QUESTION PRESENTED

Whether Petitioner was deprived of his right, under the Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments, to a trial by a 12-person jury when the defendant is charged with a serious felony?

There is another petition raising the identical question presented, and in that case the Court has requested a response from the State of Florida. See Kian v. Florida, No. 25-6623. This case should at least be held pending resolution of that petition.

JACOB JUSTICE STEPHEN, PETITIONER,

STATE OF FLORIDA, RESPONDENT.

ON PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE FOURTH DISTRICT COURT OF APPEAL OF FLORIDA

PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI

Jacob Justice Stephen respectfully petitions for a writ of certiorari to review the judgment of the Fourth District Court of Appeal of Florida in this case.

OPINION BELOW

The decision of Florida's Fourth District Court of Appeal is reported along with its denial of rehearing as Stephen v. State, 429 So. 3d 7 (Fla. 4th DCA 2026) (table). Copies of the decision and the order denying rehearing are in the appendix. 1a, 6a.

JURISDICTION

The petition seeks review of the decision of Florida's Fourth District Court of Appeal dated January 7, 2026, 1a, for which Petitioner's timely motion for rehearing was denied on March 9, 2026. 6a. The court reversed Petitioner's firearm possession charge but affirmed his attempted murder conviction and sentence "without discussion." 1a. Its opinion says nothing about Appellant's claim that he was entitled to a twelve-member jury

The Florida Supreme Court is "a court of limited jurisdiction," Mallet v. State, 280 So. 3d 1091, 1092 (Fla. 2019) (citation omitted). Specifically, it has no jurisdiction to review a written district court of appeal decision unless the decision expressly address "within the four corners of the opinion itself" the issue as to which review is sought. The Florida Star v. B.J.F., 530 So. 2d 286, 288 (Fla. 1988). This rule applies to criminal cases. See Persaud v. State, 838 So. 2d 529, 532 (Fla. 2003) (quoting The Florida Star).

Hence, because the district court of appeal affirmed his attempted murder conviction without opinion and no discussion of Petitioner's claim to the right of a twelve-member jury, Petitioner could not seek state supreme court review of the decision affirming.

This Court has jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1257(a).

CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY PROVISIONS

The Sixth Amendment:

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury ...

Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment:

... . No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

U.S. Const. Amend. XIV.

Article I, section 22 of the Florida Constitution:

Trial by jury.—The right of trial by jury shall be secure to all and remain inviolate. The qualifications and the number of jurors, not fewer than six, shall be fixed by law.

Section 913.10, Florida Statutes:

Number of jurors.—Twelve persons shall constitute a jury to try all capital cases, and six persons shall constitute a jury to try all other criminal cases.

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner was charged in the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit of Florida with attempted first-degree murder and possession of a firearm by a prohibited person. 1a. He was convicted of both crimes by a six-person jury. On his post-trial motion, the court reduced the attempted murder conviction to one for attempted second-degree murder. 1a. Petitioner was sentenced to 40 years in prison for the attempted murder.

Petitioner sought review in the Fourth District Court of Appeal. Among his grounds for appeal, he contended he was denied his right to a twelve-member jury under the Sixth Amendment. 7a–9a. The court affirmed the attempted murder conviction “without discussion,” but reversed the firearm conviction due to a number of procedural irregularities. 1a–5a. As to neither conviction did the court address Petitioner’s claim that he was entitled to a twelve-member jury. 1a. That issue was also not discussed by the court in denying rehearing or certification without discussion. 6a.

REASONS FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

WILLIAMS v. FLORIDA SHOULD BE OVERRULED AND
THE SIXTH AMENDMENT RIGHT TO A JURY OF TWELVE SHOULD BE RESTORED.

The Sixth Amendment provides: “In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury”

On its face, it does not define what is meant by a jury. It does not prescribe the number of jurors. It does not say their verdict must be unanimous, or even that a majority must concur with the verdict. It does not say jurors must be laymen.

Given the Amendment’s spare wording and absolute silence about these and similar questions, we have no option but to look to “the most likely public understanding of [this] particular provision at the time it was adopted.” McDonald v. City of Chicago, Ill., 561 U.S. 742, 828 (2010) (Thomas, J., concurring in part) (interpreting Second Amendment). Such “an approach grounded in history imposes limits on the judiciary that are more meaningful than any based on [an] abstract formula.” Obergefell v. Hodges, 576 U.S. 644, 698 (2015) (Roberts, C.J., dissenting) (internal citation and quotation marks omitted). See also Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Org., 597 U.S. 215, 239 (2022) (opinion of Alito, J., for the Court) (“Historical inquiries ... are essential whenever we are asked to recognize a new component of the ‘liberty’ protected by the Due Process Clause because the term ‘liberty’ alone provides little guidance.”); Students for Fair Admissions, Inc. v. President & Fellows of Harvard Coll., 600 U.S. 181, 321–27 (2023) (Sotomayor, J., dissenting) (surveying understanding of Fourteenth Amendment at the time of adoption); Consumer Fin. Prot. Bureau v. Cmty. Fin. Services Ass’n of Am., Ltd., 601 U.S. 416, 442 (2024) (Kagan, J., concurring) (“Long settled and established practice may have great weight in interpreting constitutional provisions about the operation of government.”) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); Gamble v. United States, 587 U.S. 678, 741 (2019) (Gorsuch, J., dissenting) (surveying how term “same offence” in Double Jeopardy Clause was understood at time of adoption); United States v. Rahimi, 602 U.S. 680, 715 (2024) (Kavanaugh, J., concurring) (“The first and most important rule in constitutional interpretation is to heed the text—that is, the actual words of the Constitution—and to interpret that text according to its ordinary meaning as originally understood.”); id. at 737 (Barrett, J., concurring) (stating that to identify the scope of the Second Amendment “as it was originally understood ... courts must examine the historical tradition of firearm regulation.”) (internal citations and quotation marks omitted); Students for Fair Admissions, Inc. v. President & Fellows of Harvard Coll., 600 U.S. 181, 319–29, text and n.3 (2023) (Jackson, J., dissenting) (interpreting Fourteenth Amendment in accordance with understanding that, when adopted, it “was intended to undo the effects of a world where laws systematically subordinated Black people and created a racial caste system”).

As to the understanding of the jury trial right at the time of its adoption, we are on safe ground.

Throughout the Founding Era it was understood that a criminal conviction required a verdict by a unanimous twelve-man jury:

Yet the law of England hath afforded the best method of trial, that is possible, of this and all other matters of fact, namely by a jury of twelve men all concurring in the same judgment, by the testimony of witnesses viva voce in the presence of the judge and jury, and by the inspection and direction of the judge.

1 Matthew Hale, Pleas of the Crown 33 (1836 ed.); 3 Matthew Bacon, A New Abridgment of the Laws of England 234 (1768)

(stating petit jury must consist “of twelve, and can be neither more nor less”); 3 Blackstone, ch. 23 (“Of the Trial by Jury”) (“it is the most transcendent privilege which any subject can be enjoy or wish for, that he cannot be affected in his property, his liberty or his person, but by the unanimous consent of twelve of his neighbours and equals.”). See Thompson v. State of Utah, 170 U.S. 343, 350 (1898) (discussing historical background of Jury Trial Clause). The only constitutional alteration is that, via the Equal Protection Clause, eligibility has broadened, so that, for instance, women may also serve as jurors.

So far so good.

But in 1875, as Reconstruction was drawing to an end, the Jury Clause of Florida’s 1868 constitution was amended to provide that the number of jurors “may be fixed by law.” Fla. Const. art. VI, § 12 (amended 1875). See Florida Fertilizer & Mfg. Co. v. Boswell, 34 So. 241, 241 (Fla. 1903). The common law rule of a jury of twelve continued in Florida until the Legislature enacted a law specifying a jury of six in Chapter 3010, section 6, Laws of Florida (1877). See Gibson v. State, 16 Fla. 291, 297–98 (1877); Florida Fertilizer, 34 So. at 241.

This jury-of-six provision was enacted on February 17, 1877 — less than a month after the last federal troops were withdrawn from Florida in January 1877. See Gibson, 16 Fla. 294 (1877), and Jerrell H. Shofner, Reconstruction and Renewal, 1865–1877, in The History of Florida 273 (Michael Gannon, ed., first paperback edition 2018) (“there were [no federal troops] in Florida after 23 January 1877”).

This law was consistent with a common effort in the former Confederate states as they “restricted the size of juries and abandoned the demand for a unanimous verdict as part of a deliberate and systematic effort to suppress minority voices in public affairs.” Khorrami v. Arizona, 598 U.S. ____ (2022) (Gorsuch, J., dissenting from denial of certiorari). Cf. Ramos v. Louisiana, 590 U.S. 83, 126–27 (2020) (Kavanaugh, J., concurring) (non-unanimity was enacted “as one pillar of a comprehensive and brutal program of racist Jim Crow measures against African-Americans, especially in voting and jury service.”). Florida’s jury of six is the child of the same historical context.

This relic of the Jim Crow era was upheld in Williams v. Florida, 399 U.S. 78 (1970), holding that trial by a jury of six does not violate the Sixth Amendment.

Williams recognized that the Framers “may well” have had “the usual expectation” in drafting the Sixth Amendment “that the jury would consist of 12” members. Id., 399 U.S. at 98–99. But it concluded that such “purely historical considerations” were not dispositive. Id. at 99. Rather, it focused on the “function” that the jury plays in the Constitution, concluding that the “essential feature” of a jury is it leaves justice to the “commonsense judgment of a group of laymen” and thus allows “guilt or innocence” to be determined via “community participation and [with] shared responsibility.” Id. at 100–01. It wrote that “currently available evidence [and] theory” suggested that function could just as easily be performed with six jurors as with twelve. Id. at 101–102 & n.48; cf. Burch v. Louisiana, 441 U.S. 130, 137 (1979) (acknowledging that Williams and its progeny “departed from the strictly historical requirements of jury trial”).

Petitioner respectfully submits that the ahistorical, functionalist social science approach of Williams was erroneous as it is contrary to the understanding of the Founding Era that criminal defendants have the right to the unanimous verdict of a jury of twelve.

Due to this erroneous ruling, Florida courts have uniformly rejected arguments that Florida’s practice of trial by six-member juries should be revisited, and the state supreme court has refused to consider the matter. See Brown v. State, 359 So. 3d 408, 410 n.1 (Fla. 1st DCA 2023) (rejecting as “nearly frivolous” claim that defendant charged with armed robbery and kidnapping was entitled to trial by jury of twelve); Serrano-Delgado v. State, 392 So. 3d 251 (Fla. 2d DCA 2024) (citing Williams and holding defendant was not entitled to jury of twelve on charge of sexual battery on a child under age of twelve); Kain v. State, 393 So. 3d 786, 787 (Fla. 3d DCA 2024) (“Affirmed. See Williams v. Florida, 399 U.S. 78, 90 S.Ct. 1893, 26 L.Ed.2d 446 (1970) (holding Florida’s use of six-member jury in non-capital cases does not violate the Sixth Amendment right to trial by jury).”); Guzman v. State, 350 So. 3d 72 (Fla. 4th DCA 2022) (citing Williams and holding defendant was not entitled to twelve-member jury at trial for sexual battery on a child under age of twelve), rev. denied SC2022–1597, 2023 WL 3830251 (Fla. June 6, 2023), cert. denied 144 S. Ct. 2595 (2024); Simpson v. State, 368 So. 3d 513, 514 (Fla. 5th DCA 2023) (noting that panel was rejecting claim that defendant charged with attempted murder was entitled to trial by a jury of twelve persons).

These decisions are binding on the trial courts of Florida. See Pardo v. State, 596 So. 2d 665, 666 (Fla. 1992) (“in the absence of interdistrict conflict, district court decisions bind all Florida trial courts”). Further, the state constitution and state law specifically authorize six-member juries in noncapital criminal cases. Fla. Const., art. I, § 22 (“The qualifications and the number of jurors, not fewer than six, shall be fixed by law.”; § 913.10, Fla. Stat. (“Twelve persons shall constitute a jury to try all capital cases, and six persons shall constitute a jury to try all other criminal cases.”)).

So only this Court can right the dilution of the Sixth Amendment wrought in Williams. Petitioner calls upon this Court to grant this petition, recede from Williams, restore the ancient right to a twelve-member jury, and reverse Petitioner’s conviction.

CONCLUSION

The petition for a writ of certiorari should be granted or it should at least be held in abeyance pending the disposition of Kian v. Florida, No. 25-6623.
