CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: We will hear arguments in Tibbs against Florida. Mr. Beller, you may proceed whenever you're ready.

ORAL ARGUMENT OF LOUIS R. BELLER, ESQ.,
ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER

MR. BELLER: Mr. Chief Justice and may it please the Court:

I received the briefs, both the brief of the United States as amicus curiae and the answering brief from the State of Florida. I think the question has been misstated in the answering brief for the State of Florida. The question that they cite is whether the constitutional prohibition against double jeopardy precludes retrial of the Petitioner where the appellate court, acting as a thirteenth juror, assessed the credibility of the witnesses and re-weighed the evidence, concluding that although the evidence was sufficient as a matter of law to sustain the verdicts, the Petitioner should be afforded a new trial.

I think the question is just pure and simple, as stated in my original brief, whether or not the double jeopardy applies where the Court has grounds for retrial under the double jeopardy clause because of the fact that the court originally weighed and found the 1 evidence insufficient to convict the Petitioner.

2 QUESTION: Mr. Beller, where is Mr. Tibbs
3 now?

4 MR. BELLER: Mr. Tibbs is in Chicago. He was 5 -- on the motion to dismiss, the case was discharged.
6 He was out on bond at that particular time, but of 7 course the bond would then be dropped.

8 QUESTION: But he is not incarcerated now?

9 MR. BELLER: No, he is not.

10 The question of double jeopardy, as opposed to 11 weight, is presented in the Government's brief as amicus 12 curiae, and they say it would affect Rule 33 of the 13 Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure. Rule 33 of the 14 Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure applies to the trial 15 court, who in effect is sitting as a thirteenth juror, 16 because the trial court does see the evidence, does see 17 the witnesses, weighs the credibility of the witnesses.

18 I don't think anything that this Court does in 19 the Delbert Tibbs case should have any effect upon Rule
20 33. I think that's a good rule. The trial court 21 sitting as a thirteenth juror -- that's the trial court, 22 not an appellate court -- has the same opportunity as 23 the parties who are the jurors to weigh the evidence.
24 And if the trial court feels under Rule 33 that there 25 should be a new trial, it orders a new trial in the 1 interest of justice.

2 Now, what happened in this particular case is 3 that the appellate court of the State of Florida, the 4 Supreme Court, who is the direct court of appeals in a 5 murder trial, under Rule 9.140 of the Florida Rules of 6 Criminal Procedure -- or Appellate Procedure -- (f), did 7 review the case and reviewed the totality of the case, 8 did, as it is required to do, did a total review of the 9 evidence.

10 And I'm sure the Court is aware of the various 11 points of evidence that it did review. But what it did 12 was this. It said that this evidence is insufficient.
13 It didn't use that phraseology. It said that the 14 evidence was -- there were insufficiencies in the 15 evidence. There were things about the evidence. And 16 then it went on to list --

17 QUESTION: Did they not say in effect there 18 was not enough evidence here for the jury to reach the 19 verdict that it reached?

20 MR. BELLER: Correct. They concluded that 21 there was not enough evidence for a reasonable man to 22 conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant 23 was guilty. And that's weighing the sufficiency of the 24 evidence.

25 And they concluded by saying, rather than risk

1 the very real possibility that Tibbs had nothing to do
2 with these crimes, we reverse his conviction and remand 3 for a new trial.

4 Now, this happened prior to this Court's 5 decision in Burks and Greene, and there was a concurring
6 opinion by Justice Boyd at that particular time, who 7 said, I believe that this man should not be retried, but 8 under the current law he probably can be retried. Burks
9 and Greene, if my understanding of them is correct, said 10 simply this: that where a trial court -- where an 11 appellate court reweighs the evidence and finds that the 12 evidence is not enough to convict beyond and to the 13 exclusion of every reasonable doubt, that it's the same 14 as finding that there is insufficient evidence and that 15 he cannot retry them under the double jeopardy clause.

16 QUESTION: Mr. Beller, I thought the trial
17 court simply made a determination that in the interest 18 of justice the Defendant should have a new trial. They 19 pointed out seven so-called weaknesses in the state's 20 case and then said there should be a new trial. Isn't 21 that so?

22 MR. BELLER: When they reviewed their initial 23 decision, yes, they said there should be a new trial.
24 But that was prior to Burks and Greene, and Burks and 25 Greene simply set up the proposition that you did not

1 waive the right to the double jeopardy clause by asking 2 for a new trial. I think previous to that the law was 3 that if you applied to an appellate court for a new 4 trial and the court granted you a new trial, it was 5 simply doing what you asked for and you had waived your 6 right to the double jeopardy clause when you got your 7 new trial, even if it was a question of evidentiary
8 insufficiency.

9 And the problem here is, what did they reverse 10 on. They did set up a series of nine various 11 deficiencies, and they all go to evidentiary weight.
12 None of them go to any question of a legal 13 insufficiency, whether or not he had admitted something 14 improperly, whether or not a question had been asked 15 that should have been excluded. None of these were 16 raised.

17 So it was a question of whether or not the 18 entire evidence was sufficient to convict.

19 QUESTION: Well, in their second opinion they 20 certainly take a different view of what they did in 21 their first opinion than you do.

22 MR. BELLER: Let me apply it to the second
23 opinion. The second opinion, through the fifth section 24 of the second opinion -- in fact, when I read the second 25 opinion -- and you'll find that the dissenting judges

1 all concur in it through Roman numeral number V, their 2 fifth section, which is the majority of the second 3 opinion.

4 The second opinion reviews the District Court,
5 the Second District Court of Appeals opinion, which said
6 that he should be retried because the reversal was not 7 based on insufficiency, but was based on weight of the 8 evidence, that though there was enough evidence to 9 legally convict Tibbs, yet because of the weight in the 10 interest of justice they felt he should have a new 11 trial.

12 They went through and reviewed it, the 13 majority in the second opinion, and they said, well, 14 weight and insufficiency are so close we're never going 15 to do that again. In fact, quoting from their second 16 opinion -- and this is from the Joint Appendix on page
17 19: "Henceforth, no appellate court should reverse a 18 conviction or judgment on the grounds that the weight of 19 the evidence is tenuous or insubstantial. Cases now 20 pending on appeal in which a court has characterized the 21 reversal as based on evidentiary weight should be 22 reconsidered in light of our decision today, and under 23 the doctrine of Burks and Greene any retrial of those 24 cases may or may not be barred on the basis of former 25 jeopardy."

1 QUESTION: Well, let me call your attention to 2 page 22 of the Joint Appendix, which is part of part 3 five of the court's second opinion, down at the bottom 4 of the page where they say: "The fact remains that we 5 cannot fairly conclude from our original opinion that 6 Tibbs' convictions were reversed on the grounds of 7 evidentiary insufficiency."

8 Now, don't you agree that at least the second 9 time around in interpreting their first opinion they 10 said that they had not reversed for evidentiary
11 insufficiency?

12 MR. BELLER: I would agree with that. What 13 they said is that they're never going to do it again.
14 But what they said is that in this particular case they 15 had reversed on the weight. Now, there really have been 16 no Supreme Court cases that establish weight versus 17 insufficiency.

18 And as I said, through paragraph five -- I
19 thought, in fact, when I read the case through number 20 five, I thought I had won the case. I thought that they 21 were going to let Tibbs go. And if you look at the 22 concurring opinions -- the dissenting opinions, they all 23 agree through paragraph five, because the court does, it 24 dissects -- dissects; pardon me -- the original
25 application of weight versus insufficiency, and says

1 it's too hard to determine.

2 In fact, they went through -- if you look at,
3 and I'm sure you have -- but they went through and 4 delineated all the cases in Florida that had used the 5 weight theory and said that they were very tenuous, and 6 that most of these cases were reversed on insufficient
7 evidence, and therefore, as I said before, they then 8 concluded that no court should reverse on the weight 9 again.

10 However, they left in effect Rule 9.140(f) of 11 the Florida Rules of Appellate Procedure, and that rule 12 says: "In the interest of justice, the court may grant 13 any relief to which any of the parties is entitled in 14 capital cases. In capital cases" -- and this was a 15 capital case -- the court shall review the evidence to 16 determine if the interest of justice requires a new 17 trial, whether or not insufficiency of the evidence is 18 an issue presented for review."

19 But then they went on to say that if a court 20 does under 9.140 review the insufficiency of the 21 evidence to determine whether or not it's sufficient and 22 reverses -- and this is, I'm quoting from 21, the second 23 paragraph. This is from the Joint Appendix:

24 "With respect to the special mention of 25 capital cases in the second sentence of the rule, we

1 take that sentence to mean no more than that an 2 additional review requirement is imposed when 3 insufficiency of the evidence is not specifically raised 4 on appeal -- namely, that the reviewing court shall 5 consider sufficiency anyhow and, if warranted, reverse
6 the conviction. The consequence of that action would be 7 to bar retrial under the double jeopardy clause."

8 They're saying if a court does review the 9 sufficiency of the evidence it would bar it. Now, I
10 raised this point in my brief and I think it's important 11 to raise the point, because it's a question of 12 interpretation of what the court originally said.

13 The three dissents here, the three justices
14 that say that the evidence was insufficient, and there
15 is a very -- and I quoted extensively from Justice
16 Sundberg's opinion in my brief, because I think he said
17 it better than I can.

18 But the three justices there were part of the 19 original majority that had reversed for a new trial.
20 There was only one justice of the original majority that 21 didn't join in, and the reason he didn't join in is 22 because he wasn't on the court, as far as I could 23 determine. And nobody can read the man's mind, of 24 course.

25 But what I'm saying is that the people who

1 wrote the opinion -- Justice England, who wrote the 2 opinion, the original opinion, said in the interest of 3 justice we should let him go. What he's doing is 4 applying -- and he did quote Rule 9.140(f). What he's 5 doing is saying, under Rule 9.140(f), as the majority
6 said here, we reviewed the evidence, we found it 7 insufficient, therefore double jeopardy bars a retrial.
8 In the interest of justice he should not be retried.

9 And he did it very shortly. Justice Englander
10 in his dissent said, I agree with the court through part 11 five. I agree with the court through part five, too.

12 Justice Sundberg in his dissent started out
13 with saying, I agree with the court through part five.
14 Because through part five the court says, we shouldn't 15 use the standard of weight or insufficiency, because 16 weight is too tenuous. And then they finally come -- 17 they do come to the conclusion in this particular case 18 that they had made an error, that they had used the 19 standard of weight rather than insufficiency.

20 And they said we could do three things. We 21 could vacate our original order and say that we 22 shouldn't have reversed and sustain the original 23 conviction. We can send back for a new trial. Or we 24 could release him. And we think of the three we should 25 do the medium thing, which is send back for a new

1 trial.

2 QUESTION: Well, I suppose one of the 3 questions is whether that is an appropriate remedy for a 4 reviewing court, is it not?

5 MR. BELLER: Sure. I really do not think that 6 the first option is a viable option, where they could 7 say at this late date their original conviction should 8 stand.

9 QUESTION: I'm just talking about the second 10 alternative that they took. Are they not open to at 11 least the arguable suggestion that they were sitting as 12 a jury?

13 MR. BELLER: To a certain extent, I think 14 every court sits as a jury, though the law -- and they 15 fairly pronounce what they consider law now. They say, 16 we should not sit as a juror, we should not do -- we 17 should just determine whether as a legal matter the 18 evidence was insufficient. And I think that's what they 19 did determine, because, just to give you a brief resume 20 of the case, because I know this Court is familiar with 21 the briefs, this was a one-witness case.

22 QUESTION: I think you can assume we're all 23 familiar with the facts, counsel.

24 MR. BELLER: But there is one other point that 25 I would like to make --

1 QUESTION: Don't we have to accept what the 2 court said that it did? You're not asking us to reweigh
3 the question and say that the Florida court did 4 something else, are you?

5 MR. BELLER: I'm asking you to determine what 6 the Florida court did in the original Tibbs decision in 7 the light of Burks and Greene, which is the subsequent 8 decisions of this particular court.

9 QUESTION: Well, I thought you were asking us 10 to say that if a conviction is set aside because it's 11 against the weight of the evidence that we should apply
12 double jeopardy to it. But what I think I hear you
13 saying is that we should re-examine this whole question
14 for the Florida court to say they did something other 15 than what they said they did.

16 MR. BELLER: Whether they call it weight or 17 insufficiency, if the court ruled on the evidence and 18 didn't rule on any legal point other than just the 19 evidence, that brings it within the double jeopardy
20 clause.

21 QUESTION: Well, what do you do in the case 22 where the trial court simply sets aside the verdict and 23 grants a new trial, sitting as a so-called thirteenth
24 juror?

25 MR. BELLER: I think that's a different

1 situation, because the trial court is a thirteenth
2 juror.

3 QUESTION: Well, but within a system of state
4 procedure certainly the appellate court can decide it 5 will sit as a thirteenth juror too, can't it?

6 MR. BELLER: Under Rule 9.140 the court has 7 left itself that option. It says they should never 8 reverse -- review the weight of the evidence. But then 9 again, the Florida Supreme Court has set out what it can 10 do. It said under Rule 9.140(f), if we do review the 11 evidence and determine that it's not enough, then they 12 say the consequence of that act would be to bar retrial 13 under the double jeopardy clause.

14 What we're saying is the original court didn't 15 know Burks and Greene. Burks and Greene came 16 afterwards. The original court did sit down and did an 17 extensive review of the evidence and found it lacking to 18 convict beyond and to the exclusion of every reasonable
19 doubt. And actually, they came within the standards, I 20 think, that were set by this Court in --

21 (Pause.)

22 MR. BELLER: This Court has set various 23 standards, and that's the standard, is beyond the 24 exclusion of every reasonable doubt. If you don't come 25 to that standard -- and Justice Sundberg set out the 1 case. I think it was Scott, but let me find it.

2 QUESTION: Well, are you saying, counsel, that 3 what the Supreme Court of Florida did is to hold that 4 the trial judge should not have let the case go to the 5 jury in the first instance?

6 MR. BELLER: I think that's very possible,
7 Your Honor. I think that the trial court should not 8 have. The Florida law does allow conviction by 9 testimony of just the prosecutrix alone, unsubstantiated
10 testimony. However, what the Florida Supreme Court
11 says, in that instance there must be some other, however 12 tenuous, corroborating evidence. And that's why they 13 said in this case there was nothing but Cynthia Nadeau's 14 word. There's nothing to show the man was a resident of 15 the area, that he was ever in the area, that he had ever 16 seen the person before, or that she knew him or any 17 otherwise.

18 And in most convictions where there is a 19 prosecutrix's testimony alone they have something else
20 to substantiate. They went through a whole series.
21 Again, I won't burden the Court with the various 22 criteria that they went through. There is nothing to 23 show that he had owned a car. There was nothing to show 24 he had ever been in that particular area.

25 There was nothing substantiating her testimony

1 in and of -- naked testimony -- in and of itself, other 2 than the factor that there was a so-called confession to 3 an inmate within the jail, which the court discounted,
4 because I think this Court is familiar and every court 5 is familiar with the fact that you can get people in 6 jail to say anything if it will lessen their sentence 7 one day.

8 QUESTION: Mr. Beller, may I ask, Justice Boyd 9 in the first go-around was the crucial vote, was he 10 not?

11 MR. BELLER: Yes.

12 QUESTION: And certainly in the second
13 go-around in his dissent he took the position clearly -- 14 or I'm asking whether he did -- that his vote was on 15 insufficiency.

16 MR. BELLER: Well, there's no question about 17 that.

18 QUESTION: So it gets down to what the three 19 of the plurality of the first go-around held.

20 MR. BELLER: What I'm saying is that the 21 original first court, the surviving members of the 22 original majority have all said that their vote was on 23 insufficiency. Justice Sundberg wrote the largest 24 dissent and he clearly comes to the conclusion that his 25 original opinion in concurrence was on insufficiency.

1 Justice Boyd says it. And Justice Englander says, I
2 concur with the court through section five, but then I
3 use Florida Rule 9.140(f) and --

4 QUESTION: But as Justice O'Connor said, in 5 the second go-around the majority said otherwise. And 6 is this like, as is so often the case here, we are 7 confronted with a later Congress' expression of what it 8 earlier meant?

9 MR. BELLER: I think so. And also, the 10 expression is by the second court, the majority in the 11 second court. Two of the majority in the second court 12 were the dissents in the first court. They would have 13 upheld the original conviction. And two are new members 14 of the court.

15 QUESTION: Well, the Florida Supreme Court
16 certainly messed it up in a way, didn't it?

17 MR. BELLER: I certainly think they did. And 18 certainly -- let's not lose sight of one particular 19 aspect of the double jeopardy clause. Frankly, that's 20 exactly what the double jeopardy clause means to me, is 21 that the state doesn't get a second bite at the apple, 22 that the state, if it doesn't have sufficient evidence 23 or enough evidence or the weight of the evidence at the 24 first trial -- whatever you want to call it, but the 25 court says it has to be enough evidence to convince a

1 person beyond and to the exclusion of every reasonable 2 doubt, and if the appellate court says that they didn't 3 have that much evidence then --

4 QUESTION: Mr. Beller, what I meant by my last 5 remark is that they messed it up for us in considering 6 the double jeopardy feature. And I'm sure they feel 7 they did the right thing as far as their procedure is 8 concerned. It makes it a ticklish case for you and your 9 client and your opposition.

10 QUESTION: Mr. Beller, when a court gives a 11 new trial to a Defendant because the conviction is 12 against the weight of the evidence, isn't the court 13 merely granting the Defendant a second opportunity to 14 get an acquittal? And if your rule were adopted, if 15 double jeopardy has to apply, wouldn't you preclude 16 state court judges from, in the interest of justice,
17 giving a Defendant that kind of an opportunity?

18 MR. BELLER: The Supreme Court of the State of 19 Florida said it didn't do that in this particular case.
20 It said, we specifically reserve the right under Rule 21 9.140(f) to grant new trials in the interest of 22 justice. Then they went on to interpret it and say, if 23 under 9.140(f) we reweigh the evidence, then double 24 jeopardy applies. At least that's my thinking of what 25 they said, and I'm not sure that they're clear in what

1 they said in that particular paragraph.

2 They said in this particular -- they didn't 3 say we grant -- and that's where I take issue with the 4 brief of the State. Nowhere did they say in there that 5 we're granting a new -- that we granted a new trial in 6 the interest of justice in the original case. They said 7 we made a mistake in the original case. They said we 8 reweighed the evidence. We used the weight of the 9 evidence, which we shouldn't use; that an appellate 10 court should just act on whether or not the evidence is 11 legally sufficient or not.

12 They said, but we don't preclude an appellate 13 court granting a new trial under Rule 9.140(f). And 14 then they went on to say that if they do consider the 15 sufficiency of the evidence under Rule 9.140(f), in 16 light of Burks and Greene they would have to say that he 17 could not be retried.

18 There was no other consideration, no other
19 technical consideration, other than the evidence. And I
20 think that the majority in this court states the law
21 right and comes to the wrong conclusion to a certain 22 extent. And that's why the dissents all joined in 23 through paragraph five, through section five of the 24 majority's opinion, in that the weight and insufficiency 25 are so hard to distinguish, even for a court; whether or

1 not I have insufficient money or the weight of the money
2 is great enough, or coffee or whatever. It's a tenuous 3 aspect that an appellate court shouldn't get into.

4 The appellate court, if there is legally
5 sufficient evidence, should not reverse.

6 QUESTION: Suppose an appellate court, suppose 7 the Florida Supreme Court, reversed, simply citing the 8 rule, mentioning nothing about the evidence, that 9 they're granting a new trial in the interest of justice
10 under the rule, nothing more. Double jeopardy?

11 MR. BELLER: Under that supposition, granting 12 the rule and not knowing what the court's consideration 13 was, he might be able to be retried. Maybe at that 14 point there should be a motion for clarification of the 15 court's ruling, trying to find out what --

16 QUESTION: Let's assume there was and the 17 court denied it.

18 MR. BELLER: If I were a defense attorney and 19 if there were nothing that the court had considered
20 other than in the Tibbs case, I would make the same 21 motion that I made before the trial court now. Because 22 if the court just considers evidence and it does not 23 consider technical objects, whether they call it weight, 24 whether they call it insufficiency, whatever label they 25 put on it, they're saying there was not enough evidence

1 to convict this particular party. And that's 2 insufficient.

3 QUESTION: Well, they might, if they merely 4 cited the rule, they might be doing it for an 5 accumulation of trial errors which they've elected not 6 to identify.

7 MR. BELLER: I think the court has that 8 option. But they did elect to identify what they 9 reversed it under in this particular instance.

10 QUESTION: In the first opinion.

11 MR. BELLER: In the first opinion.

12 QUESTION: But is the first opinion of any 13 significance now? Isn't that vacated and the second 14 opinion is the only one we deal with?

15 MR. BELLER: You can't possibly -- you can't 16 separate the two, because the second opinion is an 17 interpretation of what the first opinion meant. The 18 second opinion is saying, based on our first opinion, we 19 think we did this and we think we did that. So there's 20 no way to separate it. It doesn't exist in a vacuum in 21 and of itself.

22 It would be meaningless to read the second 23 opinion without reading the first opinion, because 24 that's what the court's doing. It's saying, we're 25 rereading our opinion in the light of Burks and Greene,

1 which are new cases, and we're determining whether or 2 not we reverse on weight or insufficiency. And what 3 they did say was, we reversed on weight in this 4 particular case, though we've never done it before, and 5 we're never going to do it again.

6 QUESTION: Well, Mr. Beller, isn't that 7 logical to believe that it's true, where you have a 8 situation where the evidence in the case consisted of 9 the testimony of the eyewitness victim, hardly 10 insufficient as a matter of law? Isn't it a case where 11 the court of appeals said, we didn't believe her?
12 Reading the cold record, we just don't believe here.
13 We're going to weigh it differently.

14 But that isn't insufficient evidence as a 15 matter of law, is it?

16 MR. BELLER: I think as a matter of law it
17 might be, unless there's some even very faint
18 corroboration. I think that most cases that have held 19 eyewitness testimony to be the sole convicting factor 20 have had some strands of corroboration. And that's what 21 the court went into, the fact that there wasn't the 22 vaguest point of corroboration other than her story, and 23 that there were reasons to judge her story suspect, not 24 the least of which was the factor that she made an 25 identification based on solely a photographic exhibition

1 of Delbert Tibbs.

2 In fact, I didn't handle the original appeal, 3 but that strikes me as almost the classic example of 4 fruits of a poisonous tree. It was mentioned in passing 5 by the court, not as a major reason for the reversal, 6 but as the reason to suspect Nadeau's testimony, to find 7 that her testimony wasn't completely within the bounds 8 of the law, that it was based on a faulty exhibition of 9 just these photographs of Tibbs.

10 She saw three photographs of Tibbs himself, as 11 part of the original testimony.

12 MR. BELLER: That white light bothers me.

13 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: That means you have 14 about three and a half minutes left.

15 MR. BELLER: Well, let me sum up, then, if I 16 may.

17 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: That's the time you've 18 reserved for rebuttal.

19 MR. BELLER: All right. I will reserve that 20 time, Your Honor.

21 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Mr. Palecki?

22 ORAL ARGUMENT OF MICHAEL A. PALECKI, ESQ.

23 ON BEHALF OF RESPONDENT

24 MR. PALECKI: Mr. Chief Justice and may it
25 please the Court:

1 The Respondent here did not misstate the 2 issue. Clearly, the appellate court in the instant case
3 did act as a thirteenth juror. In the second Tibbs
4 case, the court stated in effect that it did act as a 5 thirteenth juror. The court stated that their previous 6 opinion reversing and remanding for a new trial was 7 based upon evidentiary weight. The court stated that 8 the trial testimony was legally sufficient to support
9 Tibbs' conviction under Florida law.

10 The court stated, we reweighed the evidence
11 supporting Tibbs' conviction. And finally, the court
12 stated, "We cannot fairly conclude that Tibbs'
13 convictions were reversed on the grounds of evidentiary
14 insufficiency."

15 Clearly, this is what is meant by an appellate 16 court sitting as a thirteenth juror.

17 QUESTION: Of course, not everybody agreed 18 with it. Not everybody on the court agreed with your 19 analysis.

20 MR. PALECKI: That's correct, but that is the 21 opinion of the court, the majority of the opinion of the 22 court, which is now the law in the State of Florida.
23 And the Petitioner here is merely asking this Court to 24 --

25 QUESTION: Mr. Attorney General, supposing the

1 law of Florida had been perfectly clear that at the time
2 prior to this decision that the only action an appellate 3 court could take would be to reverse for insufficiency, 4 and some of the judges of your court say that was what 5 the law was. And say it's also perfectly clear that 6 after this decision that's the only action the court can 7 take, and they hold that in this one case we'll do
8 everything differently. Would that be permissible?

9 MR. PALECKI: That would be permissible, Your 10 Honor. However, that's not what occurred here, first of 11 all. And secondly, when you're talking --

12 QUESTION: That's what some of the dissenting
13 judges say occurred.

14 MR. PALECKI: That's true. That is what the 15 dissenting judges say occurred. But the dissenting
16 judges are in the minority in this case.

17 Now first of all, to answer your question --

18 QUESTION: Aren't they usually?

19 MR. PALECKI: Excuse me?

20 QUESTION: Aren't they usually?

21 MR. PALECKI: Yes, they are.

22 (Laughter.)

23 MR. PALECKI: My point is that the dissenting
24 -- the opinion of the dissenting judges is not the law
25 in the State of Florida.

1 QUESTION: No, but my question was, assuming 2 they correctly summarized the law and you agreed with 3 it, before this decision and after this decision, would 4 it be constitutionally permissible to have this case be 5 decided on the weight of the evidence, whereas all other 6 cases like it have been decided on sufficiency grounds?

7 MR. PALECKI: Well, one thing I think
8 throughout the country I would say pretty much 9 universally -- perhaps there are some exceptions -- the 10 courts throughout the country for the last century have 11 been saying appellate courts should not reweigh the 12 evidence. And we learned this in law school. You know, 13 it's one of the elementary principals of appellate law.

14 Yet, time and time again appellate courts do 15 reweigh the evidence. It's a matter of fact. I have 16 read dissenting opinions of this Court where the dissent
17 says the majority here reweighs the evidence. I believe 18 also this Court has written majority opinions saying 19 that the dissent is reweighing the evidence.

20 So we have an area of law which it appears
21 that very often courts try to dodge or evade, and courts
22 are continuously reweighing the evidence, even though 23 they say that they aren't. But in any event, the law in 24 the State of Florida in this particular case perhaps is 25 not clear that the courts can't reweigh the evidence.

1 And I would refer the Court to the opinion of the Second
2 District Court of Appeal, which is in the appendix,
3 where the Second District Court of Appeal cites at least 4 ten cases in the State of Florida where appellate courts
5 had reweighed the evidence. So the fact of the matter 6 is that there is a bulk of caselaw in Florida which has 7 the effect of saying that in Florida the appellate 8 courts up until that time can reweigh the evidence.

9 Now, in this case not only did the Florida
10 Supreme Court rule that Tibbs' reversal was not based 11 upon evidentiary insufficiency; the court ruled that it 12 had improperly reweighed the evidence and described 13 Tibbs' reversal as an appellate reversal improperly 14 entered. So the Florida Supreme Court has conceded that 15 it reweighed the evidence and has described its earlier 16 decision as an appellate reversal improperly entered.

17 And the court went on to state: "We could 18 simply apply the principles enunciated in today's 19 decision, vacate our previous reversal, and affirm
20 Tibbs' conviction." So not only was Tibbs' reversal not 21 an acquittal here; it should not even have been a 22 reversal, according to the Supreme Court of Florida.

23 Here retrial does not give the State a second 24 choice -- excuse me -- a second chance to supply 25 evidence that it failed to muster in the first trial.

1 Here retrial gives the Defendant a second chance to 2 convince the jury of his innocence.

3 In this court --

4 QUESTION: How long under Florida law do you
5 think that that could keep on going?

6 MR. PALECKI: I'm not sure I understand the 7 question.

8 QUESTION: Suppose he goes back and he's tried 9 again and the 12 jurors find him guilty, he goes up to 10 the reviewing court and they say, we still have these 11 doubts. Can they send it back again?

12 MR. PALECKI: Yes, Your Honor, they can.

13 QUESTION: How long? My question is, how long 14 can that go on?

15 MR. PALECKI: Well, I would answer that 16 question by referring the Court to its caselaw on hung 17 juries. This Court has written several opinions which 18 say when there is a hung jury there can be a retrial.

19 QUESTION: Yes, but then there is no verdict.
20 That's quite a different situation.

21 MR. PALECKI: That's true, Your Honor, there 22 is no verdict.

23 QUESTION: And there's been no determination
24 at all.

25 MR. PALECKI: But in this regard the hung jury

1 case is closer to one terminating in an acquittal than 2 the case where the appellate court reverses, despite the 3 technical sufficiency of the evidence.

4 QUESTION: You mean it's a hung jury because 5 the thirteenth juror is holding out?

6 MR. PALECKI: It's very analogous to a hung
7 jury, because the appellate court as a thirteenth juror
8 is merely saying, we disagree with the other twelve 9 jurors. So in that case, in that way, it is very 10 analogous to a hung jury. But as I stated earlier, the 11 situation of a hung jury is even closer to an acquittal
12 than in the case where an appellate court reverses
13 despite the technical sufficiency of the evidence.
14 Because after a hung jury the prosecutor knows his case
15 has not led to a conviction, whereas in the case here
16 the prosecutor knows that his case has led to a 17 conviction and that the twelve jurors have believed the 18 Defendant Tibbs was guilty.

19 I would cite this Court -- excuse me.

20 I would argue that in this situation it is 21 Tibbs who gets the proverbial second bite at the apple
22 and not the State of Florida, because Tibbs gets to go 23 in front of a jury again and perhaps Tibbs can be 24 acquitted the second time.

25 QUESTION: Where did Tibbs get the right to 1 prove his innocence?

2 MR. PALECKI: Well --

3 QUESTION: That was your phrase. I never knew
4 we required anybody to prove their innocence. I thought 5 that was the Napoleonic Code.

6 MR. PALECKI: Well, Your Honor, that was a
7 slip of the tongue. Perhaps I should have used the word
8 that Tibbs will be found innocent by the -- found 9 innocent by the jury in his second trial, not that he'll 10 have to prove his innocence.

11 QUESTION: Well, I don't think that the 12 average citizen is required to have a jury to declare 13 him innocent. I thought he was presumed a little bit.

14 MR. PALECKI: Well, at this time he is 15 presumed innocent, because the Florida Supreme Court has 16 reversed his conviction and said that Tibbs starts off 17 on a clean slate.

18 QUESTION: And if he's presumed to be 19 innocent, he doesn't have the right to prove his 20 innocence.

21 MR. PALECKI: That's correct, Your Honor, and 22 he does not have to prove his innocence.

23 In upholding the Massachusetts dual tier trial
24 system, this Court held that nothing in the double 25 jeopardy clause prohibits a state from affording a

1 Defendant two opportunities to avoid conviction and 2 secure an acquittal. And that's merely what I'm saying 3 in this case.

4 Under Burks, the Defendant will go free only 5 when the prosecution's failure is clear. Petitioner
6 requests a drastic broadening of Burks to cover the 7 situation where not only isn't failure clear, but where 8 there is no failure at all, because here the Florida
9 Supreme Court has said that its reversal was improperly 10 entered, that they made a mistake and they should never 11 even have reversed it in the first place.

12 So in this case there has been no failure at 13 all, and to extend Burks to a situation where there has 14 been no failure at all is completely uncalled for. Now, 15 this --

16 QUESTION: Is it your position that the 17 opinion in the first case by the Supreme Court is 18 vacated totally, or is it merely modified?

19 MR. PALECKI: Well, they state that we could 20 simply apply the principles enunciated in today's
21 decision, vacate our previous reversal, and affirm
22 Tibbs' conviction, but they chose not to do so. They 23 felt that Tibbs would be prejudiced by doing so because 24 they've already told Tibbs he can have another trial and 25 they're going to let him have the second trial.

1 QUESTION: Mr. Attorney General, was a
2 judgment entered after the first one, if you know?

3 MR. PALECKI: Yes, Your Honor. A judgment was 4 entered.

5 QUESTION: In Florida, once a judgment's
6 issued can it be recalled?

7 MR. PALECKI: I think the appellate law in 8 Florida is similar to other states, in that once a 9 judgment is entered the appellate court can reverse the 10 previous conviction and remand, if necessary, for a new 11 trial.

12 QUESTION: The same court? Once a judgment is 13 issued, the same court can reverse that judgment?

14 MR. PALECKI: Well, I don't see anything in 15 the Constitution of the United States that would 16 prohibit that, Your Honor. And as far as Florida law is 17 concerned, the Supreme Court of Florida has in effect 18 done that, although this was an appellate decision and 19 not a judgment. I think there's a distinction between 20 an appellate decision and a judgment.

21 Here the Florida Supreme Court said that its 22 previous appellate decision was wrong. Just I would say 23 it's similar to the Burks case, where this Court has 24 said that Bryant is no longer the law in this state. I 25 think that an appellate court --

1 QUESTION: I'm talking about in the same
2 case. They didn't say that. This is the exact same
3 case. I thought judgment was final. Our Constitution
4 allows us to hear only appeals from final judgments. So 5 if the Florida court in the first case issued a final 6 judgment, "final" in quotes, double underscored, can the 7 same court reverse that final judgment in that case?
8 That's my problem.

9 MR. PALECKI: Well, in this case the Florida
10 Supreme Court did not reverse its previous judgment. It 11 merely said that it's reasoning in reaching the previous 12 judgment was incorrect and that it should not have done
13 that. But they've pretty much stuck with their judgment 14 that --

15 QUESTION: So the judgment was not reversed.

16 MR. PALECKI: That's correct, Your Honor.

17 QUESTION: That's what I'm trying to get.

18 MR. PALECKI: Petitioner is asking this Court 19 to redetermine a matter of state law. In this case the 20 Florida Supreme Court has said that it reweighed the 21 decision, its previous -- it reweighed the testimony in 22 its previous decision, and that this was not a case that 23 was overturned based on evidentiary insufficiency.

24 The case of Bell v. Maryland stands for the 25 proposition that the Supreme Court of the United States

1 will not redetermine matters of state law. Here
2 evidence -- the evidence was sufficient under Jackson v.
3 Virginia. That is, in viewing the evidence in the light 4 most favorable to the prosecution, a rational tryer of 5 fact could have found guilt here.

6 QUESTION: Well, if they had stopped there we 7 might have a different case, would we not?

8 MR. PALECKI: Yes, Your Honor. I think that 9 if they had stopped there we wouldn't have any of the 10 problems that we have right here, because the facts are 11 very clear that Cynthia Nadeau on two occasions
12 specifically identified Mr. Tibbs in the courtroom, 13 pointed to him and said, that is the man that raped me,
14 he is the man that murdered Terry Milroy.

15 She testified that Tibbs shot Milroy in the 16 back, that he then went over to Milroy, who was pleading
17 for his life, pleading, don't shoot me again, and said 18 to Milroy, does it hurt, boy, are you in pain? Finally, 19 after he was done taunting Milroy he dispatched him with 20 a single bullet to the head.

21 Thereafter, he went on to rape Cynthia 22 Nadeau. There was the testimony of the doctor that she 23 did have sperm in her vagina. There was the 24 corroborating testimony of Tibbs' jailmate, who 25 testified that Tibbs had told him he committed the

1 murder and went into some detail, stated that he, Tibbs,
2 had told him that he was driving down the road in Fort
3 Myer when he saw a couple hitchhiking, and he mentioned
4 the name of the road, Cleveland or Fowler.

5 Tibbs told his cellmate that he, on the 6 pretense of running out of gas, he went out into a field 7 where there was some farm machinery, presumably to 8 siphon gas out of it. Tibbs' cellmate said that Tibbs 9 had offered the fellow money if he walked off; that 10 Tibbs told him that he pulled out his gun and told the 11 dude to start running; that Tibbs told him that he shot 12 the dude that was running; that Tibbs said that he had 13 sex with the girl and walked over and shot the dude
14 again; that Tibbs said he was fixing to kill the girl, 15 but she swayed him not to by telling him she would be 16 his woman; and finally, that the girl jumped out of the 17 truck and that a car was coming at that time, so he had 18 to get going.

19 So in detail Tibbs' cellmate gave the story of 20 the crime, and it corroborates on many points with the 21 testimony of Ms. Nadeau.

22 QUESTION: Did his cellmate explain what 23 happened to the truck?

24 MR. PALECKI: He testified that Tibbs had told 25 him that the truck had run out of gas between Fort Myers

1 and, I don't remember if it was Miami or Fort
2 Lauderdale, but on the east coast of Florida. The truck 3 was never able to be found, although certainly that's 4 not fatally deficient under the test of Jackson v.
5 Virginia.

6 It's very clear that under Jackson v. Virginia
7 that there was a sufficient evidence that a reasonable
8 jury could have found guilt. And under Jackson v.
9 Virginia we must view the evidence in the light most 10 favorable to the prosecution.

11 If there is any question at all that the 12 Florida Supreme Court didn't act in good faith here, 13 that their second opinion was merely a ruse used in 14 order to get by Burks, I think it's clear that that's 15 not the case, because the Florida Supreme Court in a 16 similar case, McArthur v. Nourse, just some weeks before 17 this case had ruled that Burks applied. Because in that 18 case they said they had based their opinion upon
19 insufficiency.

20 So the Florida Supreme Court -- there's no
21 showing that the Florida Supreme Court used its second 22 opinion as a means of somehow evading the Burks 23 opinion. As the Florida Supreme Court stated in its 24 second opinion, prior to Burks there was no reason 25 whatsoever to be precise in your language concerning

1 evidentiary insufficiency, because Burks broke with a 2 long line of precedent reaching all the way back to 3 1896, United States versus Ball.

4 So there was no reason for the Florida Supreme 5 Court to believe in the first case that this question 6 would ever arise. And I don't see any problem with the 7 Florida Supreme Court coming back with a second opinion 8 saying, this is what we meant, and being precise with 9 our language here now that we know what Burks is the 10 law, this is what we meant when we came out with our 11 first opinion.

12 Now, the Petitioner incorrectly analyzes
13 United States v. Scott in his brief, and comes up with a 14 nice neat test, that there are two categories: one is 15 reversals based on fact, which means there must be an 16 acquittal; and the other is reversals based on trial
17 error, under which case there cannot be an acquittal.

18 But the Petitioner fails to recognize the 19 distinction between a dismissal at trial and a reversal 20 on appeal. At trial where there's a dismissal you're 21 taking the case away from a jury which might well find 22 the defendant not guilty, whereas on appeal we know that 23 the jury has found the defendant guilty.

24 In this case the 12 jurors said Tibbs is 25 guilty of first degree murder and rape, and for that

1 reason there are -- the test in Scott is not the same
2 test used in Burks, because the test in Scott does not 3 work on an appellate reversal, because every appellate 4 reversal based upon facts isn't necessarily an 5 acquittal.

6 In Burks this Court said that an acquittal
7 after the court reversed must mean that the evidence
8 should never even have gone to the jury. The appellate 9 court in this case, in the first Burks case, never said 10 or even hinted that the evidence should not have gone to 11 the jury. They never said that the trial court erred in 12 not granting an acquittal.

13 So for these reasons, the nice neat package we 14 have in Scott, where we have two categories -- reversal 15 based upon facts and reversal based upon trial error --
16 does not work on an appeal situation. On an appeal 17 situation we must have two different categories. We 18 have -- and this is, I think, supported by Burks --
19 those categories are reversals based upon evidentiary
20 insufficiency and every other ground for reversal.

21 On reversals based upon evidentiary
22 insufficiency, the double jeopardy clause applies and 23 the state cannot retry the defendant. On every other 24 ground for reversal the double jeopardy clause does not 25 apply and the state can retry the defendant.

1 Thank you.

2 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Very well.

3 Mr. Beller, you have only two minutes
4 remaining.

5 REBUTTAL ARGUMENT OF LOUIS R. BELLER, ESQ.,
6 ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER

7 MR. BELLER: Well, just shortly, Your Honor,
8 the State has brought up the District Court of Appeals
9 review of various courts. I would call the Court's 10 attention to the joint appendix, page 16, in which the 11 Supreme Court of Florida reviewed all those cases that 12 the appellate court brought up and said they all were 13 reversals on insufficient evidence, in the concluding 14 paragraph.

15 QUESTION: Mr. Beller, suppose when the case 16 -- did you argue the case in the --

17 MR. BELLER: Yes, Your Honor.

18 QUESTION: Suppose during the argument the 19 court said, we have concluded there's enough evidence to 20 affirm the conviction, but we think maybe in the 21 interest of justice we would grant a new trial if you 22 want one. But if you don't want one, why, we'll just 23 affirm the conviction.

24 Could the state put that to you, fairly put 25 that to you, without violating the double jeopardy

1 clause?

2 MR. BELLER: I don't think so, Your Honor. I
3 think that's the problem that this Court faced in Greene
4 and Burks, the old problem of, if you ask for a new 5 trial you waive your right to double jeopardy.
6 Certainly any defendant faced with the possibility of 7 either affirmation of a conviction or a new trial will 8 take the new trial, if the court put it in that blunt 9 words.

10 QUESTION: All right, suppose you took it.
11 And then you think you should win a motion, then, in the 12 trial court based on double jeopardy grounds?

13 MR. BELLER: Because subsequent this Court
14 said that's exactly what we should win, that we don't 15 waive our rights to new trial -- pardon me, I may have 16 answered you wrong. I didn't argue the original 17 appellate court decision, the appeal. I argued the 18 second appeal.

19 QUESTION: Well, suppose during that appeal
20 they had said that. You think that if you'd have taken 21 the new trial that in the trial court you could have 22 moved successfully to dismiss the case on double 23 jeopardy grounds?

24 QUESTION: Certainly under Greene and Burks,
25 because subsequent to that appeal, that particular

1 decision, this Court said, you don't waive your right to 2 a new trial if the court reverses on evidentiary 3 matters.

4 I would also state that the test is in Scott.
5 The test -- the Scott test is a very good test, and that 6 wasn't --

7 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Your time has expired
8 now, Mr. Beller.

9 MR. BELLER: All right. I would just reaffirm 10 that we feel that the test in Scott and this decision of 11 the court in Scott applies the standards.

12 Thank you.

13 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Thank you, gentlemen.
14 The case is submitted.

15 (Whereupon, at 11:03 o'clock p.m., the case in 16 the above-entitled matter was submitted.)
