

No. 25-233

IN THE
Supreme Court of the United States

CATHARINE MILLER, ET AL.,

Petitioners,

v.

CIVIL RIGHTS DEPARTMENT,

Respondent.

ON PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COURT OF APPEAL FOR THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
FIFTH APPELLATE DIVISION

BRIEF OF NC VALUES INSTITUTE AS AMICUS
CURIAE IN SUPPORT OF PETITIONERS

TAMI FITZGERALD
NC VALUES INSTITUTE
9650 Strickland Rd.
Suite 103-226
Raleigh, NC 27615

DEBORAH J. DEWART
Counsel of Record
111 Magnolia Lane
Hubert, NC 28539
(910) 326-4554
lawyerdeborah@outlook.com

Counsel for Amicus Curiae

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF CONTENTS i

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES iii

IDENTITY AND INTEREST OF
AMICUS CURIAE1

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT1

ARGUMENT4

I. THE CONSTITUTION PROTECTS THE
PERSONAL SERVICES REQUIRED TO CREATE PROTECTED EXPRESSION4

 A. California’s application of UCRA is a content-based, viewpoint-based regulation of protected expression.....4

 B. The action required to create expression is entitled to First Amendment protection7

 C. Like other speakers, creative professionals have the right to remain silent.....11

II. PETITIONER’S OPERATION OF HER
BAKERY BUSINESS IN ACCORDANCE WITH HER CONVICTIONS AND CONSCIENCE IS NOT IRRATIONAL, INVIDIOUS, OR ARBITRARY12

III. THE STATE MUST GUARD THE RIGHTS OF ALL CITIZENS, INCLUDING THOSE WHO DO NOT SHARE THE VALUES OF CURRENT CULTURAL OR LEGISLATIVE MAJORITIES15

IV. CALIFORNIA WEAPONIZES ITS PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS LAW TO PUNISH EXPRESSION OF TRADITIONAL VIEWS ABOUT MARRIAGE18

V. URCA CRUSHES DISSENT, CREATING INTOLERANCE, UNIFORMITY, EXCLUSION, AND INEQUALITY22

CONCLUSION24

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

	Page(s)
Cases
303 Creative LLC v. Elenis , 6 F.4th 1160 (2021).....	2, 5, 6, 7, 18
303 Creative LLC v. Elenis , 600 U.S. 570 (2023).....	3, 9
ACLU v. Alvarez , 679 F.3d 583 (7th Cir. 2012)	8
Anderson v. City of Hermosa Beach , 621 F.3d 1051 (9th Cir. 2010).....	9
Animal Legal Def. Fund v. Wasden , 878 F.3d 1184 (9th Cir. 2018).....	8
Baird v. State Bar of Arizona , 401 U.S. 1 (1971).....	21
Benton v. Maryland , 395 U.S. 784 (1969).....	24
Bery v. City of New York , 97 F.3d 689 (2d Cir. 1996)	5
Beverly Glen Music v. Warner Communications , 178 Cal. App. 3d 1142 (1986)	2

Brown v. Entertainment Merchants Ass'n. , 564 U.S. 786 (2011).....	5, 8
Brush & Nib Studio, LC v. City of Phoenix , 448 P.3d 890 (Ariz. 2019) (“B&N”).....	3, 4, 9, 13, 15, 16, 18, 19, 22, 24
Burwell v. Hobby Lobby Stores, Inc. , 573 U.S. 682 (2014).....	20
Capitol Square Review & Advisory Bd. v. Pinette , 515 U.S. 753 (1995).....	19
Chelsey Nelson Photography LLC v. Louisville/Jefferson County Metro Gov't (“CNP”) , 479 F. Supp. 3d 543 (W.D. Ky. 2020).....	3, 5, 6, 16, 17
Civil Rights Dept. v. Cathy's Creations, Inc. , 109 Cal. App. 5th 204 (Cal. Ct. App. 2025)	2, 6, 13
Communist Party v. SACB , 367 U.S. 1 (1961).....	16
Cressman v. Thompson , 798 F.3d 938 (10th Cir. 2015).....	5
De Rivafinoli v. Corsetti , 4 Paige Ch. 264 (1833).....	10
Duff v. Russell , 14 N.Y.S. 134 (Super. Ct. 1891)	10

Espinoza v. Montana Department of Revenue , 591 U.S. 464 (2020).....	17
ETW Corp. v. Jireh Publishing, Inc. , 332 F.3d 915 (6th. Cir. 2003).....	5
Ex parte Thompson , 442 S.W.3d 325 (Tex. Crim. App. 2014)	9
Fields v. City of Phila. , 862 F.3d 353 (3d Cir. 2017)	8
Gay Alliance of Students v. Matthews , 544 F.2d 162 (4th Cir. 1976)	16
Girouard v. United States , 328 U.S. 61 (1946).....	21
Hamblin v. Dinneford , 2 Edw. Ch. 529 (N.Y. 1835)	10
Hurley v. Irish-American Gay , 515 U.S. 557 (1995).....	5, 16
Iancu v. Brunetti , 588 U.S. 388 (2019).....	7
Jack v. Azucar Bakery , Charge No. P20140069X (Colo. Civil Rights Div. Mar. 25, 2015)	18
Janus v. AFSCME, Council 31 , 585 U.S. 878 (2018).....	3, 23

Joseph Burstyn, Inc. v. Wilson , 343 U.S. 495 (1952).....	5
Jucha v. City of North Chicago , 63 F. Supp. 3d 8205 (N.D. Ill. 2014)	5
Kaplan v. California , 413 U.S. 115 (1973).....	5
Kennedy v. Bremerton Sch. Dist. , 597 U.S. 507 (2021).....	16, 19, 20
Keyishian v. Bd. of Regents , 385 U.S. 589 (1967).....	21
Lee v. Weisman , 505 U.S. 577 (1992).....	22
Lumley v. Wagner , 42 Eng. Rep. 687 (1852).....	10, 11
Masterpiece Cake Shop, Ltd. v. Colorado Human Rights Comm'n , 584 U.S. 617 (2018).....	1, 17, 18
Nat'l Endowment for the Arts v. Finley , 524 U.S. 569 (1998).....	7
Nat'l Inst. of Family & Life Advocates v. Becerra , 585 U.S. 755 (2018).....	24
Obergefell v. Hodges , 576 U.S. 644 (2015).....	5, 17, 19, 20, 21, 23

Okeh Phonograph v. Armstrong , 63 F.2d 636 (9th Cir. 1933)	10
Palko v. Connecticut , 302 U.S. 319 (1937).....	23
Piarowski v. Ill. Cmty. Coll. Dist. 515 , 759 F.2d 625 (7th Cir. 1985)	5
Redgrave v. Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc. , 855 F.2d 888 (1st Cir. 1988)	11, 12
Regan v. Time, Inc. , 468 U.S. 641 (1984).....	5
Riley v. Nat'l Fed'n of the Blind of N.C., Inc. , 487 U.S. 781 (1988).....	6, 23
Rosenberger v. Rector and Visitors of Univ. of Va. , 515 U.S. 819 (1995).....	7
Schad v. Borough of Mount Ephraim , 452 U.S. 61 (1981).....	5
Schneiderman v. United States , 320 U.S. 118 (1943).....	23
Silberberg v. Bd. of Elections , 272 F. Supp. 3d 454 (S.D.N.Y. 2017)	8
Telescope Media Grp. v. Lucero (“TMG”) 936 F.3d 740 (8th Cir. 2018)	3-6, 9, 16, 19

Texas v. Johnson , 491 U.S. 397 (1989).....	7
Thomas v. Collins , 323 U.S. 516 (1945).....	23
Trinity Lutheran Church v. Comer , 582 U.S. 449 (2017).....	17
Turner Broad. Sys., Inc. v. FCC , 512 U.S. 622 (1994).....	6
Turner v. Safley , 482 U.S. 78 (1987).....	20
United States v. Windsor , 570 U.S. 774 (2013).....	17
VIP Prods. LLC v. Jack Daniel's Props. , 953 F.3d 1170 (9th Cir. 2020).....	5
Ward v. Polite , 667 F.3d 727 (6th Cir. 2012)	19, 20
West Virginia Bd. of Ed. v. Barnette , 319 U.S. 624 (1943).....	3, 23
White v. City of Sparks , 500 F.3d 953 (9th Cir. 2007)	3
Wooley v. Maynard , 430 U.S. 705 (1977).....	22, 23, 24

STATUTES

California Unruh Civil Rights Act,
Civ. Code § 51 et seq. (UCRA)2, 4, 6, 7, 20

Colorado Anti-Discrimination Act
(CADA)7, 18

OTHER AUTHORITIES

5A Corbin, Contracts (1964) § 120410

Timothy Bradley, *Religious Liberty, Discrimination, and Same-Sex Marriage: Escaping the Obergefell
Catch-22*,
95 Notre Dame L. Rev. 1339
(January 2020).....14

Richard F. Duncan, A Piece of Cake or Religious Expression: Masterpiece Cakeshop and the First Amendment,
10 Neb. L. Rev. Bull. 1 (January 2019).....12

Richard F. Duncan, *Seeing the No-Compelled-Speech
Doctrine Clearly Through the Lens of Telescope Media*,
99 Neb. L. Rev. 58 (2020)8, 11

James M. Gottry, *Just Shoot Me: Public
Accommodation Anti-Discrimination Laws Take Aim at First Amendment Freedom of Speech*,
64 Vand. L. Rev. 961 (2011)13

INTEREST OF *AMICUS CURIAE*¹

Amicus curiae respectfully urges this Court to reverse the decision of the California Court of Appeal.

NC Values Institute (“NCVI”), formerly known as the Institute for Faith and Family, is a North Carolina nonprofit corporation established to preserve and promote faith, family, and freedom by working in various arenas of public policy to protect constitutional liberties, including the right to live and work according to conscience and faith. NCVI exists to advance a culture where human life is valued, religious liberty thrives, and marriage and families flourish. See <https://ncvi.org>.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT

In Masterpiece Cakeshop Ltd. v. Colorado Human Rights Commission, “[f]orcing Phillips to make custom wedding cakes for same-sex marriages” would have demanded that he “acknowledge that same-sex weddings are 'weddings' and suggest that they should be celebrated—the precise message he believes his faith forbids.” 584 U.S. 617, 660 (2018) (Thomas, J., concurring in part and in the judgment). The same is true here. “To [Phillips],” and to Petitioner Catharine

¹ Counsel of record for all parties received notice at least 10 days prior to the due date of amicus curiae's intention to file this brief. Amicus curiae certifies that no counsel for a party authored this brief in whole or in part and no person or entity, other than amicus, its members, or its counsel, has made a monetary contribution to its preparation or submission.

Miller in this case, “a wedding cake inherently communicates that a wedding has occurred, a marriage has begun, and the couple should be celebrated.” Id. at 659 (emphasis added) (internal quotation marks omitted).

Petitioner is a cake designer who respectfully serves many people, including the LGBT community, but she will not create messages that conflict with her conscience. Civil Rights Dept. v. Cathy's Creations, Inc., 109 Cal. App. 5th 204, 222 (Cal. Ct. App. 2025). She believes marriage is the union of one man and one woman. The California Unruh Civil Rights Act, Civ. Code § 51 et seq. (UCRA) backs her into a corner. She must either (1) create a false message about marriage that offends her conscience; (2) face crippling penalties; or (3) shut down her business. None of these options are constitutionally sound. UCRA’s anti-discrimination provisions would render her artistic talents “the vehicle for a message anathema to her beliefs.” 303 Creative, LLC v. Elenis, 6 F.4th 1160, 1199 (10th Cir. 2021) (Tymkovich, C.J., dissenting. "Denying someone his livelihood is a harsh remedy." Beverly Glen Music v. Warner Communications, 178 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1145 (1986). This result not only upends the First Amendment but also defeats a central purpose of public accommodation law by restricting public access to the services of creative professionals who are forced out of the marketplace.

The First Amendment not only protects expressive products, like Petitioner’s custom cakes, but also the personal services required to create them.

Creative products do not materialize out of thin air, and creative professionals do not engage in arbitrary, invidious discrimination when they decline to personally create messages that offend their convictions. Miller’s cakes are all custom-designed and custom-created. Pet. 7, citing App.392a, 134a.

The California ruling allows the use of public accommodation laws as a weapon to coerce unwanted speech, including the personal services required to create expressive products. Compelled speech is even more damaging than compelled silence because it coerces “free and independent” individuals “into betraying their convictions.” Brush & Nib Studio, LC v. City of Phoenix, 448 P.3d 890, 924 (Ariz. 2019) (“B&N”), quoting Janus v. AFSCME, Council 31, 585 U.S. 878, 893 (2018). In comparable recent cases, this Court, the Eighth Circuit, the Arizona Supreme Court, and a United States District Court in Kentucky all supported creative professionals: 303 Creative LLC v. Elenis, 600 U.S. 570 (2023) (wedding websites), Telescope Media Grp. v. Lucero, 936 F.3d 740, 752-753 (8th Cir. 2018) (“TMG”) (wedding videos); B&N, 448 P.3d at 914 (wedding invitations); Chelsey Nelson Photography LLC v. Louisville/Jefferson County Metro Gov’t, 479 F. Supp. 3d 543, 558 (W.D. Ky. 2020) (“CNP”) (photography). The Arizona Supreme Court cited Justice Jackson’s warning in Barnette about the ultimate futility of “government efforts to compel uniformity of beliefs and ideas.” B&N, 448 P.3d at 896-897. “Those who begin coercive elimination of dissent soon find themselves exterminating dissenters.” West Virginia Bd. of Ed. v. Barnette, 319 U.S. 624, 641 (1943). “It appears that the path to ‘coercive elimination of dissent’ is steep—and short.” Ibid.

ARGUMENT

I. THE CONSTITUTION PROTECTS THE PERSONAL SERVICES REQUIRED TO CREATE PROTECTED EXPRESSION.

Action is necessary to create expressive products—artwork, videos, photographs, websites, flower arrangements, or celebratory baked goods. The First Amendment protects the personal services of creative professionals who labor to create such products. The Arizona Supreme Court rejected the argument that creating custom wedding invitations “purely involves conduct, without implicating speech.” B&N, 448 P.3d at 905. On the contrary, “[f]or such products, both the finished product and the process of creating that product are protected speech.” Id. at 907 (emphasis added). Similarly, the creative activities in TMG “c[a]me together to produce finished videos that are media for the communication of ideas.” 936 F.3d at 752 (internal citations and quotation marks omitted).

A. California’s application of UCRA is a content-based, viewpoint-based regulation of protected expression.

Designing websites, cakes, or other wedding-related products is protected expression that conveys a message, like photography and other artwork.² “[P]hotography is speech when the photographer’s artistic talents are combined to tell a story about the beauty and joy of marriage.” CNP, 479 F. Supp. 3d at 557. Custom videos are “a form of speech . . . entitled to First Amendment protection.” TMG, 936 F.3d at 751. The Tenth Circuit admitted that the “creation of wedding websites is pure speech.” 303 Creative, 6 F.4th at 1176. Indeed, marriage itself is “a particularly expressive event.” Obergefell v. Hodges, 576 U.S. 644, 657 (2015) (recognizing “untold references to the beauty of marriage in religious and philosophical texts spanning time, cultures, and faiths, as well as in art and literature in all their forms”).

² Regan v. Time, Inc., 468 U.S. 641, 648 (1984) (photographs); CNP, 479 F. Supp. at 555 n. 93; Joseph Burstyn, Inc. v. Wilson, 343 U.S. 495, 502 (1952) (motion pictures); Kaplan v. California, 413 U.S. 115, 119-20 (1973) (“pictures, films, paintings, drawings, engravings”); Schad v. Borough of Mount Ephraim, 452 U.S. 61, 65-66 (1981) (motion pictures, music, dramatic works); Hurley v. Irish-American Gay, 515 U.S. 557, 569 (1995) (art, music, literature); Brown v. Entm’t Merchs. Ass’n, 564 U.S. 786, 790 (2011) (books, plays, films, video games); ETW Corp. v. Jireh Publishing, Inc., 332 F.3d 915, 924 (6th Cir. 2003) (“music, pictures, films, photographs, paintings, drawings, engravings, prints, sculptures”); Cressman v. Thompson, 798 F.3d 938, 952 (10th Cir. 2015) (paintings, drawings, original artwork); White v. City of Sparks, 500 F.3d 953, 955-56 (9th Cir. 2007) (original artwork); Bery v. City of New York, 97 F.3d 689, 694-96 (2d Cir. 1996) (same); Piarowski v. Ill. Cmty. Coll. Dist. 515, 759 F.2d 625, 628 (7th Cir. 1985) (“art for art’s sake”); Jucha v. City of North Chicago, 63 F. Supp. 3d 820, 825 (N.D. Ill. 2014) (“There is no doubt that the First Amendment protects artistic expression.”); VIP Prods. LLC v. Jack Daniel’s Props., 953 F.3d 1170, 1175 (9th Cir. 2020) (dog toy).

The Court of Appeal characterized Petitioner's cake as "an ordinary commercial product," a "plain white cake with no writing, engravings, adornments, symbols or images," failing to appreciate the personal services required to create it. Cathy's Creations, 109 Cal. App. 5th at 218-219. The trial court got it right: "The wedding cake expresses support for the marriage. The wedding cake is an expression that the union is a marriage, and should be celebrated." Id. at 251 (internal quotation marks omitted). This is precisely the message Petitioner cannot create because she believes it is false.

Like the creative professionals in CNP, TMG, and 303 Creative, Petitioner is engaged in protected expression. The UCRA "[m]andat[es] speech that [Petitioner] would not otherwise make" and "exact[s] a penalty" for her refusal. Riley v. Nat'l Fed'n of the Blind of N.C., Inc., 487 U.S. 781, 795 (1988). This is the essence of content-based regulation. UCRA's purpose is "banishing" or "eradicating" "arbitrary, invidious discrimination" (Cathy's Creations, 109 Cal. App. 5th at 226) based on categories that touch sensitive areas of public debate, like sexual orientation and gender identity. As a result, there is a "substantial risk of excising certain ideas or viewpoints from the public dialogue." Turner Broad. Sys., Inc. v. FCC, 512 U.S. 622, 642 (1994). In 303 Creative, the Tenth Circuit openly admitted that "[e]liminating such ideas" was the "very purpose" of the statute challenged by the wedding website designer. 6 F.4th at 1178 (emphasis added).

California’s UCRA, like the comparable Colorado Anti-Discrimination Act (“CADA”), is used to perpetrate viewpoint discrimination on steroids—an “egregious form of content discrimination.” Rosenberger v. Rector & Visitors of Univ. of Virginia, 515 U.S. 819, 829 (1995). As the dissent observed in 303 Creative, “the content of the message determines the applicability of the statute and the viewpoint of the speaker determines the legality of the message,” so “CADA is both content-and viewpoint-based.” 6 F.4th at 1202 (Tymkovich, C.J., dissenting). CADA and UCRA both transgress the “bedrock principle” that “the government may not prohibit the expression of an idea simply because society finds the idea itself offensive or disagreeable.” Texas v. Johnson, 491 U.S. 397, 414 (1989). Such censorship is “poison to a free society.” Iancu v. Brunetti, 588 U.S. 388, 399 (2019) (Alito, J., concurring). Considering the repeated attacks on free speech, “it is especially important for this Court to remain firm on the principle that the First Amendment does not tolerate viewpoint discrimination.” Ibid.

B. The action required to create expression is entitled to First Amendment protection.

"It goes without saying that artistic expression lies within . . . First Amendment protection." Nat'l Endowment for the Arts v. Finley, 524 U.S. 569, 602 (1998) (Souter, J., dissenting). So does the personal labor required to create it. UCRA demands that Petitioner engage in personal services, using her creative talents, to design a message that conflicts with her conscience and convictions.

First Amendment protection extends to "creating, distributing, or consuming" speech. Brown v. Entm't Merchs. Ass'n, 564 U.S. 786, 792 n. 1 (2011) (video games). "[E]ven the purest of pure speech involves physical movements and activities that could be described as conduct." Richard F. Duncan, Seeing the No-Compelled-Speech Doctrine Clearly Through the Lens of Telescope Media, 99 Neb. L. Rev. 58, 70 (2020). Pictures do not paint themselves. Books do not write themselves. Cakes do not design or bake themselves. Abundant case law confirms this commonsense conclusion. First Amendment protection for creative products does not exist in a vacuum. For such protection to have meaning, the Constitution "must also protect the act of creating that material." Fields v. City of Phila., 862 F.3d 353, 358 (3d Cir. 2017). "The act of taking a photograph, though not necessarily a communicative action in and of itself, is a necessary prerequisite to the existence of a photograph." Silberberg v. Bd. of Elections, 272 F. Supp. 3d 454, 479 (S.D.N.Y. 2017) (emphasis added). See also ACLU v. Alvarez, 679 F.3d 583, 595 (7th Cir. 2012) ("The act of making an audio or audiovisual recording" is protected "as a corollary of the right to disseminate the resulting recording."); Animal Legal Def. Fund v. Wasden, 878 F.3d 1184, 1204 (9th Cir. 2018) (creation of audiovisual recordings is "inextricably intertwined" with the finished recording and therefore "entitled to First Amendment protection as purely expressive activity").

Courts have applied these principles to protect creative professionals. Protected expression includes creating wedding websites (303 Creative, 600 U.S. at 587) or videos (TMG, 936 F.3d at 756). The TMG plaintiffs did not merely “plant a video camera at the end of the aisle and press record”—they intended “to shoot, assemble, and edit the videos with the goal of expressing their own views about the sanctity of marriage.” Id. at 751. Designing wedding invitations is protected expression. B&N, 448 P.3d at 910. The Phoenix Ordinance would have forced plaintiffs “to personally write, paint and create artwork celebrating a same-sex wedding . . . to design and create invitations that enable and facilitate the attendance of guests at a same-sex wedding.” Id. at 922.

The acts necessary to create expression—writing, painting, editing, or designing—cannot be disconnected from the finished product. As the Ninth Circuit explained, “we have never seriously questioned that the processes of writing words down on paper, painting a picture, and playing an instrument are purely expressive activities entitled to full First Amendment protection.” Anderson v. City of Hermosa Beach, 621 F.3d 1051, 1061-62 (9th Cir. 2010). Designing an expressive product is like “[u]sing a camera to create a photograph” or “applying pen to paper to create a writing or applying brush to canvas to create a painting.” Ex parte Thompson, 442 S.W.3d 325, 337 (Tex. Crim. App. 2014). “[T]he process of creating the end product cannot reasonably be separated from the end product for First Amendment purposes.” Ibid. (emphasis added).

Coercion produces a counterfeit. The UCRA does a grave disservice to both creative professionals and their customers. If an artist is repelled by the message he must create and perhaps forbidden to even disclose his viewpoint to potential customers, the finished product will likely be unsatisfactory. It is not surprising that courts are loathe to order specific performance as a remedy for breach of a contract for personal services, especially where artistic expression is required.³ The New York Court of Chancery, declining to compel a singer's performance of an Italian opera, expressed concern about “what effect coercion might produce upon the defendant’s singing, especially in the livelier airs; although the fear of imprisonment would unquestionably deepen his seriousness in the graver parts of the drama.” De Rivafinoli v. Corsetti, 4 Paige Ch. 264, 270 (1833). In a breach of contract action, there is already a valid contract between parties who voluntarily agreed to its terms. Here, the state demands that Petitioner sign onto an unwanted contract for her personal creative services. This is unconscionable not only because it coerces facilitation of an ideological cause, but also because it allows any member of the public to coerce a particular individual into providing services—and that constitutes involuntary servitude, a practice this nation discarded long ago.

³ See, e.g., Hamblin v. Dinneford, 2 Edw. Ch. 529, 533-534 (N.Y. 1835) (actor); Lumley v. Wagner, 42 Eng. Rep. 687 (1852) (singer); Duff v. Russell, 14 N.Y.S. 134 (Super. Ct. 1891) (actress/singer); Okeh Phonograph v. Armstrong, 63 F.2d 636 (9th Cir. 1933) (jazz player). See also 5A Corbin, Contracts (1964) § 1204.

C. Like other speakers, creative professionals have the right to remain silent.

“When the law strikes at free speech it hits human dignity . . . when the law compels a person to say that which he believes to be untrue, the blade cuts deeper because it requires the person to be untrue to himself, perhaps even untrue to God.” Duncan, Seeing the No-Compelled-Speech Doctrine Clearly, 99 Neb. L. Rev. at 59.

Creative professionals have the “right to remain silent” by declining to create expression that is disagreeable to them. The First Circuit considered the case of well-known actress Vanessa Redgrave, who sued the Boston Symphony Orchestra for cancelling her scheduled appearance in the wake of protests about her political views. Redgrave v. Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., 855 F.2d 888 (1st Cir. 1988). Redgrave argued that cancelling her performance violated the Massachusetts Civil Rights Act (MCRA), which created a private cause of action for violations. Redgrave, 855 F.2d at 901. The Orchestra responded by asserting its own “right to be free from compelled expression,” and the court agreed. “A distinguished line of cases has underscored a private party’s right to refuse compelled expression.” Id. at 905. The “typical reluctance” of courts “to force private citizens to act . . . augments its constitutionally based concern for the integrity of the artist.” Id., citing Lumley v. Wagner, 42 Eng. Rep. 687, 693 (1852). Since private expression is encouraged and protected, the court saw “no reason why less protection should be provided where the artist [the Orchestra] refuses to perform; indeed, silence traditionally has been more sacrosanct than affirmative expression.” Redgrave, 855 F.2d at 906. The Civil Rights Act could not lawfully foreclose the Orchestra’s decision not to perform, because that decision was itself a constitutionally protected exercise of the right to be free of compelled speech. The same rational applies here. The statutory rights of same-sex couples must be “measured against the [Petitioner’s] constitutional right against the state” (id. at 904) to be free of compelled expression.

II. PETITIONER’S OPERATION OF HER BAKERY BUSINESS IN ACCORDANCE WITH HER CONVICTIONS AND CONSCIENCE IS NOT IRRATIONAL, INVIDIOUS, OR ARBITRARY.

Public accommodation laws are designed to provide a shield but increasingly morph into a sword to cut off or compel expression. Anti-discrimination laws are “weaponized by supporters of same-sex marriage to drive religious conscientious objectors out of business and deprive them of their livelihoods.” Richard F. Duncan, A Piece of Cake or Religious Expression: Masterpiece Cakeshop and the First Amendment, 10 Neb. L. Rev. Bull. 1, 22 (January 2019). Petitioner’s refusal to personally create a message she believes is false is not irrational, invidious, or arbitrary.

The First Amendment demands a clear, consistent definition for "discrimination" in this context. Declining to create or endorse a message does not constitute discrimination. “[C]ourts must more clearly evaluate when public accommodation laws have actually been violated, as opposed to when the individual or business is simply refusing to endorse a particular message.” James M. Gottry, Just Shoot Me: Public Accommodation Anti-Discrimination Laws Take Aim at First Amendment Freedom of Speech, 64 Vand. L. Rev. 961, 999 (2011). Like the creative professionals in other cases, Petitioner does not seek “to employ the coercive apparatus of government to impose disabilities on others,” but rather the “right not to engage in speech that offends [her] deeply held religious beliefs . . . one of our nation’s most cherished civil liberties.” B&N, 448 P.3d at 929. Her purpose for refusing to create certain products is not to discriminate or to exclude anyone, but rather to follow her conscience and religious conviction that marriage is by definition the union of one man and one woman. Cathy's Creations, 109 Cal. App. 5th at 222-223.

Anti-discrimination policies have ancient roots but have rapidly expanded to encompass more protected categories and classify more places as “public accommodations.” The Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth Amendments were added to the U.S. Constitution to remedy the nation’s extraordinary problem of racial discrimination. Early anti-discrimination laws focused almost exclusively on eliminating the racial discrimination that plagued the nation for decades. Gottry, Just Shoot Me, 64 Vand. L. Rev. at 965. These provisions cannot readily be transported into every other species of “discrimination,” particularly when imposed on private citizens whose own rights may be trampled. It is one thing to impose nondiscrimination principles on the state—it is quite another to impose those same standards on private parties whose own liberties are at stake. Legal activists have hijacked the language and legal principles surrounding racial discrimination to engineer controversial social changes that threaten First Amendment protection for speech and religious faith. The potential encroachment on speech and religion has expanded exponentially with little analysis of the difference between traditional categories like race and the many newly protected classes—or as to how and when the criteria may be legitimately related to a business decision.

Conscience-based actions “are best understood as not constituting discrimination based on a protected trait” and therefore outside the scope of public accommodations laws like URCA. Timothy Bradley, Religious Liberty, Discrimination, and Same-Sex Marriage: Escaping the Obergefell Catch-22, 95 Notre Dame L. Rev. 1339, 1342 (January 2020). It is neither arbitrary nor irrational to avoid promoting a cause for reasons of conscience. As protection against discrimination expands to more places and people, so does the potential to employ anti-discrimination principles to suppress traditional viewpoints and impose social change on unwilling participants.

III. THE STATE MUST GUARD THE RIGHTS OF ALL CITIZENS, INCLUDING THOSE WHO DO NOT SHARE THE VALUES OF CURRENT CULTURAL OR LEGISLATIVE MAJORITIES.

The Constitution is an inclusive document protecting the life, liberty, religion, and viewpoint of all within its realm. Inclusion is a key rationale for anti-discrimination provisions. But the liberty of all Americans suffers irreparable harm if government is granted power to coerce creative services that communicate its preferred message. “There is a reciprocity and universality to these rights of speech and conscience that give us all a direct stake in protecting them” B&N, 448 P.3d at 929. Non-discrimination principles should never be applied in a discriminatory, unequal manner that squelches First Amendment rights. The state’s interest in preventing discrimination does not trump the Constitution. Ironically, URCA creates an intolerable danger of exclusion for free speech and artistic expression of disfavored viewpoints. The state can easily use the law to punish those who hold traditional marriage beliefs by excluding them from full participation in public life. As applied to Petitioner, URCA compels her to choose between her convictions and her livelihood, all because she refuses to sacrifice her beliefs and conscience on the altar of an agenda she cannot support.

"While the law is free to promote all sorts of conduct in place of harmful behavior, it is not free to interfere with speech for no better reason than promoting an approved message or discouraging a disfavored one, however enlightened either purpose may strike the government." Hurley, 515 U.S. at 579; see B&N, 448 P.3d at 915; TMG, 936 F.3d at 755. Even if the state could craft a narrowly tailored law to accomplish its legitimate interest, "it might still lose" in cases, like this one, "where it is attempting to compel religious speech at the core of the First Amendment." CNP, 479 F. Supp. at 559.

"The Constitution and the best of our traditions counsel mutual respect and tolerance, not censorship and suppression, for religious and nonreligious views alike." Kennedy v. Bremerton Sch. Dist., 597 U.S. 507, 514 (2021). The First Amendment protects a broad spectrum of expression, popular or not. Indeed, the increasing popularity of an idea makes it even more essential to protect dissenting voices. Dale, 530 U.S. at 660. First Amendment freedoms "must be accorded to the ideas we hate or sooner or later they will be denied to the ideas we cherish." Communist Party v. SACB, 367 U.S. 1, 137 (1961) (Black, J., dissenting). Censorship spells death for a free society. "Once used to stifle the thoughts that we hate . . . it can stifle the ideas we love." Gay Alliance of Students v. Matthews, 544 F.2d 162, 167-168 (4th Cir. 1976).

Proponents of LGBT rights have accomplished dramatic social and political transformation in just a few years by exercising their rights to free speech, press, association, and the political process generally. Their "progress depended on the First Amendment's protection of expressive conduct that was once far less popular than it is today, from marching in pride parades to flying rainbow flags.” CNP, 479 F. Supp. at 564. These changes were possible because the Constitution guards free expression and facilitates the advocacy of new ideas. But advocates are not entitled to demand for themselves what they would deny to others—otherwise, the constitutional foundation crumbles and all Americans suffer. One group’s aggressive assertion of rights erodes protection for others.

Although LGBT citizens "cannot be treated as social outcasts or as inferior in dignity and worth" (Masterpiece Cakeshop, 584 U.S. at 631), people of faith “are members of the community too.” Espinoza v. Montana Dept. of Rev., 591 U.S. 464, 489 (2020) (Gorsuch, J. concurring), quoting Trinity Lutheran Church v. Comer, 582 U.S. 449, 463 (2017). “[U]nder our Constitution, the government can’t force them to . . . create an artistic expression that celebrates a marriage that their conscience doesn't condone.” CNP, 479 F. Supp. at 548-549 (citations omitted). It is ironic that an opinion framed in terms of personal dignity (Obergefell) is now used to demolish the dignity of persons who respectfully disagree. The government’s most compelling interest is to preserve the constitutional rights of all citizens—perhaps especially those who reject the prevailing state orthodoxy. “[T]he same Constitution held by Obergefell to guarantee the right of same-sex couples to marry also protects religious and philosophical objections to same-sex marriage.” CNP, 479 F. Supp. at 563, citing Obergefell, 576 U.S. at 675, 679-680; United States v. Windsor, 570 U.S. 774, 775 (2013); Masterpiece Cakeshop, 584 U.S. at 631.

The irony and implications have been recognized in prior cases. In Masterpiece Cakeshop, Colorado law “afforded storekeepers some latitude to decline to create specific messages the storekeeper considered offensive,” e.g., a Denver bakery that refused a Christian customer's request to create two bible-shaped cakes inscribed with messages about the sinfulness of homosexuality. Jack v. Azucar Bakery, Charge No. P20140069X, (Colo. Civil Rights Div. Mar. 25, 2015). Masterpiece Cakeshop, 584 U.S. at 633. Properly applied, anti-discrimination law could not force a gay calligrapher to “create a program for a church that preached against same-sex marriage” or compel Michelangelo, if he were alive today, “to paint a chapel ceiling in a way he deemed blasphemous”—although he could be required to sell completed sculptures free of discrimination. B&N, 448 P.3d at 929. As the Tenth Circuit dissent observed, Colorado could potentially “wield CADA as a sword” to require “an unwilling Muslim movie director to make a film with a Zionist message” or force “an atheist muralist to accept a commission celebrating Evangelical zeal.” 303 Creative LLC, 6 F.4th at 1199 (Tymkovich, C.J., dissenting).

IV. CALIFORNIA WEAPONIZES ITS PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS LAW TO PUNISH EXPRESSION OF TRADITIONAL VIEWS ABOUT MARRIAGE.

This case implicates two core liberties – speech and religion. Anti-discrimination laws that cover sexual orientation are increasingly weaponized to target the expression of traditional views about marriage, and these views are often grounded in religion. Religious speech is not only “as fully protected . . . as secular private expression,” but historically, “government suppression of speech has so commonly been directed precisely at religious speech that a free-speech clause without religion would be Hamlet without the prince.” Bremerton, 597 U.S. at 524, quoting Capitol Square Review & Advisory Bd. v. Pinette, 515 U.S. 753, 760 (1995) (internal citations omitted). Like the wedding invitation designers in B&N, Petitioner uses her creative skills to express a message about marriage consistent with her beliefs. 448 P.3d at 917. The video producers in TMG wanted to “affect the cultural narrative regarding marriage” through films that portrayed “their view of marriage as a ‘sacrificial covenant between one man and one woman.’” 936 F.3d at 748. Minnesota’s anti-discrimination law “burden[ed] their religiously motivated speech” about marriage and reinforced their free speech claims. Id. at 759 (emphasis added). URCA similarly burdens Petitioner’s religiously motivated creation of expressive products.

The Sixth Circuit warned about the dangers of failing to apply an anti-discrimination policy “in an even-handed, much less a faith-neutral, manner.” Ward v. Polite, 667 F.3d 727, 739 (6th Cir. 2012). Where the law protects a category defined by conduct that many religious traditions consider sinful, faith-neutral application is virtually impossible. People of faith will inevitably challenge laws forcing them to abandon their core religious convictions about marriage. Dissenting Justices in Obergefell sent a clarion call about the coming collision. Because marriage is not strictly a governmental institution but also a religious institution, it is “all but inevitable that the two will come into conflict.” Obergefell, 576 U.S. at 734 (Thomas, J., dissenting). And yet the viewpoint of “good and decent people [who] oppose same-sex marriage as a tenet of faith” is protected and “actually spelled out” in the First Amendment—“unlike the right imagined by the majority.” Id. at 711 (Roberts, C.J., dissenting).

Marriage is a deeply personal matter that intersects speech, religious beliefs, and action. See Turner v. Safley, 482 U.S. 78, 96 (1987) (“[M]any religions recognize marriage as having spiritual significance. . . .”). The First Amendment embraces not only the freedom to believe but also “the right to express those beliefs and to establish one’s religious (or nonreligious) self-definition in the political, civic, and economic life of our larger community.” Burwell v. Hobby Lobby Stores, Inc., 573 U.S. 682, 736-737 (2014) (Kennedy, J., concurring). Indeed, the Free Exercise Clause “does perhaps its most important work by protecting the ability of those who hold religious beliefs of all kinds to live out their faiths in daily life.” Bremerton, 597 U.S. at 524. One of the reasons this nation is “so open, so tolerant, and so free is that no person may be restricted or demeaned by government” for exercising religious liberty. Hobby Lobby, 573 U.S. at 739 (Kennedy, J., concurring). In America, “tolerance is a two-way street.” Ward v. Polite, 667 F.3d at 735. This Court’s redefinition of marriage does not grant same-sex couples a corollary right to coerce an unwilling business owner to create expression that celebrates their viewpoint. California applies the URCA to "vilify" Petitioner, a creative professional "unwilling to assent to the new orthodoxy." Obergefell, 576 U.S. at 741 (Alito, J., dissenting). California discards this Court's concern about stigma and "put[s] the imprimatur of the State itself on an exclusion that soon demeans or stigmatizes those whose own liberty is then denied." Id. at 672.

URCA attacks liberty of thought and conscience. The victory for freedom of thought recorded in the Bill of Rights recognizes that in the domain of conscience there is a moral power higher than the State. Girouard v. United States, 328 U.S. 61, 68 (1946). California requires Petitioner to violate her conscience by creating messages she believes are false and celebrating events she believes are immoral. Petitioner wishes to conduct her business with integrity, setting company policies consistent with her conscience, moral values, and faith. Not everyone shares those values but cutting conscience out of commerce is a frightening prospect for business owners, employees, and customers. Customers expect businesses to operate with honesty and integrity. URCA compels Petitioner to act against her deepest convictions. No American should ever have to choose between allegiance to the state and conscience just to remain in business. The government may not "exclude[] a person from a profession or punish[] him solely . . . because he holds certain beliefs." Baird v. State Bar of Arizona, 401 U.S. 1, 6 (1971); see also Keyishian v. Bd. of Regents, 385 U.S. 589, 607 (1967) (professor).

This Court has a "duty to guard and respect that sphere of inviolable conscience and belief which is the mark of a free people." Lee v. Weisman, 505 U.S. 577, 592 (1992). Rights of free speech and religion "are not limited to soft murmurings behind the doors of a person's home or church, or private conversations with like-minded friends and family." B&N, 448 P.3d at 895. On the contrary, the Constitution guarantees the right to free expression in the public square, including "the right to create and sell words, paintings, and art that express a person's sincere religious beliefs." Id.

V. URCA CRUSHES DISSENT, CREATING INTOLERANCE, UNIFORMITY, EXCLUSION, AND INEQUALITY.

Many believe anti-discrimination laws are necessary to achieve tolerance, diversity, inclusion, and equality for the LGBT community. Properly understood and applied, these values facilitate life in a free society and protect the rights of all Americans. But instead of eradicating invidious discrimination, URCA creates it—crushing dissent and promoting intolerance, uniformity, exclusion, and inequality. URCA destroys diversity by demanding uniformity of thought, belief, speech, and action concerning the nature of marriage, silencing one side of this hotly contested issue. California cements intolerance into state law. The result is an unconscionable inequality where people who hold traditional marriage beliefs are excluded from offering creative services to the public. URCA imposes a burden even more onerous than the compelled speech in Wooley v. Maynard, 430

U.S. 705 (1977). In Wooley, the state designed and created the license plate its citizens had to display. Here, Petitioner must design and create expression that communicates a celebratory message she believes is false. This is anathema to the First Amendment. "Forcing free and independent individuals to endorse ideas they find objectionable is always demeaning." Janus, 585 U.S. at 893.

Obergefell has led to brazen efforts to coerce uniformity of thought and punish dissenting views. California contravenes "[t]he very purpose of the First Amendment," which is "to foreclose public authority from assuming a guardianship of the public mind through regulating the press, speech, and religion." Thomas v. Collins, 323 U.S. 516, 545 (1945) (Jackson, J., concurring). This is dangerous to a free society where the government must respect a wide range of diverse viewpoints "Struggles to coerce uniformity" of thought are ultimately futile, "achiev[ing] only the unanimity of the graveyard." Barnette, 319 U.S. at 640, 641.

The freedom of thought that undergirds the First Amendment merits "unqualified attachment." Schneiderman v. United States, 320 U.S. 118, 144 (1943). In this context, the distinction between compelled speech and compelled silence is "without constitutional significance." Riley, 487 U.S. at 796. These complementary rights are components of "individual freedom of mind." Barnette, 319 U.S. at 637. Freedom of thought "is the matrix, the indispensable condition, of nearly every other form of freedom." Palko v. Connecticut, 302 U.S. 319, 326-27 (1937)), overruled on other grounds by Benton v. Maryland, 395 U.S. 784 (1969). Like many past cases, this case implicates a state law that “forces an individual . . . to be an instrument for fostering public adherence to an ideological point of view [s]he finds unacceptable.” Wooley, 430 U.S. at 715; B&N, 448 P.3d at 904-905. The ideological coercion of public opinion “is not forward thinking.” Nat’l Inst. of Family & Life Advocates v. Becerra, 585 U.S. 755, 780 (2018) (Kennedy, J., concurring).

CONCLUSION

This Court should grant the Petition for Certiorari and reverse the California ruling.

Respectfully submitted,

Deborah J. Dewart
Counsel of Record
111 Magnolia Lane
Hubert, NC 28539
(910) 326-4554
lawyerdeborah@outlook.com

Tami Fitzgerald
NC Values Institute
9650 Strickland Rd.
Ste. 103-226
Raleigh, NC 27615

Counsel for Amicus Curiae
NC Values Institute