UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff—Appellee,

versus

JORGE ALBERTO SALINAS,

Defendant—Appellant.

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas
USDC No. 3:23-CR-126-1

Before JONES, DUNCAN, and DOUGLAS, Circuit Judges.

PER CURIAM:*

Jorge Alberto Salinas was convicted following a bench trial of illegal reentry after removal from the United States, in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1326(a). The district court imposed a 36-month sentence and ordered that sentence to run consecutively with the undischarged term of imprisonment imposed following the revocation of his term of supervised release.

* This opinion is not designated for publication. See 5TH CIR. R. 47.5.

No. 25-10335

Salinas contends that that the district court erred in denying his motion to dismiss the superseding indictment and that his 36-month consecutive sentence is procedurally unreasonable. He also asserts that his sentence violates due process because it exceeds the statutory maximum for the offense charged in the indictment. However, he correctly concedes that this argument is foreclosed by the Supreme Court’s decision in Almendarez-Torres v. United States, 523 U.S. 224 (1998), and merely raises this issue to preserve it for further review. See United States v. Pervis, 937 F.3d 546, 553-54 (5th Cir. 2019); see also Erlinger v. United States, 602 U.S. 821, 838 (2024) (explaining that Almendarez-Torres “persists as a narrow exception permitting judges to find only the fact of a prior conviction” (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)).

We review the district court's denial of a motion to dismiss an indictment de novo. United States v. Hernandez Velasquez, 120 F.4th 1294, 1296 (5th Cir. 2024). An alien charged with illegal reentry may collaterally attack the underlying removal order if he shows that (1) “[he] exhausted any administrative remedies that may have been available to seek relief against the order; (2) the deportation proceedings at which the order was issued improperly deprived [him] of the opportunity for judicial review; and (3) the entry of the order was fundamentally unfair.” 8 U.S.C. § 1326(d). Salinas argues that he was not required to exhaust his administrative remedies because the immigration judge lacked jurisdiction to order him removed. However, a contention that a removal order was legally erroneous does not excuse compliance with the mandatory exhaustion and denial of judicial review requirements. See United States v. Palomar-Santiago, 593 U.S. 321, 327-29 (2021). Because Salinas does not argue, and there is nothing in the record suggesting that he exhausted his administrative remedies, the district court did not err in denying the motion to dismiss.

No. 25-10335

We review sentences, including their consecutive nature, for reasonableness in light of the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) sentencing factors. United States v. Candia, 454 F.3d 468, 472 (5th Cir. 2006). Here, the district court explicitly addressed the 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) factors before imposing the consecutive sentence and gave ample reasons for its decision. See Gall v. United States, 552 U.S. 38, 51 (2007). While Salinas contends that the district court mischaracterized revocation sentences as replacements for imprisonment, he is unable to show that any mischaracterization resulted in a procedural error as the Sentencing Guidelines explicitly provide that district courts have discretion to order sentences to run concurrently, partially concurrently, or consecutively to undischarged terms of imprisonment. See U.S.S.G. § 5G1.3(d). Moreover, the Guidelines further recommend that sentences of imprisonment for criminal offenses run consecutively to any term of imprisonment imposed upon revocation of supervised release. See U.S.S.G. § 7C1.4(b). Accordingly, Salinas has failed to demonstrate that that his consecutive sentence is unreasonable. See Candia, 454 F.3d at 472.

AFFIRMED.

You must comply with the standard conditions that have been adopted by this court as well as with any additional conditions on the attached page.

DEFENDANT: JORGE ALBERTO SALINAS
CASE NUMBER: 3:23-CR-00126-X(1)

STANDARD CONDITIONS OF SUPERVISION

As part of your supervised release, you must comply with the following standard conditions of supervision. These conditions are imposed because they establish the basic expectations for your behavior while on supervision and identify the minimum tools needed by probation officers to keep informed, report to the court about, and bring about improvements in your conduct and condition.

1. You must report to the probation office in the federal judicial district where you are authorized to reside within 72 hours of your release from imprisonment, unless the probation officer instructs you to report to a different probation office or within a different time frame.
2. After initially reporting to the probation office, you will receive instructions from the court or the probation officer about how and when you must report to the probation officer, and you must report to the probation officer as instructed.
3. You must not knowingly leave the federal judicial district where you are authorized to reside without first getting permission from the court or the probation officer.
4. You must answer truthfully the questions asked by your probation officer.
5. You must live at a place approved by the probation officer. If you plan to change where you live or anything about your living arrangements (such as the people you live with), you must notify the probation officer at least 10 days before the change. If notifying the probation officer in advance is not possible due to unanticipated circumstances, you must notify the probation officer within 72 hours of becoming aware of a change or expected change.
6. You must allow the probation officer to visit you at any time at your home or elsewhere, and you must permit the probation officer to take any items prohibited by the conditions of your supervision that he or she observes in plain view.
7. You must work full time (at least 30 hours per week) at a lawful type of employment, unless the probation officer excuses you from doing so. If you do not have full-time employment you must try to find full-time employment, unless the probation officer excuses you from doing so. If you plan to change where you work or anything about your work (such as your position or your job responsibilities), you must notify the probation officer at least 10 days before the change. If notifying the probation officer at least 10 days in advance is not possible due to unanticipated circumstances, you must notify the probation officer within 72 hours of becoming aware of a change or expected change.
8. You must not communicate or interact with someone you know is engaged in criminal activity. If you know someone has been convicted of a felony, you must not knowingly communicate or interact with that person without first getting the permission of the probation officer.
9. If you are arrested or questioned by a law enforcement officer, you must notify the probation officer within 72 hours.
10. You must not own, possess, or have access to a firearm, ammunition, destructive device, or dangerous weapon (i.e., anything that was designed, or was modified for, the specific purpose of causing bodily injury or death to another person such as nunchakus or tasers).
11. You must not act or make any agreement with a law enforcement agency to act as a confidential human source or informant without first getting the permission of the court.
12. If the probation officer determines that you pose a risk to another person (including an organization), the probation officer may require you to notify the person about the risk and you must comply with that instruction. The probation officer may contact the person and confirm that you have notified the person about the risk.
13. You must follow the instructions of the probation officer related to the conditions of supervision.

U.S. Probation Office Use Only

A U.S. probation officer has instructed me on the conditions specified by the court and has provided me with a written copy of this judgment containing these conditions. I understand additional information regarding these conditions is available at www.txnp.uscourts.gov.
