FROM: Unit E

SUBJECT: RE:Inmate to Staff Message
DATE: 08/11/2017 03:47:02 PM

Below is the response I received from the Designations Center in Texas.

PS 5880.28 pg 33 (2) Subsection (c) of Section 3584 provides the rules for the treatment (calculation) of multiple sentences and states, Multiple terms of imprisonment ordered to run consecutively or concurrently shall be treated for administrative purposes as a single, aggregate term of imprisonment.

* This statement means that SRA sentences, including a term of imprisonment that results from a revocation of supervised release or probation, shall be aggregated to form a single sentence for computation purposes.

Above is policy statement.

I do not know what exactly is his question but both sentences are aggregated; therefore there will be no release date on the RJC sentence of 36 mos. It could be that inmate is done with the 36 mos sentence, but again the sentences are aggregated. His PRD for both sentences is 09-29-2035.

Thank you,
S. Garcia

Inmate Work Assignment Compound

Dear Ms. Alderman:

I am serving two concurrent sentences. One is 30 years (2:09-cr-90) and one is 3 years (2:00-cr-119). The way that my sentence computation reads, it appears that the way that the Bureau of Prisons ("BOP") calculates concurrent sentences, I am currently in custody on BOTH sentences.

In September of 2014, however, I was told by prison staff that I was not in custody pursuant to my 36 month supervised release violation. However, after reviewing my sentence computation for case no. 2:00-cr-199, I do not have a listed release date nor satisfaction date for the 36 month sentence. Therefore, since the BOP calculates sentences the way they do, would I be incorrect in saying that I am still in custody on both sentences? If not, could you show me your calculation in my record where it states that I am no longer in custody on both my concurrent sentences (360 months and 36 months concurrent). Thank you.

Dear Ms. Bourke:

It was brought to my attention that I misspelled your name and I apologize for that. I am forwarding you the e-mail that I thought that I sent to you regarding my not yet answered CARES Act request that I submitted about four months ago.

Thank you for your attention in this matter.

Dear Ms. Burke:

I am not sure if you remember or not, but I had spoken to you briefly about my CARES Act request on the upper tier in JB Unit. More than two months ago, I had submitted an e-mail to unit team requesting release under the CARES Act because I meet all the necessary criteria. I met with Unit Team at Program Review last week and despite it having been over two months since my request, Unit Team appeared to have no definitive answer on the progress of my request and had no way to check where the request was in the process other than that they believed it was being reviewed by SIS and there were concerns about my release date.

I have over fifty percent of my sentence complete and don't understand why my release date would be concerning to anyone because I meet the CARES Act required criteria. I am incarcerated for a non-violent drug offense, I am minimum custody, I have comorbidities; I am a low level recidivist; I have completed countless post-sentencing rehabilitation programs; and I have an approved release residence to live with my sister Roxanne McDonald in Williston, Vermont were I to be released. Moreover, I have just expunged 21 of my prior Vermont State Convictions and am currently requesting to receive the four years of jail credit for my time in official detention related to those convictions. With all due respect, it feels like my request is being put-off and Unit Team seem to have no answers and tells me they have no way of knowing what is going on or what is happening with my request.

I would appreciate it if you could you please let me know what is going on with my CARES Act request having been made more than two months ago.

Thank you for your attention in this matter.

Sincerely,

Stephen Aguiar
