MR. CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: We will hear arguments now in Number 434: United Transportation Union against the State Bar of Michigan.

Mr. Naughton, you may proceed whenever you are ready.

ORAL ARGUMENT BY JOHN J. NAUGHTON, ESQ.

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER

MR. NAUGHTON: Mr. Chief Justice and may it please the Court:

This case is the second dealing by this Court with the Legal Aid or Legal Services Plan of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. The Petitioner here comes under the different name of the United Transportation Union, but the reason for that is because the Trainmen have been merged into that successor union.

At all times that the injunctions were issued in this case the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen was the defendant. On the appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court, the merger into the surviving union took place.

The questions presented in this case are whether the injunction issued deprives the union members of rights arguably guaranteed by this Court in Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Or, whether those injunctive provisions are contrary to this Court's subsequent opinion in Mine Workers

1       versus Illinois State Bar Association.

2               Alternatively the Petitioner contends that the 3       proceedings after remand on the first appeal by the Michigan
4       Supreme Court were such as to deprive the union of its con-5       stitutional rights to procedural due process.

6               This case began at the filing of a complaint in 7       1959 and basically that complaint paraphrased some of the 8       language and the holdings of the Illinois Supreme Court in 9       the opinion of In Re Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. In 10      fact, one of the defenses of the Brotherhood to the complaint 11      was that the case was moot because of the fact that it had 12      complied with the decision of the Illinois Supreme Court.

13              In that defense the Brotherhood alleged that the 14      State Bar of Michigan had presented evidence before the 15      Illinois Supreme Court. That allegation is not denied in the 16      reply. And, indeed, during the trial of 1961 the Counsel for 17      the State Bar at appendix 39 and 40, stated that its evidence
18      and its charges were presented to the Illinois Supreme Court 19      and that the Illinois Supreme Court held that there should be 20      no further proceeding on those charges.

21              Nonetheless, before the Illinois Supreme Court 22      opinion, by its turn, became effective, which was to be on 23      July 1, 1959, the State Bar filed this complaint. Basically 24      the State Bar claimed that the Brotherhood had a plan of 25      recommending and urging its members seek legal advice and not

1 only the seeking of advice, but retaining of union counsel.

2 The union admitted such in its answer. The State
3 Bar alleged by a majority that such Brotherhood employees -- 4 went to the union counsel. The union denied that allegation 5 but did admit that some cases but not all went to such counsel.

6 The possibility of a dissent decree proving 7 fruitless, the case went to trial, and at the trial the counsel 8 for the State Bar said the only issue in the case was whether 9 or not large numbers of cases went to the legal counsel of the 10 union. And so he proceeded to prove through only one witness,
11 a man by the name of Walsh, who was employed by the Association 12 of American Railroad Trainmen Research Bureau, and who in such 13 employment, received reports from other railroads as to how 14 many cases, FELA, cases were handled by various attorneys, 15 were the residents for Michigan residents.

16 The witness also testified at appendix 102 that 17 since 1953 the Association of American Railroads had been the 18 chief investigating agency for the State Bar and had been in 19 the Michigan State seeking evidence. After the hearing, briefs 20 were filed and the 1962 Virginia Decree was handed down by the 21 Chancellor of the Circuit of the Chancery Court of the City of 22 Richmond.

23 After the briefs there was a 1962 injunction 24 decree issued in this case. An appeal was taken by the 25 Brotherhood to the Michigan Supreme Court. While the appeal

1 was pending, this Court handed down its opinion in 1964
2 Brotherhood.

3 The Michigan Supreme Court, after being informed 4 of the opinion in this Court, reversed and remanded and 5 specifically stated that permission for the amendment of 6 Plaintiff's bill to seek, if it be so advised, relief not 7 inconsistent with this Court's opinion in 1964 Brotherhood.

8 The next action in the trial court was a motion 9 for a judgment in accordance with a 1965 injunction decree of 10 the City Court of Richmond. That motion was not acted upon.
11 In 1966 the Virginia Supreme Court entered its opinion on the 12 appeal from the 1965 decree and reversed the -- part of that 13 opinion which attempted to draw a line between solicitation 14 and between recommendations and urging.

15 The State Bar of Virginia petitioned for a 16 certiorari to this Court and the Brotherhood of Railroad 17 Trainmen opposed the petition; so the petition was denied.
18 In 1967 this Court handed down its Mine Workers' decision and 19 following that decision the trial court in this case handed 20 down the 1968 decree which is now before this Court.

21 In handing down that decree the trial judge in 22 this case stated that the Virginia Supreme Court's reading 23 of this Court's opinion in Brotherhood was sufficient to 24 warrant the promulgating of the decree in this case.

25 As to the Mine Workers' decision which was brought

1 to its attention, it said that it was irrelevant, that the 2 Mine Workers' decision dealt only with the financial connec-3 tion. There was then an appeal to the Supreme Court of 4 Michigan and that is the judgment immediately below. By a 5 4 to 3 decision the Michigan Supreme Court affirmed the 6 judgment. It did not look at the injunctive provisions; in-7 stead it proceeded upon the analysis of this Court's 1964
8 Brotherhood of Trainmen as it was stated by the Virginia
9 Supreme Court. Accepting that analysis it stated that it 10 would offend its understanding of the tenets of equal justice
11 under the law if the Brotherhood were to receive more relief 12 in Michigan than it had already obtained in Virginia. Indeed, 13 it said that absent a specific order from Washington it would 14 not enter such an order or a judgment.

15 The dissent agreed with the contention of the 16 Petitioner here. It stated that the decree could not be 17 entered because of this Court's decision in 1964 Brotherhood, 18 and said even if that were not so, it would say that the 19 Mine Workers' case was sufficient to bar the entry of the 20 decree. And finally, under Michigan law, it stated that the 21 proofs were stale; that the pleadings were stale and that 22 there was no clear and convincing proof of any violations and 23 therefore under Michigan law it should not have been entered.

24 We then turn to the first question in this case:
25 whether or not this decree is contrary to this Court's

1 opinion in 1964 Brotherhood. In that opinion, as in many 2 other opinions dealing with free speech, this Court has con-
3 sistently stated a rule of law which was ignored in this case.
4 The burden, this Court has stated, very clearly, very 5 correctly, so far as I'm concerned, is upon the State Bar to 6 prove substantive evils. In this case there was no proof of 7 any substantive evils; indeed there was no updating of the 8 complaint or any updating of the proof.

9 The proof in this case relates at the very latest 10 to the year of 1960 when the Petitioner here requested that 11 there be an amendment of the complaint so that there could be 12 a sharpening of the issues. That request was ignored, despite 13 the language in the first Michigan Supreme Court opinion 14 which stated that permission was granted for leave to amend.

15 In the second Supreme Court opinion that court 16 stated in a majority opinion that the right to amend was an 17 alternative and that the State Bar did not have to avail 18 itself of the accorded right to amend; indeed, it didn't 19 avail itself of the accorded right to amend. It's counsel at 20 one point stated: we do not choose to amend.

21 Until the Michigan Supreme Court had spoke it
22 was unknown to this Petitioner that there was any alternative 23 whatsoever. Assuming that there was such an alternative it 24 would seem that this would be a denial of due process.

25 Turning again to the Brotherhood case, that case

1 held, at pages 6 and 7 of the United States Report, that this 2 case did not involve ambulance chasing; it did not involve 3 unauthorized practice; it did not involve the commercializa-4 tion of the legal profession. The contention of the 5 Respondent in the court below seems to be directly contradic-
6 tory to that language of this Court.

7 Q Is there anything in this record that would 8 indicate the members who would not be free to go out and 9 engage their own counsel of their own selection?

10 A No, there is not, Your Honor. In the 1964
11 Brotherhood opinion we asserted that there were, and in fact, 12 the Virginia case, in one of its findings, held that all of 13 the cases or substantially all of them were channeled through 14 the legal counsel. In this case the allegation was a majority, 15 but the proofs failed to prove any majority and the finding 16 was that a large number, and infact, the finding does not 17 really show a large number. At page 168 of the appendix 18 there is a summary sheet which is Plaintiff's Exhibit 17, 19 which shows a summary of the evidence presented to the 20 Association of American Railroads and as Your Honor will note, 21 the bottom line deals with the year 1960, the latest year, and 22 shows a total number of FELA cases of 34. Of those, in the 23 second column, only six were handled by the legal counsel; 24 20 by Michigan attorneys and eight by other attorneys. The 25 only substantial amount of cases shown is in the first line,

1 which is July 1, '53 to March 31 of 1955. There it is 197
2 cases of which 126 supposedly went to the firm to the Legal 3 Counsel firm, but when the data on which that summary is 4 based was examined it would seem that this number of cases 5 does not deal with '53 but deals with a great number of years;
6 as a matter of fact, the Plaintiff's Exhibit 4, I believe 7 it is -- Plaintiff's Exhibit 3, shows great numbers of cases 8 which were undated.

9 Then, it shows for the Legal Counsel: '45 settle-10 ments, '46 settlements, '47 settlements and '48, '49, '50, '51, 11 '52, and then goes into the '53 settlements. Now, the reason 12 for that was that in 1953 the Association of American Railroads
13 formed this Claims Research Bureau which went out to obtain 14 evidence against various counsel and as a starter, they had 15 these cards sent in from the various railroads. So, the first 16 cards that came in dealt with many other years outside of the 17 years within the exhibit of '53 through '55.

18 It's also, I believe, noteworthy, that primarily 19 in those earlier years are shown only the legal counsel cases.
20 Any cases by other counsel are not shown by the year. And so 21 it creates a problem as to whether this is selected evidence 22 or not. But, be that as it may, and we always have had in this 23 Virginia case and in the Michigan case, questions as to the 24 substantial evidence backing any of the injunctive provisions 25 the fact remains that the State Bar's own exhibits show that

1 immediately preceding issuance of the first injunction, a
2 very minor number of cases handled by the Legal Counsel's 3 firm.

4 I don't think that I need belabor the proposition 5 that there has been a shifting of the burden there by the 6 Michigan Supreme Court and by the court below. If I have not 7 adequately set it out in my brief I am quite sure that the 8 brief of the amicus, the AFL-CIO clearly and succinctly shows 9 what is required here. I think I would like to particularly 10 note page 7 of that brief for the amicus, which states that 11 the restrictions on group legal practice plans must be justi-12 fied by proof, tending to show that the practice, which is 13 enjoined as: "An oppressive, malicious and avaricious use of 14 legal process for purely private gain, according to this 15 Court's opinion in N.A.A.C.P. versus Button." And then in the 16 commercialization language from the Trainmen opinion.

17 I think that being the standard that there is a 18 complete failure of proof in this case, whether it's judged 19 as of 1960 or as of 1968 when this injunction was issued.

20 Now, it seems also to me that the Mine Workers' 21 decision adds a further reason why this case should be re-
22 versed. In Mine Workers, as this Court will recall, the union 23 counsel was on a salary and all the cases went to him without 24 any further compensation. Indeed, the evidence showed that the 25 fact that he filled out an injury form was sufficient to cause

1 the legal counsel to begin processing the workmen's compensa-
2 tion claim in that case. That case also was completely an 3 unauthorized practice of law case and that seems to be the 4 principal defense of the State Bar as to the injunction here 5 that we are engaging in unauthorized practice of law, although 6 there was no such allegation in the only complaint filed 7 below.

8 That Mine Workers' case I think is also particu-9 larly relevant on the first injunctive provision about which 10 we complained. The injunctive provisions are set out at 11 appendix 176 and 177; also set out at various points in the 12 brief. The first provision enjoined the union from giving 13 or furnishing legal advice.

14 It seems to me that for reasons which we state 15 in our brief at pages 23 and thereafter that this is not part 16 of the Brothers' plan. The Brothers' plan is exactly the 17 opposite: it is not the unauthorized practice of law; the 18 union is not practicing law; the union is sending the cases 19 to the union lawyer and seeing that the lawyer practices law.
20 If this is the practice of law it's a new definition of the 21 unauthorized practice of law, typically that arising when a 22 corporation itself acts through lawyers and the lawyers are 23 merely agents.

24 In this case there is no doubt that a retainer 25 contract is entered into between an injured employee and the

1 lawyer and then that becomes then a simple handling of a case
2 by a lawyer-client relationship. There has been no proof
3 either in Virginia or here that anything else occurs.

4 The second provision, it seems to me, also is 5 such that would strike, as it could be interpreted, and that is 6 an ambiguous section, against the operation of this plant.
7 That prohibits informing any lawyer or lawyers that an 8 accident has been suffered by a member and furnishing the name 9 and address for the purpose of obtaining legal employment for 10 any lawyer. And this, I think, is part and parcel of the 11 Brotherhood's Plan as it reads. As Virginia interpreted it it 12 seems to be a method of subverting this Court's language in 13 Trainmen.

14 In Trainmen this Court stated that of course
15 counsel had the same right to accept the case that the union
16 had in channeling the cases. Virginia recognized that lan-17 guage, but stated that it did not interpret it as such that 18 would permit the lawyer to do more than accept and never in-19 tended to bring injunction action or disbarment actions against 20 any lawyer who did any more than accept.

21 Again, it seems to me that it should be stricken
22 down.

23 The third provision deals with the defraying of 24 expenses. That is, from stating that they will suggest or 25 defray. I don't know that this is part of the Brotherhood

1 Plan. There is no evidence in the record as to it, in any 2 event, and finally, under Illinois law, which is the state 3 in which the legal counsel in this case, practices, it's 4 permitted after a retainer is obtained.

5 The fourth provision: from controlling directly 6 or indirectly the fees charged. It seems to me they have 7 been stricken down by the Mine Workers' case, because if you 8 can place a lawyer on a salary and not be guilty of any 9 violations constitutionally, it would seem to me that you
10 would have the right to do less than that, and that is to do
11 what the union used to do in this case, to limit the counsel's 12 fee to 25 percent.

13 The fifth injunction provision is a rather 14 peculiar one. It prohibits accepting or receiving compensa-15 tion of any kind directly or indirectly for the solicitation 16 of legal employment for any lawyer.

17 Now, the Virginia Supreme Court said that there
18 could be no decree which prohibited solicitation, but yet 19 let this provision stand, which does not prohibit solicitation 20 but prohibits solicitation plus the receiving of compensation, 21 as I read it.

22 It would seem to me that there is no evidence in 23 the record as to this and it would seem to me to be a most 24 peculiarly ambiguous section that should be stricken down.

25 The remainder of these provisions are such that

1 they deal with financial connections of some sort. I would 2 like to particularly note that the last one: from sharing in 3 any recovery for personal injury by death by gift assignment
4 or otherwise, is a brand new one. It was not in the 1962
5 Virginia decree. It was added in 1965 by the Chancellor for 6 some reason, because in that case there was no additional 7 evidence taken, either.

8 Now, turning to the question of the evidence in 9 this case, we have to generally deal with the Michigan statutes 10 which I suppose is the basis on which this injunction is 11 issued. It's the only thing in the complaint under which they 12 justify the issuance of the 1961 injunction.

13 On page 32 we set out the interpretation of that 14 statute by the Supreme Court of Michigan in Hightower versus 15 Detroit Edison Company, which the court said that the purpose
16 of the act was to discourage the practically known as ambulance 17 chasing, and then stated that there were four separate indi-
18 cations of it: fomenting litigation, subornation of perjury, 19 mulcting of innocent persons by judgment upon manufactured 20 causes of action, or defrauding an injured person having 21 proper causes of action but ignorant of legal rights, by means 22 of contracts which retain the exorbitant percentages of 23 recovery.

24 Now, in this case the percentage of recovery in 25 the Illinois case was a 25 percent then prevalent in the 1 Brotherhood Counsel. And that was stricken down by the 2 Illinois Court because it was undercutting its fees, rather 3 than the charging of exorbitant fees.

4 So, it seems to me under the Michigan Supreme 5 Court reading of that statute there was absolutely no 6 evidence whatsoever that there was any violation of the 7 statute. But, even assuming that the Michigan statute can 8 be read to cover the facts in this case we would strongly 9 submit that this Court's opinion in N.A.A.C.P. versus Button, 10 dealing with a criminal statute would require its striking
11 down.

12 Q Is there a limitation in Michigan on the 13 amount of a contingent fee? Statutory limitation or a court 14 rule?

15 A Not that I know of, Your Honor.

16 Q Not such as we have in New York?

17 A No; not such as you have in New York.

18 The remainder of my argument I would like to 19 devote to the problem which it seems is raised in this case
20 by the action of the Court --

21 That problem is the problem of whether the union, 22 after remand, received procedural due process. After remand 23 the Brotherhood wished an updating of the complaint and up-
24 dating of the proof; indeed it wished an opportunity to present 25 some evidence because, as the record shows, in the 1961 hearing

1 after the close of the State Bar's evidence, the Brotherhood
2 rested without presenting any evidence on the ground that there
3 was no prima facie showing of any reason for an injunction. So 4 we are now faced with this injunction which was taken from 5 Virginia. And as to that injunction we submit that there is no
6 evidence; there is no contemporaneous pleading; there are no
7 allegations of the provisions in the injunction and surprisingly 8 when they copied the Virginia injunction they did not copy the 9 findings of facts. So you have an injunction without any 10 findings of fact.

11 The findings of fact that now remain in Virginia 12 are the findings of fact that were made in the 1962 decree.
13 The court there took the position that this Court's judgment 14 did not affect the findings of fact so therefore you have a 15 problem there that the findings of fact are directly contra-16 dictory to many of this Court's holdings.

17 The findings of fact in the 1961 Michigan decree
18 donot apply to these particular injunctive provisions. On this 19 procedural due process point we would submit that the Rufflow(?)
20 case by this Court, requiring a fair notice of the reach of the 21 procedure, and also the precise nature of the charges, was 22 directly relevant. We would also submit that the Woodner(?)
23 case by this Court requiring a hearing so that there could be 24 a rebuttal of any charges is directly relevant. And we would 25 submit that the general injunctive law is, as stated in our

1 brief, is directly relevant here and in accordance with the 2 constitutional standards which this Court has promulgated in 3 Brotherhood and in Mine Workers.

4 Thank you, Your Honors.

5 MR. CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Thank you.

6 Mr. Ruegsegger.

7 ORAL ARGUMENT BY A. D. RUEGSEGGER, ESQ.

8 ON BEHALF OF RESPONDENT

9 MR. RUEGSEGGER: Mr. Chief Justice and may it
10 please the Members of this Court:

11 We have in this case, I believe, the interesting 12 issue as to the constitutionality of the decree below. This 13 decree is exactly duplicative of the final decree in the 14 Virginia Brotherhood case, the decree of the Supreme Court of 15 Virginia.

16 The Virginia Supreme Court decision in 207 Virginia
17 entirely was concerned with the interpretation and the con-
18 sideration of what it considered were the findings and opinion
19 of this Court in this Court's Brotherhood decision.

20 Now, from the decision of the Virginia Supreme 21 Court, the Virginia State Bar made an application to this Court 22 for certiorari, as my brother indicated, which was opposed by 23 the Brotherhood and that petition was denied.

24 The interesting thing, I believe, and the procedural 25 steps in the two cases, I think, need a little consideration in

1 order to keep them straight, and I have found it helpful to me
2 to put in chronological order, side-by-side, the occurrences
3 in the Michigan case, this case here, and in the Virginia case.

4 Q What is the name of the Virginia case?

5 A The name of the Virginia case is exactly the 6 same as the Brotherhood, namely: State Bar of Virginia versus 7 the Brotherhood.

8 I assume, Mr. Justice Black, that when you say the 9 "name of the Virginia case," you are talking about the title --

10 Q I'm talking about the one you were talking 11 about.

12 A Well, I --

13 Q You said that this was kind of a duplicate of 14 it.

15 A Yes.

16 Q I just wanted its name and --

17 A All right; it's name is: Brotherhood of 18 Railroad Trainmen versus Commonwealth.

19 Q At page what?

20 A It is 207 Virginia, page 182. Also 149
21 Southeastern 2d, 265.

22 Q Have you the citation of our denial of cert
23 in that Virginia case?

24 A Yes.

25 Q What is that? I don't find it in the briefs.

1 Q That was 1967, I think.

2 A That was on March 6, 1968.

3 Q '68.

4 A Pardon me -- The Virginia State Bar's
5 petition to this Court for certiorari denied on January 16, 6 1967; 385 US 1027. 17 -- 675.

7 Q Thank you.

8 A I would be happy -- it makes me happy that 9 this chronology of the Michigan case and the Virginia case and 10 I would be happy to give these to Your Honors or send them in 11 later. I found it very helpful in my considerations to have 12 the steps that occurred from time to time.

13 Q You may lodge it with the Clerk.

14 A Pardon?

15 Q You may lodge it with the Clerk. I see you 16 have given one to Mr. Naughton.

17 A Yes. Thank you, sir.

18 Now, in both the Petitioner's application for 19 certiorari in this case and again in its brief in this case, 20 the -- is registered that the decision of the Virginia Supreme 21 Court did not comport with the holding of this Court in this 22 Court's Brotherhood case, and that because of what occurred in 23 the case of Virginia after the Brotherhood case, the Virginia
24 case went back to Virginia. It has been deprived of a review 25 of the Virginia Supreme Court decision. And the reason for that,

1 Petitioner says: after the Virginia Supreme Court rendered
2 its decision in 207 Virginia, in which was a decision con-3 sidered in the light of this Court's holding and opinion in 4 Brotherhood. It considered each one of the injunction pro-
5 visions of the second, or 1965 injunction of the Richmond 6 Chancery Court and the entire verbatim injunction of the 7 Richmond Chancery Court of 1965, is set forth in the -- in 8 Footnote 4 in the opinion of the Virginia Supreme Court. And 9 certain provisions of those injunctive paragraphs are put in 10 italics for emphasis and the sum and substance of the Virginia
11 Supreme Court's decision was to strike from the 1965 injunction, 12 which is quoted in footnote 4, as being repugnant to this 13 Court's holding in Brotherhood --

14 Q May I ask you: was that Chancery Court injunc-15 tion entered on our remand of the case in the --

16 A Yes.

17 Q The proceedings in the Chancery Court then 18 were on our remand under Justice Black's opinion in 377 --

19 A Actually yes. What actually happened was that 20 on remand it went back to the Virginia Supreme Court. -- I 21 mean remanded it down to the original Virginia Chancery Court.

22 Q Right. Now, what of the record -- was there 23 a new record made in the Chancery Court? Was that action then 24 on the initial record which we had considered when we had 377?

25 A I'm not sure that I can answer that. On the

1 initial record was it, Mr. Naughton? I'll accept the state-2 ment.

3 But initial agreement of the Richmond Chancery
4 Court opinion in the 1965 decree which then was appeal --

5 Q And obviously the Chancery Court thought the 6 decree it entered was consistent with our opinion on the 7 remand?

8 A Yes; yes. And interestingly enough, the 9 Richmond Chancery Court decree -- the Court's decree held that 10 there was nothing in this Court's opinion that prevented a 11 restraint against solicitation. And so, in that Chancery 12 Court decree they tried to draw a fine distinction between 13 recommendation and solicitation. And that was one of the sub-14 jects that the Virginia Supreme Court then spent considerable 15 time in determining whether or not that distinction set forth 16 in the decree by the Chancery Court was consistent with this 17 Court's holding.

18 And the Virginia Supreme Court then came to the 19 conclusion that that entire provision should be stricken, saying 20 that whatever they called it: recommendation or solicitation, 21 we think that that goes beyond the constitution on the provisions 22 that are set forth in this Court's decision in the Brotherhood.

23 Justice Karacul(?) of the Virginia Supreme Court, 24 dissented and felt that this Court did not mean that in your 25 Brotherhood decision and he hopefully will find that some day

1 that matter will be decided and I think this case -- the other 2 interesting thing about this case to me --

3 Q Is that before us?

4 A Pardon?

5 Q Is that before us?

6 A That is what I was about to come to.

7 Q May I ask it this way: would the provision 8 which was stricken by the Virginia Supreme Court, that does 9 not appear in this Michigan proceeding?

10 A No; it does not.

11 Q Well, then how could that provision be before 12 us for consideration?

13 A Perhaps only inferentially in a determination 14 as to whether or not the injunctive provisions that are in 15 the lower court's injunction here, being exactly duplicative of 16 the final injunction in Virginia, whether or not that bears 17 the constitutional and the propriety and I think to that 18 extent --

19 Q I mean, I gather no effort was made in Michi-20 gan to have the trial injunction --

21 A Include --

22 Q -- the Virginia Supreme Court agreed --

23 A You are absolutely right, Your Honor.

24 The point that I was endeavoring to cover and 25 indicate, was and is that counsel for the Petitioner here, has

1 steadfastly claimed that the Virginia Supreme Court interpre-2 tation of your Brotherhood decision was improper and that they 3 had been deprived of a review of that decision because of the 4 fact that after the Virginia Supreme Court sent the case back
5 down to the Chancery Court and the Chancery Court then rendered
6 its 1965 decision. And then after the Virginia Supreme Court 7 rendered its decision in 207 Virginia it then remanded that 8 case back down to the Chancery Court of Richmond and said:
9 here it is; take whatever proceedings you consider appropriate.

10 And so the Chancery Court then entered a new 11 third injunctive decree exactly in the terms that the Virginia 12 Supreme Court said should be entered. The Brotherhood then 13 made an application for leave to appeal to the Virginia 14 Supreme Court from that injunction which was denied, the 15 Virginia Supreme Court saying: now, we won't entertain this 16 because what you are, in effect, doing is attempting to appeal 17 to us from our previous decision.

18 And so the point is made by the Petitioner that it 19 has been deprived, really, of a review of its position that 20 decision of the Virginia Supreme Court is consistent with and 21 in conformity with your decision in Brotherhood.

22 Now, because of what occurred in Michigan when 23 this Court accepted certiorari in the Brotherhood case, and 24 our case was then on its way to and had landed in the Michigan
25 Supreme Court and because the issues in the Brotherhood Case

1 were very similar to -- at that time very similar to the 2 Michigan case. The Michigan Supreme Court, in a short 3 opinion, remanded it to the Jackson Circuit Court, awaiting -- 4 to await the decision of this Court. And then because of the 5 many things that occurred in Virginia after the decision of 6 this Court in Brotherhood -- it took about four years for these 7 things to occur in Virginia until a final injunction in 8 Virginia was finally on the books and records, then that took 9 about four years and that's the reason why this case was 10 delayed the length of time that it was and why the evidence
11 up to the year 1960 is stale, according to what the Petitioner
12 contends in this case and a decision was made after the case
13 came back to the Jackson Circuit Court and after the final 14 decree had become final a decision was made by the General
15 Counsel of the State Bar of Michigan, working with Mr. Kelley, 16 who had handled this case in collaboration with the General 17 Counsel of the State Bar, not to introduce any additional 18 evidence, but to ask the Circuit Judge, based upon the record 19 before -- made before it, at the original hearing to enter a 20 decree exactly duplicative of the final decree in Virginia.

21 Q So there is a ten-year gap in the --

22 A There is practically a ten year -- you are 23 absolutely right, Mr. Justice Harlan.

24 Q And does the record indicate anything that 25 might have been supplied or that was suggested could have been

1 supplied to fill that gap if there had been a further --

2 A I don't think the record indicates that.

3 Now, this case presents the opportunity for this 4 Court to do three things which I have indicated in my brief 5 and that is, to resolve the Petitioner's contention that the 6 Supreme Court decision -- the Virginia Supreme Court's decision
7 did not comply with the holding of this Court in Brotherhood 8 and it also presents this Court with the opportunity to give 9 to the Petitioner, the review that it claims it has been de-10 prived of because of procedural problems. And thirdly, to 11 clarify and set at rest the concern on the part of some 12 Justices, specifically Justice Karacul(?) of the Virginia
13 Supreme Court and a large segment of the Bar --

14 Q Could I ask just one more --

15 A Yes.

16 Q Do you know whether when was denied by the 17 Virginia Supreme Court to appeal to that Court from the final 18 judgment entered by the Richmond Chancery Court, on that denial 19 of the Virginia Supreme Court, did the union attempt to get 20 certiorari here?

21 A It did not and the reasons for that, I do not 22 know. I can only surmise. Mr. Naughton can undoubtedly tell 23 you, but I imagine it was because earlier, when the Virginia 24 State Bar made an application for writ of certiorari here, the 25 union opposed that.

1 Q And the union did not cross-petition at that 2 time, as far as I can see from our records.

3 A No.

4 Lastly, and in these three areas that I have 5 already indicated, and in this last area we agree absolutely 6 with the Petitioner's position that this Court should speak 7 out in very determinative terms as to the length that a state 8 may go in regulating the practice of law in these areas, 9 particularly in light of a new rule -- 2-103B5 of the new 10 Professional Code, the new Code of Professional Responsibility, 11 because that provision gives the specific, or sets forth the 12 specific exception, consistent with constitutional interpre-
13 tations and referring -- it is specifically referred to there 14 the issues and questions existing here by reason of this 15 Court's holding in Button and Brotherhood and Mine Workers.

16 Q (Inaudible)

17 A I'm not sure just exactly how much I put in 18 my brief on that, but I would advise the Court that --

19 Q You say it is not yet acted upon --

20 A It is not yet acted upon. We presented two of 21 -- in Michigan it has to be adopted by the Supreme Court. We 22 had a special committee of the State Bar review the Code and 23 they presented to the Board of Commissioners their recommenda-24 tions that it be adopted, with two or three limitations, not 25 in this area. And we had a meeting with the full court in the 1 early part of October and requested that the Court adopt the 2 code as we had recommended, with two slight exceptions, not 3 material here.

4 Q Is it feasible to you in our argument if you 5 could capsulize or summarize the portions of the decree where 6 there is a difference between you?

7 A I'm not sure that it is, because as I under-8 stand, the Petitioner's petition that every one of the pro-
9 visions generally they make the claim now that they are vague
10 and they claim that to comply with the provisions of the decree
11 would chill their constitutional rights under the First Amend-12 ment. And I think that Counsel would forthrightly say that he 13 feels, as they have set forth in their brief, that every one 14 of these provisions, because of the language of them, restrict 15 the full operations of the Brotherhood's Plan, and that is the 16 very thing that we are concerned about because we feel that the 17 full operations of the plan just naturally result in sollicita-
18 tion of FELA cases. And we feel that it is absolutely con-19 trary to what the great large segments of the bar have always 20 considered as improper and we feel that each one of these 21 provisions that are exactly the same and have been in effect in 22 Virginia since 1966, when the final decree was finally laid on 23 the books. There has been no chilling or restraint upon the 24 rights of the members of the Brotherhood and that therefore this 25 Court should affirm the decision of the court below.

1 Q I gather the Michigan Supreme Court has not 2 yet given you an answer as to your --

3 A That is correct. I guess I didn't -- I
4 meant to say that undoubtedly the reason for that is, if I may 5 say so, we had a change of two members on the Michigan Supreme 6 Court as of January 1, including a change in the Chief Justice, 7 and our new Chief Justice has voiced his feelings somewhat 8 strongly during our meeting with them in October, as having 9 some concern about some provisions of the code, not material 10 here.

11 But, I gather that because of that there has been a 12 delay in making a decision on the -- code.

13 Thank you, Your Honors.

14 MR. CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Thank you, Mr.
15 Ruegsegger.

16 Mr. Naughton, you have five minutes remaining.

17 REBUTTAL ARGUMENT BY JOHN J. NAUGHTON, ESQ.

18 ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER

19 MR. NAUGHTON: May it please the Court:

20 Q Would you mind, Mr. Naughton? You did not 21 cross-petition when the Virginia State Bar brought its petition 22 here; did you?

23 A That is correct, Your Honor.

24 Q And you did not seek certiorari here when 25 leave was denied to appeal from the final decree finally entered

1 in the Richmond Chancery Court?

2 A That is correct, also, Your Honor. My 3 reasons for that were that I felt both of them were really not 4 right for a decision by this Court, first because I didn't 5 believe it was a final judgment, although I was told later it 6 was; and then the second time it was technical since the court
7 below claimed that it was not appealable under Virginia law.

8 In any event, the Virginia Supreme Court inter-9 pretation of this Court's opinion seems to me to be its inter-10 pretation and I would not presume to suggest to this Court that 11 it's at all definitive or binding on it. The courts below 12 seem to think that it was; that that Court's opinion of your 13 opinion is the last word. I don't believe so.

14 I would like to mention that in regard to the 15 rehearing in Virginia when it came back down, there was a new 16 Chancellor. The Chancellor who heard the first Virginia case 17 in 1962 and issued that decree, had retired. The 1965 decree
18 and the 1967 decree were entered by the Chancellor who did not 19 hear the evidence.

20 The question as to the new Code of Professional 21 Responsibility, I think, is pertinent here. I don't feel I 22 go quite as far as my position was represented by the State Bar.
23 That new canon says that it's a lawyer's duty to see that legal 24 business is widely disseminated. The actual language is that 25 a lawyer should assist the legal profession, fulfilling its duty

1 to make legal counsel available.

2           However, it does have a caveat in it that legal 3 services plan is that you can tell people that they have law-
4 suits; you must not take the case unless you are constitution-5 ally protected. This has been criticized as saying that the 6 bar associations are willing to recognize their prospective
7 client's constitutional rights, but no other rights. And I 8 think that for that reason this Court should be clear in 9 delineating what the constitutional rights of the Brotherhood 10 here and of other legal service groups is in this case.

11           The question as to no chilling in Virginia. There 12 is no evidence in the record, of course, as to whether there is 13 any chilling in Virginia or not. The Virginia case, in 1962
14 was not based on any evidence as to Virginia.

15           I don't know if Your Honors recall it, but I do 16 very well, that the evidence was from other States in the 17 Union. And there was nothing said about anything in Virginia.
18 At that time there was no legal counsel in Virginia. The legal 19 counsel involved was situated in Baltimore. Since that time 20 there has been a legal counsel appointed in Virginia.

21           The question as to whether the assertion of legal 22 rights is chilled in Virginia is -- well, I would suggest, in 23 any event, a very peculiar one and maybe only a Virginia lawyer 24 would know just exactly whether there was any chilling or not.
25 My experiences in Virginia showed that the recognition of legal

1 rights of individuals was certainly much less than Illinois, 2 and at many times I was amazed to hear the constructions of 3 ethical canons that were promulgated in the Virginia case.

4 All in all, I feel this case, through many hearing 5 and arguments that have gone on for a great number of years, 6 and it is for that reason that I would respectfully submit to 7 this Court that the proper action here should be a reversal, 8 without any remandment and in ending this case.

9 Q Without what?

10 A Without remandment.

11 Thank you, Your Honors.

12 MR. CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Thank you, Mr. Naughton.
13 Thank you, Mr. Ruegsegger. The case is submitted.

14 (Whereupon, at 11:10 o'clock a.m., the argument 15 in the above-entitled matter was concluded)
