QUESTION(S) PRESENTED

When a grand jury is used for an indictment of an individual, then moves into the trial stage of the legal process, at what time constraint does it become a U.S. Constitutional violation of the 6TH and 14TH Amendments that the time frame of the original indictment of the crime time frame can be changed without altering the fairness of due process instead of dismissing the original indictment and having it put in front of a new grand jury?

Furthermore, what Constitutional protection is affronted to a layman who has to use a court appointed counsel for defense when they are paid by case loads and have no regard to clients rights or outcomes?

CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS INVOLVED

Ohio Criminal Rule 7

U.S. Constitutional Amendments ~~6th + 14th~~

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The indictment was unjustly after at the initial trial violating due process. This was compound, as learned later that the appointed counsel could have delayed the trial and prepared but chose not to so he could continue onward to conclusion to move on to the next court appointed case.

Due to the issues of the indictment adjustment and the attorney misconduct a retrial at the minimal should have occurred.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

Granting the petition would set forth a balancee and accountability to the courts and court appointed counsel. Having a statuted on indictment amendments would ensure due process. Ensuring accountability of court appointed counsel would protect those from lawyers who simply fill their dockets as provided by the same courts they are supposed to be fighting.

CONCLUSION

The petition for a writ of certiorari should be granted.

Respectfully submitted,

Ronald F. Cook
