MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION OF THE COURTS 04/03/23 ORDER

Glen Plourde
455 Chapman Road
Newburgh, Maine 04444

Now comes the petitioner, Glen Plourde, in pauperis and pro se, and respectfully asks that The Court reconsider its 04/03/23 Order, which has barred the petitioner from petitioning to The Court any further in non-criminal matters, unless the filing fee is paid and the petitions are presented in bound book format, neither of which the in pauperis petitioner has the money to afford (Exhibit A).

Petitioner has read the rules of The United States Supreme Court and can find no rules regarding the filing of this motion, only general rules that apply to the filing of any motions with The United States Supreme Court. The petitioner has, therefore, filed this Motion for Reconsideration pursuant to the rules stated in The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, including that of time. This motion is therefore timely, complies with The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and complies with the rules of The United States Supreme Court.

The Petitioner has noticed that reconsideration of The Courts 04/03/23 Order "would affect the final judgment to be entered" (Rule 21(2)(b)) and therefore this motion is normally required to be prepared pursuant to Rule 33.1 (40 bound books), which the in pauperis petitioner cannot afford. The in pauperis petitioner has therefore prepared a Motion to Proceed In Forma Pauperis and has appended that motion to this motion for reconsideration.

It is the petitioners sincere hope that The Court will reconsider its 04/03/23 Order as the petitioner is undeniably indigent and lacks the resources to petition any other way than in forma pauperis and the petitioner is therefore effectively banned from The Court pursuant to its 04/03/23 Order.

ARGUMENT AND MEMORANDUM OF LAW

I. The Petitioners Petitions for Writ of Certiorari were not “Frivolous or Malicious” and therefore The Court has inappropriately applied Rule 39.8.

None of the petitioners cases that he has petitioned to The Court have been found to be frivolous or malicious by either the Original Court or the appropriate Court of Appeals and therefore The Court has erred in finding the petitioners petitions to be “frivolous or malicious” and Rule 39.8 has been inappropriately applied in the case of this indigent and pro se petitioner.

The pro se petitioner understands the definition of frivolous, in legal terms, to be “devoid of any factual basis and/or legal merit”. None of the petitioners cases that he has petitioned for certiorari to This Court for have been found to be frivolous by either The Original Court or the appropriate Court of Appeals.

Likewise, The pro se petitioner understands the definition of malicious, in legal terms, to be “intent to cause injury or harm”. Again, none of the petitioners cases that he has petitioned for certiorari to This Court for have been found to be malicious by either the Original Court or the appropriate Court of Appeals.

Thus, This Court has erred in finding the indigent and pro se petitioner’s Petition(s) for Writ of Certiorari to be frivolous or malicious and has therefore inappropriately applied Rule 39.8.

The Petitioner has petitioned for Certiorari to The United States Supreme Court a total of ten times beginning in 2018, or roughly 2 petitions per year.¹ Two of those petitions were paid petitions (not In Forma Pauperis) as the petitioner had the financial resources to pay for both the considerable expenses of the filing fees and book creation at that time.²

None of those cases were found to be frivolous or malicious in either the Original Court or The Court of Appeals, and accordingly, none were found to be frivolous or malicious by This Court until petition 21 – 6598, in which The Court has denied petition pursuant to Rule 39.8, and now this subsequent petition 22 – 6648, in which The Court has both denied petition and has imposed sanctions pursuant to Martin v. District of Columbia Court of Appeals, 506 U.S. 1 (1992).

The Petitioner filed a Petition for Rehearing in 21 – 6598, arguing that sanctions pursuant to Rule 39.8 were inappropriate. Upon hearing nothing back from The Court, the petitioner filed a Motion for Finding of Facts and Conclusions of Law which sought the substantive reasons why The Court ignored his Petition for Rehearing and why The Court found his petition to be frivolous or malicious (Ref. 21 – 6598 04/06/22 “Motion for Finding of Facts and Conclusions of Law pursuant to Rule 21”) (Exhibit B). That Motion was never ruled upon.

Petitioner was next contacted by Clerk of The Court Redmond K. Barnes, who informed the petitioner that The Court had no record of having nor receiving the Petitioners Petition for Rehearing in that case (Exhibit C). Petitioner therefore resubmitted his petition for rehearing, and that petition for rehearing was denied. Again, The Court failed to address the substantive reasons why it found the petitioner's petition 21 – 6598 to be frivolous or harassing and therefore to merit dismissal under Rule 39.8, as he had made motion for on 04/06/22 (Exhibit B).

Petitioner called Mr. Redmond K. Barnes and inquired as to the status of his 04/06/22 Motion for Findings of Facts and Conclusions of Law. Petitioner was told by Mr. Barnes that This Court did not need to respond to his Motion and would not respond to his motion. Thus the Petitioner did not have, and still does not have, any idea why This Court has found his petition(s) to be frivolous or harassing. The Lower Courts have not reached that conclusion, as described above.

The Petitioner has been and still is under the reasonable impression that it is his right to petition to The United States Supreme Court any judgement that he feels is contrary to Law, and if he is without the financial resources to do so he may petition In Forma Pauperis, and he has done so eight times in five years in the above-cited cases and in Good Faith. Inspection of the Legal and Constitutional Questions the petitioner has presented will show that those questions were neither frivolous nor malicious and all were grounded in Constitutional, and sometimes International, Law.

Thus, the petitioner respectfully asserts that This Court has erred in finding this indigent and pro se petitioner's Petition(s) for Writ of Certiorari to be frivolous or malicious and has therefore inappropriately applied Rule 39.8 to the petitioner.

II. The Petitioner has not "abused the Court's process" as stated in The Courts 04/03/23 Order.

The Petitioner respectfully asserts that he has not "abused the Court's process" as The Court has stated in its 04/03/23 Order (Exhibit A).

Quite the contrary, the pro se petitioner has followed The Court's process in every petition he has applied for, which encompass the two that he had the financial resources to pay for, and did so,³ as well as the eight that he applied for, and received, in forma pauperis status.⁴

The pro se petitioner has paid for his petitions when he had the financial resources to do so, applied for in Good Faith (and received) In Forma Pauperis status when he did not, has argued his Questions of Law and Constitutional Questions to the best of his pro se ability, and not once were any of the petitioners petitions, motions, or other filings found to be defective or abusive in process, at any time, by This Court.

Thus the Petitioner asserts that The Court has erred in finding that the petitioner has "repeatedly abused the Court's process" in it's 04/03/23 Order.

III. The Petitioners situation and the one cited in Martin v. District of Columbia Court of Appeals, 506 U.S. 1 (1992) bear no resemblance to one another and therefore sanctions pursuant to that precedent are inappropriate.

The Petitioners situation and the one cited in Martin v. District of Columbia Court of Appeals, 506 U.S. 1 (1992) bear no resemblance to one another and therefore sanctions pursuant to that precedent are inappropriate.

In Martin, the petitioner has filed fifty-six (56) petitions for writ of certiorari in ten years, seeking In Forma Pauperis status in each of them. That is an average of almost 6 In Forma Pauperis Petitions a year, and is many more the eight (8) In

Forma Pauperis petitions for writ of certiorari that the petitioner has filed in the past five years, which is an average of less than two petitions per year.

In fact, simple math shows that the petitioner in Martin has filed seven times more in forma pauperis petitions for writ of certiorari than this petitioner has.

Furthermore, the petitioner in Martin was apparently given "fair warning" of sanctions if he continued to file, while this Petitioner was not. The opinion in Martin reads, in relevant part:

We first invoked Rule 39.8 to deny Martin in forma pauperis status last November. See Zatko v. California, 502 U. S. 16 (1991) (per curiam).

Since we first denied him in forma pauperis status last year, he has filed nine petitions for certiorari with this Court. We denied Martin leave to proceed in forma pauperis under Rule 39.8 of this Court with respect to four of these petitions, and denied the remaining five petitions outright. Two additional petitions for certiorari are before us today, bringing the total number of petitions Martin has filed in the past year to 11.

in Zatko, we warned that "[f]uture similar filings from [Martin] will merit additional measures." 502 U. S., at 18.

We regret the necessity of taking this step, but Martin's refusal to heed our earlier warning leaves us no choice.

From the above citations in Martin, it is clear that The Court first invoked Rule 39.8 on the petitioner in Martin and warned him of additional sanctions to follow (Zatko) a year prior to that petitioner subsequently filing an additional eleven petitions with The Court, four of which were denied pursuant to Rule 39.8 and seven of which were considered by The Court.

Unlike Martin, this petitioner has not been warned of additional sanctions that might be imposed should he continue to seek to file in forma pauperis. This petitioner was not even told by The Court why his previous petition 21 – 6598 merited dismissal under Rule 39.8 when this petitioner took the logical and proactive step of asking The Court for the substantive facts that led The Court to dismiss his petition pursuant to Rule 39.8 (Ref. 21 – 6598 04/06/22 “Motion for Finding of Facts and Conclusions of Law pursuant to Rule 21”) (Exhibit B).

The Petitioner’s case and Martin bear no resemblance to one another and therefore Martin should not be applied to this Petitioner. The Petitioner in Martin filed forty-five (45) in forma pauperis petitions before first being warned of sanctions. This petitioner filed eight (8) in forma pauperis petitions and was never warned of sanctions, and was not even told why The Court found his last petition to be “frivolous or malicious” when he requested that information from The Court in a proper motion (Exhibit B). Moreover, The Court continued to accept in forma pauperis petitions from the petitioner in Martin a total of eleven (11) times in a single year before handing down the ruling in Martin that has been applied to the Petitioner after his eighth in forma pauperis petition in 5 years. In total, the petitioner in Martin has been allowed to file no less than fifty-six (56) in forma pauperis petitions, eleven of them being filed and accepted after the petitioner in Martin was warned of sanctions, while this petitioner has been allowed to file eight (8) in forma pauperis petitions in total and was never warned of sanctions.

Clearly this Petitioner’s activity has not even approached the level of activity of the petitioner in Martin, nor was this petitioner given any warning of sanctions as Martin was, and thus the two petitioners are quite different and the sanctions applied in Martin are inappropriate to this petitioner at this time.

IV. The Petitioner is terminally indigent and imposing the sanctions in Martin will result in a situation where the petitioner is effectively denied access to The United States Supreme Court, and as a result, will put him at the mercy of unjust or unlawful decisions by The Lower Courts.

The Petitioner is terminally indigent and imposing the sanctions in Martin will result in a situation where the petitioner is effectively denied access to The United States Supreme Court, and as a result, will put him at the mercy of unjust or unlawful decisions by The Lower Courts. The Petitioner feels he is in clear and present danger of this fate, should The Courts 04/03/23 Order stand, as he has been tortured by United States Government Personnel while working for a defense contractor in Windsor Locks, Connecticut during 2011 – 2013, and as a result has sought help from everyone in the State and Federal Governments that he can think of, including This Court, and no one has offered him any help whatsoever, as he has made This Court aware.

The Petitioner is clearly indigent as any of his applications to proceed in forma pauperis will show. The Court has recognized this by granting the petitioner in forma pauperis status the eight times he has applied, out of necessity, for it in the past five years.

In 2018, when the petitioner still had some financial resources to work with, he was able to pay the $500 filing fee and $2,500 cost of printing the forty-plus bound books required by Rules 38(a) and 33.1, respectively. However, it is no longer 2018, and the petitioner no longer has the financial resources to work with that he did at that time, as his applications to proceed in forma pauperis will reflect. The petitioner now lives with his parents, out of necessity, who pay for all of his basic living expenses, and only his basic living expenses. The pro se petitioner's parents are both retired and live on fixed incomes and do not have the financial resources to pay the cost of the petitioner's legal expenses or to hire him a proper attorney.

The Court's 04/03/23 Order, should it stand, will effectively deny the petitioner access to pursue redress in The United States Supreme Court, should he require it, because there is absolutely no way the petitioner can afford to pay the $3,000 or so (2018 dollars) cost of petitioning to The United States Supreme Court.

Let there be no doubt that the petitioner is very afraid that he will require future redress to The United States Supreme Court that he simply cannot afford unless he is allowed to proceed in forma pauperis. The petitioner has been tortured, which he has alerted The United States Supreme Court to, as well as all other relevant State and Federal Government entities he is aware of that might help him, and not a single one has stepped forward to offer the petitioner any help whatsoever. The petitioner believes that this alone is proof positive that his court activity is colored by his past experience(s).

Should The Court require more examples that The Government has acted hostile towards the petitioner, let it look no further than criminal cases PENDC-CR-2016-20309, KENDC-CR-2018-21183, and KENDC-CR-2018-20983. The petitioner was arrested, jailed, and abused by the district courts, the prosecutors, and even his own attorneys during each of those cases, before each case was finally dropped for lack of evidence. The petitioner was invited to take plea deals, and even encouraged to do so by his own attorneys, which would have resulted in criminal convictions as well as jail sentences for the petitioner, and the petitioner refused to do so, much to his attorneys' and the courts' vexation; inspection of those docket records will prove that this has positively occurred.

It was only the pro se petitioner's moral compass, and the fact that he was innocent and knew all involved knew it, that kept the petitioner from pleading guilty to crimes he did not commit and serving corresponding jail sentences for those non-existent criminal violations.

In summation, the petitioner believes there is proof positive that his life is now colored by his past experience(s), namely having been tortured, and the petitioner believes that, as a result, he is not being given a fair opportunity in the lower courts to seek redress for the illegal injustice he has suffered; thus future petitions to This Court for writ of certiorari will likely be required.

Conclusion

This Honorable Court should reconsider the restrictions imposed upon the petitioner in its 04/03/23 Order; namely it should do away with them completely, or replace the Order with a warning such as the one received by the petitioner in Martin and an explanation of what The Court finds to be frivolous or malicious.

Dear Mr. Plourde:

The Court today entered the following order in the above-entitled case:

The motion of petitioner for leave to proceed in forma pauperis is denied, and the petition for a writ of certiorari is dismissed. See Rule 39.8. As the petitioner has repeatedly abused this Court's process, the Clerk is directed not to accept any further petitions in noncriminal matters from petitioner unless the docketing fee required by Rule 38(a) is paid and the petition is submitted in compliance with Rule 33.1. See Martin v. District of Columbia Court of Appeals, 506 U. S. 1 (1992) (per curiam).

MOTION FOR FINDING OF FACTS AND LAW PURSUANT TO RULE 21

Glen Plourde
455 Chapman Road
Newburgh, Maine 04444
207-659-2595

Background

On or about 11/30/21 Petitioner has filed in Good-Faith both an application to proceed In Forma Pauperis as well as a petition for writ of certiorari. This Petition was assigned No. 21-6598 by The Court.

Petitioner's petition No. 21-6598 did not differ substantially (in many cases it was identical) in the contents of the application to proceed In Forma Pauperis, nor did it differ substantially (in many cases it was identical or nearly so) in argumentation from the Petitioner's previous petitions for writ of certiorari, although it was properly tailored to meet the Facts of this particular case.

Petitioner was shocked, alarmed, and hurt to receive an Order from The Court, dated 02/22/22, stating that his application to proceed In Forma Pauperis had been denied, and his Petition 21-6598 had been dismissed (Exhibit A). Cited was Rule 39.8, which contemplates dismissals of frivolous or malicious petitions.

In response, Petitioner has filed in Good-Faith both an additional application to proceed In Forma Pauperis and Petition for Rehearing pursuant to Rule 44 on 03/15/22.

Petitioner was again surprised to receive, from the Court, with no explanation whatsoever, all of his Petition for Rehearing materials (Original Copy, 10 Copies, Applications to Proceed In Forma Pauperis, and Certificate of Service) returned to him in a box postmarked 03/23/22 (Exhibit B), on 03/25/22. Thus this motion is timely filed on 04/06/22 as it complies with the filing times described in both the Rules of the Supreme Court and Rules of the Federal Court.

The Petitioner has no idea why his Original Petition 21-6598 was dismissed, nor why his Petition for Rehearing, filed both timely and correctly under Rule 44, did not even appear to be considered. Thus the Petitioner files this Motion for Finding of Facts and Conclusions of Law, which is timely as described in the preceding paragraph.

Questions; Finding of Facts and Conclusions of Law

1. For what Facts or Conclusions of Law was the Petitioner's Petition for Writ of Certiorari 21-6598 dismissed seemingly pursuant to Rule 39.8 (frivolous or malicious) on 02/22/22? (Exhibit A).
2. If Petitioner's Petition 21-6598 was found to be Frivolous by The Court, what are the Finding of Facts and Conclusions of Law that led to that Finding?
3. If Petitioner's Petition 21-6598 was found to be Malicious by The Court, what are the Finding of Facts and Conclusions of Law that led to that Finding?
4. Why was the Petitioner's Petition for Rehearing, correctly and timely filed under Rule 44, returned to him on 03/25/22 with postmark bearing date of 03/23/22 with no apparent disposition (Exhibit B)?

The Petitioner asserts that it is in the best interests of the Judicial Economy to grant this motion as the answers to the Petitioner's questions will assist him in filing any additional Petitions or Documents to The United States Supreme Court in the future.
