PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI

Petitioner, David Darnell Whitehead, respectfully prays this Court that a writ of certiorari issue to review the opinion and judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, issued on February 23, 2024, affirming the district court's judgment and sentence.

OPINION BELOW

The opinion and judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit for which review is sought is United States v. David Darnell Whitehead, No. 22-4499 (4th Cir., February 23, 2024). The unpublished opinion of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit is reproduced in the Appendix to this petition as Appendix A. The judgment is reproduced as Appendix B. The mandate is reproduced as Appendix C.

JURISDICTION

The opinion and judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit were issued on February 23, 2024. The jurisdiction of this court is invoked pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1254(1).

CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS INVOLVED

On October 28, 2020, the Petitioner was charged in an indictment with several counts involving alien smuggling. Several counts were dismissed. There were six counts on which he was tried and convicted. Count One charged him with conspiracy to commit alien smuggling in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1324(a)(1)(A)(v)(I). (App. F). Counts Seventeen and Eighteen charged him with smuggling aliens and aiding and abetting, in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1324(a)(1)(A)(i) and 18 U.S.C. § 2. (App. F). And Counts Thirty-six, Thirty-seven, and Forty charged him with money laundering and aiding and abetting to promote a specified unlawful activity, to wit: bringing an alien to the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1956(a)(2)(A), and 18 U.S.C. § 2. (App. G).

This appeal concerns the sufficiency of the evidence that the Petitioner knew that the aliens entered the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry. It also questions the ambiguity of the statute which fails to define what constitutes bringing to or entering the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry”.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On October 28, 2020, David Darnell Whithead was charged along with two other individuals in a 42 count indictment alleging conspiracies to commit various types of alien smuggling, aiding and abetting alien smuggling, and aiding and abetting money laundering in order to promote alien smuggling. The lead defendant was Petitioner's wife, Martha Zelaya-Mejia, and the other co-defendant was Martha's brother, Blas Antonio Celaya-Padilla.

On November 16, 2021, Petitioner pled not guilty at his arraignment. Prior to trial, several of the counts against him were dismissed. Both co-defendants pled guilty.

The case came on for trial at the May 31, 2022 term of court in Elizabeth City, North Carolina, the Honorable Terrence W. Boyle, District Court Judge, presiding. The case went to trial against the Petitioner on Counts 1, 4, 5, 17, 18, 26, 27, 36, 37, and 40. The district court allowed the Petitioner's motion for judgment of acquittal under Rule 29 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure as to Counts 4, 5, 26, and 27. The Rule 29 motion was denied as to Counts 1, 17, 18, 36, 37, and 40. Those counts were submitted to the jury on June 1, 2022. The jury found Mr. Whitehead guilty of the above six counts.

The case came on for sentencing on August 23, 2022 before Judge Boyle. The Petitioner was sentenced to 21 months per count, concurrent, and to one year per count supervised release, concurrent. (App. D). Petitioner appealed.

After briefing, the case was scheduled for oral argument before the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. Prior to argument, the Circuit Court entered an order directing counsel to be prepared to discuss what constitutes bringing to or entering the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry”. (App. E). Oral argument was held on January 24, 2024.

In an unpublished opinion entered on February 23, 2024, the Fourth Circuit affirmed the district court’s judgment and sentence. (App. A).

STATEMENT OF FACTS

On September 11, 2005, David Darnell Whitehead married Martha Zelaya-Mejia (hereinafter Martha), lead co-defendant in this case. This case involved a scheme by Martha to bring female aliens and their children from Honduras into the United States through Mexico. James Bryan Peterson, a defendant in a related case, was a farmer in Pender County, North Carolina, which is in the Eastern District of North Carolina. He purportedly gave Martha large sums of money to bring several women in from Honduras because he was looking for a wife. Martha had family contacts in Honduras that assisted in making arrangements to transport women through Mexico and across the border into the United States. Martha’s brother, co-defendant Blas Antonio Celaya-Padilla, was also involved and acted at times as a courier, sometimes referred to as a “mule” or “coyote”.

The scheme involved bringing several women into the United States from Honduras. They included Karen Menjivar, Alma Mendez, Karen Ordonez, and a fourth women named Besay, who never reached the United States. It appears that Peterson was paying Martha to bring him a wife, whereas she was telling the women they were coming here to work for him.

The scheme unraveled on August 9, 2019 when Karen Ordonez placed a 911 call to the Pender County Sheriff's Department claiming she and her eight month old son were being held against their will at Peterson's house in Willard, North Carolina. Detective John Leatherwood and female Deputy Scott responded to the call.

David Whitehead's alleged participation involved Karen Ordonez and her son coming into the country. Ordonez testified that she and her son came to the United States in a boat driven by smugglers. She walked until she came to a bridge and was stopped by the Border Patrol. She met with Immigration authorities and they released her. She went to her uncle's house in Texas, and was there about one month. Martha then paid for her to fly from Texas to Boston, Massachusetts. Although Martha and Peterson drove to Boston, Peterson came back alone to North Carolina because Martha told him to leave.

Martha testified that since Peterson had to come back to North Carolina, she called Petitioner to come to Boston to meet her and Ordonez. Petitioner drove to Boston to pick them up. However he and Martha had an argument, and he left Boston and drove Ordonez back to Fayetteville, North Carolina. He left Ordonez and her son at the Sheriff's Department in Fayetteville, and Peterson picked them up.

Further facts will be developed during the argument portion of the petition.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

- I. THERE WAS INSUFFICIENT EVIDENCE THAT THE PETITIONER, KNOWING A PERSON IS AN ALIEN, KNOWINGLY CONSPIRED TO BRING SUCH PERSON TO THE UNITED STATES AT A PLACE OTHER THAN A DESIGNATED PORT OF ENTRY, DID KNOWINGLY BRING, AND AIDED AND ABETTED BRINGING TO THE UNITED STATES AN ALIEN AT A PLACE OTHER THAN A DESIGNATED PORT OF ENTRY, AND KNOWINGLY TRANSFERRED MONETARY INSTRUMENTS AND FUNDS FROM A PLACE IN THE UNITED STATES TO A PLACE OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES TO PROMOTE BRINGING SUCH PERSON TO THE UNITED STATES AT A PLACE OTHER THAN A DESIGNATED PORT OF ENTRY.

It is unlawful under 8 U.S.C. § 1324(a)(1)(A)(i) to bring an alien to the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry.” (App. F-1) David Whitehead was charged and convicted of six counts, all of which contained the essential element that an alien had been brought to the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry.” As previously noted, his counts included conspiracy, two counts of alien smuggling, and three counts of money laundering to promote alien smuggling. He contends that there was insufficient evidence as a matter of law that Karen Ordonez and her child were brought to the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry, or that he knew that they were brought to the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry. He further claims that a “designated port of entry” is not defined in the statute, and that the term is vague under the totality of the circumstances in his case.

After briefing, and prior to oral argument, the Fourth Circuit panel entered an order directing counsel to be prepared to discuss the following at oral argument: What constitutes bringing to or entering the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry”? (App. E). Defense counsel and Government counsel both addressed this issue at oral argument. The testimony of Karen Ordonez indicated that the smugglers brought her across the river in a boat, that she was told to just start walking, and that she walked to a bridge where there was a patrol car. She testified there were hundreds of people there. Immigration officials let her come into the country, and told her to present herself two days later, which she did. She testified she was allowed to go to her uncle’s place in Texas where she stayed for one month. Martha and Peterson paid for her and her child to take a flight from Texas to Boston.

Based upon the above scenario of events, it is respectfully urged that it is impossible to tell whether or not Ms. Ordonez and her child entered the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry. True, her entry may not have been exactly at the port of entry, but it certainly appeared from her testimony that it was close by. Also, the fact she turned herself in to the border patrol, met with Immigration, was required to come back two days later, which she did, and was then allowed to go to her uncle’s place lends credence to the fact that she did appear at a designated port of entry. More importantly, based upon the above scenario, it is impossible to determine whether Ms. Ordonez and her child entered the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry, or that the Petitioner knew that.

The Fourth Circuit reviews a challenge to the sufficiency of the evidence de novo, and will sustain the verdict if there is substantial evidence, viewed in the light most favorable to the Government, to support it. United States v. Caldwell, 7 F. 4th 191, 209 (4th Cir. 2021). Substantial evidence is evidence that a reasonable finder of fact could accept as adequate and sufficient to support a conclusion of a defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. See United States v. Alerre, 430 F. 3d 681, 693 (4th Cir. 2005), citing Glasser v. United States, 315 U.S. 60, 80, 62 S. Ct. 457, 469, 86 L.Ed. 680 (1942).

To establish an alien smuggling conspiracy, the Government must prove an agreement to carry out one of the substantive offenses and that the defendant had the intent necessary to commit the underlying offense. United States v. Torralba-Mendia, 784 F.3d 652, 663 (9th Cir. 2015). The Ninth Circuit also cited United States v. Shabani, 513 U.S. 10, 13, 115 S. Ct. 382, 384, 130 L.Ed. 2d 225 (1994), holding that conspiracies require an overt act only when explicitly stated in the statute's text. In the instant case, one of the elements for the conspiracy charge and the two smuggling charges was that the defendant knew that the alien had been brought to the United States "at a place other than a designated port of entry". Based upon the above, it is urged that there was insufficient evidence as a matter of law regarding the element of whether Karen Ordonez and her child entered the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry.

Black's Law Dictionary defines "port" as follows:

"port 1. A harbor where ships load and unload cargo. 2. Any place where persons and cargo are allowed to enter a country and where customs officials are stationed. — Also termed (in sense 2) port of entry." Black's Law Dictionary (11th Edition 2019).

In Department of Homeland Security v. Thuraissigiam, 591 U.S. ___, 140 S. Ct. 1959, 207 L.Ed. 2d 427 (2020), this Court defined “port of entry” as follows:

“An alien who arrives at a ‘port of entry,’ i.e., a place where an alien may lawfully enter, must apply for admission. An alien like respondent who is caught trying to enter at some other spot is treated the same way. §§ 1225(a)(1), (3).

If an alien is inadmissible, the alien may be removed.”

140 S. Ct. at 1964.

The Code of Federal Regulations provides a list of ports of entry for aliens arriving by vessel or by land transportation. See 8 C.F.R. § 100.4.

Despite directing that counsel be prepared to address what constitutes bringing to or entering the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry”, and carefully questioning counsel about this at oral argument, the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals opinion did not address this issue. Notably, the phrase “at a place other than a designated port of entry” is not mentioned in the opinion. It is urged that this was a significant issue, it needed to be addressed, and under the totality of the facts and circumstances there was insufficient evidence that the Petitioner knew or should have known that Ms. Ordonez and her child were brought to the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry. The fact she was able to walk to a bridge where she saw a patrol vehicle, met with Immigration officials, returned two days later to meet with them again, and was allowed to remain in the United States would necessarily lead one to believe that she arrived at, or reported to a designated port of entry.

Petitioner David Whitehead also urges that the Fourth Circuit panel's question about the designated port of entry emphasized the vagueness of this statute. Criminal statutes are to be strictly construed and should not be interpreted to extend criminal liability beyond that which Congress intended. In light of the serious consequences flowing from a criminal conviction, the Supreme Court has held that the rule of strict construction rests on the principle that "no [person] shall be held criminally responsible for conduct which he could not reasonably understand to be proscribed." United States v. Lanier, 520 U.S. 259, 265-266, 117 S.Ct. 1219, 1225, 137 L.Ed.2d 432 (1997). Petitioner Whitehead urges that the statute herein fails to adequately describe what constitutes bringing to or entering the United States at a place other than a designated port of entry. What if an alien arrives within view of a designated port of entry and immediately reports to said port of entry? What if an alien misses a port of entry entirely, but reports as soon as possible thereafter and follows Immigration directions? After raising this issue the Fourth Circuit opinion failed to address it. It is respectfully requested that this Court address this issue.

Due to the above vagueness, Petitioner Whitehead respectfully contends that the rule of lenity should apply. The rule of lenity requires that when a choice has to be made between two readings of what Congress has made a crime, it is appropriate, before choosing the harsher alternative, to require that Congress should have spoken in a language that is clear and definite. See United States v.

Universal C.I.T. Credit Corp., 344 U.S. 218, 221-222, 73 S. Ct. 227, 229, 97 L.Ed. 260 (1952).

The rule of lenity is based on two substantial considerations. First, the rule recognizes that a fair warning should be given to the world in language that the common world will understand, of what the law intends to do if a certain line is passed. Second, the rule acknowledges that Congress, rather than the judiciary, is the appropriate institution to define criminal conduct. See Yi v. Fed. Bureau of Prisons, 412 F. 3d 526, 535 (4th Cir. 2005), quoting Babbitt v. Sweet Home Chapter of Communities, 515 U.S. 687, 704 n. 18, 115 S. Ct. 2407, 132 L.Ed.2d 597 (1995).

Petitioner contends that the statute herein is ambiguous regarding what constitutes bringing to or entering the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry.” This Court has held that it declines to speculate regarding the intent of Congress when there is ambiguity or uncertainty in the statute. See Barber v. Thomas, 560 U.S. 474, 488, 130 S. Ct. 2499, 2508, 177 L.Ed. 2d. 1 (2010), quoting United States v. Muscarello, 524 U.S. 125, 139, 118 S. Ct. 1911, 1919, 141 L.Ed. 2d 111 (1998).

What constitutes bringing to or entering the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry”, is an essential element of all of the charges against Petitioner David Whitehead. He contends that the vagueness of what this actually means creates ambiguities and uncertainties as to the intent of Congress. He further contends that the rule of lenity should apply. The Fourth Circuit should have addressed this issue, and Petitioner requests that this Court grant his petition so that this issue may be considered.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Petitioner David Darnell Whitehead, respectfully requests that a Writ of Certiorari issue to review the opinion and judgment of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit affirming his conviction, judgment and sentence.

This the 21st day of May, 2024.

App. A-2

TOBY HEYTENS, Circuit Judge:

David Whitehead appeals six convictions stemming from his part in a smuggling scheme run by his wife. Because there was sufficient evidence for a reasonable juror to conclude Whitehead knew about and acted with intent to further the smuggling operation, we affirm.

Whitehead and his wife were paid by another man to bring multiple young women from Honduras to the United States to be the man's wife. Whitehead's wife spearheaded the operation, setting the rates, paying confederates, and assisting with transportation from the U.S. border to the man's home.

The first woman thought she would work as a cleaner or cook in the man's home until she paid off her debt for being brought to the United States. When the man revealed his intentions, the woman escaped. The man then paid Whitehead's wife to bring him a second woman. The man thought she was too young to be his wife, so he paid for a third to be brought over. The third woman—Karen Ordonez—escaped and called 911 after the man assaulted her. The man paid for a fourth woman to be brought over, but she never made it to the United States.

After Ordonez's 911 call, the smuggling scheme unraveled. Whitehead, his wife, and his brother-in-law were charged together in a 42-count indictment. Whitehead's wife and brother-in-law pleaded guilty, so Whitehead was tried alone. Some charges against Whitehead were dismissed before trial, and the district court granted a midtrial motion for acquittal on others.

A jury found Whitehead guilty of six counts. Count 1 charged him with conspiring to commit smuggling. Counts 17 and 18 charged him with aiding and abetting the smuggling of two non-citizens, Karen Ordonez and her baby, respectively. Counts 36, 37, and 40 charged Whitehead with money laundering connected to Ordonez's entry. On each count, the district court sentenced Whitehead to 21 months of imprisonment to be followed by one year of supervised release, with all sentences served concurrently.

Whitehead challenges the sufficiency of the evidence supporting all six convictions. We view the evidence in the light "most favorable to the prosecution" and uphold the jury's verdict if "any rational trier of fact could have found the essential elements of the crime beyond a reasonable doubt." United States v. Millender, 970 F.3d 523, 528 (4th Cir. 2020). "Applying these standards, we conclude [Whitehead] ha[s] not met [his] heavy burden to show [his] convictions were not supported by substantial evidence." United States v. Huskey, 90 F.4th 651, 662 (4th Cir. 2024) (quotation marks removed).

Whitehead argues the same evidentiary failure undermines each conviction: the government did not prove he knew about any illegal activity and thus could not have proved he intended to further that activity. True, each charge required both knowledge of illegal activity and intent to further it. See JA 276–79 (jury instruction). But we conclude there was evidence from which a reasonable juror could find both were present here.

First, a reasonable juror could conclude that Whitehead "knew the unlawful purpose of the" smuggling scheme (JA 276 (Count 1)), that he "knew that the crime" of smuggling Karen Ordonez and her baby "was to be committed" (JA 276–78 (Counts 17, 18)), and that he knew the operation was an "unlawful activity" (JA 279 (Counts 36, 37, 40)). Whitehead's wife testified she told him about her smuggling business. Witnesses also testified about Whitehead's knowledge and wariness of his wife's conduct, including that Whitehead warned his wife she was engaged in "human trafficking" (JA 126) and "might end up in trouble" (JA 198). The evidence showed that Whitehead was present several times when the man paid his wife—including when payments were made for Ordonez—and that Whitehead knew what the money was for. And Whitehead personally interacted with each of the women when he housed or transported them on their way to the man. From this and all the other evidence in the record, a reasonable juror could infer that Whitehead had intimate knowledge of the smuggling business, including the particulars of where and how the women came into the United States.

Next, a reasonable juror could conclude Whitehead "willfully joined" the plan (JA 276 (Count 1)) and "acted with the intention of causing" (JA 277–78 (Counts 17, 18)) and "promot[ing]" (JA 279 (Counts 36, 37, 40)) the smuggling of Ordonez and her baby. Whitehead personally wired money to locations near the Mexico–Guatemala border around the time Ordonez and her baby were there. Then, about two weeks later, Whitehead wired money to locations near the U.S.–Mexico border. These payments mirror the method Whitehead's wife admitted using to bring over the first woman. A special agent with Homeland Security Investigations also testified this pattern of payments fits the typical method used by smugglers: one payment is made as a deposit at the beginning of transit, and a second payment is made once the person reaches the U.S. border.

Whitehead insists there is an innocent explanation for the wires, claiming he sent money to support "his wife's family in Mexico." JA 244. But the jury was not required to credit that assertion, and we must assume the jury resolved all credibility disputes and judgment calls in the government's favor. See United States v. Perry, 335 F.3d 316, 320 (4th Cir. 2003). Whitehead's wife testified that he was present when the man gave her the money for the wire transfers and that Whitehead knew what the money was for. Whitehead's wife also said Whitehead made the wire transfers for Ordonez's entry because the bank would be "suspicio[us]" if she made the same transfers multiple times. JA 182. The evidence about the nature of the wire transfers, together with his wife's testimony that he knew about the smuggling operation and why she asked him to wire the money, was enough for a reasonable juror to conclude Whitehead intended his actions to aid in Ordonez and her baby's entry.

None of Whitehead's arguments satisfy his heavy burden of showing the jury's verdict was not supported by substantial evidence. The district court's judgment is thus

This case is calendared for oral argument on January 24, 2024. The parties are directed to be prepared to discuss the following at oral argument:

It is unlawful under 8 U.S.C. § 1324(a)(1)(A)(i) to bring an alien to the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry.” What constitutes bringing to or entering the United States “at a place other than a designated port of entry”? How does the evidence presented in this case bear on that question? And has this issue been properly preserved on appeal?

(c) Remission or refund

Except as provided in subsection (e), such fine shall not be remitted or refunded, unless it appears to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that such person, and the owner, master, commanding officer, agent, charterer, and consignee of the vessel or aircraft, prior to the departure of the vessel or aircraft from the last port outside the United States, did not know, and could not have ascertained by the exercise of reasonable diligence, that the individual transported was an alien and that a valid passport or visa was required.

A fine under this section may be reduced, refunded, or waived under such regulations as the Attorney General shall prescribe in cases in which—

(1) the carrier demonstrates that it had screened all passengers on the vessel or aircraft in accordance with procedures prescribed by the Attorney General, or

(2) circumstances exist that the Attorney General determines would justify such reduction, refund, or waiver.
