

IN THE

Supreme Court of the United States

Christina A. Taylor- Loper,

Petitioner

v.

Sam's Club/Walmart Associates, Inc., et al.

Respondent

PETITION FOR REHEARING

Pursuant to Rule 44.2 of the Rules of the United States Supreme Court, I Christina Taylor-Loper respectfully petition for a Rehearing of this May 19,2025 Order denying the petition for a writ of certiorari.

Reason For Granting The Petition of Rehearing

Constitutional Challenge to the United States Supreme Court Judges/Procedures

Rule 44.2 of the Rules of the Supreme Court of the United States allows petitioners to file petitions for rehearing of the denial of a petition for writ of certiorari and permits rehearing on the basis of "intervening circumstances of a substantial or controlling effect or to other substantial grounds not previously presented. Here a substantial ground not previously presented warrants a rehearing.

The case presents questions:

Where does an employee seek judicial review when the United States Supreme Court dismisses my case alleging whistleblower retaliation and discrimination neither on merits nor on a procedural ground?

Why didn't the United States Supreme Court hold the "respondent" in default judgement when they failed to respond? (per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 55)

The Fifth Amendment guarantees that "no person shall...be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law." U.S. Const. Amend. V. Procedural due process imposes constraints on governmental decisions which deprive individuals of "liberty" or "property" interests. The United States Supreme Court has held that some form of hearing is required before an individual is finally deprived of a property interest... The fundamental requirement of due process is the opportunity to be heard at a meaningful manner. Procedural due process thus determines both whether the litigant has a protected property interest and if so, what process is due. And the process due is Due Process. No Judge, Attorney, or Person is Above the Law of the Land.

The Sixth Amendment guarantees the right to a "Fair Trial" without "unnecessary delay".
