The Mindwire V5 turns gaming into pure electroshock torture

By Joshua Topolsky © posted March 9th 2008 5:29PM

Sure, your games are thrilling and all, but they don't exactly cause actual pain, do they? Well, that's all going to change thanks to the two twisted dreamers who started the company Mindwire, and their electroshock feedback device, the V5. That's right, next time you get fagged in Unreal, snacked in Madden, or robbed in GT4 — you get shocked in real life. Just the sadistic thrill you've been after, right? The device works by splitting your controller input to the "brain" of the V5 and your console, then sends electric jolts via electrode pads on your skin. Right now the company has a model tested and working with the PS2, Xbox, GameCube, and PCs, though they appear to be making preparations for current gen consoles in the next iteration of the device. If you're content with the choices at hand, this self-torture can be yours for £99.99 (or around $200). Check the totally awesome video after the break to see the V5 in action.

[Via Coolest Gadgets]
Gordon Murray reveals new Batmobile. Dark Knight gets serious about reducing carbon footprint -- Engadget

Firefox 5 slips out ahead of schedule, gets official June 21st -- Engadget

Device Analyst: Android study wants to track your every move, if you'll let it -- Engadget

JOYSTIQ
Monday Night Combat gets Sunday Afternoon Sale on Steam, now $3.75
Metal Komarik's old school (and free) Sector and Cyrix skins revealed
Wreaky Webcomic Willow is taking a post-ESP relaxation journey

TUAW
Rumor: New Mac Pro and iMac Mints in August, CNet says
Fare for iPhone shoots 'HDR-like' video
Apple Store is down (updated)

TECHCRUNCH
The Most Important Organization In Silicon Valley That No One Has Heard About Good World Games MyConservationPlanet Helps You Save Endangered Species
Google Reminds You That Today Is Father's Day (And To Call Dad From Gmail)

HUFFPOST TECH
Netflix Pulls Even More Movies From Streaming Service
Law Suit Could Cost Google $6.1 Billion
Google Reminds You To Call Your Dad

TECH girl
Slashdot
MAKE Technology Review
Ars Technica
TechMeme
Phone Scoop

DESIGN
OFFFBOUNCE
Core77
Popcorn Shower
McCoo Loo
Design*Sponge
The Bartolomeis

NEWS
Politics Daily
The Daily Beast
AOL News
CNN
Taxes
Block Quotes
DJA

LIFESTYLE
Lifhacker
Lemondrop
StyleList
Luxury
Personal finance
Gadget

ENVIRONMENTAL Inhabit
Good
AutoBlog Green
Green Daily
TreeHugger

ENTERTAINMENT
Massively
The Cre8t
IOQ
PodFest
Spiner
Cinematic
Big Downloads

http://www.engadget.com/2008/03/09/the-mindwire-v5-turns-gaming-into-pure-electroshock-torture