

1 messenger feature which doesn't show up. In other 2 words, a police officer couldn't go to the website and 3 just look at it and necessarily know who was being 4 communicated with.

5 JUSTICE GINSBURG: I thought that Facebook
6 didn't allow -- didn't allow access by former sex 7 offenders.

8 MR. MONTGOMERY: That -- that's correct,
9 Justice Ginsburg. There is a prohibition on Facebook
10 and on some of the other major commercial sites --

11 JUSTICE GINSBURG: But that's Facebook's
12 choice, it's not the State.

13 MR. MONTGOMERY: That's correct. And 14 certainly the State has implemented this law to be a 15 deterrent so that these offenders will not go on 16 Facebook, whereas that -- the deterrent effect of 17 Facebook having the policy is not the same thing.

18 So the State has made a decision,
19 particularly in the area of information gathering, 20 because these offenders can go to these sites and can 21 quietly lurk and find out information. And there are 22 links. The -- the crucial factor that the State 23 believes that narrows the statute is that the site must 24 have links to other users' profile pages.

25 JUSTICE KAGAN: But -- but -- I mean, yes,

1 that narrows it. It -- it takes the nytimes.com out of 2 the statute, but it doesn't take the sites that people 3 use today, as I suggested -- whether it's Twitter or 4 whether it's Facebook -- which have become incredibly 5 important parts of our political culture, of our 6 religious culture.

7 If you ask, there are surveys that say how 8 many Americans have communicated their faith on social 9 networking sites in the -- in the past week, and it
10 turns out that one in five. That's about 50 million 11 Americans use this for religious community purposes.

12 So whether it's political community, whether 13 it's religious community, I mean, these sites have 14 become embedded in our culture as ways to communicate 15 and ways to exercise our constitutional rights, haven't 16 they?

17 MR. MONTGOMERY: There -- there are other
18 alternatives, still. This is a part of the Internet, 19 but it's not the entire Internet that is being taken 20 away from these offenders. They can still have their 21 own blog. They can read blogs. They can do podcasts.
22 They can go to nytimes.com. They can do other things to 23 communicate with people. This does not prohibit sites 24 that have discretely just e-mail or Instant Messenger or 25 message boards. So there are other alternatives.

1 with friends, that they can share pictures. Those kinds
2 of things can be done in other places.

3 I do think it's important to make it clear
4 that -- that the statute does not include nytimes.com.
5 And if --

6 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Why? I got a page here
7 with -- printed from nytimes.com, from the New York
8 Times, where on the side there's commentary by people 9 who have created profiles on themselves having a public 10 discussion between them on a news article that was 11 printed in the New York Times. That appears to be a new 12 feature of the New York Times, but it appears to be a 13 common feature of most newspapers today that are printed 14 online.

15 MR. MONTGOMERY: They -- they often do allow 16 commenting, but the requirement in the statute is that 17 they allow someone to go to a profile page, and on that 18 profile page then link to people that they don't know.

19 JUSTICE KAGAN: Where is that in the 20 statute? Because I don't read the statute to impose 21 that as a requirement. So tell me where you find that.

22 MR. MONTGOMERY: Certainly. That -- that is 23 in (B)(iii) of the statute. So B sets out the four 24 broad requirements, four requirements to define a 25 commercial social networking website.

1 semicolon.

2 MR. MONTGOMERY: Well, semicolons would 3 be -- would be better, but I -- I -- they certainly 4 would be better. I would be --

5 JUSTICE KAGAN: But all this implying of 6 punctuation marks, I mean, if you just read this, it's 7 contain information such as a bunch of things, which 8 none of which are necessary, but these are good examples
9 of things that characterize allowing users to create web 10 pages or personal profiles that contain information.
11 That's your requirement.

12 MR. MONTGOMERY: It really makes no sense
13 not to have all four of those, because that would mean 14 that you could have the -- the -- the fourth one, links, 15 but not the first one, the name of the person.

16 JUSTICE ALITO: Well, you know, you might 17 read this to -- you might read a personal profile to 18 mean something more than just a nickname. A personal 19 profile -- the definition of a profile is a concise 20 biographical sketch, which seems to be -- seems to refer 21 to enough information so that you can get a -- an idea 22 about who the person is.

23 Why don't you read it that way? And if you 24 read it that way, would it include nytimes.com?

25 MR. MONTGOMERY: No. That still would not

1 include nytimes.com because -- well, our position still 2 is that it has to have links, so I'm not sure I'm 3 answering your question exactly as I should.

4 JUSTICE ALITO: Well, I'm saying suppose we 5 think that -- that it's a stretch to get to links, but 6 it does require a personal profile, and I wouldn't think 7 that just a nickname. Somebody says my nickname is, I
8 don't know what, Joe, that that's a -- that's a profile?

9 MR. MONTGOMERY: No, that would not -- that 10 would not be a profile. The other point is --

11 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: So would a name and a 12 picture be a profile? And your ability to discuss in 13 that comment section personal information or public 14 information, whatever you want to discuss?

15 MR. MONTGOMERY: Not -- not under our 16 reading of the statute. It still would require all four 17 of these. And one other point about that is in -- in 18 subsection (b)(4), there's a list that starts with "such 19 as" and includes a -- a -- the word "or," whereas in 20 number 3 it has "such as," but it has the word "and."
21 So the legislature certainly knew how to say "or" or 22 "and" in those portions.

23 JUSTICE KAGAN: But "such as" does not mean
24 "each of." You're reading it as though "such as" means 25 "each of."

1 MR. MONTGOMERY: No. We're reading it as 2 "such as" only modifies the name or nickname of the 3 user, and then you have three other elements to it. So 4 there could be things in --

5 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: You can finish your 6 sentence.

7 MR. MONTGOMERY: In -- in this instance,
8 the -- not a co-defendant, but the other person charged 9 here in this case that's not before the Court used 10 initials. So there could be something besides a name or 11 a nickname.

12 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you,
13 Mr. Montgomery.

14 Mr. Goldberg, you have four minutes
15 remaining.

16 REBUTTAL ARGUMENT OF DAVID T. GOLDBERG
17 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

18 MR. GOLDBERG: Thank you, Your Honor.
19 I'll -- I'll try to make four points.

20 As to the New York Times, our main
21 submission is it doesn't matter. But that said -- 22 because it is overbroad as applied to any one site -- 23 but that reading of the statute doesn't work
24 grammatically. If you look in the (a) and in the (b), 25 it talks about sites that create web pages or personal

1 profiles. And in (a), it says to become members or 2 create personal web pages. So you can't have a links
3 requirement if there are sites that -- that qualify 4 without creating web pages.

5 Second, when they told Mr. Packingham what 6 this law requires and what this means, they didn't say 7 anything about links. If you look at the State supreme 8 court opinion, they assumed -- and not just for 9 decisional purposes -- they said to the extent that the 10 Petitioner is right, there are alternatives. So they 11 didn't embrace this construction.

12 And just recently on this question of 13 Snapchat, after the State filed the brief, which is all 14 about links, they prosecuted somebody for using 15 Snapchat, which is a site that doesn't have links of the 16 kind that -- that we're talking about.

17 So that construction and -- and, as my 18 friend is saying, maybe somebody might understand what 19 "profile" means, but this is a criminal statute. And I 20 think if any of us were advising somebody on the 21 registry whether they can do it, the plain language, the 22 history, and the Supreme Court opinion all say you're in 23 great danger of -- of liability here, steer clear. And 24 that's what the officer in this case, when he was 25 cross-examined on that question, that's what he said.

1 The second thing about alternative channels,
2 this is -- there is a President. There are also 500
3 million Tweets a day. There are 10 billion Snapchat
4 videos. It's not just people under 30 --

5 JUSTICE ALITO: Well, suppose this case had 6 come to us in 2003, before Facebook was created. Would 7 there be alternative channels then?

8 MR. GOLDBERG: In 2003, I'm not quite sure 9 what the -- in 2003, the predominant area was -- was 10 chat rooms and that's explicitly exempted. So I'm not 11 sure -- sure what that -- what they would be going 12 after.

13 I think on the -- on the question of -- so 14 there are people in Ladue who did not have lawn signs, 15 but there are more than three billion people in the 16 world who are using these sites, a very small --

17 JUSTICE ALITO: But --

18 MR. GOLDBERG: -- percentage of people --

19 JUSTICE ALITO: But what I'm asking is 20 whether the existence of alternative channels asks 21 whether these are channels that people like to use or 22 whether if the channels that are affected by the statute 23 are taken away, there are still alternative channels.

24 Now, I know there are people who think that 25 life is not possible without Twitter and Facebook and 1 these things and that 2003 was the dark ages.

2 (Laughter.)

3 JUSTICE ALITO: But I don't know that -- 4 that any channels of communication that were available 5 at that time have been taken away. So if there were 6 alternative channels then, why would there not be 7 alternative channels now?

8 MR. GOLDBERG: Well, I think, Your Honor,
9 you have to look at it -- and this is back in 2008 -- 10 and you have to look at it in practical terms about what 11 people's communicative life is and what -- what they're 12 able to do.

13 And if you look at the cases that had 14 enforced those -- that requirement, if you look at 15 Lindmark, you look at City of Ladue, are the two cases 16 that have struck down laws. Even in the context of 17 adult zoning, the Court has said that there has to be a 18 substantial amount of -- of access and protected speech.
19 In the Los Angeles Airport case, that was one place.
20 These are the places where everybody is speaking and 21 interacting and looking for work and petitioning the 22 government.

23 Every single representative -- there are 24 political debates. The President is speaking to the 25 people through this medium. So it is an extraordinary

1 argument to say not everybody does it. I don't think 2 that's the test. The test is how much of your core
3 First Amendment activity is foreclosed. And the ability 4 to speak with this networked group of people all over 5 the world is as strong -- this is, as Justice Kennedy
6 said, well beyond the traditional town square. And I'm 7 sure there were people who didn't go to the town square, 8 but that wouldn't be a basis for -- for upholding a 9 restriction there.

10 The -- the core point here, though, is that 11 Mr. Packingham -- this law reaches speech that is 12 fundamentally at the core -- I'm sorry, Your Honor.

13 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: You can finish that 14 sentence.

15 MR. GOLDBERG: I'll just say this -- this 16 case, this wolf comes as a wolf. This is core-protected 17 speech. There is nothing about it that implicates the 18 government's purpose. And the fact that he was 19 convicted for a felony is why this law is 20 unconstitutional.

21 Thank you, Your Honor.

22 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.
23 The case is submitted.
