 Id.

22 The Nevada Supreme Court reasonably determined that Brass failed to demonstrate that 23 his appellate counsel was deficient. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688. Pursuant to Nevada law, "[a]

1 district court may, in its discretion, grant a defendant's motion to withdraw a guilty plea for any
2 substantial reason if it is fair and just." Wood v. State, 114 Nev. 468, 475, 958 P.2d 91, 95
3 (1998) (internal quotation marks omitted). Because the state district court had discretion to 4 grant Brass's motion to withdraw his guilty plea, Brass's appellate counsel's statement that he 5 "just didn't think the Supreme Court would be interested in th[e] issue," ECF No. 39 at 15, 6 appears to be accurate. Indeed, demonstrating an abuse of discretion is difficult, and in this 7 situation, it is somewhat nonsensical to argue that a request should be granted and then later
8 argue that the request was a mistake and should not have been granted. Accordingly, given the 9 discretionary nature of the underlying claim, Brass fails to demonstrate that his appellate 10 "counsel unreasonably failed to discover [this] nonfrivolous issue[ ]." Smith, 528 U.S. at 285;
11 see also Jones v. Barnes, 463 U.S. 745, 753 (1983) ("A brief that raises every colorable issue 12 runs the risk of burying good arguments."). Because the Nevada Supreme Court reasonably 13 denied this claim, Brass is denied federal habeas relief for Ground 7(c).

14 H. Ground 8

15 In Ground 8, Brass alleges that his federal constitutional rights were violated when his 16 trial counsel erroneously allowed him to withdraw his guilty plea. ECF No. 24 at 41. Brass
17 raised this claim in his second state habeas petition. See ECF No. 73-1 at 20. The Nevada 18 Supreme Court determined that Brass's second state habeas petition was procedurally barred as 19 untimely and successive. ECF No. 73-5. Thus, this court previously determined that "in order 20 for [Brass] to proceed on his claim in Ground Eight, he must show cause and prejudice for the 21 default." ECF No. 84 at 10. Brass argued that he can establish cause based on Martinez v. Ryan, 22 566 U.S. 1 (2012) because his post-conviction counsel rendered ineffective assistance by 23 failing to raise this claim in his initial state court habeas proceedings. Id.

1 To demonstrate cause for a procedural default, the petitioner must “show that some 2 objective factor external to the defense impeded” his efforts to comply with the state procedural 3 rule. Murray v. Carrier, 477 U.S. 478, 488 (1986); see also McCleskey v. Zant, 499 U.S. 467,
4 497 (1991) (“For cause to exist, the external impediment . . . must have prevented [the] petitioner
5 from raising the claim.”); White v. Lewis, 874 F.2d 599, 603 (9th Cir. 1989) (“To establish 6 prejudice resulting from a procedural default, a habeas petitioner bears ‘the burden of showing 7 not merely that the errors [complained of] constituted a possibility of prejudice, but that they 8 worked to his actual and substantial disadvantage, infecting his entire [proceeding] with errors of 9 constitutional dimension.” (emphases in original), citing United States v. Frady, 456 U.S. 152, 10 170 (1982)). In Martinez, the Supreme Court ruled that ineffective assistance of post-conviction
11 counsel may serve as cause to overcome the procedural default of a claim of ineffective
12 assistance of trial counsel. 566 U.S. 1 (2012). In Martinez, the Supreme Court noted that it had 13 previously held, in Coleman, that “an attorney’s negligence in a postconviction proceeding does 14 not establish cause” to excuse a procedural default. Id. at 1319. The Martinez Court, however, 15 “qualif[ied] Coleman by recognizing a narrow exception: [i]nadequate assistance of counsel at 16 initial-review collateral proceedings may establish cause for a prisoner’s procedural default of a 17 claim of ineffective assistance at trial.” Id. at 1315. The Court described “initial- review 18 collateral proceedings” as “collateral proceedings which provide the first occasion to raise a 19 claim of ineffective assistance of trial.” Id. Because the Martinez analysis is intertwined with the 20 underlying merits of this ground, this court deferred ruling on this issue until the merits of this 21 ground were briefed by the parties. ECF No. 84 at 10.

22 The Strickland “two-part standard” identified in Ground 6 “appli[es] to ineffective-23 assistance claims arising out of the plea process.” Hill v. Lockhart, 474 U.S. 52, 57 (1985). As

1 was detailed in Ground 7(c), Brass's trial counsel explained that he met with Brass several 2 times before Brass withdrew his guilty plea in order to discuss the consequences of doing so,
3 including discussing the potential sentence Brass may face if he were to be found guilty by the 4 jury. ECF No. 39 at 23; ECF No. 89-2 at 6-7. Even after these discussions, Brass decided to 5 still go forward with the motion. ECF No. 89-2 at 7. Additionally, Brass was the one who 6 originally moved in proper person to withdraw his plea. ECF No. 39 at 24. Brass's trial counsel
7 only thereafter filed a brief on Brass's behalf at the request of the state district court. Id. Based 8 on these facts, it cannot be concluded that Brass's trial counsel was deficient. Strickland, 466
9 U.S. at 688; Hill, 474 U.S. at 57. In fact, contrary to Brass's assertions, the evidence 10 demonstrates that Brass's trial counsel did not want Brass to withdraw his guilty plea. Rather,
11 Brass's trial counsel was pleased with Brass's plea deal, see ECF No. 39 at 27, and after Brass
12 moved for the withdrawal of his plea, Brass's trial counsel discussed the consequences of this 13 decision with Brass on several occasions. Accordingly, it was Brass's idea and decision to 14 withdraw his guilty plea, not his trial counsel's. This conclusion is supported by the fact that 15 the state district court even told Brass that withdrawing his plea was his decision and warned 16 him that he if was found guilty, he would face a substantially greater sentence. ECF No. 89-2 at 17 6.

18 Because Brass has not shown that his trial counsel was deficient, Ground 8 is not 19 substantial. Therefore, Brass has not shown that his post-conviction counsel was ineffective for 20 failing to raise this ground. And because Brass's post-conviction counsel was not ineffective, 21
22
23

1 there is no cause for Brass's procedural default. See Martinez, 566 U.S. at 9. Thus, Ground 8
 2 will be denied because it is procedurally defaulted.<sup>1</sup>

3 I. Ground 10

4 In Ground 10, Brass alleges that he is entitled to relief because of the cumulative effect of 5 the errors raised in his petition. ECF No. 24 at 45. In Brass's appeal of the denial of his state
 6 habeas petition, the Nevada Supreme Court held: "appellant claimed that cumulative error
 7 warranted reversal of his conviction. As appellant failed to demonstrate any error, he failed to 8 demonstrate any cumulative effect of error would amount to ineffective assistance of counsel."
 9 ECF No. 40-2 at 5. This ruling was reasonable.

10 Under Ninth Circuit precedent, "although individual errors may not rise to the level of a 11 constitutional violation, a collection of errors might violate a defendant's constitutional rights."
 12 Davis v. Woodford, 384 F.3d 628, 654 (9th Cir. 2004). "[C]umulative error warrants habeas 13 relief only where the errors have 'so infected the trial with unfairness as to make the resulting 14 conviction a denial of due process.'" Parle v. Runnels, 505 F.3d 922, 927 (9th Cir. 2007)
 15 (quoting Donnelly v. DeChristoforo, 416 U.S. 637, 643 (1974)). Here, Brass failed to identify 16 any errors. Thus, Brass is denied federal habeas relief for Ground 10.<sup>2</sup>

17

---

18 <sup>1</sup> Brass also argued that he can demonstrate cause for his procedural default because this 19 claim was not available until after he filed his first state habeas petition due to the fact that it was 20 based on subsequent United States Supreme Court decisions, Lafler v. Cooper, 566 U.S. 156
 21 (2012) and Missouri v. Frye, 566 U.S. 134 (2012), which established the right to counsel during 22 plea negotiations. ECF No. 78 at 12. This argument lacks merit. The United States Supreme 23 Court determined that a defendant has the right to counsel during the plea process in 1985. See
Hill v. Lockhart, 474 U.S. 52, 57 (1985). Further, Brass's contention deals with the withdrawal of his guilty plea, not plea negotiations specifically.

22 <sup>2</sup> Brass requested that this court "[c]onduct a hearing so proof may be offered to support 23 the allegations in [his] Amended Petition" and grant him "the authority to obtain subpoenas for witnesses and documents, conduct depositions, and conduct any other discovery reasonably necessary to prove the facts alleged in [his] petition." ECF No. 24 at 46. Brass fails to explain what evidence would be presented at an evidentiary hearing or through discovery. Additionally,

1

211

Certificate of Appealability

4 This is a final order adverse to Brass. As such, Rule 11 of the Rules Governing Section 5 2254 Cases requires this court to issue or deny a certificate of appealability (COA). Therefore,
6 this court has sua sponte evaluated the claims within the petition for suitability for the issuance
7 of a COA. See 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c); Turner v. Calderon, 281 F.3d 851, 864-65 (9th Cir. 2002).
8 Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2), a COA may issue only when the petitioner “has made a 9 substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right.” With respect to claims rejected on the 10 merits, a petitioner “must demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district court’s 11 assessment of the constitutional claims debatable or wrong.” Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 12 484 (2000) (citing Barefoot v. Estelle, 463 U.S. 880, 893 & n.4 (1983)). For procedural rulings, a 13 COA will issue only if reasonable jurists could debate (1) whether the petition states a valid 14 claim of the denial of a constitutional right and (2) whether the court’s procedural ruling was 15 correct. Id. Applying these standards, this court finds that a certificate of appealability is 16 unwarranted.

Conclusion

18 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the First Amended Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus 19 by a Person in State Custody Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254 (ECF No. 24) is DENIED.

20 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Petitioner is denied a certificate of appealability.

21 this court has already determined that Brass is not entitled to relief, and neither further factual 22 development nor any evidence that may be proffered at an evidentiary hearing or through 23 discovery would affect this court's reasons for denying relief. Accordingly, Brass's request for an evidentiary hearing is denied.

1 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of the Court is directed to enter judgment
2 accordingly.

3 Dated: May 1, 2020

4
5 Gloria M. Navarro, Judge
6 United States District Court

7
8
9
10
11 12
13 14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23

1

2

3 Appendix C

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18 19 20 21

22

23

24

25 Appendix C

26

27

28

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS
FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

FILED

JUN 30 2021

MOLLY C. DWYER, CLERK
U.S. COURT OF APPEALS

GEORGE BRASS,

Petitioner-Appellant,

v.

BRIAN WILLIAMS, SR.; ATTORNEY
GENERAL FOR THE STATE OF
NEVADA,

Respondents-Appellees.

No. 20-16004

D.C. No. 2:13-cv-02020-GMN-VCF
District of Nevada,
Las Vegas

ORDER

Before: IKUTA and MILLER, Circuit Judges.

Appellant's motion for reconsideration (Docket Entry No. 15) is denied. See 9th Cir. R. 27-10.

No further filings will be entertained in this closed case.

20-16004

George Brass, #NDOC No. 1045449
HDSP - HIGH DESERT STATE PRISON (INDIAN SPRINGS)
P.O. Box 650
Indian Springs, NV 89070-0650

---

---