QUESTION(S) PRESENTED

1. no witnesses of mine were contacted for their investigation
2. There was cameras in the office of the verbal attack from homo who demanded to perform oral sex saying "he wants to suck my cock" I did not react until I realized he was serious. All I said was "fuck you" "Can we work" and continued about work.
3. Why are they accusing me of being homophobic and sexist? (See termination letter they said they observed the conversation.)
4. Why was I fired?
5. Why was the investigation taken over then shut down?
6. Why didn't the EEOC (federal) accept my complaint? This is when I sent a petition the first time.

Equal Protection 14th amendment

Sexual discrimination

VII Civil Rights Act 1964

1st amendment

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

I worked behind a terminal or computer during the night kicking people offline to fix and repair internet signal issues. I transferred to a different location within the state. The company and new location did not seem professional, they received grants for funding and it provided internet for rural area in Alaska because it was wireless. Blaine a co-worker walked in one morning after I been working all night and demanded he perform oral sex on my cock. It was on camera. This is after the IT manager had told him about his phone call

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

NO witnesses were used this is my legal right

there was a recording on camera
not used in investigation

the EEOC (federal) did not accept my complaint because of the state this took over a month to discover I then petitioned to the Supreme Court.

It is my statutory right to be myself I moved to a new location and after 2 months at a job I have went to school for was terminated. the investigator said he was taken over by another dept. they did not allow a fair decision. The EEOC did not accept my complaint because of the state. This took a month to discover. I then petitioned to the Supreme Court

CONCLUSION

The petition for a writ of certiorari should be granted.

Respectfully submitted,
