To the clerk of court. I have just written to you a couple of days ago requesting more time to file my motion with the Supreme Court. I am challenging my 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals denial of my direct appeal. I write this letter now to inform the court that the Bureau of Prisons will be moving me to another prison within the next couple of days. Just yesterday I had to pack up all of my possessions and legal work to be shipped to my next prison. Transfers in the BOP can take up to 1 month at times. So I again ask this court to grant me more time to do my motion and if possible have the 2nd Circuit review my direct appeal en banc because it was not due to any fault of mine that I missed the deadline. If you try to send me any mail back to this prison I will probably not be here. You can look me up at www.bop.gov I will ~~again~~ write this court again when I reach my next prison.
