3 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: We'll hear argument
4 first this morning in Case 1314-87, Henderson v. The 5 United States.

6 Mr. Ortiz.

7 ORAL ARGUMENT OF DANIEL R. ORTIZ

8 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

9 MR. ORTIZ: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it
10 please the Court:

11 This case asks whether the felon in 12 possession statute prevents the court from ordering the 13 government to transfer firearms in its possession that 14 are owned by a felon to a suitable third party. The 15 government now concedes that a court can order transfer 16 to a licensed gun dealer, who will then sell the 17 firearms on the owner's behalf.

18 That concession alone requires reversal.

19 Neither court below understood that it had such power.

20 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Why isn't -- is that 21 enough for your client? He wants to sell the firearms 22 to -- the government is willing to let a licensed 23 firearms dealer sell them for him?

24 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor. He -- that's 25 not his preferred remedy, but that is an acceptable

1 remedy for him. In fact, it is one of the remedies that 2 he -- he suggested below.

3 Did -- I didn't -- I
4 thought that before the district court there was only 5 first, his friend, then his mother, and then another 6 friend. Where did he ask the court to allow the guns to 7 be sold by a licensed gun dealer?

8 MR. ORTIZ: Your Honor, you can see the 9 references on page 71, 170, 132 and page 195 of the 10 joint appendix. On page 71 in his renewed request for 11 disposition of property, Mr. Henderson said that the -- 12 said that the owners will have property interest in the 13 firearms which must be accommodated by the sale, 14 transfer, or storage of the firearms in spite of his own
15 possessor rights having been curtailed. On page 170 --

16 JUSTICE GINSBURG: But that doesn't mention 17 anything about a gun dealer, and he had been quite 18 specific about the persons to whom he wanted the guns 19 transferred.

20 MR. ORTIZ: Well, Your Honor, the -- in 21 the -- in the Miller case, which he cites there for the 22 proposition that a sale would be an appropriate remedy, 23 the sale was through -- license -- one of the 24 possibilities was sale through a licensed gun dealer.

25 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Is there any point in the

1 references that you made where he said to the court, "I 2 would like these guns to be consigned to a licensed gun 3 dealer"?

4 MR. ORTIZ: He, twice, Your Honor, did
5 not -- he did not mention the word licensed gun dealer, 6 but he said transfer for sale, did not limit it to any 7 particular person. And on page 132 in his objections to 8 the magistrate judge's report and recommendation, he 9 asked the court to grant the request that this Court 10 ordered that a person lawfully entitled to own the 11 subject firearms collection be awarded possession and 12 control and direct that the payment --

13 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Wasn't he on a futile
14 mission in this circuit?

15 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor, he was on a 16 futile mission in this circuit.

17 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Because this circuit had 18 already ruled that any kind of sale by anyone was 19 prohibited, because he was a felon.

20 MR. ORTIZ: That is clear, Justice
21 Sotomayor. It is also --

22 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: And when he went up on 23 appeal, he cited the Brown case to the court -- to the 24 circuit court, which had held that a court-ordered sale 25 was okay.

1 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor.

2 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: And despite him citing 3 the Brown case, the Eighth Circuit continued with its 4 own precedent and said no one can sell it, not even the 5 court.

6 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor. He -- he did 7 make that clear to the Eleventh Circuit, but nowhere in 8 his request for sale or transfer below did he 9 specifically limit it to someone who was not a licensed 10 gun dealer. This request at the end of his objections 11 to magistrate judge's report is broad enough to 12 contemplate that. He --

13 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: I would have 14 thought -- I would have thought you would oppose the 15 notion that that would be an adequate -- adequate 16 relief. If we're talking about an attribute of 17 ownership, the owner gets to decide who -- to whom he's 18 going to sell what he owns.

19 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor. It is -- it 20 may, in this particular case, because it was one of the 21 remedies that he actually requested be possible, but it 22 was not his preferred remedy. This Court should have 23 the power to approve sales and transfers so long as the 24 recipients are not under the control or influence of the 25 owner, so long as they themselves are legally entitled

1 to own and possess the guns, and so long --

2 JUSTICE GINSBURG: How do you -- how does
3 one tell -- let's take the two people -- two friends 4 that you opposed -- suggested transferring them to, or 5 his wife so they could stay within the family. How does 6 the Court know whether that transfer will give him 7 access to the guns so that he will have possession?

8 MR. ORTIZ: Your Honor, it's up to the 9 district court to hold a hearing on the issue. The 10 standard is reasonableness. There's no equitable 11 analysis. The court can notify the suggested 12 transferees that they are giving the -- allowing 13 Mr. Henderson any access to the guns would constitute a 14 criminal violation. The court can, as the Seventh 15 Circuit suggested, required signed statements from the 16 proposed transferees that they will never let the owner 17 again have control or influence over the use of the 18 guns.

19 There are example -- it's a case-by-case 20 determination however. In some cases the court may be 21 persuaded that such transfers would be appropriate. In 22 other cases, the court may well not, and that begins --

23 JUSTICE KENNEDY: And under what statutory 24 rule or authority does the court hold that hearing?

25 MR. ORTIZ: This is under its traditional

1 equitable principles or authority, Your Honor.

2 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Is there a black-letter 3 case you can cite for the proposition that the court has 4 this general equitable authority?

5 MR. ORTIZ: Well, Your Honor --

6 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Because I'm wondering if 7 the government wants to sue under the Tucker Act or 8 something. That's what I'm asking.

9 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor. No. The lower 10 courts that have done this, Your Honor, have cited in 11 cases like Wilson and Wright from the D.C. Circuit 12 before Rule 41 was amended in 1989, pointed out that 13 they had ancillary jurisdiction to this, and since which 14 does not violate Kokkonen or Peacock v. Thomas because 15 in this case, the -- Mr. Henderson was ordered to give 16 up the guns as a condition of his release. The court's 17 returning of the property can be seen as its giving 18 effect to its own orders and decrees.

19 JUSTICE KENNEDY: And 41(g) is too much of a 20 stretch?

21 MR. ORTIZ: No, Your Honor, we believe that 22 Rule 41(g) would also work here. The government takes a 23 much narrower view of the course.

24 Mr. Henderson did not actually ask for 25 relief under 41(g) himself. He asked for it under

1 general equitable principles, which other courts have 2 allowed. It is the government that tried to narrowly
3 characterize his request as one under Rule 41(g) and now 4 takes a narrow approach towards the word return, and 5 suggests that he is unable -- he should be unable to 6 seek transfers of his guns for that reason.

7 JUSTICE KAGAN: But it's not just return;
8 right? It's return the property to the movant.

9 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor.

10 JUSTICE KAGAN: So how does this fit under 11 41(g)?

12 MR. ORTIZ: Well, it's a kind of complicated
13 transaction under Rule 41(g), Your Honor. He is asking 14 for the guns to be transferred, and as part of that 15 transfer, for him to receive payment. He is not asking 16 for the gun itself, admittedly. But he is asking the 17 court to structure the transaction in such a way that he 18 would receive the economic benefit.

19 JUSTICE KENNEDY: He's asking for the stick 20 and the bundle that's called ownership and -- and the 21 funds from the transfer.

22 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor. He is asking 23 for the ownership; in particular, the right to transfer.
24 And that -- the Eleventh Circuit held that the right, by 25 transferring the property, he was necessarily receiving

1 constructive possession of it. And that holding is 2 wrong for at least six different independent reasons.
3 It violates the plain language of the statute. It
4 violates traditional understanding, common law
5 understandings of what possession entails. It violates 6 the statutory structure and at least two canons of 7 statutory interpretation. It violates the statutory's 8 purpose by preventing felons from completely alienating 9 their interest in their guns.

10 It also allows the government to accomplish 11 a forfeiture without any due process at all. And, Your 12 Honors, it raises serious takings, due process, Fourth 13 Amendment, Second Amendment, and Eighth Amendment 14 concerns.

15 JUSTICE KAGAN: Just so I understand the 16 scope of your position, you say that the district court 17 has discretion to figure out, you know, whether a 18 particular person whom your client or someone else wants 19 to sell the gun to is an appropriate recipient of the 20 gun. But in the absence of that, does the district 21 court just have discretion or must the district court 22 ensure that the gun is sold through a gun dealer?

23 In other words, if -- if your client says 24 really I want it sold through a gun dealer, is that 25 discretionary on the district court's part or is that

1 required?

2 MR. ORTIZ: That would be required, Your 3 Honor, although there might be some argument about the 4 particular gun dealer. Maybe the one is -- one is 5 proposed that petitioner believes would be inappropriate 6 for some reason.

7 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: I'm sorry, would you
8 repeat that?

9 MR. ORTIZ: Sorry. The court -- lower 10 court, Your Honor, would be required under those 11 circumstances that Justice Kagan had proposed to order a 12 sale by a licensed gun dealer. It's possible that there 13 might be some argument about a particular -- whether a 14 particular gun dealer would be appropriate or not.

15 JUSTICE ALITO: Can I ask you a question 16 about your argument that a district court would have the 17 discretion to prevent the transfer of a gun from the 18 convicted felon to a third party who has some 19 acquaintance with the convicted felon? A friend, let's 20 say. Let's say it's a friend who lives two blocks away.
21 Now, if this friend doesn't -- is not himself a 22 convicted felon or doesn't have some other aspect of his 23 record that would prevent him from buying a firearm, he 24 could go to a licensed firearm dealer, presumably, and 25 purchase it directly; right?

1 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor.

2 JUSTICE ALITO: So why should the 3 situation -- and that would be true even though he is a 4 friend of the convicted felon, and there might be some 5 risk that he would allow the convicted felon to use the 6 firearm.

7 So why should the situation be different 8 when the district court is considering whether the 9 firearm can be transferred from the convicted felon to 10 this individual?

11 MR. ORTIZ: It shouldn't be any different.

12 JUSTICE ALITO: But I thought you
13 understood -- I thought you were saying that the district 14 court would have the discretion to prevent that transfer 15 if the district court thought there was some risk that 16 this individual would allow the convicted felon to have 17 access to the firearm.

18 MR. ORTIZ: If, in its hearing, the district 19 court is not -- insufficiently convinced that there is 20 independence between the owner and the transferee, it 21 might, as an exercise of its exercise of its equitable 22 discretion because it is a question of equity, refuse 23 the direct transfer and put it up for -- put the 24 firearms for sale through a licensed gun dealer.

25 JUSTICE ALITO: And then that individual

1 could go to the licensed firearm dealer and buy exactly 2 the same gun.

3 MR. ORTIZ: Yes, Your Honor.

4 JUSTICE ALITO: So I don't see how the two 5 positions are --

6 MR. ORTIZ: Well, at -- at the extreme -- at 7 the extreme, Justice Alito, imagine a situation where 8 someone in this position is proposing transfer to an 9 unindicted drug kingpin, something like that. The 10 government presumably would object to the transfer, not 11 because the person is indicted, the drug kingpin hasn't 12 yet, but because they have suspicions about his 13 activity. The drug kingpin, in that position, could 14 presumably go to a gun dealer and buy whatever firearms
15 the drug ping -- kingpin wanted. But it is not outside 16 of the court's authority to take that back into account.

17 Those circumstances, I believe, would be 18 very few and far between. In most cases, so long as 19 the -- the transferee is not under the owner's control 20 and the transferee has the legal ability to own and 21 possess the guns, the district court, normal course, 22 should approve the transfer. But there may --

23 JUSTICE GINSBURG: And who -- who makes the 24 arrangement? Who selects the gun dealer and makes the 25 arrangement for the consignment? Does the court do

1 that --

2 MR. ORTIZ: I believe --

3 JUSTICE GINSBURG: -- or does Henderson do 4 it?

5 MR. ORTIZ: In the cases where the district
6 courts have -- or the courts below have taken this 7 approach, Your Honor, it's usually a matter of 8 negotiation between the government and the felon.

9 JUSTICE KAGAN: And, Mr. --

10 JUSTICE SCALIA: Well, I would assume it
11 ought to be the gun owner's first preference. I mean, 12 why -- why wouldn't that be the normal situation? His 13 first preference is that it -- it should be sold to -- 14 to individual X. And if the court cannot reject that, 15 it should go there. And his second preference is, well, 16 if you reject that, give it to Y. Wouldn't that be the 17 normal?

18 MR. ORTIZ: That would be the normal, Your 19 Honor. We certainly believe that Petitioner should have 20 that right and the Petitioner's nominee of the gun 21 dealer should be accepted.

22 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: I think Justice Alito's 23 question is basically why would the district court have 24 equitable power to turn down any named buyer so long as 25 it is an actual buyer. Meaning I can understand he

1 can't just designate someone who's himself, okay, but if 2 he's making a good faith sale, why should the district
3 court have any power to turn that person down?

4 MR. ORTIZ: Justice Sotomayor, the district
5 court shouldn't have that power unless the public 6 interest, which is always a concern in equity, would be 7 violated by it, and those cases would be few and far 8 between. The one I mentioned, the sale -- the proposed 9 transfer to an unindicted drug kingpin might be extreme 10 enough for that to be possible, but ordinarily, the 11 district court should have -- not have that power.

12 JUSTICE KAGAN: And, Mr. Ortiz, why is it
13 required that the court arrange for some transfer,
14 whether to a gun dealer or otherwise? Is it principles 15 of equity that require that? Is it something else?

16 MR. ORTIZ: Well, Your Honor, there's no
17 statutory bar to it. There's always --

18 JUSTICE KAGAN: Right.

19 MR. ORTIZ: -- principles of equity and 20 there's no --

21 JUSTICE KAGAN: There -- there's no
22 statutory bar, but I guess I'm asking a further question 23 because you said in response to my earlier question it's 24 not just discretionary, it's required, you know, at 25 least to a gun dealer. And -- and I guess I'm asking:

1 What is the source of that requirement?

2 MR. ORTIZ: Well, that requirement has 3 several sources. Part of it is the Due Process Clause
4 where the government can't basically effect a forfeiture
5 without affording any process, which the Eleventh 6 Circuit rule would allow.

7 There are also concerns under the Takings
8 Clause. There's -- there also may well be an 9 unreasonable seizure under the Fourth Amendment. There 10 are Excessive Fine Clause issues. In fact, this Court 11 has all of those constitutional doubts and concerns that 12 argue in favor of the remedy that Mr. Henderson 13 requested.

14 If there are no further questions, Your 15 Honor, we'd like to reserve the remaining time for 16 rebuttal.

17 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.
18 Ms. O'Connell.

19 ORAL ARGUMENT OF ANN O'CONNELL

20 ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT

21 MS. O'CONNELL: Mr. Chief Justice, and may 22 it please the Court:

23 If a convicted felon selects a recipient of 24 his firearms and negotiates the terms of a transfer but 25 then relies on someone else to deliver the firearms, he

1 still has the power and intention at a given time to 2 exercise dominion and control over those firearms, which 3 amounts to constructive possession.

4 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Where did it -- the 5 ability to sell something depends upon ownership, not 6 possession. If I leave my car with a garage for a 7 month, the garage has possession, but they can't sell 8 the car. I don't have possession, but I can sell the 9 car.

10 In other words, I don't see how it gets to 11 be constructive possession. All he's asserting is a 12 right to ownership, which carries with it the right to 13 sell.

14 MS. O'CONNELL: The definition of 15 constructive possession, which everybody agrees is 16 included within the word "possession" in 922(g), is when 17 a person has the power and intention at a given time to 18 exercise dominion and control over the property, either 19 directly or through others.

20 And it's our position that if he is 21 selecting the recipient, excluding others from receiving 22 it, and negotiating the terms of the sale, that he has 23 the power and intention at that time to exercise 24 dominion and control over those firearms.

25 We've cited some papers --

1 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: But he doesn't -- he 2 doesn't have much control when the government is holding 3 them. He's -- he's just trying to sell them. He 4 doesn't want to control them. He doesn't want to use
5 them. He doesn't want to possess them, constructively
6 or otherwise. In fact, he wants to get rid of them, 7 which is what the statute is supposed to accomplish.

8 MS. O'CONNELL: Right. So we agree that the 9 convicted felon can sell the firearms. They can be 10 sold. There's a question of who should be selling them.
11 On our end, we think that they should go to a licensed 12 firearms dealer, a Federal firearms licensed dealer, or 13 an FFL, who is licensed and expected to sell firearms.

14 JUSTICE KAGAN: But do you think that the -- 15 the person can pick the firearms dealer?

16 MS. O'CONNELL: Yes. We think that's fine.

17 JUSTICE KAGAN: Well, then your -- your 18 position is internally contradictory, right? You think 19 he can pick the firearms dealer. Well, that's -- that 20 fits within your very broad definition of control.

21 MS. O'CONNELL: I -- I don't think so, and 22 let me explain why. When he picks the firearm dealer, 23 he is not exercising any control over where the firearms
24 land. The firearms dealer is an expected and a licensed 25 seller of firearms, so we don't expect him to keep them

1 or be subject to the convicted felon's control at all.

2 If he's nominating someone or selling them
3 to a specific person, then he has exercised control over 4 where they're going. He has excluded others. And we 5 think that amounts to constructive possession.

6 JUSTICE KAGAN: Well, then suppose his 7 friend comes forward and says, I don't really intend to 8 possess this. I'm going to sell it.

9 That wouldn't be control?

10 MS. O'CONNELL: Well, I think there's -- so
11 as I was saying, there's a question over who sells it.
12 We think the FFL. The Petitioner thinks he can sell it 13 himself to -- to a friend, and we think that amounts to 14 constructive possession.

15 In the middle, there's a question of can a 16 neutral third party sell them. And as -- as we think 17 the -- the Federal firearms licensed dealer is the right
18 one to sell. But on my theory of constructive 19 possession I've just laid out, you point out, yes, any 20 third party could, if the Court determines that they are 21 not subject to the felon's control, execute this sale.

22 However, a Court sitting in equity should 23 not be required to accept the convicted felon's 24 designation of somebody who's going to sell --

25 JUSTICE SCALIA: Why -- well, why do you say

1 that constructive possession only consists of being able 2 to decide where they go? Why isn't it constructive
3 possession to be able to decide who gets them for later
4 transfer? Why doesn't -- why isn't that an exercise --

5 MS. O'CONNELL: I think --

6 JUSTICE SCALIA: -- of -- of dominion over 7 them to some extent?

8 MS. O'CONNELL: I think it's harder to say
9 that you're exercising dominion and control over 10 something by saying, I want to get rid of these and 11 please -- please do it.

12 JUSTICE SCALIA: I want so-and-so to sell
13 them. I -- I don't know why that isn't exercising 14 dominion and control. It seems to me you're drawing a 15 very artificial line. You only -- you -- you can only 16 exercise dominion and control when you determine where 17 they end up, but I -- I don't see that that comes 18 within -- within the term "constructive possession."

19 MS. O'CONNELL: If he is just -- if there is 20 just a party that's appointed to sell the firearms for 21 him, and we -- we have to get rid of them somehow, and 22 so we think the best way to do it is to give them to a 23 licensed firearms dealer.

24 And -- and, Justice Scalia, you know --

25 JUSTICE SCALIA: I'm not saying it doesn't

1 make sense. I mean, it may make a lot of sense and may 2 be a very good policy had it been written into this 3 statute. But you're building this whole -- this -- this 4 whole palace upon the word "constructive possession."
5 And I don't see how constructive possession makes -- 6 makes that distinction. It really doesn't.

7 MS. O'CONNELL: We -- it -- it's just 8 more -- it's -- it's harder to say he's exercising 9 dominion and control when they are just being given to a 10 neutral third party who's going to sell them in an 11 arm's-length transaction to the entire universe of 12 buyers that are eligible to --

13 JUSTICE SCALIA: I don't think it's harder
14 at all. He's deciding where they go for sale. Why 15 isn't that exercising dominion and control?

16 MS. O'CONNELL: We think you can draw a 17 distinction. I think it's also -- the -- the reason 18 that we think it's okay -- a practical reason why we 19 think it's okay for the felon to suggest or say where 20 he -- which firearms dealer he thinks they should go to 21 is because the government, when we -- when we said, how 22 about if we just select it, we've said we -- we don't 23 really have the resources and the power to be going out 24 and finding firearms dealers, so we're happy if the 25 felon wants to appoint one.

1 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: What if -- what if 2 he wants to donate them to someone? He wants to donate
3 them to the Texas National Guard? Could he do that? I
4 mean, the -- the Federal firearms dealer doesn't help 5 you there.

6 MS. O'CONNELL: No. I mean, I think any -- 7 when it comes --

8 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: No, I mean, no, he 9 can't do it or --

10 MS. O'CONNELL: He cannot. I think anything
11 that it comes -- where it comes down to he is exercising 12 dominion and control over the firearms through the sale 13 amounts to constructive --

14 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: To the Federal 15 government he says, I -- I'm sorry about the conviction.
16 I want to give these to the Federal government.

17 Can he do that?

18 MS. O'CONNELL: Well, I --

19 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: I -- I guess that's 20 what he's doing.

21 MS. O'CONNELL: He -- he -- he's not. He 22 could abandon them to the Federal government, and -- and 23 he's chosen not to.

24 But I think in that situation --

25 JUSTICE SCALIA: Why isn't that exercising

1 dominion and control? I mean, he says, I'm not going to 2 propose anything. I'm going to let the Federal 3 government have them.

4 Why isn't that exercising dominion --

5 MS. O'CONNELL: The reason why is because we 6 already have them, frankly. So he doesn't have to 7 transfer possession to us in order for us to have them.
8 All he would be doing is abandoning any interest in 9 them.

10 JUSTICE KAGAN: Well, lucky you.

11 (Laughter.)

12 MS. O'CONNELL: Right. We don't -- and -- 13 and let me -- I also want to make clear --

14 JUSTICE KAGAN: Ms. O'Connell, can I ask 15 why -- why it is that we're looking at it in terms of 16 the sale? I mean, this is -- this constructive 17 possession question, it would seem to me to make a lot 18 more sense to ask the person who's going to end up 19 getting it, is there a chance that the original owner 20 can control what that person does with it.

21 In other words, you know, I give it to my 22 wife, I give it to my best friend, and I'm really in a 23 position where I'm controlling the use of the firearm.
24 And that seems to me to make perfect sense, not the 25 question of, like, who controls the sale mechanism.

1 MS. O'CONNELL: I -- I agree with you,
2 Justice Kagan, that it makes perfect sense to look at 3 whether the felon has control over the person that gets 4 the firearms, but I think there's a separate time period
5 that we need to look at during the sale to determine 6 whether he's exercising dominion and control over the --

7 JUSTICE BREYER: Where does all this come
8 from? I mean, to me, when somebody uses the word 9 "constructive X," that just means it's not X and -- and 10 it's a way of pretending that it's X when it isn't.

11 So I start with that and say what you're 12 worried about here -- of course, he doesn't have any 13 possession of it. You have possession of it. And what 14 he wants to do is he wants to put it somewhere so he 15 can't get ahold of it as long as the law prevents him
16 from having it. And you took it from him. You made him 17 give it to him.

18 So what's wrong with his saying, you go give 19 it to somebody? Now, if it's too much trouble, the 20 judge can say he can't make you go to a lot of trouble.
21 If it's giving it to somebody who might really do 22 everything he wants, we'll guard against that. That's 23 the job of the district judge. End of case.

24 Now, what -- what's -- what's -- simple,
25 realistic, preserves the government's interest. What's 1 wrong with it?

2 MS. O'CONNELL: I think, Justice Breyer,
3 that we are not pulling our constructive possession 4 position out of thin air.

5 JUSTICE BREYER: I --

6 MS. O'CONNELL: If there are --

7 JUSTICE BREYER: -- things like that, and I 8 don't understand any piece of it that has something in 9 that like it.

10 MS. O'CONNELL: We have -- the cases we've 11 cited -- I want to draw your attention to the cases 12 we've cited on pages 25 and 26 of our brief that involve 13 convicted felons who are out in the world and they are 14 negotiating sales of firearms.

15 And they are saying, Hey, buyer, do you want 16 to buy this firearm? Let's negotiate the terms. And 17 then since I can't possess them, I'm going to have 18 somebody else drop them off.

19 And courts have concluded in those 20 circumstances that's constructive possession.

21 JUSTICE BREYER: Okay. So we don't want
22 them. So we'll say to the district judge, Judge, use 23 some common sense. Don't let this gun get into the 24 hands of the crime boss of the area. Don't let the 25 things that you were just talking about happen.

1 And you look to see how much trouble it is,
2 what's likely to happen, and where it makes sense. And 3 if it isn't likely for these bad things to happen, fine.

4 MS. O'CONNELL: Those cases, though, are not 5 concerned with we -- we want to double check on who the 6 buyer is and see if that buyer is going to be subject to 7 the convicted felon's control. They are looking at the 8 felon's ability to move guns around throughout the 9 world.

10 JUSTICE KAGAN: But that seems to me very 11 different than the situation here, Ms. O'Connell, 12 because in that case, what the gang leader has is a 13 situation where somebody else is holding a gun for him
14 and he can say anything to that person. He can say, Use 15 the gun. He can say, Keep the gun in your closet. He 16 can say, Sell it to Person A or Person B or Person C.
17 He has total freedom over it.

18 And that's very different from the situation
19 here where the only thing that a person would -- a 20 person in Mr. Henderson's position can do is to sell the 21 gun to a person whom the court approves.

22 MS. O'CONNELL: I don't -- I don't think 23 that any of the cases that I was just referring to 24 involve situations where the convicted felon has control
25 over the person that's receiving the gun. All of them

1 just have to do with the convicted felon's ability make 2 a gun appear somewhere when he says to and to show that 3 he -- he -- he's exercising dominion and control over 4 the guns by negotiating the terms of their sale and 5 identifying buyers for them.

6 JUSTICE SCALIA: Yeah, but he doesn't -- he 7 doesn't have to get anybody to approve the buyer. I
8 think what Justice Kagan is saying, it's -- it's a lot 9 harder to say you have dominion and control when you 10 have to come before an equity court and say, Please, may 11 I, you know -- please may I have -- have the gun given 12 to my best friend or to somebody else. That doesn't 13 sound much like dominion and control to me.

14 MS. O'CONNELL: We -- we acknowledge that 15 because the guns are in our possession and the 16 Petitioner needs a court order in order for them to go 17 somewhere, that the court is exercising, also, some 18 control over the weapons; but by reserving this right to 19 nominate somebody to receive them, the convicted felon 20 is also exercising control over the weapons.

21 I'll point out that in the Petitioner's 22 opening brief when he described the main attributes of 23 possession, he said the right to control and the right 24 to exclude. And his theory in the reply brief that, oh, 25 I'm just nominating somebody, is certainly an exercise

1 of the right to exclude other people from getting their 2 hands on the firearms.

3 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Well, the reality is --

4 JUSTICE SCALIA: Is this --

5 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: The reality is that the 6 world is not going to know the guns are there, so -- but 7 there's no exclusion. If I wanted to go into that case 8 and ask the court to consider me rather than the 9 nominee, it's a court of equity. And the court could 10 say I'm the better owner than the person they nominated.

11 So I don't know what this -- why this 12 nomination becomes control over the sale if it's the 13 judge who's approving the sale.

14 MS. O'CONNELL: Well, I think because -- I
15 don't -- I don't know that it's true that any other 16 person could just come in and ask for the firearms. I'm 17 not aware of that.

18 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Well, you're saying the 19 court is the one who decides whether the person who's 20 nominated is appropriate or not.

21 MS. O'CONNELL: Right. The court -- the 22 court can say yes or no after weighing equitable 23 factors; but if it says yes, then the felon is 24 exercising a right to control and to exclude --

25 JUSTICE BREYER: But what is it you want to 1 have happen; that is, the gun was taken away from him.

2 MS. O'CONNELL: Yes.

3 JUSTICE BREYER: He can't possess it
4 anymore. It's in the hands of the court, I guess, or 5 the government. Okay.

6 Now, it's his. It's a 1891 collector's
7 item; he's a gun collector. Nobody is claiming it's 8 forfeitable, or anything. Okay. What do you think 9 should happen?

10 MS. O'CONNELL: We think it should go to a 11 Federal firearms licensed dealer for a sale. And I -- I 12 want to make clear that if the -- if the Court disagrees 13 with our constructive possession theory, I think that's 14 probably where Justice Scalia is and I don't know how 15 many other people are in that boat, but I think the 16 Court should certainly make clear in its opinion that 17 because the -- the district court looking at this relief 18 is sitting in equity, it is not required to broker a 19 sale between a convicted felon and his friend. The 20 court could still order that the firearms instead be 21 sent to an FFL.

22 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: But the idea -- the 23 idea that it should be sold through a Federal firearms 24 dealer is a late idea. This was not something the 25 government proposed at any stage below until the case

1 came here, right?

2 MS. O'CONNELL: Right. We certainly didn't 3 propose it, but I -- I also don't think it's correct to 4 say that the Petitioner was -- was proposing this as 5 relief that he wanted. He did say in the --

6 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Well, what did you
7 anticipate -- what was your position before you changed 8 it here in this Court about what should happen to the 9 guns?

10 MS. O'CONNELL: I mean, I think in the 11 Eleventh Circuit, Federal law enforcement officers that 12 have these guns and are trying to decide what to do with 13 them when they get the request coming in from the felons
14 were -- were certainly under the impression that Howell 15 controlled and that they certainly couldn't give it to 16 somebody that was selected by the convicted felon, but 17 also that they couldn't sell it. And --

18 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Has the Federal 19 government ever used these guns?

20 MS. O'CONNELL: No, and if we --

21 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Not these particular 22 ones but guns that were forfeited by a convicted felon 23 and someone who couldn't sell them to anyone, at least 24 until you changed the position and said they could sell 25 them to a firearms dealer? They just sat around

1 gathering dust?

2 MS. O'CONNELL: They -- they do, because we 3 don't -- if the opinion is affirmed, if there's, you
4 know, nothing to do with these guns, we don't gain title
5 to them. I think there would need to be an extra step.
6 In a lot of the court of appeals cases that present this 7 issue, when the convicted felon filed his Rule 41(g) 8 motion, the government filed, in response, a motion to 9 prefer permission to destroy the firearms, or something 10 like that. But there is nothing like that in this case.
11 We wouldn't gain title to them.

12 But -- but we think -- we do agree that our 13 position, maybe not necessarily in this case, because 14 the relief that Petitioner was asking for was always to 15 have it transferred to somebody in specific; but I 16 completely agree that we have said in briefs before, we 17 understood Howell to also prohibit a sale.

18 So what I think the appropriate relief for 19 this Court to -- what the Court should do to dispose of 20 the case would be to affirm the Eleventh Circuit's 21 holding that the convicted felon cannot select somebody 22 to receive his firearms, but then remand for -- if the 23 Court adopts our Federal licensed firearms dealer
24 position, to determine whether that relief --

25 JUSTICE SCALIA: Well, that wouldn't --

1 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: But the same trap that 2 you're -- I'm a little bit upset at your brief, frankly, 3 because in that circuit, he couldn't know that there was 4 any permissible sale, because that circuit had said
5 none.

6 And so to come back and say to us that we 7 should leave it in their discretion as to whether it
8 should go to a -- a Federal -- a federally licensed 9 firearms dealer seems as if the government has set a 10 trap for a pro se litigant.

11 MS. O'CONNELL: We are -- we are certainly 12 not trying to do that. The position that I think I've 13 just articulated was if the Court agrees with what we've 14 said in our brief and our view of constructive
15 possession, it should affirm what the Eleventh Circuit 16 said with respect to he cannot transfer the firearms to 17 a person of his choosing. But we -- we would not oppose 18 a remand for the court of appeals to -- or the district 19 court to look at this at that --

20 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: That's not -- that's 21 not going to get it done. You still have the problem of 22 the court below's view of the Unclean Hands Doctrine.
23 Do you have a position, the Federal government -- does 24 the Federal Government have a position on that doctrine 25 now?

1 MS. O'CONNELL: We do not think the Unclean
2 Hands Doctrine applies in this case. I'm sorry if that 3 was not clear from the footnote in our brief, but we 4 disavowed that holding of the Eleventh Circuit. We are 5 perfectly fine with you writing an opinion, and you 6 should, saying that the Eleventh Circuit should not have 7 relied on that doctrine. The Unclean Hands Doctrine 8 typically requires the -- the uncleanliness of your 9 hands, to be tied to the equitable relief you are 10 seeking.

11 JUSTICE BREYER: Is that going to be your -- 12 your position -- I mean, because I'm getting away from 13 the -- what I call the legal mumbo-jumbo. Looking at 14 the word "possessed" there, fine. It's a question of 15 interpreting that. And now where I thought, well, he 16 can't just have it sold to anybody. I mean, it could be 17 sold -- you don't want it sold to somebody who's going 18 to do his bidding every five minutes. I mean, maybe 19 he'd even agree with that.

20 And that now you're taking the opposite
21 extreme. You're saying the only way to administer this, 22 is the only thing really you can do with it, is you can 23 sell it to a Federal -- through a Federal firearms
24 dealer. And there are probably intermediate positions.
25 You know, I mean, somebody has a very valuable antique

1 weapon the Normans used to shoot or something. And he 2 says, I don't want to sell it. I'm going to be able to 3 possess it again in ten years. They'll forgive me for 4 whatever it is, and maybe you should accommodate that, 5 or maybe you shouldn't.

6 I have no feeling for how important it is to 7 have an absolute rule. You've given some good reasons 8 for it. What am I supposed to do? Just say everybody 9 agrees here you can't sell it your best friend who will 10 keep it to you, so they're wrong on that rule. The 11 government's position's is now let's do something else
12 with it. Maybe absolute. Maybe not. Go work it out, 13 Eleventh Circuit. Go work it out, lower court. What 14 should we do?

15 MS. O'CONNELL: Yeah, I think that's -- that 16 is a perfectly fine solution. I think whatever the 17 Court is going to hold with respect to constructive
18 possession, we certainly hope that the Court will agree 19 with us that a transfer to a person selected by the 20 convicted felon is an act of constructive possession.
21 But we are totally fine with the licensed firearms 22 dealer option, and I don't -- it's not something we 23 could have worked out with him now, because he is still 24 presenting in this Court the -- the preferred option 25 that they be given to his friend.

1 JUSTICE BREYER: Is this Federal license --
2 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Sold -- that is -- is it
3 the government's position that it's the licensed firearm 4 dealer or -- in effect, forfeited to the government? Is 5 there any other transferee in the government's view that 6 would be appropriate?

7 MS. O'CONNELL: No. We think it would have 8 to be sold, and that the -- he could obtain the economic 9 value of it because 922(g) only extinguishes his 10 possessory interest.

11 JUSTICE GINSBURG: But it would have to be 12 sold, but the sale would be -- or the consignment would 13 be to a licensed dealer. You're rejecting the friends.
14 You're rejecting the wife.

15 MS. O'CONNELL: I'm -- I'm rejecting his 16 ability to decide who to sell it to. I think I -- I 17 tried to explain in a -- in response to a question from 18 Justice Kagan earlier, I don't think it's -- it's 19 necessarily true that the firearms dealer is the only 20 neutral third party that can sell firearms. And under 21 our theory of constructive possession, he wouldn't be 22 controlling the destination of the firearms if they were 23 given to somebody other than a licensed firearms dealer, 24 who was not subject to the control of the convicted 25 felon. But we certainly think that given the statutory

1 backdrop where firearms are typically sold through an 2 FFL, that we think that is what Court should do.

3 JUSTICE SCALIA: Can he select the FFL? Can 4 he select the Federal -- I mean, you know, suppose the 5 government says we want it sold by a firearms dealer in 6 San Francisco and he says, what? You know, they don't 7 sell any guns in San Francisco. I want it -- you know, 8 I want it in -- in Dallas.

9 (Laughter.)

10 JUSTICE SCALIA: Can -- can he pick the 11 firearms dealer?

12 MS. O'CONNELL: What we have said is yes, he 13 can -- the district court has to figure out who's going 14 to sell these firearms. And maybe the parties can 15 nominate firearms dealers. What I -- what I tried to 16 say before was that I don't -- the Federal government, 17 certainly the agencies that I am here representing, have 18 said they don't necessarily have the resources to, in 19 every case like this, go out and try to find a firearms 20 dealer to do this. So we don't -- and we don't think 21 it's an act of constructive possession for him to pick 22 the neutral third party that's going to make an arm's 23 length transaction to the entire universe of eligible 24 buyers.

25 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Justice -- Justice

1 Alito.

2 JUSTICE ALITO: Well, what would happen if 3 someone is on trial for a felony and has in -- in his 4 house a number of firearms and then the person is 5 convicted? So what -- how can that person deal with the 6 firearms in the house without exercising constructive 7 possession in your view?

8 MS. O'CONNELL: So, this is probably the one 9 scenario where somebody like -- I don't know that he 10 couldn't have made arrangements beforehand, but we don't 11 really expect him to because he could be holding out 12 hope he's going to be acquitted. I think if he has 13 firearms in the house and then he is convicted and he 14 becomes a convicted felon, I mean, maybe he's -- I
15 presume he's going to jail. Maybe he will stay home 16 first. But you're right. That does propose sort of a 17 dilemma where we're saying he can't tell somebody else 18 what to do with the firearms.

19 I think if courts were looking at that 20 below -- and, of course, it's not something that is a 21 problem in this case because this Petitioner pleaded 22 guilty. And he acknowledged in his plea agreement that 23 he was about to become prohibited from possessing 24 firearms. But I think that if courts determined in a 25 particular case that it was a problem, like all of a

1 sudden I am in a status where I can't possess firearms 2 and if I go home, I'm immediately in violation of the 3 statute, that courts could determine that there's like a 4 statutory background principle that you have a 5 reasonable amount of time to come into compliance with 6 this.

7 JUSTICE BREYER: Well, then why can't we do
8 that here?

9 MS. O'CONNELL: Well, because that -- that 10 is not the type of -- a petitioner who pleads guilty is 11 not in that position. He knew when he pleaded guilty 12 that he was about to lose his ability to possess 13 firearms.

14 JUSTICE BREYER: I mean, your whole
15 argument -- the reason I took it that the government 16 wants this firearm thing, firearm dealer, is they say, 17 look, there are a lot of guns and these guns should be 18 safe and we're afraid he'll give them to a friend, and 19 we're afraid maybe the gang boss will get them, and the 20 only safe thing to do is really the firearms dealer.

21 Okay. But now we think of a similar kind of 22 case. It's just happened that the government didn't get 23 the guns first, they're in his house. And then you say 24 well, the solution there is it's a reasonable time. He 25 has a reasonable time to do with them what he wants.

1 MS. O'CONNELL: No.

2 JUSTICE KENNEDY: As long as he gets them
3 out of his possession.

4 MS. O'CONNELL: I think if he --

5 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Are you going to say he 6 has to give them to a firearms dealer? This is very 7 complicated, more so than I ever thought, and it seems 8 to me that it might best be worked out by lower courts 9 under the principle that we don't want these guns back 10 in the hands of either his control or people who might 11 misuse them.

12 MS. O'CONNELL: I think if he is a person
13 who pleaded guilty, and so he -- he had advance 14 knowledge that he was about to become somebody who 15 couldn't possess firearms, including constructive 16 possession where he couldn't exercise dominion and 17 control over them, then he should be required to -- to 18 get rid of those firearms before he pleads guilty. And 19 if he still has them in his house after he does so, 20 there is no reasonable period of time for that person 21 to, you know, exercise his own control over what he 22 wants to do with them. I think those do have to go to a
23 firearms dealer.

24 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Can you tell me -- it's 25 not this case, but suppose -- somewhat like Justice

1 Alito's hypothetical -- a man's living at home with his 2 wife. Wife owns the firearms. The firearms are in the 3 bedroom. He's convicted of an offense where 922(g) 4 controls. Is he in constructive possession of those in 5 violation of the statute?

6 MS. O'CONNELL: There is a whole body of 7 case law on that, Justice Kennedy, where the -- the 8 answer is can the convicted felon exercise dominion and 9 control over the firearms in -- in their location. So 10 if they're in like the master bedroom and they're not 11 locked up and he has access to them any time he wants 12 it, then he would -- he would be a felon in possession 13 of a firearm.

14 JUSTICE SCALIA: But the mere fact that his 15 wife has them is not enough --

16 MS. O'CONNELL: Right.

17 JUSTICE SCALIA: -- for constructive
18 possession.

19 MS. O'CONNELL: Right.

20 JUSTICE SCALIA: But you say that in this 21 context, the mere fact that a friend of his would have 22 them is enough for constructive possession.

23 MS. O'CONNELL: Yes. And it's because --

24 JUSTICE SCALIA: Why is that?

25 MS. O'CONNELL: Because he is the one that

1 is selling the firearms to the friend. He is selecting 2 the friend. He's excluding other people from owning 3 them. He is exercising control over the sale or the 4 transfer to his friend.

5 JUSTICE KAGAN: Ms. O'Connell, I think it's 6 implicit in what you're saying, but I just wanted to 7 make it clear. Although you say that Rule 41(g) is not 8 the appropriate mechanism, you have no doubt that courts 9 do have the equitable authority to do this. Is that 10 correct?

11 MS. O'CONNELL: That's correct. And I -- I
12 mean, I hope that, Justice Sotomayor, that it's not the 13 case that people are upset with -- with the government's 14 brief. I think that in our brief, we tried to correct 15 some wrongs that had happened in this case. We have 16 abandoned that 41(g) argument, we have abandoned the 17 Unclean Hands argument. The weapons that are not 18 firearms were -- have been returned to Mr. Henderson.
19 And we think we've come up with a solution transferring 20 the weapons to a Federal licensed firearms dealer that 21 allows him to obtain the economic value of the firearms
22 without exercising control over them.

23 JUSTICE GINSBURG: Would you agree that the 24 Unclean Hands part, that should not remain the law of 25 the circuit?

1 MS. O'CONNELL: Right.

2 JUSTICE GINSBURG: So we should -- we should 3 address that and reject it?

4 MS. O'CONNELL: Yes. In our footnote on the 5 unclean hands, we did describe that if these are -- 6 obviously, if the property that we have is contraband, 7 it's not being returned to anybody. But we also would 8 reserve the right to make arguments in cases where the 9 property we're holding is derivative contraband, like 10 it's a firearm that's been used to shoot somebody or 11 it's something that is used to for drugs --

12 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: But you have to file for 13 forfeiture in those situations.

14 MS. O'CONNELL: Well, what I'm saying is, if 15 we miss those deadlines or something like that, we would 16 reserve the right in a derivative contraband case to 17 make an unclean hands argument --

18 JUSTICE BREYER: What about just forgetting 19 the words "dominion" and "constructive" and just look to 20 the word "possession" and say that that sometimes 21 includes control? And what you want to prevent is that 22 he disposes of these arms in a way that allows him, 23 possibly, to control them in the future or control them 24 now in a way that likely puts them in the hands of bad 25 people for the future.

1 Now, that way, all we have to do is look at 2 the word possession. We have to add that it includes, 3 for purposes of this statute, certain kinds of control.
4 And then you have to say this is the simple rule, and 5 this will prevent two bad kinds of control.

6 Now, is there something wrong with that? If 7 so, we then send it back so that you can argue to the 8 district court why your rule is necessary to prevent 9 these two bad kinds of control.

10 MS. O'CONNELL: Justice Breyer, I think 11 your -- your second part we would go a little bit 12 further under the government's theory. Surely we think 13 that if the firearms are given back to somebody over 14 whom the convicted felon is going to exercise control, 15 that would be constructive possession. But we also 16 think that regardless of the person who's on the 17 receiving end of the firearms is a good person or a bad 18 person, is an exercise of dominion.

19 JUSTICE BREYER: I know, that's the part 20 that it's hard for me to accept.

21 MS. O'CONNELL: Well --

22 JUSTICE BREYER: Because you're willing to 23 allow that control in the case that Justice Alito put 24 where he was convicted and it's in his house. And I 25 don't see anything bad that flows from that kind of 1 control. And I don't see why you have to read the 2 statute to include that kind of control to achieve any 3 purpose that the statute has. So therefore, I tend, 4 tentatively, to reject that kind of control as falling 5 within what the statute forbids.

6 MS. O'CONNELL: If you are going to reject
7 that kind of control --

8 JUSTICE BREYER: What bad will happen?

9 MS. O'CONNELL: -- then we would just ask 10 that the Court, you know, make clear in its opinion that 11 a district court acting in equity is not required to 12 accept the convicted felon's choice or direction about 13 where he wants the firearms to go, and that, instead of 14 having to broker that transaction between a convicted 15 felon and his friends, that the Court say, you know --

16 JUSTICE BREYER: That might be another way
17 to do it, you know. All right. You have a difficult 18 conceptual case.

19 MS. O'CONNELL: And I don't think, you know, 20 even if you don't think that it's bad to have firearms
21 go to necessarily anybody or maybe there's a very good 22 person that the convicted felon knows and wants to have 23 it, the line is drawn when you become a convicted felon.

24 JUSTICE ALITO: Would the firearms dealer
25 charge a commission for selling these guns?

1 MS. O'CONNELL: Yes.

2 JUSTICE ALITO: And who would pay that?

3 MS. O'CONNELL: It would -- it would come
4 out of the -- the sale price.

5 JUSTICE ALITO: So that if the -- if the 6 convicted felon could sell this without going through a 7 dealer for a certain amount, then that person would lose 8 the commission by having it sold through a firearms
9 dealer?

10 MS. O'CONNELL: Yes. And we simply think 11 that that's -- I mean, if the economic value is, you 12 know, that we're selling them through a firearms dealer 13 and he's going to charge a commission, then that's just 14 part of determining what the economic value of the guns 15 is. But -- but we certainly think -- I mean, this is --

16 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: You can finish your 17 sentence.

18 MS. O'CONNELL: There's Montana -- or 19 State v. Fadness, one of the Montana Supreme Court
20 cases, includes a fact scenario where the person wanted 21 to designate their father to sell them and the court
22 said, I'm not required -- the father has no plan to sell 23 them, I'm going to give that, the felon said.

24 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.
25 Mr. Ortiz, you have 14 minutes remaining.

1 REBUTTAL ARGUMENT OF DANIEL R. ORTIZ
2 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER
3 MR. ORTIZ: Your Honor, just four very quick 4 points:

5 First, on the question of whether 6 Mr. Henderson asked with sufficient particularity for 7 relief, please remember that he was proceeding pro se.
8 And second, the law is clear that post-conviction 9 motions for return of transfer of property are treated 10 as civil actions. Under Rule 54(c) of the Federal Rules 11 of Civil Procedure, he's entitled to whatever relief is 12 appropriate even if he did not request it.

13 JUSTICE SCALIA: You started off -- you were 14 going to give us five pages in -- in the record, and you 15 only got to two of them, I think. You want --

16 MR. ORTIZ: Oh, right.

17 JUSTICE SCALIA: Just in case I'm 18 unfortunate enough to get assigned this opinion.

19 (Laughter.)

20 MR. ORTIZ: Justice Scalia, on page 71 and 21 on page 170. The first was a reference to his renewed 22 motion for return/disposition of property, and the 23 second was the motion hearing itself. He said that 24 he -- he claimed -- he argued that he had a property of 25 some firearms which must be accommodated by the sale,

1 transfer or storage of the firearms. But Justice
2 Ginsburg is correct, he did not particularly reference a 3 licensed gun dealer. His objections to the magistrate 4 judge's report and recommendation which appears on 5 page 132 of the joint appendix, he asks the court for 6 the relief -- to grant the request that this Court
7 ordered that a person lawfully entitled to own the 8 subject firearms collection be awarded possession and 9 control and direct the payment for the firearms be 10 awarded to Petitioner or his wife.

11 And finally, in his Eleventh Circuit brief, 12 he said, "Alternatively, I request the court recognize 13 my continued ownership interest in the property value
14 and order its sale for my benefit or my wife's or adult 15 children's benefit or allow me to designate a neutral 16 third party to take possession as his own."

17 Second, remind the Court that the 18 government's proposed Federal rules firearms dealer
19 remedy would allow an owner's friend to take -- to buy 20 the firearms without the lecture and warning from the 21 district court that might be a criminal offense.

22 Third, in this case, the firearms were 23 turned over long before Petitioner pleaded guilty. They 24 were turned over by order of the court setting the 25 conditions of his release, pretrial.

1 And finally, despite my friend's suggestion,
2 Petitioner firmly does not believe that affirmance is 3 appropriate relief here. Thank you.

4 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Mr. Ortiz, you do
5 understand -- I thought it was clear from what the 6 government said earlier, that it's waived any claim -- 7 that you waived the request for this relief.

8 MR. ORTIZ: No --

9 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: So that's not at issue.
10 You think there's still --

11 MR. ORTIZ: Your Honor --

12 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: -- they're going to go
13 back down and say that you're not entitled to the relief 14 because you didn't ask for the right relief?

15 MR. ORTIZ: That's unclear. If this Court
16 were to dispose of the case other than by reversal, 17 there's also the other problem that -- not only would 18 that not resolve the circuit conflict, because the 19 government is taking a very different view of the 20 Eleventh Circuit's role than the Eleventh Circuit itself 21 does, but there is also the issue of unclean hands, 22 which would still be out there. And that would bar 23 going forward anyone in Petitioner's position from 24 taking advantage of the government's new position.

25 If there are no further questions, we rest

1 our case.

2 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.

3 The case is submitted.

4 (Whereupon, at 10:58 a.m., the case in the 5 above-entitled matter was submitted.)
