2 CHIEF JUSTICE WARREN: The first case on the calen-3 dar is No. 43, William J. McCarthy, petitioner, versus the 4 United States.

5 Mr. McCarthy?

6 ORAL ARGUMENT OF MAURICE J. MCCARTHY, ESQ.

7 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

8 MR. MCCARTHY: Maurice J. McCarthy, appearing on 9 behalf of the petitioner, William J. McCarthy.

10 I am sure the question has occurred to the Court, so 11 I will clear it up initially. The petitioner and I are not 12 related. The fact that we have the same last names is purely 13 coincidence.

14 The facts in the case are not complicated:

15 On April 1, 1966, a three-count indictment was re-
16 turned against the petitioner, charging income tax evasion
17 under section 7201 of the Internal Revenue Code, and alleging 18 that there were deficiencies in taxes of approximately $900
19 for the year of 1959, $5,000 for the year 1960, and $1,200
20 for the year 1961.

21 On April 14, 1966, the petitioner appeared in the 22 District Court with retained counsel and at that time counsel 23 waived the reading of the indictment and entered a plea of not 24 guilty to each of the three counts. The Court set the trial 25 for the 15th of June 1966.

1 Thereafter -- which the record does not disclose --
2 the trial was reset for June 30, 1966. On June 29, 1966, 3 Government counsel, appearing ex parte, informed the Court 4 that the petitioner's illness made it impossible to try the 5 case and asked for a continuance. The District Judge reset
6 the case to the 15th of July.

7 On the 15th of July, the petitioner, again appearing 8 with retained counsel, appeared for the trial of the case. At 9 that time, counsel for the petitioner informed the Court that 10 he would like to withdraw the plea of not guilty to Count 2
11 of the indictment and to offer a plea of guilty to that count, 12 which was the allegation of approximately $500 in unpaid taxes
13 for the year 1960.

14 The Court interrogated counsel for the Government, 15 who indicated that upon acceptance of the plea of guilty, 16 Government counsel would move to dismiss Counts 1 and 3. The 17 District Judge at that time questioned the defendant personally 18 as to two matters.

19 First of all, he asked the defendant, on the trial 20 level, if he was aware that by pleading guilty he waived his 21 right to a jury trial. The defendant responded in the affir-22 mative.

23 He then asked concerning the statutory penalties
24 of five years imprisonment and a maximum five-year imprison-25 ment and a maximum $10,000 fine.

1 Upon receiving affirmative responses, the District
2 Judge entered a finding of guilty. At this point, Government
3 counsel asked the District Judge to inquire of the defendant
4 whether any threats or promises had been made. The District
5 Judge did inquire, and received negative responses; that no 6 threats had been made and no promises had been given.

7 No further questioning was had either of the defen-
8 dant or of retained counsel, and the case was set for a sen-9 tencing hearing in September 1966, on September 14th.

10 At that time, the petitioner again appeared with re-
11 tained counsel, and the District Judge, in the allocution 12 procedure, asked the defendant personally if he had anything to 13 say. The defendant's response was that if it were not for 14 his health and the things that he had gone through, it never 15 would have happened, and that it was not deliberate. No fur-16 ther questions were asked of the defendant.

17 The petitioner's counsel at that time was present 18 and the District Court directed its attention to him. He was 19 asked if he had a statement and he made a brief statement. The 20 Court then indicated that in view of the size of the amount 21 involved, that the deterrent effect of a sentence was necessary 22 and entered a sentence of one year imprisonment and a fine of 23 $2,500.

24 Counsel for the petitioner on the District Court
25 level then asked to be heard. He addressed the District Judge

1 and informed the District Judge of the facts concerning the 2 character of the defendant himself. He indicated to the Court
3 that the defendant was at the time of the proceedings 65 years
4 old; that he had never been familiar with any Federal offense 5 of any sort; that he had a fine family.

6 He further informed the Court that the defendant had 7 just recently, approximately two months prior to the sentencing 8 hearing, which was at approximately the same time as the tender 9 of the plea of guilty, that the petitioner had become a member
10 of Alcoholics Anonymous because he had been an acute alcoholic 11 for some time.

12 He further informed the Court that at the time that 13 the crime was allegedly committed, that being the time of the 14 filing of the income tax return, that the petitioner had been 15 involved in what counsel called a protracted drinking situation 16 from which he was hospitalized. No questions concerning this 17 matter were asked of the counsel for the defendant in the Dis-18 trict Court.

19 Counsel then spoke of the nature of the crime and of 20 the evidence that was present or apparently present on the 21 District Court level. His exposition of the crime consisted 22 in saying that the books of the defendant had been negligently 23 kept and that this negligence, when it became gross, amounted 24 to criminal intent. There was no questioning concerning the 25 exposition of the crime.

1 The Probation Officer then informed the Court that 2 the Alcoholics Anonymous sponsor of the defendant was present 3 in open court and available to testify concerning those matters.
4 The District Court did not take any testimony or confer with 5 the sponsor from Alcoholics Anonymous.

6 The District Court then refused to vacate or suspend 7 sentence and entered a stay of execution for approximately 15 8 days.

9 The argument of the petitioner presents three ques-10 tions.

11 The first of these questions concerns Federal Rule 11
12 of the Rules of Criminal Procedure, which was amended effective 13 July 1, 1966. Since this plea was tendered on July 15, 1966, 14 it is governed by the rule as amended. That amendment, and the 15 notes of the Advisory Committee to this Court concerning the 16 addition of the wording in the rule which constitutes the amend-17 ment, is critical in this case.

18 The amendment required that the District Court 19 address the defendant personally, rather than what had been the 20 practice in the past of allowing the Court to address counsel 21 for the defendant. In this case, there was no questioning of 22 the petitioner other than on the matters which I have stated 23 in the exposition of the facts.

24 Our contention is that amended Rule 11 directs and 25 demands that the District Judge inquire personally of the 1 defendant as to his understanding of the nature of the charge.

2 This was never done. We, therefore, contend that at the time
3 of the acceptance of the plea of guilty on July 15, 1966, error 4 was committed. We contend that this error was compounded at 5 the sentencing hearing which occurred in September 1966 in 6 that certain facts were brought to the attention of the Dis-
7 trict Court which required inquiry.

8 We have cited in our brief to this Court the universal 9 opinion of the lower courts, the Circuit Courts, that Rule 11 10 imposes on the District Judge a duty of inquiry. We feel that 11 in view of the facts presented to the District Judge, this duty 12 of inquiry was very right and yet no inquiry was had of the 13 defendant personally or even of his counsel for that matter, or 14 the other persons who were available to give information.

15 Q What is the provision in Rule 11 upon which you 16 rely for that last argument?

17 A There is no provision in Rule 11 concerning the 18 duty of inquiry. But the provision in Rule 11 is that the 19 District Judge must address the defendant personally and deter-
20 mine. I draw from this the conclusion --

21 Q And determine that the plea is made voluntarily?

22 A Voluntarily, with an understanding of the nature 23 of the charge and the consequences of the plea. I draw from 24 this the conclusion, and I support it with case law in our 25 briefs, that there is a duty of inquiry on the District Judge

1 both at the time that the plea is accepted and later when sen-
2 tence is rendered against the defendant to inquiry in the event
3 that any fact is presented to the Judge concerning the nature
4 of the crime or the character of the defendant.

5 In this case, there was no questioning whatever, 6 not one question of the petitioner himself as to what he under-7 stood to be the nature of the accusation, nor of the petition-
8 er's counsel. Both of these persons were present and available 9 to testify and much of the confusion in the record could have 10 been cleared up had the District Judge addressed questions to 11 them.

12 Q I hope this will not disturb the order of your 13 argument, but I would like to call your attention to the last 14 sentence of Rule 11, as amended. I take it from reading your 15 brief that although you refer to that last sentence, you don't 16 really rely on it. You recall that the last sentence says that 17 the Court shall not enter a judgment upon the plea of guilty 18 unless it is satisfied that there is a factual basis for the 19 plea.

20 What was the date of the entry of judgment upon the 21 plea?

22 A Judgment was entered on September 14, 1966.

23 Q And at that time, I think the record shows that 24 the Judge had before him, and had consulted, the presentence 25 report.

1 A Yes, he did, Your Honor.

2 Q And at that time, do I correctly recall that he 3 referred to the certain bookkeeping difficulties revealed by the 4 presentence report?

5 A Yes, he did.

6 Q Do you argue that there was no explicit finding, 7 however, by the Court in September that it was satisfied that 8 there was a factual basis for the plea? Was there such a find-9 int?

10 A No, there was no such finding.

11 Q You do not argue that the Court has to make such 12 an explicit finding, do you? I don't read that in your brief.

13 A I don't argue that there must be an explicit 14 finding; no.

15 Q Why not?

16 A The wording of the rule, itself, does not re-17 quire an explicit finding.

18 Q You read "unless it is satisfied" as referring 19 to a mental state which the Judge does not have to make explicit?

20 A Well, one thing I see in there as explicit is 21 that the Judge must make a determination that the plea is made 22 voluntarily with an understanding of the nature of the charge 23 and the consequences of the plea.

24 Q That is the first part of it.

25 A The latter part of the rule I read to require

1 the Judge to be satisfied in the circumstances that a factual
2 basis exists for the plea. It does not say for the charge. It 3 does not say of the acts which constitute the charge, that he 4 is satisfied that those acts occurred.

5 Q What do you think that last sentence means? How 6 can he be satisfied that the plea is justified without having 7 some basis for believing that the defendant did the act?

8 A I think this is the argument which we made, Your 9 Honor, in our brief, that there are two elements to the crime, 10 since this is a specific intent crime. There are the acts 11 and there is the intent.

12 Q But you don't tie them, as I remember -- and per-13 haps I am wrong -- you don't tie that argument into this last 14 sentence, do you?

15 A Perhaps not as artistically as I should have.

16 Q I don't say that critically. I am trying to find 17 out your theory. After all, I believe I am correct in saying 18 that this is the first time that the amendments of Rule 11 19 have been before us.

20 A As far as I understand it, that is correct.

21 Q I confess a little surprise at the sort of lack 22 of reliance on that last sentence. But I take it now, from 23 what you have said, that you regard it as referring only to a 24 mental state of the Court which did not have to be reflected in 25 any finding or any statement by the Court.

1 Suppose at the time of the entry of judgment, the 2 Court had before it a presentence report which did not, however,
3 make any reference whatever to the particular crime. I suppose 4 that is possible. I have seen presentence reports like that.
5 There is nothing before the Court whatever except the indictment, 6 the plea of guilty, and a presentence investigation report that 7 makes no reference to the particular crime of either the defen-8 dant or his counsel.

9 In your opinion, would that satisfy the last sentence?

10 A No, I don't think it would, Your Honor.

11 Q I miss in your brief any discussion of questions 12 as to whether this last sentence was or was not satisfied in 13 your case.

14 A My argument is this: that error occurred at the 15 time of acceptance of the plea. Had that error not occurred, 16 there would have been no presentence report. I, therefore, do 17 not consider the presentence report as controlling in any way.
18 I feel thereafter that the matters occurring in open court and 19 the information supplied to the District Judge in open court
20 served to compound the error by indicating to the District Judge 21 that there was no factual basis for the plea.

22 Q I am afraid that is the way I read your brief.
23 So it means if we don't agree with you about the first part of 24 Rule 11, that you are out of court, so far as your argument is 25 concerned.

1 If we don't agree with you about the application of 2 the phrase in Rule 11 "in this case," that is, that the Court 3 must first address the defendant personally and determine that 4 the plea is made voluntarily, et cetera, if we don't agree with 5 you about that, then your argument falls, because you treat the 6 last sentence as a mere appendage.

7 You get some support to that, I agree, from the 8 reporter's note, the advisory note. Am I correct about your 9 argument?

10 A I have not argued that that last part of the 11 rule is mandatory because of the language of the rule itself.
12 It says the District Court must be satisfied. This is a word 13 which leaves some room for argument.

14 My position, and the position of the petitioner, is 15 that in view of the matters occurring in open court, any deci-
16 sion which the District Court came to was not founded upon a 17 reasonable basis; that the Court was informed of matters which 18 required further inquiry; was informed of the age and inexper-19 ience with criminal matters of the defendant; was informed of 20 his past alcoholic condition both at the time that the plea 21 was tendered and at the time that the crime was alleged to have 22 been committed; and was informed that counsel for the petitioner 23 had made an exposition of the crime which was incorrect.

24 Counsel had said that negligence could constitute the 25 crime. The last decision of this Court on defining tax evasion,

1 the Sansone case, cited in our brief, indicates that willfulness 2 is the characteristic element, that specific intent is the 3 characteristic element of the crime. When an inconsistent 4 statement occurs, certainly there is a duty of inquiry. The 5 statement of the defendant himself, at the trial level, was 6 inconsistent.

7 Q Why do you think the committee put that sentence 8 in the rules?

9 A Concerning the factual basis of the plea? Well, 10 as the notes of the committee indicate, the reason for that 11 particular sentence was to insure that a defendant who may have 12 understood the charge was certain that the acts which he ad-13 mitted constituted the crime. I think the reverse of that is 14 also true, that an individual who admitted the acts necessary 15 to --

16 Q But it says that the Judge is satisfied. The 17 last sentence says the Judge must be satisfied. Doesn't it 18 appear just from the language of that sentence that the idea 19 was to see that the Court, before sentencing a man, is satis-20 fied that he wasn't pleading guilty because of desperation or 21 whatever it may be, wanting to put an end to an uncertain situa-22 tion or whatever, or pressure or whatnot? The Judge has to 23 be satisfied that there is a factual basis for the plea.

24 A This is the second part of our argument, Your 25 Honor, that there is an abuse of discretion in this case.

1 Q I understand your brief on pages 24 to 29, about 2 five or six full, printed pages, has the thrust of your argu-
3 ment, almost precisely, to be what Mr. Justice Fortas' questions 4 suggested; that is, that there was not compliance in this case
5 with the final sentence in newly amended Rule 11. Is that right?

6 A Exactly, Your Honor. But I frame it in terms
7 of an abuse of discretion on the part of the District Court be-8 cause I don't find that language to be sufficiently specific.
9 The language is that the Court must be satisfied. That is why 10 I couch the argument in terms of discretion and an abuse there-11 after.

12 The counsel for the respondent argues that the rule 13 leaves some discretion in the District Court, although he would 14 apply it also to the first part of Rule 11 concerning the tak-
15 ing and accepting of a plea of guilty. However, the respondent 16 does not address himself to the facts in this case which we 17 argue required inquiry by the District Judge.

18 Our third argument --

19 Q Mr. McCarthy, do you put any responsibility on 20 the retained counsel, and I do mean "any"?

21 A Of course there is responsibility on retained 22 counsel, Your Honor.

23 Q Is your position that the fact that they didn't 24 call the Alcoholics Anonymous man is enough?

25 A No.

1 Q What should the Court do? Go out and subpoena 2 witnesses?

3 A The Court is required under Rule 11 to address
4 the defendant personally and to determine that he, the defen-
5 dant, understands the nature of the charge and the consequences 6 of the plea.

7 Q Don't you think the Judge was right in taking 8 into consideration that this man might have been fit for Alco-
9 holics Anonymous but that wasn't sufficient?

10 A I am quite sure that being a member of --

11 Q There is the lawyer's statement that this man 12 was a fit candidate for Alcoholics Anonymous. What else did 13 the Judge have?

14 A The Judge had the age of the defendant. The 15 defendant was 65 years of age.

16 Q That is discretionary, isn't it?

17 A Yes.

18 Q That is, if he wants to put a 65-year-old man 19 in jail. That is discretionary. What else did the Court have?

20 A The question isn't whether or not to put a 65-
21 year-old man in jail. The question is whether or not a 65-22 year-old man sufficiently understands the nature of the charge.
23 This is the question, whether he has been informed and under-24 stands the meaning of the accusation.

25 Q Would your argument be the same if he was 45?

1 A I think a man more in the prime of his life
2 would be less likely to be confused about these matters. This 3 is perhaps in the discretion of the Court, but this is pre-4 cisely my argument: that the discretion of the Court was not 5 properly exercised.

6 Q Why?

7 A Some men of advanced years have extreme acumen; 8 some do not.

9 Q What should the Judge do at that stage? Put 10 him on the stand?

11 A Rule 32 requires at the sentencing hearing that 12 the District Judge address the defendant personally. This, 13 again, imposes --

14 Q He did in the original hearing.

15 A He did inquire of the defendant at the sentenc-16 ing hearing and the defendant said the following:

17 "If it were not for my health and the things I have 18 gone through, it wouldn't have happened and it is not 19 deliberate."

20 A A statement such as "it is not deliberate" is a point 21 blank denial of the characteristic element of the crime under 22 7201.

23 Q What should the Court have done, then?

24 A The Court should have inquired as to what he 25 meant by "it is not deliberate."

1 Q Suppose he had done that? Would it be all right?
2 Would it have been enough?

3 A It would have been what the military calls "provi-4 dence" on the record.

5 Q The military?

6 A I cited to this Court cases from the Court of 7 Military Appeals. I just use the phraseology which they have 8 used. What I mean is that there would have been in the record 9 evidence to have established that in open court the defendant 10 had been informed of the charge and had knowingly pleaded to 11 that charge.

12 Q Couldn't the defendant, with or without the ad-13 vice of his retained counsel, have volunteered what was good 14 for him, or do you think the Court is obliged to inquire into 15 all of the materials?

16 I come back to my original question. Don't you think 17 retained counsel has some responsibility?

18 A Yes, sir; of course retained counsel does.

19 My last argument is on the constitutional question
20 involved here. I think it is pointed up well by the alter-21 natives suggested by counsel for the respondent. Counsel for 22 the respondent says that this is the first case which has come 23 up on a direct appeal from the acceptance of a plea of guilty 24 which was not preceded by a motion to vacate or by a motion to 25 withdraw.

1 I note in my reply brief that the authority cited 2 by the respondent for this position, that the accepted and 3 usual methods are a motion to withdraw or a motion to vacate,
4 leave the defendant below with unconstitutional alternatives.

5 If he moves to withdraw the plea, he must accept the 6 burden of proving innocence. If he does that, it seems to me
7 that the Fifth Amendment guarantee of due process and the pre-8 sumption of innocence are reversed.

9 If he should move to vacate the sentence, that motion, 10 under 2255, can only be made when the defendant is in custody.

11 So the alternatives left open to the defendant in 12 a situation such as this are to either go into custody and 13 move to vacate, or accept a burden of proving innocence. We 14 feel that this constitutional question has not been answered 15 by the respondent. We, therefore, respectfully submit that 16 the judgment should be reversed and the cause remanded for 17 trial.

18 CHIEF JUSTICE WARREN: Mr. Springer?

19 ORAL ARGUMENT OF JAMES VAN R. SPRINGER, ESQ.

20 ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT

21 MR. SPRINGER: Mr. Chief Justice, may it please the 22 Court: The Court is handicapped in this case, we feel, because 23 this is here on direct appeal, as the petitioner points up, 24 although he, as I understand it, still makes two claims: One, 25 that there was not sufficient objective factual basis for the

1 entry of a judgment on his plea; and two, that before accepting 2 the plea, the Trial Judge did not make an adequate determina-3 tion as to his subjective understanding of the nature of the 4 charges.

5 Although the petitioner's case is based on these two 6 contentions, we, in fact, have no testimony by the defendant 7 as to whether or not he did understand the charges and not even 8 a factual allegation that he did not understand the charges.
9 Also, we have little, if any, direct evidence relating to the 10 charges themselves upon which we could determine whether or 11 not there was, in fact, an objective basis.

12 However, the record does indicate a number of the 13 circumstances surrounding this plea and the entry of judgment 14 upon it, and we feel it is important to bear some of these in 15 mind.

16 First of all, the nature of the charge itself. The 17 indictment which related to tax deficiencies in the one year 18 of 1960 is simple and straightforward. It charged that the 19 defendant willfully and knowingly attempted to evade his taxes
20 for that year by willfully and knowingly filing a tax return 21 understating his income by some $13,000, which was somewhat 22 more than 40 percent of the total alleged income for that year.

23 Q Is that what he was convicted of -- $15,000?

24 A Yes. Of course, there was no specific finding.
25 He pleaded guilty to a deficiency of approximately $13,000.

1 Q I thought he pleaded guilty to only one of the 2 three counts and the other two were dismissed?

3 A Yes. I am sorry. In that one year of 1960 there
4 was an alleged deficiency of $13,000. There were somewhat 5 smaller deficiencies alleged in the years 1959 to 1961. Those 6 counts were dismissed.

7 I might point out, however, they were dismissed upon 8 an understanding expressed by Government counsel, to which 9 petitioner's counsel agreed, that the taxes for all three years 10 would be paid. From this, I think it is fair to infer that 11 there was never any dispute as to the actual existence of a 12 tax deficiency.

13 Accordingly, the only fact issue in the case was the 14 issue of the defendant's intent, whether he willfully filed a 15 false tax return. So there was, we submit, no possibility of 16 any confusion as to lesser included offenses or anything. There 17 was a simple factual question of willfulness.

18 Q Had it not been willful, if it had been neglect, 19 it would have been an included offense, would it not?

20 A Mr. Chief Justice, I believe this Court held in 21 Sansome that all of the criminal tax provisions coalesce, as it 22 were, in the case where the charge is the filing of a return 23 that falsely stated income.

24 Q If the defendant had misunderstood that word 25 "willful" and it had been a matter of neglect so far as he was

1 concerned, it would have been a minor offense, wouldn't it?

2 A In fact, I believe there would have been no 3 offense at all. None of the criminal provisions would have 4 applied. Each of the three require willfulness.

5 Q Let's put it this way: Are there any included 6 offenses in a charge of this kind?

7 A No. In fact, that is, I believe, what this 8 Court held in the Sansone case. There are none as to which 9 instructions are required to be given. It is either all or 10 nothing.

11 Q The District Attorney does have the right to 12 charge it either as a misdemeanor or as a felony, does he not?

13 A Yes, he does. But when the charge is made, it 14 is a single question and there is the one question of willful-15 ness.

16 Before he pleaded, the defendant had, as the record 17 shows, retained counsel for a period of at least three months.
18 There was an indication some two weeks before he finally pleaded 19 guilty that petitioner's counsel had led Government counsel to 20 believe that there would not be a trial of the case. From this, 21 we think it is reasonable to infer that there were substantial 22 discussions about the charges between the defendant and his 23 counsel, and we find it hard to believe that those discussions 24 would not have explored fully the single fact issue in the 25 case.

1 Q Apart from what the merits may be, I suppose the 2 Government's position is that the petitioner, having pleaded 3 guilty, it was his responsibility, upon being personally
4 addressed by the Court, to come forward with some sort of showing 5 that would indicate, that would give a basis, for a claim at 6 that time or subsequently, if that can be done, that he did not 7 plead guilty knowingly. Is that right?

8 A Yes. In fact, it is our position that if, in 9 fact, the defendant now has available to him some factual indi-10 cation that the plea was not knowing, or, for that matter, that 11 there was not an adequate factual basis for the plea, he can 12 raise this collaterally.

13 Q The only question is whether there would have 14 to be a showing made at the time, some showing made at the time, 15 that the prisoner is addressed by the Judge. If so, what form 16 that has to take. Is it or is it not the Government's position, 17 whether it is raised collaterally or on direct appeal, that that 18 is the time when a showing has to be made under Rule 11?

19 A No, we would not stand on the proposition that 20 that is the only time it can be made.

21 Q You say it can be made collaterally?

22 A Yes. In fact, we would submit that there is no
23 substance to the petitioner's contentions that he is in any way 24 barred from raising this matter either under Rule 32b or under 25 Rule 2255.

1 Q What you are saying to us, then, comes down to 2 the proposition, as I understand it, that there is no evidence, 3 or nothing upon which we can rely, in this record to show that 4 the plea was not voluntarily and knowingly made. Is that right?

5 A Yes.

6 Q And also that nothing is before us to show that 7 the necessary element of the crime, that is to say, the knowing 8 evasion of taxes, was not present.

9 A Yes. In fact, as to the first point, we would 10 submit that there is enough in this record to show that there
11 was ample basis for the inference which the Trial Judge evi-12 dently made that the defendant understood the nature of the 13 charges when he pleaded.

14 Q To comply with Rule 11, wouldn't you think the 15 Judge himself must, as you just suggested, at least go through 16 the processes in his own mind, by determining, as Rule 11 re-17 quires, that the defendant understood the consequences of his 18 plea and the nature of the charge?

19 A Yes, Mr. Justice. We do not believe, however, 20 that there is anything in the rule that requires a specific,
21 identifiable finding in the record.

22 Q I know, but it is not enough for you to win your 23 case just to say that there is no evidence in the record to 24 indicate that he didn't do it.

25 A No. We are prepared to argue that the contrary

1 is true; that there is enough evidence in the record to support 2 such an inference.

3 Q Don't you have to?

4 A Yes, we certainly do.

5 Q And you are willing to decide this case on the 6 basis of Rule 11?

7 A On the basis of the compliance by the Court with 8 the real substance of Rule 11, which we feel is that a deter-9 mination, at least within the Judge's own mind, be made, and 10 that there be an adequate basis for that determination. We 11 concede, of course, that it would have been better if the Judge 12 had specifically addressed the defendant as to his understand-13 ing of the charges.

14 Q As part of being the factual basis for the 15 charge and the plea, I gather that the only issue in the case
16 was knowing. Didn't the Judge himself, at the time of sentenc-17 ing, make his own finding as to that?

18 A In effect, he did that.

19 Q He said, "In my opinion, the matter in which the 20 books were kept is not inadvertent." That is pretty close, 21 isn't it?

22 A I would think so. That plus some of the related 23 discussions, plus, in fact, what defendant's counsel said at 24 the sentencing indicate that the Judge was very familiar with 25 the presentencing report.

1 Q But this is a different matter from satisfying 2 himself that the defendant himself understood the nature of the 3 charge and knew what he was pleading guilty to.

4 A Yes. This is really the objective question and 5 the other is the subjective question as to voluntariness and 6 so forth.

7 Q As I understand, you say that there is enough in 8 the record to support an inference by us that the Court did 9 satisfy this rule. Did you go farther and do you say that there 10 was a clear compliance with Rule 11 by the Judge?

11 A Mr. Chief Justice, I would suggest that that 12 perhaps becomes a semantic question.

13 Q No, it isn't semantic at all. It is one thing 14 to say that there is enough in the record for us to infer that 15 perhaps he did know enough about the case to properly sentence 16 him, and it is another thing to answer whether he actually 17 followed Rule 11 or not, which is the question before us.

18 A I have to say that Rule 11 did direct him to 19 address the defendant and he did not do that.

20 Q Do you think it is too much for this Court to 21 insist that Rule 11 be followed by a District Judge before he 22 sends a man away to prison for a term of years, when the defen-
23 dant has pled guilty, he saved the State a trial, he is before 24 him there for anything the Judge wants to do, up to the maximum 25 punishment that the statute allows?

1 Do you think it is too much for a Judge to clearly
2 and distinctly and accurately follow Rule 11?

3 A Certainly not, Mr. Chief Justice.

4 Q Then why do you support this?

5 A I think that the fact that the Judge did not 6 fully comply with Rule 11 is not dispositive of this case.

7 Q You think, then, that we ought to give the bene-
8 fit of the doubt to the Judge, rather than to the defendant?

9 A First, we would say that there was, in effect,
10 a determination.

11 Q You qualify everything you say. You say "in 12 effect." You answered me a moment ago that he did not follow 13 the rule.

14 A As I say, Mr. Chief Justice, we have to concede 15 that. However, the fundamental question here, at least on the 16 subjective issue, is whether, in fact, the defendant did under-17 stand the charge. If there is a question on this record as to 18 whether or not he did, we submit that it would not be prejudicial 19 to the defendant to have a hearing on that issue.

20 Q His counsel told the Court that this man, because 21 of his drinking, was negligent in doing these things and it was 22 negligence that brought this around, rather than deliberation.
23 That didn't prompt the Court to go any farther at all.

24 A Those, I believe, are counsel's inferences from 25 the record, which I believe --

1 Q You are getting back to inferences again. He 2 said that to the Court. It isn't an inference. He said it to 3 the Court.

4 A If the reference is to the statements by the 5 defendant's counsel at the sentencing hearing, Mr. Chief Justice, 6 I would suggest that reading those statements as a whole does 7 not, to my mind at least, disclose any inconsistencies with 8 either the existence of a factual basis for the charges or the 9 defendant's understanding.

10 Q Now I think we are getting into semantics when 11 you refer to it that way. It is a violation, but reading it, 12 the effect of it is that it didn't injure the defendant at all.
13 That is semantics.

14 A If it be so, I have to concede that our case 15 does, to that extent, depend upon that. We do insist, however, 16 that the Government should be allowed at least to meet the bur-17 den, which we are prepared to accept, of proving on a hearing 18 that the defendant did plead with an understanding of the 19 charges against him.

20 Q Does the appendix at page 20, page 21 and page 21 22 correctly set out the conversation that took place between 22 the Judge and the prisoner?

23 A Yes, Mr. Justice. That, in fact, is a quotation
24 by the Court of Appeals from the plea record, which is set forth 25 completely at pages 6 through 8.

1 Q That is what happened?

2 Did I understand you to say a while ago that the Judge 3 did not directly address the defendant?

4 Did I understand you to say he did not directly address 5 the defendant?

6 A No, Mr. Justice. He did, of course, directly 7 address him and question him at some length on other conver-8 sations.

9 Q They had had some conversation, I understand.

10 A The subject on which he did not directly address 11 the defendant, which is raised here, is the question of the 12 defendant's understanding of the charges.

13 Q But he asked him about several things, whether 14 he understood them, didn't he?

15 A Yes. He asked him whether he understood that he 16 would be depriving himself of a jury trial by pleading guilty;
17 whether he understood that he would be subjecting himself to a 18 long sentence; whether he was pleading voluntarily; whether any 19 promises had been made to him; or whether any threats had been 20 made to induce the plea.

21 We do have to concede, though, there was the one 22 further question which the Judge preferably would have asked, 23 or perhaps a series of questions.

24 Q How would he have asked that, under the rule, 25 in your judgment?

1 A I think it would not be enough simply to say
2 "Do you understand the charge?"

3 Q What, in your judgment, did he fail to ask that 4 he should have asked?

5 A I think in this case, because of the simplicity 6 of the case, because of the simplicity of the charge, it could 7 have been a simple question.

8 Q What is it you say that he didn't ask that the 9 rule required him to ask?

10 A He did not ask "Do you understand that in order 11 to be convicted of this charge you must have willfully filed a 12 false tax return when stating your income?"

13 On the subjective question, that is the single issue 14 in this case, whether or not the defendant did understand that 15 requirement. As I have said, we believe that the record does 16 indicate, first, that the Judge so determined, and second, 17 that he had a basis for doing so.

18 Q Does the rule say that he should ask him if he 19 willfully committed a crime?

20 A Mr. Justice, the rule does say that he shall per-21 sonally address the defendant and determine that the plea is 22 made voluntarily and with an understanding of the nature of the 23 charge.

24 Q And he did answer that voluntarily, didn't he?

25 A Yes. He did not, however, ask him if it was made

1 with an understanding of the nature of the charges.

2 Q He asked for three or four understandings, but 3 he didn't sweep in the whole thing, you say.

4 A Yes.

5 Q That may be right. I am just asking you.

6 A We have to concede that that is something that 7 the rule directed him to do that he did not do. However, we do 8 submit it was harmless.

9 Q I am not drawing issue with you. I wanted to 10 see exactly what it was.

11 A As to the basis for the inference, which we feel 12 the District Judge properly drew, characterize it as you will,
13 the defendant was a mature man, a businessman. He had had counsel 14 for some months.

15 Q What was his business?

16 A It appears that he was some kind of printing
17 jobber. At the end of the sentencing proceeding is a reference 18 to a request for a stay of execution of the sentence because he 19 was handling the printing of some ballots for the county at the 20 time. That is the only indication in the record.

21 Q You say he could raise this collaterally in one 22 or two ways.

23 A On direct appeal?

24 Q Why should you contest it, if you say it could 25 be raised? Suppose we decide against you? I understand you to 1 say he could raise it collaterally.

2 A Yes.

3 Q So what you want is to show what happened.

4 A The problem here is when a defendant has pleaded 5 guilty, the system is set up in such a way that he should not, 6 at will, be able to withdraw his plea after he determines what 7 his sentence will be.

8 Q But if it is shown that there was a mistake and 9 the Judge left something out, why shouldn't he have a right to 10 trial, as though he had never made this false step on a plea of 11 guilty?

12 A I would simply urge the obverse of that; that 13 having pleaded guilty, he should not have the option of undoing 14 what we believe the record shows was a thoroughly considered, 15 intelligent act on his part.

16 Q The Courts have been very liberal, haven't they, 17 and have been admonished to be liberal, in connection with 18 letting people withdraw their pleas of guilty when they have 19 pleaded guilty and they come up and make what seems to be a 20 bona fide claim that it was not right?

21 A Rule 32 relating to that does draw a distinction 22 between the withdrawal of a plea before sentencing which can be 23 done quite easily, and with the withdrawal of a plea after 24 sentencing which can only be done after a showing of manifest 25 injustice.

1 Q The Court would not want to keep a man imprisoned 2 if he were not guilty.

3 A Of course not, and we would urge that if this 4 record is not sufficient to support the acceptance of a plea and 5 the entry of judgment upon it, that those facts should be ex-
6 plored in a hearing so that we will know whether or not there 7 is a factual basis.

8 Q Is it a matter of a remand?

9 A We would suggest that it would be more orderly 10 if it were done collaterally. Alternatively, we would suggest 11 at the very least this case should be disposed of by a remand 12 for a hearing rather than by a vacation of the judgment with 13 the option then in the defendant to plead again.

14 Q As I understand, you concede that they raise the 15 question in connection with the Judge which, if correct, he 16 wouldn't have been justified in pleading guilty.

17 A It is raised only on appeal, however. It was 18 never raised before.

19 Q I thought the lawyer raised it, saying he had 20 been drinking and that he didn't know. Was that right?

21 A No, I think the discussion to which the refer-22 ences have been made were discussions in elaboration of the 23 defendant's statement in allocation. The lawyer was not arguing 24 that the plea was improper.

25 Q What did he say about it?

1 A About the plea?

2 Q About the defendant's knowledge.

3 A He said nothing directly about the defendant's 4 knowledge.

5 Q What did he say from which something could be 6 inferred about his drinking?

7 A It is a rather elaborate statement.

8 Q Just that part of it.

9 A It appears in a number of places in trial coun-10 sel's statement seeking to mitigate the sentence. It refers to 11 problems that relate to drinking in this case.

12 "This man has experienced the kind of punishment, self-13 inflicted, which is almost a categorical listing of how 14 he pleads." It is a somewhat disjointed statement.

15 Q Was it meant to leave the impression with the 16 Judge that the man had been drinking to such an extent that he 17 could not have willfully committed the crime?

18 A I think not, speaking very honestly, after a 19 reading of the entire record. In fact, counsel's principal 20 point was that the concealments and devious acts which re-21 sulted in this tax evasion were carried out for the purpose of 22 secreting funds, as I interpret it, so that the defendant could 23 purchase liquor and so forth without his family knowing about 24 it. That was the thrust of counsel's argument, rather than any, 25 what I consider to be, suggestion that, in fact, the defendant

1 was not responsible.

2 Q Didn't counsel say specifically to the Court 3 that the failure to report this was a matter of negligence on 4 the part of the defendant and not intentional, but he realized 5 that in some circumstances negligence could be equated to that?

6 A The word he used, Mr. Chief Justice, in fact, 7 was "neglect".

8 Q Neglect; yes.

9 A I would suggest that what he seems to me to have 10 been meaning by "neglect" was the failure to do something, the 11 failure to report income accurately. However, this man was an 12 experienced lawyer. The Court of Appeals pointed out he was a 13 former Assistant United States Attorney.

14 Q You mean the counsel was.

15 A Yes. I would suggest that the record does not 16 support an inference that counsel was confused as to the nature 17 of the charges. I think it is important to bear in mind what 18 counsel's purpose in making these statements was. This was at 19 a sentencing hearing.

20 Q I will tell you frankly what concerns me in this 21 case. Here we have Rule 11 that is designed by this Court and 22 by the Congress to eliminate the possibility of an innocent man 23 pleading guilty and being sentenced to the penitentiary because 24 he doesn't know what he is pleading guilty to.

25 You say to us that that remedial statute has not been

1 followed by the Court in this case. Yet you ask us, by reason
2 of the totality of the circumstances, to excuse the Judge from 3 having done this simple act, and ask us to keep the man in the 4 penitentiary where a trial of this simple case could have cleared 5 the matter up entirely.

6 Are we going to be subjected to that kind of case coming 7 in here time after time, and this be a precedent for saying, 8 "Well, the Judge doesn't have to follow section 11 in its en-9 tirety, if we can judge from the totality of the facts that 10 the defendant probably knew what he was doing, then the defen-11 dant must stay in the penitentiary."

12 Really, this case to me has more significance than 13 just this defendant. It is a question of whether we are going 14 to have to say to the District Judges that they need not follow 15 specifically Rule 11, which is of no great burden to them but 16 which is a great burden to the defendant when it comes to 17 determining the number of years he is going to spend in a peni-18 tentiary.

19 A Mr. Chief Justice, I would only say that in this 20 case, because of the failure to make that simple inquiry at the 21 plea proceeding, the Government has imposed upon it what may be 22 a very substantial burden of going through a collateral pro-
23 ceeding, having to prove that, in fact, there was an understand-24 ing of the nature of the charges.

25 Q Mr. Springer, that surprises me. Could I ask you

1 to bear with me and let me see if I can get this straight in 2 my own mind?

3 There are two phases here, chronologically, under 4 Rule 11. One, a man pleads guilty in this case. Then, under 5 Rule 11, before the Judge at that time, which in this case was 6 July 15, 1966, at that time the Judge may not accept the plea
7 of guilty without first addressing the defendant, without deter-8 mining that the plea is made voluntarily with understanding of 9 the nature of the charge and the consequences of the plea.

10 Are you with me?

11 A Yes.

12 Q On July 15, the Judge did address this defendant 13 directly; right?

14 A Yes.

15 Q He did ask him about his understanding of the 16 consequences of the plea; right?

17 A Yes.

18 Q Those were the words added, strangely enough, by 19 the amendment effective July 1, 1966. You have stated to us, 20 however, that he did not address the defendant directly with 21 respect to the defendant's understanding of the nature of the 22 charge, insofar as the Judge did not ask the defendant whether 23 he understood that the income tax evasion had to be done know-24 ingly in order to constitute the offense charged.

25 Am I right?

1 A Yes.

2 Q You agree with what I have said thus far?

3 A He did fail to inquire about that.

4 Q And you assert that that question can be attacked 5 on a collateral basis?

6 A Yes, we do.

7 Q Is there any authority to that effect?

8 Remember, we are not talking about whether the prisoner 9 can collaterally attack his conviction because he did not com-10 mit the crime knowingly. We are talking only about whether the 11 prisoner can collaterally attack conviction because the Judge 12 did not determine, by direct questioning, whether the prisoner 13 understood the nature of the charge.

14 Is there any authority to the effect that that ques-15 tion, that narrow question of what happens after a plea of 16 guilty and on acceptance of the plea of guilty under Rule 11, 17 is there any authority that that can be attacked collaterally?

18 A Yes. There are several Court of Appeals cases.

19 The question we say that can be raised on collateral 20 attack is the question of whether, in fact, the defendant under-21 stood the nature of the charge at the time of the plea, not what 22 transpired on the record between the Judge and the defendant.
23 It is the question of actual understanding.

24 Q Let's leave that confusion where it is and let's 25 go to the next phase.

1 All right, that is what happens before the Judge, or 2 should happen under Rule 11 before the Judge, accepts a plea
3 of guilty under Rule 11, and those were the events, imperfect
4 or whatever they may have been, which occurred here on July 15, 5 1966; right?

6 A Yes.

7 Q Then you come to the next phase, which is the 8 sentencing. That is the time at which the last sentence of 9 Rule 11 applies, is it not?

10 A Yes.

11 Q And that was September 1966. Rule 11, as amended, 12 effective July 1, states that the Court shall not enter a judg-
13 ment upon the plea of guilty unless it is satisfied that there 14 is a factual basis for the plea.

15 Do you want to tell this Court, or do you want to make 16 any comment to this Court, as to whether that sentence was satis-17 fied in this case, remembering it does not have to be satisfied 18 on July 15 if what I have said is correct, but it does have to 19 be satisfied by the time the judgment is entered, which in this 20 case was September?

21 In the colloquy in September, according to this record, 22 the Judge did refer to what he referred to as more or less
23 deliberately confused bookkeeping of the defendant as disclosed 24 by the presentence report; is that right?

25 A Yes.

1 Q So that there is some indication here that the 2 Judge did have before him some information going to what actually 3 happened here, going to the factual basis for the plea; is that 4 right?

5 A Yes.

6 Q Is it the Government's position that that is 7 essential, that it is essential to comply with that last sen-
8 tence, that there be some indication of some sort on the record 9 that the Court did look into and was satisfied that there was 10 a factual basis for the plea, or do you say that that last sen-11 tence doesn't mean anything of the sort?

12 A I think there should be some indication in the 13 record. I think it was sufficient here without even some of the 14 colloquy.

15 Q You think there should be some indication, but 16 that the indication here is enough?

17 A The crucial point being it was indicated that 18 the Judge considered a presentence report.

19 Q And you say that the Court doesn't have to enter 20 anything on the record to the effect that it is satisfied that 21 there was a factual basis for the plea?

22 A No. We would suggest that is sufficiently im-23 plicit in the entry of judgment.

24 Q There was nothing on the record in this case to 25 that effect.

1 A No. The Judge did not say, "I am satisfied."

2 However, we would suggest that the language in the last sentence
3 of Rule 11 was chosen advisedly. It contemplates an informal 4 determination by the use of the word "satisfied" and that re-5 quirement was fulfilled here.

6 Q Is the presentence report made available to the 7 defendant and his counsel?

8 A Under a contemporaneous amendment to Rule 32a,
9 the Trial Judge is told that he may make the presentence report
10 available. It was not requested.

11 Q In this case?

12 A No. Here it was not made available to the defen-13 dant and not requested.

14 Q How do you know from what the Judge said that he 15 actually got that, even from the presentence report which was not 16 available to the defendant? Might he have gotten it from dis-
17 cussion with the District Attorney or with somebody else?

18 A That certainly is not concluded.

19 Q It certainly doesn't show that he got it in any 20 legal way, does it, what he said?

21 A No. We would suggest, however, that it should 22 not be required to satisfy the last sentence of Rule 11 that the 23 record support with appropriate evidence the determination of 24 "satisfy" that the Trial Judge makes.

25 Q What is there in this record to support the

1 statement that the Judge is satisfied with the fact that he 2 didn't properly keep his books, but kept them intentionally
3 wrong? What is there in the record that we can review to sup-4 port that conviction on the part of the Judge?

5 A There is very little, we have to admit.

6 Q There is nothing; isn't that correct?

7 A There is nothing in the ordinary sense of evi-8 dence; yes.

9 Q All right.

10 Mr. McCarthy?

11 REBUTTAL ORAL ARGUMENT OF MAURICE J. MCCARTHY, ESQ.

12 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

13 MR. MCCARTHY: If I may make two brief points, Your 14 Honor, counsel for the respondent has brought up one thing which 15 we argued in our brief and which counsel for respondent has 16 never answered.

17 He said that an accord of sorts was reached, that 18 Government counsel indicated to the Judge when he appeared ex 19 parte, because of the defendant's illness, that the matter would 20 not go to trial, according to counsel for the defendant. Later 21 on, the District Court was informed that there was an under-22 standing that the tax and penalties would be paid.

23 If this is true, and we have argued if this is true, 24 is this not another urgency for inquiry, that a man who has, to 25 the knowledge of the District Court, been hospitalized for

1 alcoholism, who could not stand trial two weeks before he 2 entered his plea of guilty because of illness -- is it not sig-3 nificant that the Government now argues that there might have 4 been some accord?

5 I think that this is another point indicating that 6 there was a need for the District Court to inquire into this 7 matter, and that this should not have been left unnoticed.

8 Lastly, I would like to point out that the finding 9 which the Court has made in this case, at page 8 of the appen-
10 dix, is not that there is any determination on the defendant's 11 understanding. The finding that the Court makes is that the 12 defendant was advised of the consequences.

13 There clearly in the record is no finding at all that 14 there was any informing of the defendant as to the nature of the 15 charge. There is nothing in the record to indicate whether or 16 not the defendant actually did understand the charge, and the 17 statements in the record which give some evidence on this matter 18 are inconsistent with an understanding of a plea of guilty to 19 a charge of a crime which requires the specific intent for its 20 fruition.

21 I think in the allocution that the very first matter
22 that came to the Judge in the allocution was the defendant's 23 statement "If it were not for my health and the things I have 24 gone through, it never would have happened, and it was not 25 deliberate and I am sorry."

1 That is almost verbatim what he said. I think when 2 you have a specific intent crime, a statement such as "It is 3 not deliberate," a vague and amorphous statement of that nature 4 requires inquiry.

5 If it is what counsel for respondent calls an act
6 of attrition, it certainly is not an admission of guilt. At no
7 point in this record is there an admission of guilt, an admission 8 of understanding, an admission that the mental state necessary 9 to the crime was ever present.

10 Now counsel wants us to go back to the District Court 11 and to go through one of the procedures which he suggests, one 12 of which would require that the defendant be in custody; the 13 other procedure requiring that the defendant bear the burden of 14 proving his innocence.

15 We feel that the constitutional issue in this has never 16 been answered and that counsel has made no attempt to answer it.

17 Q I notice in the last sentence of your brief you 18 ask that the case be reversed and, accordingly, remanded for 19 further proceedings in conformity with law. What proceedings?

20 A A trial on the merits, Your Honor.

21 Q A trial on the merits?

22 A Yes.

23 Q That is what you mean by further proceedings?

24 A Yes.

25 Q Do you mean you foreclose the possibility of

1 another plea of guilty? He may not, but I take it if he wanted 2 to, you don't foreclose that possibility, do you?

3 A I certainly don't foreclose the possibility of 4 entering a guilty plea. That is a bridge I have not come to yet.
5 But it seems to me that with the evidence in the record, a plea 6 of guilty would not be made.

7 Q But you do not ask for anything more than to 8 give the man a trial?

9 A Yes, Your Honor; that is right.

10 (Whereupon, at 11:30 a.m. the oral argument in the 11 above-entitled matter was concluded.)
