Constitutional and Statutory Provisions Involved

The Seventh Amendment of the United States Constitution guarantees defendants the right of trial by jury. The Superior Court of the State of Alaska denied the petitioner this right. The Alaska Supreme Court, the United States District Court, and the Ninth Circuit of the United States did not overrule the denial. The petitioner has yet to have a trial by jury.

The Sixth Amendment of the United States Constitution guarantees the petitioner the right to hear the charges and evidence against the petitioner. That right has been denied. The Alaska Supreme Court, the United States District Court, and the Ninth Circuit of the United States did not overrule the denial.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

The court should order the motions of Discovery and Interrogatories, which have been filed in both State and Federal courts, to be honored.

REASON FOR GRANTING THE WRIT

The United States Supreme Court should allow the petitioner his Constitutional rights.

The specific seven (7) errors of No. 23-35170 and D. C. 3:22-cv-00162-JMK, are included in Appendix II.

Conclusion

The petition for a writ of certiorari should be granted.
