

1 distinguishes Miller from a Guideline situation.

2 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: But doesn't a judge
3 still have to make a finding that there's a reason to 4 give a defendant a higher sentence? There may be some 5 judges who determine the nature of the past conduct 6 qualifies this defendant for career criminal status, but 7 absent that, it seems like the vast majority of those 8 judges who are now resentencing don't believe that 9 those -- that prior criminal history justifies the 10 higher sentence.

11 MR. DREEBEN: We don't doubt, Justice
12 Sotomayor, that the Guidelines range is influential.
13 The question is whether it sets an eligibility 14 threshold. The test is not likelihood of outcome. That 15 would, in effect, collapse one aspect of the test for a 16 watershed procedural rule into the criterion for a 17 substantive rule for retroactivity.

18 A watershed procedural rule both has to have 19 a fundamental effect on accuracy, plus it has to change 20 our bedrock understanding of the elements of --

21 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Could I just ask
22 something? If we rule in your favor and say it's not 23 retroactive, how much is left of the Johnson ruling?
24 What effect would it have? How many cases are there in 25 fact, except the -- I guess it's the felon in possession

1 cases would be the one example that the Guideline -- 2 that the Guidelines haven't already been structured to 3 take care of all career offenders.

4 MR. DREEBEN: Our position is, as the Court
5 knows from our submission in Welch, that in Armed Career
6 Criminal Act cases where the effect of the residual 7 clause was to change a defendant from having a maximum 8 of 10 to a minimum of 15, Johnson is retroactive. And 9 we have sought and supported retroactive rulings in 10 cases where somebody is no longer qualified for an Armed 11 Career Criminal Act sentence under Johnson.

12 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Outside of felon and 13 possessions --

14 MR. DREEBEN: We do not --

15 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: -- can you think of any 16 other situations?

17 MR. DREEBEN: We do not think that 18 Sentencing Guidelines should be interpreted --

19 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: You're not quite 20 answering my question. What other situations besides 21 the felon in possession would Johnson and Welch be 22 operative? Because as I understand it, in virtually all 23 cases, most others, the Guidelines are within the 24 statutory maximum.

25 MR. DREEBEN: That's right. Well, I think

1 in all cases, Guidelines ranges have to be in the 2 statutory maximum. And that is precisely our point.
3 Guidelines ranges function as advice to the judge when 4 he is sentencing. The Guidelines do not impose an 5 insuperable barrier that requires a specific finding of 6 fact before the judge can sentence outside the 7 Guidelines. That was the problem with mandatory
8 guidelines. Advisory guidelines allow the judge to look 9 at the totality of the circumstances and to make policy
10 judgments that may be at variance with the Commission.

11 Now, they don't do that all that often 12 because the Commission is doing its job. And that is 13 why we are on the side of Petitioner with respect to the 14 due process issue.

15 JUSTICE GINSBURG: The third -- the third
16 issue -- you've confused me by your argument. I thought 17 from your brief that if we decide the first issue, that 18 is, was there fair notice of the sawed-off shotgun, then 19 there's no vagueness, and the case is over. But -- so I 20 was thinking, well, we could decide that third issue and 21 not reach either vagueness or retroactivity.

22 MR. DREEBEN: So, Justice Ginsburg, I would 23 urge the Court to decide retroactivity. There are 24 thousands of cases in the Federal system that have 25 already been filed urging resentencing.

1 JUSTICE GINSBURG: But would you say that is 2 not necessary if we agree that in this case there was 3 fair notice about the sawed-off shotgun being --

4 MR. DREEBEN: Well, Justice Ginsburg, this 5 Court's Teague jurisprudence says that in a collateral 6 review case, a habeas case, the threshold question is 7 retroactivity because if the new rule that the 8 Petitioner seeks would not be retroactive to cases on 9 collateral review, there should be no adjudication of 10 that prisoner's constitutional claim. The issue --

11 JUSTICE ALITO: That's like jurisdiction,
12 that we are bound, we have no choice but to decide 13 retroactivity before deciding anything else.

14 MR. DREEBEN: No. It's not a jurisdictional
15 limitation. Teague is a doctrine that this Court
16 framed, Justice Alito, if the Court wanted to decide 17 something else before then, but the reason why the 18 government thinks that it would be in the interest of 19 criminal justice for the Court to resolve the 20 retroactivity issue is that there are thousands of cases 21 waiting in the wings that are being held up today.

22 Now, Justice Sotomayor, you --

23 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Mr. Dreeben, what will 24 happen to all those cases that have been resentenced 25 already?

1 MR. DREEBEN: They will keep their 2 sentences. And the ones that --

3 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: Even the -- where the 4 circuits said no retroactivity -- where they have 5 permitted retroactivity?

6 MR. DREEBEN: Well, no circuit has actually 7 ruled on retroactivity. The circuits have ruled on 8 vagueness. All except for the Eleventh have either said
9 vagueness applies to the Guidelines and the residual 10 clause falls. Or they have said we accept the 11 government's concession that vagueness applies.

12 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: But they've been 13 resentencing?

14 MR. DREEBEN: They have been resentencing -- 15 88 are pointed to in Petitioner's reply brief, and Your 16 Honor asked about those. My view on those is that they 17 are a tiny, small, and unrepresentative sample of the 18 cases that are waiting being held for this one.

19 The reason that those cases have gone 20 forward are most likely because the judge took a look at 21 that defendant and said, I actually am going to sentence
22 him to a lower sentence, maybe time served. I do not 23 want to wait for the Supreme Court's decision in 24 Beckles.

25 The vast majority of cases, however, are on

1 hold, which I think could represent a view by the 2 sentencing judges that they are not so confident that 3 they will resentence the defendant to a lower sentence.
4 After all, these defendants haven't had a change in 5 their criminal history. They've had a change in the 6 advice that the Sentencing Commission is going to give.

7 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: If I were a district
8 court judge and I wasn't going to change the sentence no
9 matter what -- what the reason for the retroactivity 10 ruling, I would have just had the sentence.

11 MR. DREEBEN: Well, Justice Sotomayor, you
12 would have produced an efficient result. But I think 13 that for the --

14 JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: I was known for that.

15 (Laughter.)

16 MR. DREEBEN: And that's admirable. But for 17 many of the judges that are sitting on hundreds upon 18 hundreds of these cases and for U.S. attorneys that are 19 grappling with old records and attempting to reconstruct 20 sentencings from many years ago, they are looking to a 21 decision by this Court on the retroactivity question.

22 JUSTICE ALITO: Well, if I think that it's 23 retroactive, should I stop there, should I go on to 24 consider whether it's vague, or should I just accept 25 your concession that it's vague?

1           MR. DREEBEN: Well, I think that the Court
2           should decide the legal issue. We have submitted to the 3           Court why the Due Process Rule that we think does exist 4           would not be retroactive if the Court disagrees and 5           thinks that it would be retroactive if it is true. Then 6           I think the Court should go on to say that, yes, 7           vagueness applies to the sentencing guidelines, but in 8           view of the commentary here that specified the sawed-off 9           shotgun, the residual clause is not vague as to that 10          particular offense. And as a result, the judgment 11          should be affirmed.

12                 But I think that the systemic interest of 13          justice right now in the wake of this Court's decision 14          in Johnson and knowing the pendency of Beckles is for 15          the Supreme Court to pronounce authoritatively on 16          whether retroactivity should apply to the new Due 17          Process Rule that Petitioner seeks and that the 18          government thinks in light of this Court's decisions in 19          Peugh and Molina-Martinez is correct.

20                 So the sequence of analysis in the 21          government's view would be first you address
22          retroactivity. If the Court agrees with the government 23          that this is a procedural rule that does not have the 24          consequences that Welch and Montgomery attributed to 25          procedural rules, then the case is over. If the Court

1 concludes that that Due Process Rule would be 2 retroactive if it were correct, I think the Court should 3 go on to decide whether vagueness applies to the 4 Guidelines. I do not agree that any other guideline is 5 going to be invalid under vagueness analysis. Just this 6 one, except insofar as the commentary has specified in 7 enumerated offenses.

8 On that prong, we believe that Petitioner
9 loses because a sawed-off shotgun is an enumerated 10 offense.

11 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.

12 MR. DREEBEN: Thank you.

13 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Mr. Mortara.

14 ORAL ARGUMENT OF ADAM K. MORTARA
15 FOR COURT-APPOINTED AMICUS CURIAE
16 IN SUPPORT OF THE JUDGMENT BELOW
17 ON QUESTION 2

18 MR. MORTARA: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it
19 please the Court:

20 I want to start off correcting something 21 that my friend said when he referred to historical 22 sentencing as not being arbitrary. The United States
23 Senate report on the Sentence Reform -- Sentencing 24 Reform Act said: "Correcting our arbitrary and 25 capricious method of sentencing will not be a panacea."

1                   That's in the Senate report on the 2   Sentencing Reform Act. Judge Frankel understood 3   sentencing is arbitrary under the old system. It was 4   arbitrary. It may have been individualized, but it was 5   arbitrary.

6                   Now, moving forward --

7                   JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: I'm sorry. It wasn't 8   arbitrary to the judge at issue --

9                   MR. MORTARA: Correct, Your Honor.

10                  JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: -- meaning, the judge at 11   issue always had his or her own reasons.

12                  MR. MORTARA: Correct.

13                  JUSTICE SOTOMAYOR: What was arbitrary was 14   that one judge could have put different values on a 15   reason in one place and -- in New York and different 16   values in California. That's a very different form of 17   arbitrariness.

18                  MR. MORTARA: I don't think so, when one 19   looks at the sentencing factors in 3553(a)(2), the 20   purposes of sentencing that my friends both agree are 21   not subject to vagueness challenges. These purposes are 22   even more vague than the career offender enhancement -- 23   adequate deterrence, respect for the law, just 24   punishment -- yet they result in the calculation in the 25   mind of the judge of a single number, a fixed,

1 determinate sentence.

2 My friend referred to arbitrary determinate
3 sentencing arising from the career offender enhancement 4 residual clause. But think about what 3553(a), the 5 first sentence says: "The Court shall impose a sentence 6 sufficient but not greater than necessary to comply with 7 the extremely vague purposes of (a) (2)."

8 JUSTICE BREYER: But his point, I think, is 9 that, yes, all that you say is true, but this is a 10 special kind of guideline. This is like a threshold.
11 This is like a rule of law that says, get into this 12 career offender business if and only if you satisfy this 13 rule. Thus, most rules are telling the judge, Judge, go 14 back to your history of what this is about. Look at the 15 offender, figure out what he did, and then try to find 16 an appropriate sentence in light of factors. This isn't 17 that.

18 This is off/on. You either are in the 19 career offender or you are not. And just as you 20 couldn't, even before, have decided the sentence through 21 a throw of the dice, so you cannot now interpret an 22 on-off rule to say it's no worse than what you're 23 talking about.

24 MR. MORTARA: And, Justice Breyer, that 25 amounts to an argument that because the career offender

1 enhancement residual clause isn't quite that vague, it's 2 more subject to constitutional vagueness challenges.

3 JUSTICE BREYER: No, no, I'm not saying it's 4 not that vague. It is that -- it is saying you can't 5 rely on how sentencing used to work in order to save 6 this on-off rule.

7 Then what was worrying me in our 8 conversation is I could think of other parts of the 9 Guidelines; for example, the part that deals with 10 concurrent versus consecutive sentencing, which, you 11 know, is a nightmare and is also the notion of a kind of 12 on-off rule, and I'm afraid of what we would do here.
13 See, that's where I a.m. in this. I mean, I'm not 14 saying don't go ahead, go ahead. But I think he's 15 trying to make a qualitative difference in what we're 16 talking about here.

17 MR. MORTARA: I do want to get back to the 18 (a) (2) factors, but I -- I'll address your question 19 directly.

20 My friend said that the problem here is 21 Molina-Martinez and Peugh and the weight that the 22 Guidelines are given. And that weight in part comes 23 from Rita, which says that -- that an appellate court
24 can presume a within-Guideline sentence is reasonable, 25 because that reflects the judgment of both the

1 Commission and the sentencing judge that the 3553(a)
2 factors have been met.

3 But that's actually not true with the career
4 offender enhancement, and that's because the career
5 offender enhancement exists at the command of Congress 6 in 994(h). The Commission is not actually deploying its 7 expertise when it made the career offender enhancement.
8 It's doing something it was commanded to do, which is 9 make sure that sentences get at or near the statutory 10 maximum.

11 So the rationale for the reasonableness
12 presumption of Rita completely goes away with the career
13 offender guideline, and that's why the career offender 14 enhancement should not get that kind of weight and 15 that's why it doesn't.

16 My friend referred to 80 percent of 17 sentences being within Guidelines ranges. It's 18 75 percent outside of the Guidelines ranges -- Guideline
19 ranges for career offenders. Only 25 percent of career
20 offenders in 2015 got within the Guidelines-range 21 sentences. And some of that is government-sponsored 22 departures to be sure. But an astounding nearly 23 30 percent of career offenders got below Guideline-range 24 sentences without the government sponsoring them.

25 And what's going on there is that judges are

1 not giving the career offender enhancement as much
2 weight as Molina-Martinez and Peugh are talking about 3 because it doesn't come from a Commission's expertise on 4 the 3553(a) factors, and the Rita rationale is gone and 5 because sentencing judges are commanded to consider the 6 very facts of the offense and the criminal history that 7 they were deprived of considering under the ACCA.

8           In Johnson, the Court made very clear that 9 the saving construction offered by one of the other 10 opinions, the so-called criminal history or record-based 11 approach, was not available as a matter of statutory 12 interpretation. But under the sentencing guidelines in 13 factor (a)(1), a sentencing judge must consider those 14 facts.

15           So to take the example from Johnson, a 16 variety in a correctional institution under Connecticut 17 law under the categorical approach, probably a crime of 18 violence, but there might be the rare violence-free 19 riot. A sentencing judge under the Guidelines can look 20 at what actually happened and look at the severe effect
21 of the career offender enhancement and then sentence 22 below the range.

23           And that is what is, in fact, happening, 24 because judges are looking at the facts, and they are 25 not acting like automatons blindly adhering to the 1 Guidelines whatever their weight.

2 But coming back to the (a) (2) factors -- and 3 I do want to come back to them -- in 1984, the (a) (2)
4 factors were enacted. They are vague by anyone's 5 definition. And the only answer we get from my friends
6 is the Sentencing Guidelines require numerical range.
7 The (a) (2) factors lead to a specific number, a fixed 8 sentence in the mind of the judge. Which is more 9 arbitrary or provides less notice? That's easy.

10 The only other explanation we get is the 11 weight afforded to the Guidelines. I've already 12 mentioned that a little bit, but another way we can 13 think about it is a district judge is allowed to deviate
14 from the Guidelines if it disagrees with them as a 15 matter of policy. That's Kimbrough and Spears. A 16 district judge cannot declare that they disagree with 17 the purposes in (a) (2) and say, I a.m. now going to 18 sentence under my theory of radical over-deterrence, 19 instead of adequate deterrence. That would be 20 reversible error under all of this Court's precedents.
21 So whatever weight Molina-Martinez and Peugh say should 22 be given to the Guidelines, the (a) (2) purposes have 23 actually equal or more weight, because a district judge 24 cannot disagree with them. They are, in a sense, more 25 binding than the non-binding career offender

1 enhancement.

2           And in that respect, it goes from 3 discretionary sentencing, which I agree historically 4 we've all accepted as constitutional, and then to the 5 (a) (2) purposes, which may be an attempt to codify that 6 historical practice, but they are law. It -- it is a 7 statute. It says shall impose a sentence, a fixed 8 number. And they are vague. And if you accept that 9 discretionary sentencing is constitutional and you
10 accept that (a) (2) purposes are not subject to a 11 constitutional vagueness challenge, it seems extremely 12 difficult to accept that the career offender enhancement
13 is somehow subject to a constitutional vagueness
14 challenge either because of the numerical range, it's a 15 fixed number for (a) (2), or because of the weight for 16 the reasons I've given.

17           One other thing I wanted to raise, which is 18 related to questions Justice Sotomayor was asking about 19 the resentencings. I'm not aware of the percentage of 20 those 88, what percentage that is of the total 21 resentencing that would come up, and my friend suggested 22 it's an unrepresentative sample. But there's plenty of 23 confounders in this resentencing.

24           The -- the first is, sometimes it's been a 25 different judge.

1           The second is, sometimes the -- the 2 defendant was originally sentenced under Booker, or 3 pre-Booker, so mandatory guidelines.

4           The third is that in some of these cases --
5 and I've looked at the government's sentencing
6 referendum -- the United States has gone in and said, 7 well, because the Commission has gotten rid of the 8 residual clause, we would like the defendant's sentence 9 to reflect the way sentences are going to be going 10 forward, so we're asking you to impose a lower sentence
11 because we want things to look, in the future, the way
12 they are going to look for this defendant today.

13           All of those things are confounders on the 14 actual effect that the career offender guideline had in 15 its original form on the defendant's sentence. And to 16 take an example of Mr. Beckles, we talked a lot about 17 Molina-Martinez and Peugh, and some other decisions that 18 are mentioned in Peugh as giving weight to the 19 Guidelines. Most of those decisions did not exist when 20 Mr. Beckles was actually sentenced. Only Rita was 21 there. And Mr. Beckles' lawyer told the sentencing 22 judge that all the factors in 3553(a) were equal, that 23 none of them had any more weight than any of the others, 24 and Mr. Beckles still got his within-Guidelines range 25 sentence.

1           It is true that six years later the district
2 judge said, I would have sentenced him differently. But 3 that may -- that may be just as much an indication of a
4 Rita-Gall style error of overinterpreting the Guidelines
5 or overweighting them as anything else.

6           If the Court has no further questions,
7 I'm -- I'm prepared to sit down.

8           CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.

9           Ms. Bergmann, you have a minute remaining.

10           REBUTTAL ARGUMENT OF JANICE L. BERGMANN

11           ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

12           MS. BERGMANN: I'd like to make -- start 13 with a point about retroactivity analysis.

14           Mr. Dreeben states that the rule here is a 15 procedural rule, and I would disagree in part because 16 Mr. Dreeben misstated Montgomery as an eligibility test.

17           In both Welch and Montgomery, the defendant
18 was eligible for the same sentence so long as the court
19 made specific findings. And here, just like Montgomery, 20 it will be the rare case where a court can impose the 21 same sentence once the defender -- the defendant no 22 longer qualifies as a career offender. And that's 23 because the court would have to make additional findings 24 just was as true in Montgomery. There it was permanent 25 incorrigibility, but here, the very upward from an

1 ordinary guideline range to the career offender range 2 would require the judge to come forward with specific 3 and compelling significant determination, a 4 justification that would be so compelling that would 5 allow a court to double someone's sentence, and those 6 considerations would have to be things that were not 7 already taken into account by the Sentencing Commission
8 when they determined what the ordinary guideline range 9 would be.

10 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Thank you, counsel.

11 MS. BERGMANN: Thank you, Your Honor.

12 CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERTS: Mr. Mortara, this 13 Court appointed you to brief and argue this case as an 14 amicus curiae in support of the judgment below on 15 Question 2. You have ably discharged that 16 responsibility, for which we are grateful.

17 The case is submitted.

18 (Whereupon, at 11:05 a.m., the case in the 19 above-entitled matter was submitted.)
