

1 security, which everyone agrees is of paramount concern, 2 but who do so believing their actions to be lawful, even 3 if they are mistaken. There is already that incredibly 4 substantial protection.

5           Second, I don't believe that it would be a 6 threat to the republic to provide the attorney general 7 with incentives to not create policy that violates 8 clearly-established law. I see the threat coming from 9 the other side.

10           I -- I would like to make sure to take the 11 time to correct --

12           JUSTICE BREYER: I'll ask you one other 13 thing, which is, has this been fully argued out below?
14 I mean, I think it is an enormously important and very 15 open question. And we can say on the one hand, just 16 what was said. I think everything the Chief Justice 17 said is true. There is a problem, in this time, of real 18 national emergency, to overdeter people from doing what 19 they reasonably think is necessary. And they have the 20 authority for security, not the judges.

21           At the same time, the law of this Court 22 correctly, I think is, but there's no blank check even 23 for the President. And if there's no blank check, that 24 means sometimes they can go too far. And if they have 25 gone too far, it is our job to say that.

1           Now, there are considerable advantages, as I
2 pointed out, saying, at the time they're going to say
3 yes, because there's a big frightening thing happening.
4 But maybe they went too far too fast, and then this 5 offers a remedy later and maybe the deterrence is good.
6 Okay? You see both sides.

7           MS. MEEROPOL: Uh-huh.

8           JUSTICE BREYER: Has that been fully argued 9 in this case? If I go and look in the record, can I
10 find a question that I have wondered about for quite a 11 long time fully answered?

12          MS. MEEROPOL: I -- I don't believe so.
13 I -- I think the question you're posing is whether 14 damages would actually be a less intrusive remedy in 15 this situation than allowing for an injunctive relief 16 claim at the outset, if I understand your -- your 17 question correctly.

18          JUSTICE BREYER: In a set of cases.

19          MS. MEEROPOL: And -- and yes. No. I don't 20 believe that that has been fully addressed below. The 21 circuit, of course, found that no extension of Bivens 22 was required. So the circuit didn't engage in the 23 analysis of whether, if an extension is required, one in 24 this situation would be called for.

25          My -- my friend argued, both on reply and

1 from the podium, that -- that even -- that -- that this 2 case cannot be distinguished from Iqbal. But what 3 distinguishes this case from Iqbal is that we -- 4 Respondents have a factual allegation that the DOJ 5 Petitioners' policy was to target Muslims and Arabs for 6 harsh treatment, and that they imposed this treatment 7 knowing there was no reason to suspect Respondents of 8 ties to terrorism.

9           Now, my friend argued that even if 10 Petitioners, DOJ Petitioners, had known that there 11 was -- that -- had known that many were arrested without 12 an articulable tie to terrorism, that the Petitioners 13 had reason to believe that some among that group might 14 have potential ties to terrorism, and that explains the 15 harsh treatment without raising an inference of 16 discriminatory intent, but I don't believe that is a 17 fair reading of the complaint or the OIG report.

18           Respondents allege in paragraph 19 47 that Petitioners received detailed daily reports of 20 the arrests and the detentions, and that they learned 21 that the FBI had no basis to suspect Respondents and the 22 class of ties to terrorism. There was no reason to 23 think that any of these individuals were -- had an 24 articulate -- that there was an articulated basis to 25 suspect them of ties to terrorism.

1 JUSTICE KENNEDY: We're talking about
2 adequate remedies. Can you tell me, as Justice Ginsburg 3 pointed out, we didn't -- these detainees didn't have 4 access to the outside. Were there any legal proceedings
5 filed, injunctive proceedings, after say month 2, month 6 3, and were -- were those remedies completely added to 7 district courts to look at this and say that we're not 8 going to give relief?

9 MS. MEEROPOL: There were some habeas
10 petitions filed. In general, the government's response 11 to those petitions being filed was to move the detainee 12 up to the front of the list, to clear him so that he 13 could be removed from the country and from the 14 restrictive conditions of confinement before a court 15 could have the opportunity to rule on the legality of 16 the detention. And importantly, those habeas petitions 17 were about the -- the right to detain these people in 18 itself, not about conditions of confinement.

19 It is still not clear today that one can use 20 a habeas petition to challenge conditions of 21 confinement, and it wasn't clear in the Second Circuit 22 at the time either. So while habeas petitions were 23 filed eventually, when some detainees finally had access 24 to counsel, although restricted access, those -- those 25 petitions were not actually ruled on by a court. The

1 court -- no court had the opportunity to determine 2 whether what was happening to the detainees was lawful 3 or not, and that was part of DOJ Petitioners' entire 4 policy of harsh treatment. It was not just to impose 5 maximum pressure. It was also, as we allege in 6 paragraph 61, to keep the detainees from accessing the 7 outside world.

8 Now, my friend argued that the DOJ
9 Petitioners cannot be on the hook for the substantive 10 due process claim in this case, a claim which was not 11 presented in Iqbal. There was no conditions claim in 12 Iqbal, just the equal protection claim, because the -- 13 because the DOJ Petitioners did not set all the details 14 of the restrictive conditions of confinement.

15 But their order itself, paragraph 61, 16 requires keeping individuals in solitary confinement, in 17 isolation. That is the way within the prison system
18 people are kept from accessing the outside world. It 19 cannot be done in a general population unit. So an 20 order that requires solitary confinement for individuals
21 who are arrested in connection with the terrorism 22 investigation, but whom the attorney general and the 23 other DOJ Petitioners know there is no nondiscriminatory
24 reason to suspect of any ties to terrorism, that states
25 the substantive due process claim. That is so excessive

1 as to be arbitrary and punitive.

2           This is what the panel found so compelling, 3 I believe, about the merger of the New York list and the 4 national list, that it was not a situation where some of 5 the men on that list perhaps hadn't been vetted.
6 Rather, the entire list, 300 men, were people for whom 7 the FBI had not stated any interest or lack of interest.
8 And it was this list of men who we allege Attorney 9 General Ashcroft ordered should be treated as of 10 interest to the 9/11 investigation.

11           JUSTICE KENNEDY: If -- if we -- if we hold 12 that our previous cases instruct that we should not go 13 further with Bivens, you still have Section 1985(3).
14 Can officials conspire with each other?

15           MS. MEEROPOL: Yes, absolutely.

16           JUSTICE KENNEDY: Is there -- is there -- I 17 was thinking of the -- is -- is there precedent on that 18 in your point?

19           MS. MEEROPOL: It -- in this case --

20           JUSTICE KENNEDY: In your favor?

21           MS. MEEROPOL: Yes. What the circuit held 22 as to that is that the question of whether officials can 23 conspire with each other is so fact-intensive and had 24 been so inconclusively briefed in the district court, 25 yet it was required to remand back to the district to 1 determine sort of how they might have conspired with 2 each other, whether -- what their positions were 3 vis-à-vis each other such that a 1985 claim would be 4 appropriate.

5 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Is there precedent in your 6 favor on this point that there can be this conspiracy 7 if -- if it's established by the facts?

8 MS. MEEROPOL: Yes. And I believe the case
9 is cited by the Second Circuit, by the panel, our 10 precedent in our favor for that.

11 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: What -- what is so
12 fact-intensive about the argument that government
13 officials -- the government is the entity and officials 14 within that same entity don't conspire among themselves, 15 they're just doing their -- doing their jobs?

16 MS. MEEROPOL: Well, I think it depends on 17 the role of the high-level officials vis-à-vis the 18 low-level officials at the Metropolitan Detention 19 Center. Certainly, we argue that officials at such 20 disparate levels of the federal government, which is 21 vast, could -- could be held to have conspired with each 22 other. But I don't think it is an argument that was 23 fully developed before the district court, and that was 24 what the circuit held, and that's why it should be 25 remanded to the circuit and that -- remanded to the 1 district.

2 I want to make sure to address the arguments
3 by the MDC Petitioners, because, really, their argument 4 about extending Bivens -- about not extending Bivens for 5 the claims against those officials is very different 6 from the argument by the DOJ Petitioners. Every judge 7 who has considered the issue has agreed that the claims 8 that Hasty and Sherman were deliberately indifferent to 9 months of physical and verbal abuse arise in a familiar 10 Bivens context and should be allowed to go forward.

11 JUSTICE KENNEDY: That's Carlson v. Green?

12 MS. MEEROPOL: Yes, exactly.

13 JUSTICE GINSBURG: I thought the -- the 14 Second Circuit majority said yes as to Hasty, Hasty, 15 deliberate indifference, but not as to Sherman.

16 MS. MEEROPOL: That's correct. I must have 17 misspoke. I apologize.

18 Yes. The deliberate indifference claim goes
19 forward against Hasty, and then there were the claims 20 against Hasty and Sherman for the official conditions of 21 confinement at the Metropolitan Detention Center. These 22 are claims that the men were held in solitary 23 confinement for months, deprived of sleep, deprived of 24 exercise. This is not just the MDC Petitioners in -- 25 following the orders from their superiors in the Bureau

1 of Prisons. They created the actual conditions of 2 confinement.

3           There is nothing in the record to suggest 4 that the BOP ordered that all of the conditions that 5 Respondents were subjected to, lights on in their cells
6 24 hours a day while they were in solitary confinement, 7 that the solitary confinement continue without any 8 individualized review. There's nothing in the record.

9           JUSTICE ALITO: Well, would that -- were 10 they -- were those conditions constitutional as to 11 individuals about whom the FBI had reasonable suspicion 12 of a connection with terrorism?

13           MS. MEEROPOL: That would depend. Placement
14 in solitary confinement, if it is incredibly prolonged 15 and incredibly restrictive, may be unconstitutional for 16 anybody. We don't concede that the conditions --

17           JUSTICE ALITO: Is your argument dependent 18 on that?

19           MS. MEEROPOL: No --

20           JUSTICE ALITO: The proposition that it 21 would be unconstitutional even as to those who have -- 22 with respect to whom the FBI had reasonable suspicion?

23           MS. MEEROPOL: No. And that brings up an 24 incredibly important point that I want to make sure to 25 get out, which is that we disagree with the MDC

1 Petitioners' statement that there was a terrorism 2 designation here, that there was reason to believe that 3 any of the 9/11 detainees had ties to terrorism.

4 There was no designation. What there was is 5 the fact that some men were arrested in connection to 6 the terrorism investigation.

7 JUSTICE ALITO: The whole position as I
8 understand it, the way it was presented today, was that 9 the FBI had a list and the -- there was no way they 10 could determine what degree of information the FBI had 11 as to any particular person.

12 MS. MEEROPOL: But they were told what 13 information the FBI was relying on. That's in 14 paragraph 70, it's 71 through 74 of our complaint, that 15 actually a liaison to the headquarters investigation was 16 providing the MDC with information about all the men.

17 JUSTICE ALITO: With all the information?
18 Do you -- you think that the FBI in a -- in a 19 sensitive -- investigation of something sensitive like 20 this about terrorism would necessarily have told people 21 at MDC every bit of information they had connecting 22 people with -- with terrorism?

23 MS. MEEROPOL: Well, our factual allegation 24 was that they were told all the information that was 25 relevant to the threat that the men posed to the 1 institution.

2           And also important here is what the OIG has 3 explained about the meaning of the -- of the of-interest 4 designation. Being determined by the FBI to be of 5 interest to the 9/11 investigation meant only that they 6 were not, not of interest. This is not just something
7 that was happening in New York. The OIG quotes the head
8 of the national security unit of the INS, who explains 9 that if the FBI could not state whether or not it had an 10 interest in an individual, that individual was held as 11 of interest to the 9/11 investigation.

12           So even if there is word being sent out 13 that, you know, these men are of interest to the 14 investigation, we have to be careful with them, what the 15 MDC Petitioners received was that of-interest
16 designation, which meant very little based on the policy 17 being applied here. And then they received the detailed 18 information; for example, that Ahmed Khalifa was 19 arrested -- was encountered by the FBI in the context of 20 the 9/11 investigation, had violated the immigration 21 law, and that the FBI might be interested in him. This 22 is the actual information that was provided that we have 23 made available in the complaint.

24           JUSTICE BREYER: The FBI goes into a rooming 25 house after having information there's a nuclear weapon

1 on the floor. They find it. And there might be 2 another. Would they be justified in taking into custody
3 every single person in that rooming house and looking 4 into it? I mean, for how long? Would you say to them, 5 no, you can't do it because we don't know, there are 6 people on the floor, they knew nothing about them, 7 actually. They admit it. We knew nothing about them.
8 All we know is they're in the rooming house.

9 MS. MEEROPOL: Well --

10 JUSTICE BREYER: And we also know there was 11 a nuclear weapon. And that isn't totally fanciful; it 12 could happen. And -- and so what are they supposed to 13 do and how long?

14 MS. MEEROPOL: Well, we don't challenge the 15 fact that these men were detained at all. And we don't 16 challenge that they were investigated while they were 17 detained. So even if they had been detained -- you 18 know, some of them were up to eight months, which is a 19 long period of time, and there's no challenge to that 20 detention in this case. The challenge is to the way
21 they were treated while they were detained. That if you 22 need to investigate after a national security emergency, 23 there are a lot of tools at the government's disposal to 24 do so.

25 What you cannot do is single out a group of Alderson Reporting Company

1 people whom you know there is no basis to suspect them 2 of any ties to terrorism beyond sharing racial and 3 religious characteristics with the 9/11 hijackers, and 4 to decide that that group of people poses such a threat
5 that they must be placed in the most restrictive 6 conditions of confinement that exist in the Federal 7 system while we take the time, eight months, up to eight 8 months, to determine whether there actually is any basis
9 to suspect them of anything other than an immigration 10 violation. And at the end of the day, oh, actually, 11 there wasn't. Everybody was cleared and deported, as 12 one would expect from a policy that is not based on 13 investigating based on actual suspicion, but is rather a 14 blunderbuss attempt to gather all of the Muslim and Arab 15 noncitizens whom one has authority over by virtue of 16 their immigration detentions, and -- and hold them in 17 restrictive conditions of confinement while they are 18 treated as suspected terrorists.

19           If I could get back for a moment to one of 20 the Bivens questions, and that's about whether Bivens is 21 appropriate for altering policy. I don't know if I was 22 able to get this point out as well as I'd like to 23 before. To -- to explain, I don't think that there is 24 really any precedent for the idea that you can't use
25 Bivens to deter creation of a clearly unconstitutional

1 policy. And if -- if the Court did rule in that way, 2 what would there be to deter the creation of 3 unconstitutional policies in the future? Now, of 4 course, policies can be stopped as they are ongoing, but 5 that does not protect the individual against whom, you 6 know, potential serious law enforcement action has been 7 taken.

8 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Well, I suppose one 9 answer would be the normal injunctive action would 10 challenge the constitutionality of the policy, which 11 would seem, at least at first blush, to be a more 12 appropriate way of doing it than to -- than individual 13 damages actions against officials responsible.

14 MS. MEEROPOL: But an injunctive -- an 15 injunctive claim, while it could stop, currently, 16 current unconstitutional conduct cannot deter future
17 unconstitutional conduct from occurring. It doesn't 18 deter the future attorney general from creating an 19 unconstitutional policy. And if national security 20 policy is somehow insulated from judicial review without 21 even a determination that this is the type of national 22 security policy where we could expect there could -- 23 there should be sensitive judgments made, if -- if in 24 that situation there is no Bivens remedy, then there are 25 times when the Court will play no -- will be able to 1 play no role in reviewing what has occurred, because 2 the -- the individuals simply can't get into court fast

3 enough. Maybe in a situation like this, they're denied 4 from getting into court for a period of time. And then 5 when they finally do, the claim that the way that 6 they've been treated is stopped. You know, they're 7 released; someone else is picked up instead. There's 8 never a chance to actually undertake judicial analysis 9 of what has been occurring.

10 If qualified immunity justifies what was 11 done here, or if Petitioners have not plausibly alleged 12 a claim, those are bases to affirm the circuit. But if 13 there is no cause of action at all, if individuals who 14 are the subject of clearly unconstitutional national 15 security policy don't even have the opportunity to get 16 into the court, then there is nothing to deter even more 17 excessive exercises of government power in the future.

18 If there are no further questions.

19 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.

20 General Gershengorn, four minutes.

21 REBUTTAL ARGUMENT OF IAN H. GERSHENGORN

22 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONERS

23 IN NOS. 15-1358 AND 15-1359

24 GENERAL GERSHENGORN: Thank you, Mr. Chief
25 Justice.

1 A few quick points.

2 First, a few short corrections of the 3 record, although I apologize for the confusion about the 4 date. It's not in the complaint, the date of the 5 list-merger decision. The OIG report suggests it was on 6 November 2nd.

7 And then just, Justice Ginsburg, you had 8 asked about the warden visits. J.A. page 224, it says
9 on September 20, 2001, various wardens, including MDC
10 Warden Zenk, reestablished legal visits, legal telephone 11 calls, and legal mail for the September 11 detainees.

12 JUSTICE GINSBURG: What was --

13 GENERAL GERSHENGORN: I'd like to make --

14 JUSTICE GINSBURG: What was the date of 15 that?

16 GENERAL GERSHENGORN: That was September 20, 17 2001. And it's on page 224 of the Joint Appendix.

18 Three points on the law.

19 First, this would be a massive extension of 20 Bivens. Malesko said, Justice Kennedy, you had asked, 21 that unlike a Bivens remedy, which we have never 22 considered a proper vehicle for altering an entity's 23 policy, injunctive relief has long been recognized as 24 the proper means for doing so. That makes good sense.
25 It cannot be that the secretary of the treasury, who

1 promulgates a policy that's later found 2 unconstitutional, could be liable personally to all the 3 banks for the unconstitutional policy.

4 Bivens is not -- Justice Breyer, absence of 5 Bivens is not lawlessness. It is not a blank check, and 6 it is incorrect as -- to say that there's no way to get 7 into court. The way to get into court to challenge a
8 policy is through an APA; it's through injunctive 9 relief.

10 And although my friend on the other side 11 suggests that a damages remedy is not a threat to the 12 republic or a less-intrusive remedy, that's exactly 13 the -- the judgment that this Court is ill-equipped 14 to -- to make, and that Congress should make.

15 With respect to 1985(3), Justice Kennedy, I 16 want to make just one quick point, which is that the -- 17 the -- the DOJ defendants would be -- and all the 18 defendants would be subject to qualified immunity for 19 1985(3) because it was not clear that officials within a 20 corporate unit could -- could conspire with each other.
21 There's case law suggesting they couldn't. And it was 22 unclear, specifically in the Second Circuit, whether 23 1985(3) applied at all to Federal officials. So 24 qualified immunity would eliminate the 1985(3) claim.

25 And then if I could close with the -- the --

1 the Iqbal pleading and what we're talking about here.
2 The -- the other side has made clear they're not talking 3 about the initial treatment and they're not even talking 4 about the length of time. They're talking about the 5 conditions of confinement and the fact that conditions 6 that could lawfully be imposed with people in 7 individualized suspicion were imposed on a much broader 8 group. But I submit that that ignores the perspective 9 that the attorney general, even assuming that he was the 10 person who made the policy decision, which, as Judge 11 Raggi suggested, we should not assume --

12 JUSTICE KENNEDY: Just one point on -- on 13 1985. The fact that it wasn't clear that there was a 14 remedy under 1985, it doesn't follow -- it wasn't clear 15 that there wasn't a right that was being violated.

16 GENERAL GERSHENGORN: That -- so --

17 JUSTICE KENNEDY: That's different.

18 GENERAL GERSHENGORN: With respect to the 19 interagency conspiracy, I think that suggests even the 20 right wasn't involved. And if the statute doesn't -- 21 it's not clear the statute applies at all to them, we do 22 think that's a situation in which qualified immunity 23 would attach.

24 But just to close what -- with what the 25 attorney general knew. The attorney general knew that

1 he had aliens who were legally detained as out of status
2 and had been arrested in connection with Pent-Bomb, that 3 restrictive conditions of confinement -- not the 4 unlawful -- the unofficial conditions which have no
5 connection to my clients, but the restrictive conditions
6 of confinement were okay for some with individualized 7 suspicion, but he had no way to know which ones were and 8 which ones were not subject to that condition.

9 In that situation, he made the decision to 10 subject the whole group to a hold-until-cleared policy 11 until they could figure it out.

12 The idea that because in 20/20 hindsight we 13 can identify the particular individuals who were not -- 14 had not -- were not connected at all to terrorism and 15 thus wrongly detained does not change the reasonableness
16 of his judge -- of his judgment. The fact that you
17 can't infer putative intent and discriminatory content 18 and the -- intent -- and the fact that it was not 19 clearly established at the list-merger decision, which 20 is what -- a core of what the Second Circuit decided, 21 that the list-merger decision was unconstitutional when 22 made.

23 If there are no further questions.

24 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.

25 General Gershengorn, before you leave the

1 podium, I'd like to note that the Court thanks you for 2 your service to the Court as acting Solicitor General
3 over the past many months.

4 GENERAL GERSHENGORN: Thank you.

5 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: The case is 8 above-entitled matter was submitted.)
