P R O C E E D I N G S

CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Mr. Floyd, you may proceed whenever you're ready.

ORAL ARGUMENT OF JACK W. FLOYD, ESQ.

ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

MR. FLOYD: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it please the Court:

The case currently under consideration presents the question of the exercise of the district court's discretion in staying matters pending on its docket in view of a filed state court action between the same parties involving the same issue in both courts.

QUESTION: You didn't put in the word "federal" before that "issue." Is it a federal issue?

MR. FLOYD: It is a federal district court.

QUESTION: I know, but federal issue pending before the courts.

MR. FLOYD: It is not a federal issue, Your Honor.

QUESTION: I wouldn't think you would think it is.

MR. FLOYD: The issue is arbitration provided by both the federal act and the state act.

QUESTION: But your position would be that the consequence is the same in terms of enforcing

1 arbitration or not enforcing it.

2 MR. FLOYD: They are, Your Honor.

3 QUESTION: If the question is whether under 4 the contract between the parties arbitration is 5 required, in this case is it a matter of state law or 6 federal law?

7 MR. FLOYD: It is to be decided under the 8 Federal Arbitration Act.

9 QUESTION: I know, but what -- that's the 10 jurisdictional thing for the federal court.

11 MR. FLOYD: Your Honor, that is both federal 12 and state law. The Federal Arbitration Act --

13 QUESTION: You mean -- the Federal Arbitration 14 Act converts a contract question normally controlled by 15 state law into a federal question?

16 MR. FLOYD: It is not a federal question in 17 terms of federal --

18 QUESTION: Suppose a hospital sued a 19 contractor for breach of contract. What law would 20 govern that?

21 MR. FLOYD: The state law of North Carolina.

22 QUESTION: Exactly. And if the hospital sued
23 the contractor in state court to enforce an arbitration
24 clause and the question was whether the contract 25 required arbitration or not, it would be state law,

1 wouldn't it?

2 MR. FLOYD: Unless the Federal Arbitration Act
3 applies.

4 QUESTION: I just said the only thing it said 5 -- my question was if they sued him in state court for 6 an order to arbitrate, that's all, to enforce the 7 contract, it would be a state law question.

8 QUESTION: Don't answer that too quickly.

9 (Laughter.)

10 MR. FLOYD: I think my answer is yes, it would 11 be a state law question, and the Federal Arbitration Act 12 is a part of the law of the state of North Carolina.

13 QUESTION: Okay, but if you sue under the 14 Federal Arbitration Act, then whether or not the 15 construction of the contract is to be decided by federal 16 law or by state law?

17 MR. FLOYD: I have trouble answering the 18 question.

19 QUESTION: You should.

20 MR. FLOYD: In that the construction --

21 QUESTION: You should have trouble, and you 22 shouldn't hurry.

23 QUESTION: Is it your position that the state 24 courts are obliged to enforce the Federal Arbitration
25 Act in this setting?

1 MR. FLOYD: Absolutely, Your Honor.

2 QUESTION: So to that extent there is a 3 federal statutory question involved.

4 MR. FLOYD: There is a federal statutory 5 question involved. The federal statute involved is the 6 Federal Arbitration Act which the North Carolina Supreme 7 Court has held is a part of the law of North Carolina 8 under the supremacy clause and must be enforced as any 9 other part of the law of North Carolina would be 10 enforced.

11 So the dichotomy between federal and state law 12 is confusing in the circumstances. Higher courts have 13 always held that the Federal -- the supremacy clause
14 requires enforcement. The question under the North
15 Carolina Court of Appeals case was not that at all; it 16 was an interpretation of the commerce clause, which was 17 too narrow and overruled ultimately in the Schafer
18 Partnership case in the North Carolina Supreme Court.

19 The next question involved, and just as 20 important as that one, in my view, is how and when the 21 federal appeals courts may review the exercise of the 22 district judge's discretion.

23 QUESTION: That really is preliminary in any 24 analytical sense to the Arbitration Act question, isn't 25 it? Because if this question wasn't properly in the 1 court of appeals, it's not properly here, either.

2 MR. FLOYD: It is jurisdictional in the court
3 of appeals, and that court, absent jurisdiction, could 4 not proceed. So analytically I think that is the first 5 question that we should discuss.

6 The facts giving rise to these questions are 7 that on October 8th, 1980, the hospital filed suit in 8 the North Carolina Superior Court of Guilford County in 9 Greensboro against two defendants. First was Mercury 10 Construction Corporation, an Alabama corporation; and 11 second was J.N. Pease & Associates, a North Carolina 12 corporation.

13 The complaint filed in the Superior Court in 14 North Carolina alleged that some months earlier, Mercury
15 had delivered to Pease, the architect, a document
16 entitled Claim for Equitable Adjustment of Contract 17 Price; that this asserted a claim for some $2 million 18 against the hospital. The hospital had spent some 19 months investigating that claim, had concluded it had no 20 validity, had concluded that the basis for the claim was 21 alleged delays which were the fault of the hospital 22 during a period of construction of about five years on a 23 renovation and new construction project at the hospital.

24 The complaint in the district court alleged 25 that there was no fault in the hospital concerning

1 delays of an ongoing hospital operation, renovation and 2 construction project; that if there were delays beyond 3 that which was contemplated by the parties in the 4 beginning, they were the fault either of Mercury or of 5 the architect. And alleged various instances in which 6 the architect was at fault in failing to adjudicate, in 7 failing to pass on decisions of both parties.

8 The complaint prayed that if it was found that 9 the hospital was liable in any respect, that it sought 10 judgment over against the architect. Mercury, some 11 three weeks later, filed -- or removed the action under 12 the removal statute to the federal court. And 13 curiously, at the same time filed a Section 4 petition 14 under the Federal Arbitration Act.

15 QUESTION: Was the question involved in the 16 state court suit that was removed, did that have any 17 federal issue in it?

18 MR. FLOYD: It had no federal issue in it,
19 Your Honor.

20 QUESTION: And it was going to be controlled 21 wholly by state law; namely, whether the dispute was 22 arbitrable?

23 MR. FLOYD: No, sir.

24 QUESTION: What was it?

25 MR. FLOYD: The question in the state court

1 suit was -- one of the questions was whether the dispute
2 was arbitrable; you're right.

3 QUESTION: All right. On that one, it would 4 be a question of state law. And if it was decided then 5 as a matter of state law that the dispute was not 6 arbitrable, that would be the end of -- then that would 7 just be decided by litigation -- by arbitration.

8 MR. FLOYD: Yes, Your Honor. Under state law 9 or any other law if the decision is that the dispute is 10 not arbitrable, it proceeds to litigation.

11 QUESTION: Suppose the removal to the federal 12 court was all that had happened, and suppose the removal 13 was justified. Suppose the removal was upheld. Whether 14 the dispute was arbitrable or not would still be a 15 matter of state law, wouldn't it?

16 MR. FLOYD: A matter of state law when you
17 define it as I've already defined it for Your Honor.

18 QUESTION: Exactly. It would still be a 19 question -- whether the dispute was arbitrable would be 20 a question of state law.

21 MR. FLOYD: State law, including the Federal 22 Arbitration Act. That's correct.

23 QUESTION: How does the Federal Arbitration 24 Act get into it, just because it's removed to federal 25 court?

1 MR. FLOYD: If the arbitration question arises
2 in a contract which is subject to the Federal 3 Arbitration Act; to-wit: one in commerce, in this 4 context --

5 QUESTION: Well, it may be that federal courts
6 can enforce promises to arbitrate under the Arbitration 7 Act, but that doesn't mean that whether they're 8 arbitrable or not is a matter of federal law.

9 MR. FLOYD: They cannot enforce such contracts
10 absent diversity and amount in controversy requirements 11 of the diversity statute. The federal scheme for 12 enforcement of arbitration, under the federal act, 13 contemplates in its genesis that it will be enforced by 14 state courts simply because there is no jurisdiction 15 given to the federal courts except in diversity cases, 16 if you've got a commerce clause kind of contract as 17 opposed to a maritime kind of contract.

18 So the scheme in the beginning is that who 19 shall enforce arbitration; it must be both federal and 20 state courts because the federal courts are not given 21 jurisdiction on an independent basis of jurisdiction.
22 Therefore, several of the circuits have held there is no 23 federal question jurisdiction under the Federal 24 Arbitration Act.

25 If you analyze it as what relief is available,

1 assuming you are under the Federal Arbitration Act, the 2 relief available is either state or federal, --

3 QUESTION: Yes.

4 MR. FLOYD: And it makes no difference which 5 court decides the question.

6 QUESTION: But you say it could be either
7 state law or federal. But there isn't any federal law 8 of contracts, is there?

9 MR. FLOYD: No federal law of contracts.
10 There's a federal law of arbitration. The law of 11 contracts -- and this contract, incidentally, specifies
12 the garden variety sort of thing; that is, that the law 13 of North Carolina shall apply to its terms and to its 14 interpretation.

15 QUESTION: And a federal court sitting in 16 diversity would apply North Carolina law to a contract 17 dispute.

18 MR. FLOYD: Absolutely.

19 QUESTION: Including whether or not a 20 particular dispute is arbitrable under the contract.

21 MR. FLOYD: No, Your Honor. I don't think a 22 federal court or a state court would apply general 23 contract law to that provision.

24 QUESTION: No. But it would be governed by 25 state law as to whether or not the dispute was

1 arbitrable. In interpreting the contract; namely, did 2 the parties promise to arbitrate -- that's a question of 3 state law.

4 MR. FLOYD: Your Honor, that's the same kind
5 of question that Justice Fortis wrestled with in the 6 Prima Paint case. You recall that in that case we had a 7 similar provision, and his holding in Prima Paint is 8 that you do not apply the state law to the question of 9 coverage under the Federal Arbitration Act.

10 QUESTION: Well, I agree with that.

11 MR. FLOYD: You do apply the arbitration law
12 to that question. And it matters not in this case
13 whether you apply the Uniform Arbitration Act in effect
14 in North Carolina or whether you apply the federal act.
15 Whether you call it federal law or state law has no 16 substantive result.

17 QUESTION: Mr. Floyd, supposing in a somewhat 18 different situation the North Carolina law had a statute 19 of frauds for arbitration agreements that required them 20 to be in writing and signed by the party to be charged.
21 And there was no such a requirement, of course, in the 22 Federal Arbitration Act. Now, do you think that if a 23 claim is made to arbitrate in North Carolina under a 24 North Carolina contract that that provision of state law 25 is enforceable notwithstanding the provisions of the 1 Federal Arbitration Act in the prima case?

2 MR. FLOYD: I assume Your Honor is asking
3 about a contract otherwise in commerce.

4 QUESTION: Yes.

5 MR. FLOYD: And therefore, the provisions of 6 the act are invoked. Any provision of state law not 7 compatible with the federal act is not enforceable under 8 the supremacy clause.

9 QUESTION: How do you know whether it's 10 compatible with the federal act or not?

11 MR. FLOYD: Well, if the federal act says go 12 arbitrate and the state law says you don't have to for 13 whatever reason in this case, then my answer is you go 14 arbitrate because the federal law is supreme.

15 QUESTION: Then, Mr. Floyd, are you saying 16 that in this case, -- under Section 4 of the federal 17 statute, as I read it, there are only two issues; one, 18 was there a contract containing an arbitration clause,
19 and I guess that's not in dispute, is it?

20 MR. FLOYD: There is no dispute about the 21 contract.

22 QUESTION: And the second issue is did one of 23 the parties refuse to arbitrate, and I guess that's not 24 in dispute; you did refuse to arbitrate. That's your 25 position in the state court, that you don't have to

1 arbitrate.

2 MR. FLOYD: We are not in arbitration,
3 obviously --

4 QUESTION: So you have refused. And aren't 5 those the only two issues the federal judge has to rule 6 on, and doesn't he, then, under the plain language of 7 the statute have a duty to order arbitration?

8 MR. FLOYD: The answer is yes, once he has 9 conducted the hearing that the act requires.

10 QUESTION: Why do you need a hearing if there 11 are no disputed issues?

12 MR. FLOYD: The disputed issues are the making 13 of the agreement.

14 QUESTION: I thought you said you admitted
15 that, and I think your pleadings do.

16 MR. FLOYD: The agreement, Your Honor, --

17 QUESTION: In this case, neither of those 18 issues is disputed.

19 MR. FLOYD: The agreement is a book that long.

20 QUESTION: I understand. But you don't deny 21 it contains an arbitration provision.

22 MR. FLOYD: I do not deny it contains an 23 arbitration clause --

24 QUESTION: Therefore, the first condition of 25 the statute is satisfied. And you also don't deny that

1 you refused to arbitrate.

2 QUESTION: Well, not if the particular dispute 3 isn't covered by the arbitration clause, which is your 4 position, isn't it?

5 MR. FLOYD: That's correct. To say I agree to 6 arbitrate does not mean that I agree to arbitrate every 7 conceivable dispute. For instance, the federal cases 8 are clear that if we deal with an antitrust case, 9 regardless of an agreement to arbitrate you don't 10 arbitrate it. A patent case you don't arbitrate it, 11 even though it may be subject to the act.

12 Further, the Pima Paint case says you look to 13 the agreement to determine what the parties agreed to 14 arbitrate. Our contention here is we never agreed to 15 arbitrate a dispute arising after the construction
16 project of five years. If you look at the contract 17 clause to arbitrate; that is, the agreement to arbitrate
18 clause, you will find that it is not an unconditional 19 agreement to arbitrate; it is cross-referenced. The 20 Fourth Circuit opinion leaves out the cross reference.

21 It is cross-referenced to Article II, which 22 says arbitration can be had only when -- Article II 23 deals with resolution of disputes during the ongoing of 24 construction. It says that you cannot arbitrate, we do 25 not agree to arbitrate unless during construction. It

1 is referred to the architect for decision. Then within 2 a reasonable time, --

3 QUESTION: Isn't those -- aren't those 4 questions that the arbitrator will review?

5 MR. FLOYD: No, Your Honor. An agreement that 6 says I will arbitrate on Wednesday; if you seek to 7 arbitrate on Thursday, have you agreed to arbitrate?

8 Answer: no. You have entered a conditional agreement 9 to arbitrate, and you don't go to an architect to find 10 out whether the conditions preceding are met. By the 11 time you're doing that, you're already in arbitration.

12 So my answer to that -- and I'd like to pause 13 for a moment and state that we have never been able to 14 have the district court judge make this kind of 15 inquiry. He has never reached it.

16 QUESTION: Suppose that the hospital had been 17 engaged in a dispute with another contractor under the 18 very same words of another contract and the state court 19 had ruled that as a matter of state law, this particular 20 kind of a dispute that you're talking about now was not 21 subject to the arbitration clause in the contract. Now, 22 a federal court is deciding the issue. Wouldn't the 23 federal court have to follow the state court as a matter 24 of state law?

25 If the state court has already said as a

1 matter of state law, language like this in the contract
2 will not subject to arbitration the kind of a dispute 3 that is involved in this case, wouldn't the federal 4 court have to follow it?

5 MR. FLOYD: I don't think a federal court --

6 QUESTION: You should say yes, but --

7 MR. FLOYD: I don't think a federal court
8 would apply state law. That's where my hangup is. You 9 see, --

10 QUESTION: You go ahead. You run your own --

11 QUESTION: Why are you hung up on that? Do 12 you think Prima goes that far?

13 MR. FLOYD: I think Prima requires that the 14 court, regardless of state or federal, --

15 QUESTION: Well, that doesn't help your case, 16 does it? Why do you concede so much to Prima?

17 MR. FLOYD: Because I'm afraid that that's the 18 way the law's developed. I'm afraid that it doesn't 19 matter which court decides.

20 QUESTION: Well, it develops through cases and 21 decisions of this Court such as the one before it right 22 now.

23 MR. FLOYD: Yes, Your Honor.

24 I believe that if a state court has decided on 25 the arbitrability question that it is not arbitrable,

1 that that will be a final determination for all
2 purposes. And a party can obtain review of that through 3 the state court appeals process.

4 I don't think we have a situation where we 5 ought to have multiple federal courts and multiple state 6 courts racing to judgment on the same question. That 7 just does not comport with common sense. I think once a 8 party has had determined his right -- and in this 9 instance, there is no question but what Mercury has a 10 right to have the question of arbitration decided by a 11 court of competent jurisdiction. Mercury has no right 12 to select its court. It was the defendant in this case.

13 Mercury has filed a duplicative litigation in 14 this case in federal court. The parties have always 15 been able to go to the court in which this action was 16 instituted and obtain a speedy adjudication of that very 17 right.

18 The question presented, therefore, is not 19 whether Mercury has been deprived of its right of prompt 20 decision. What Mercury is complaining about is it's 21 been deprived of the right to choose the forum, and 22 that's the only difference. It has no right to choose 23 the forum. Wise administration of justice compels the 24 conclusion that you don't keep racing to judgment 25 whenever you have multiple litigations.

1 So the question is which court should wait on 2 the other. In the circumstances here, it makes sense
3 that the federal court should wait on the state. All 4 the traditional considerations are present.

5 If I may now address the question of 6 appealability. The central point here is that the stay 7 order is not a final order. The cases in this Court are 8 so recent that I don't think they require extensive 9 discussion.

10 In this case, the judge was free, and I think 11 designedly so -- he did not dismiss the case -- he was 12 free, if Mercury comes back in and says I can't get a 13 decision -- in other words, my prompt hearing is being 14 denied me in the state court -- the judge could clearly 15 have lifted his stay order and proceeded to the merits.
16 But we didn't have time to determine that the way this 17 case went. There's no doubt but that he was free to do 18 so.

19 If Mercury was being denied its right to a 20 prompt hearing before a court of competent jurisdiction, 21 he probably would have lifted his stay order. There can 22 be no doubt, therefore, that this is not a final order.

23 In the court of appeals, the court applied its 24 practical finality analysis. I submit to this honorable 25 Court that the "death knell" in Coopers & Lybrand is not

1 materially distinguishable from the practical finality
2 rule applied here. The point is that Congress did not 3 intend the courts of appeals to fashion on a 4 case-by-case basis their own jurisdiction. When 5 Congress enacted Section 1291 that appeal shall lie only 6 from final decisions, that does not include stay orders.

7 The court of appeals should not analyze its 8 jurisdiction on a case-by-case basis; that is a 9 mini-trial all over again, just as the death knell 10 economic inquiry was a mini-trial all over again.

11 QUESTION: If we were to agree with you on the 12 appealability issue, then would the respondent still be 13 entitled to seek mandamus in the court of appeals which 14 they originally sought as an alternate to the appeal?

15 MR. FLOYD: Your Honor, I think the alternate 16 was the appeal to mandamus. They sought mandamus, or in 17 the alternative, gave notice of appeal.

18 QUESTION: Well, they got appeal.

19 MR. FLOYD: They got appeal.

20 QUESTION: And if we say they shouldn't have 21 gotten the appeal, would they be free to go back to the 22 court of appeals and seek mandamus?

23 MR. FLOYD: I think the court of appeals
24 denied mandamus in this case. The court of appeals' 25 heading is In Re Mercury, which is the mandamus case, in

1 Mercury against Cone. I think the implication of the 2 court of appeals' opinion is that we have denied 3 mandamus.

4 QUESTION: But of course, one of the reasons 5 you deny mandamus is if you think an appeal is 6 available. Mandamus isn't a substitute for an appeal.

7 MR. FLOYD: That is the court's --

8 QUESTION: If the court of appeals now saw 9 that no appeal was available, might it not be at least 10 more inclined than it was to grant mandamus?

11 MR. FLOYD: It might be, Your Honor. It might 12 be. I submit that there's no ground for mandamus 13 either, however. And as this Court said in Allied 14 Chemical back in 1980, mandamus in discretionary orders
15 -- what, never? Well, hardly ever. This is not a case 16 where the court of appeals should, by mandamus, 17 interfere with the trial court's running of its docket.
18 So while yes, conceivably the proper result would be to 19 send it back and let the court of appeals reconsider, in 20 view of its ambiguous ruling on mandamus, I submit that 21 should not and need not be done in this case. The 22 opinion of the court of appeals rejects mandamus when it 23 finds the matter appealable. To reconsider in light of 24 this Court's rulings on mandamus in discretionary order 25 cases, would be a waste of the parties' and the court's

1 time.

2 I submit that the proper result in this Court
3 is to reverse the court of appeals and direct the case
4 be remanded subject to the stay order; that is, affirm
5 Judge Ward's stay order.

6 QUESTION: I have another question if I may,
7 Mr. Floyd. May I go back to the question that I was 8 asking you before about the issues raised by your 9 opponent's petition in the federal court for an order
10 directing arbitration. Your response to that petition 11 alleged that Mercury was in default in proceeding with 12 arbitration and in complying with the express conditions 13 of the agreement to arbitrate. I'm reading from your 14 response.

15 You do not respond, as I read your response, 16 by saying that the dispute in question is not covered by 17 the arbitration clause. Rather, you say they were in 18 default in meeting some of the conditions to 19 arbitration. And would not that kind of issue be 20 appropriately submitted to the arbitrator?

21 MR. FLOYD: I think not, Your Honor.

22 QUESTION: You see the distinction I'm trying 23 to draw?

24 MR. FLOYD: I do. If my allegation is read to 25 be solely Mercury did not move fast enough to cause

1 arbitration to take place, then I am alleging one of the 2 time delay kinds of defenses to arbitration.

3 QUESTION: Correct.

4 MR. FLOYD: That the federal courts have 5 largely overruled. That is, that sort of dispute is for 6 the arbitrator.

7 QUESTION: Correct.

8 MR. FLOYD: That is not what is intended by 9 the language that you read. When I say Mercury has 10 failed to comply with the conditions, the condition I'm 11 talking about is the contingent nature of the agreement 12 to arbitrate. And the point is you can't decide that 13 without getting into a question of what was the intent 14 of the parties. If you say I'll arbitrate but not if, 15 or not unless a condition is complied with, that is not 16 the agreement to arbitrate that must in all instances be 17 submitted to arbitrate.

18 QUESTION: It was a condition precedent other 19 than timeliness that they failed to comply with. One is 20 you say they're in default, I gather you say because 21 they didn't act with sufficient promptness. Is there 22 some other condition that --

23 MR. FLOYD: Because they did not submit the 24 dispute to the arbitrator during the course of 25 construction.

1 QUESTION: Well, that's back to timeliness.

2 MR. FLOYD: No, sir. Submit the dispute to 3 the architect, I'm sorry, I misspoke. There are two 4 material provisions which are conditions precedent to 5 Cones' agreement to arbitrate. One is Article 2 of our 6 contract deals with how you conduct yourself during 7 construction. And that's very important to the owner.

8 QUESTION: I understand. And you're saying
9 that one of the conditions is before they can request 10 arbitration they must submit the dispute to the 11 architect.

12 MR. FLOYD: During the process of construction.

13 QUESTION: And there's a factual dispute as to 14 whether or not they did that.

15 MR. FLOYD: Yes, sir.

16 QUESTION: And you're saying that's --

17 MR. FLOYD: Well, there's no factual dispute.
18 They did not.

19 QUESTION: You're saying that's an issue that 20 the judge must decide, not the arbitrator.

21 MR. FLOYD: That's correct, Your Honor.
22 That's correct. It's a condition precedent issue. That 23 is, I agree to arbitrate but only if.

24 QUESTION: Is the contract in the papers
25 before us?

1 MR. FLOYD: The entire contract is not. As I
2 say, it's a large book.

3 QUESTION: Is the portion of the contract that 4 describes this condition you've just discussed --

5 MR. FLOYD: It is, Your Honor.

6 QUESTION: Can you tell me where?

7 MR. FLOYD: It's in the Joint Appendix, JA28
8 begins the provisions of the contract. And I might 9 emphasize that that is not, by any means, all of the 10 provisions of the contract.

11 QUESTION: Thank you.

12 MR. FLOYD: I feel like I shouldn't sit down
13 without mentioning this Court's decision in Colorado 14 River and in the Will case. This case, on the question 15 of the propriety of the stay, is stronger than either of 16 those cases. That is, in this case, the circumstances 17 compelled stay much more clearly than in either of those 18 cases. In Will you had a question of exclusive 19 jurisdiction of the court. Simply not present here.
20 Nevertheless, the stay was upheld.

21 In Colorado River you had federal interest
22 more deeply involved than we have here, and this Court 23 sanctioned and affirmed a dismissal, not a stay.

24 QUESTION: Well, your opponent says that the 25 same issue of federal law was involved in both the state

1 suit and the federal suit. But if the issue is 2 arbitrability, it seems to me that I don't read Prima
3 Paint as saying that the question of arbitrability is a 4 matter of federal law, of statutory law. It's a 5 question of whatever law governs the contract.

6 And if arbitrability is really the major issue
7 which you seem to think it is, -- is that right?

8 MR. FLOYD: It's the only issue in the Section 9 4 of the petition.

10 QUESTION: Well, if the arbitrability is the 11 central issue, and if that's a matter of state law, then 12 this case might even have been subject to a motion to 13 stay under Pullman. That is, if this case is subject to 14 state law, and we ought to find out how the state courts 15 construe this kind of a local contract.

16 MR. FLOYD: I would certainly agree with 17 that. I do not read Justice Fortis's opinion the same 18 way the Court does, but hopefully, you read it better 19 than I do. That is certainly the result I want.

20 QUESTION: I know, but the -- well, we don't 21 need to argue.

22 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: If you want to save any 23 time for rebuttal, you'd better save it.

24 MR. FLOYD: I do not care for rebuttal. I've 25 said what I have to say. Thank you.

1 QUESTION: Good for you.

2 (Laughter.)

3 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Mr. Gaede.

4 ORAL ARGUMENT OF A.H. GAEDE, JR., ESQ.

5 ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT

6 MR. GAEDE: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it
7 please the Court:

8 If arbitration is to become the effective
9 speedy alternative to litigation that Congress intended 10 by the Federal Arbitration Act, and that the present 11 crunch of litigation in our court system seems to 12 compel, then we believe that this Court should affirm 13 the decision of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. To 14 reverse and reinstate the district court's decision 15 would undercut the vitality and viability of arbitration 16 as an alternative to court litigation.

17 Mercury, my client in this case, went into the 18 federal court and filed an action under Section 4 of the 19 Federal Arbitration Act, an action that was a right
20 granted to it by Congress in the Federal Arbitration
21 Act. And that section, Section 4, says that if you 22 establish two things, as Justice Stevens pointed out, 23 one, an agreement to arbitrate, and two, a failure on 24 the other party to arbitrate --

25 QUESTION: Well, the question is the agreement

1 to arbitrate. A lot of contracts have arbitration 2 clauses in them, but not every dispute that is brought 3 up between the parties is covered by the arbitration
4 clause. That's routine.

5 MR. GAEDE: Your Honor, I believe --

6 QUESTION: But -- just bear with me a minute.
7 Suppose that there is a contract that clearly specifies 8 a certain category of issues that are subject to 9 arbitration, and some other issues that are not subject 10 to arbitration. Now, -- and the people get into an 11 argument about which category of particular disputes 12 falls under. Is that a matter of state law or federal 13 law?

14 MR. GAEDE: Your Honor, in our view that would 15 be a matter of federal law.

16 QUESTION: Why would that be?

17 MR. GAEDE: Because under the Federal 18 Arbitration Act, the courts are charged to -- if they 19 find an agreement to arbitrate --

20 QUESTION: They can find it, but the question
21 is what law governs that determination. There are a lot 22 of cases arising in federal law. You can have a 23 diversity action seeking specific performance on a 24 contract, and the applicable law is going to be state 25 law.

1 MR. GAEDE: Your Honor, as the Federal 2 Arbitration Act has developed in the circuit courts, the 3 circuit courts have developed a body of substantive 4 federal law for the purpose of interpreting the Federal 5 Arbitration Act.

6 QUESTION: Well, that may be so, but is it a 7 body of federal law interpreting contracts that 8 otherwise would be governed by state law?

9 MR. GAEDE: It is a body of law for 10 interpreting the enforceability of arbitration
11 agreements. If, for example, Justice White, --

12 QUESTION: But if it's an agreement.

13 QUESTION: Maybe that's --

14 MR. GAEDE: I can agree with you very easily, 15 Your Honor, that if it says disputes involving X are not 16 subject to arbitration, then clearly, there's no 17 agreement to arbitrate. No one would dispute that. And 18 if the arbitration clause says this clause is applicable 19 only to disputes A, B, C and D, then that is --

20 QUESTION: But if the contract says X disputes 21 are subject to arbitration and Y disputes are not, but 22 then there's an argument about whether it's X or Y, what 23 law governs?

24 MR. GAEDE: I believe that the -- I believe 25 that properly interpreted, the federal substantive law

1 should apply, but in most instances that would be, I 2 suspect, the adoption of state law.

3 QUESTION: I would think they would be 4 governed by --

5 QUESTION: Isn't that a contract question?

6 MR. GAEDE: That would be a contract question.

7 QUESTION: Then where did you get federal 8 substantive law of contracts, which is the answer you 9 just gave.

10 MR. GAEDE: There are certain situations where 11 federal courts have, in effect, adopted a federal 12 substantive law of contracts.

13 QUESTION: Well, what cases from this Court
14 support that in this particular situation?

15 MR. GAEDE: In this particular situation I
16 think the Prima Paint case --

17 QUESTION: I thought Prima didn't address that 18 question as to what law would govern if you were trying 19 to determine whether or not the dispute between the 20 parties was arbitrable.

21 QUESTION: That was conceded it was arbitrable
22 in Prima Paint.

23 MR. GAEDE: I have to -- I will agree, Your 24 Honor, that Prima Paint did not deal directly with that 25 question, but I think the fair inference from Prima

1 Paint is that that would be the result.

2 QUESTION: Well, if it was conceded that it
3 was arbitrable, Prima Paint didn't hav to decide that 4 question. Isn't that correct?

5 MR. GAEDE: That is certainly correct, yes, 6 sir.

7 To try to return to what I think is the 8 central point on this part of the case, Congress in its 9 wisdom gave to parties to agreements to arbitrate the 10 right to go into federal court and to have a hearing.
11 And if based on that hearing the federal court was 12 obligated -- if it found that there was an agreement to 13 arbitrate and if it found that there was a failure to 14 comply, to compel arbitration.

15 If this Court has a serious question about 16 whether or not there was an agreement to arbitrate, 17 which we don't think there was -- the Fourth Circuit 18 certainly didn't have any problem with that -- but if 19 that is a question, then the proper remedy would be to 20 remand the case to the state court and direct that the 21 state court hold a hearing on that question -- I mean, 22 to the federal court -- and direct the federal court to 23 hold a hearing on that question. As is our right under 24 Section 4 of the Federal Arbitration Act.

25 QUESTION: Supposing if we were to follow that

1 we would have to tell the district court of North 2 Carolina to apply substantive state law in determining 3 whether or not the particular agreement did render it
4 arbitrable. And if that's the case, wouldn't it be much 5 simpler to do just what the district judge said; instead 6 of having the federal court look over to state law and 7 try to find what conclusion the state courts would 8 reach, let the companion state court proceeding produce 9 the result in its normal course?

10 MR. GAEDE: Your Honor, I think not for 11 several reasons. The first is that generally, the 12 federal courts are far more familiar with the 13 interpretation and enforcement of the Federal 14 Arbitration Act. Second, we have a congressionally 15 granted right to a hearing in the federal courts on that 16 issue. And as a matter of fact, the form of relief, 17 although I don't make a big point out of this, the form 18 of relief is different.

19 Under Section 4, which only federal district
20 courts can apply, we are entitled to an order compelling 21 arbitration. Under the Section 3, which would be the 22 federal remedy in the state court case, the remedy there 23 is to stay that case, pending arbitration. So we do 24 think there is a difference in the remedies, and that 25 different was recognized in Prima Paint. For example,

1 the court in Prima Paint specifically referred to 2 Section 4 as applying a federal remedy. And we think 3 that is very important in this case.

4 QUESTION: The question here is not embraced 5 in the proposition that there's an agreement to 6 arbitrate. Everyone concedes there's an agreement to 7 arbitrate. The question is to arbitrate what, and that 8 issue arises under a contract which is a matter of state
9 law, is it not? The interpretation of the contract is a 10 matter of state law.

11 MR. GAEDE: Yes, Your Honor, I agree with that.

12 QUESTION: And isn't the state court better 13 able to do that than to have a federal court do it under 14 a diversity route?

15 MR. GAEDE: I don't believe so, Your Honor.

16 QUESTION: And that's what the district court 17 did decide, didn't he?

18 MR. GAEDE: I think the district court in this 19 case, in a sense, abdicated its responsibility. I think 20 the district court came close to the situation in 21 Thermtron, in this case, quite frankly, because you had 22 a situation where the court was obligated to proceed 23 forward.

24 Section 4 is written in very mandatory terms, 25 Mr. Chief Justice, and we feel as though the district

1 court was obligated to go forward.

2 Let me point out one thing if I might. In the 3 record, it is very clear in the affidavits that were 4 filed by our client to the district court, it is clear 5 that the contractor went to the architect during the 6 course of construction and said we will have claims, and 7 the architect said, we understand you will have claims, 8 and we request that you withhold the filing of those 9 claims until after construction is completed. That is 10 undisputed in the record.

11 Now, under those circumstances, I think that 12 renders the kind of argument that Mr. Floyd is making 13 meaningless. I don't agree with his argument to start 14 with, but even if that was a valid argument, his 15 condition precedent argument in this case.

16 QUESTION: Well, only part of it I think,
17 because one branch of his argument is that it's not ripe 18 for arbitration until it's been submitted to the 19 architect and passed on by the architect. And it's only 20 after that that you can submit it for arbitration.

21 MR. GAEDE: Your Honor, in the record, there's 22 also an affidavit by the architect which says if he had 23 made a decision and had advised the hospital of that 24 decision, that may client was entitled to be paid 25 between $600,000 and $1,200,000 prior to the time that

1 the hospital went into state court in North Carolina.

2 As a matter of fact, it's been our view --

3 QUESTION: Was that affidavit before the 4 federal judge at the time you presented your petition 5 for certiorari?

6 MR. GAEDE: Yes, it was.

7 QUESTION: What?

8 MR. GAEDE: Excuse me, Your Honor, I
9 misspoke. It was not before him at the time we 10 presented our petition. It was before him at the time 11 that he ruled on the petition.

12 QUESTION: I see. And they did not controvert 13 that affidavit?

14 MR. GAEDE: They did not.

15 To proceed, --

16 QUESTION: Just tell me, where is that in the 17 record? Is that in the printed papers before us?

18 MR. GAEDE: Yes, sir, it's in the Joint 19 Appendix, at page 40, as I recall, Your Honor. Yes, 20 it's Mr. Ward's affidavit in the Joint Appendix at pages 21 38 through 40.

22 I might proceed forward. And I think the 23 factual background of this case is important because I 24 think the factual background of this case gets to the 25 other issue, both issues, which is the issue of 1 appealability or finality, and to the issue of the 2 judge's right to stay.

3 In this situation, as I said, Mercury had 4 notified the architect of the claims and had been 5 advised to hold off. We did. We then gave the hospital
6 notice of the claims and over a period of months, there 7 was conversation between the hospital and our client 8 about those claims.

9 As the record will show, and as the 10 uncontested affidavit of Mr. Bynam in the record will 11 show, a meeting had been set between the parties for 12 further discussion of the claims. And when that meeting 13 was a week off, we called to confirm the meeting, the 14 hospital said well, we'll call you back in a few days
15 and let you know. They called back in two days and said
16 we're filing a lawsuit against you tomorrow in state 17 court, taking the position that you have failed to 18 arbitrate.

19 Justices, at that time we had no right to file 20 our suit in federal court under Section 4. Until that 21 time. One of the conditions of Section 4 relief is the 22 failure of the other party to comply with an agreement
23 to arbitrate. Until the hospital went into the state 24 court we had no notice that they would fail to comply 25 with the arbitration agreement. That was our first

1 notice.

2 Mr. Floyd in his argument said that we waited
3 for three weeks to proceed with our Section 4 petition.
4 He's right, we did wait for three weeks, and the reason 5 we waited for three weeks was that the hospital went to 6 the state court ex parte without notice to us and 7 obtained an injunction from a North Carolina court
8 enjoining our client from seeking to enforce its rights 9 to arbitration.

10 We had that decision set aside on the basis of 11 this Court's decisions in Atomic General and other 12 cases, Donovan and Atomic General. And then immediately 13 proceeded to file our Section 4 petition.

14 What happened when the district court stayed 15 the Section 4 petition was that he, in effect, finally 16 determined that my client would not be entitled to the 17 hearing that Congress had guaranteed it under Section 4 18 of the Act.

19 QUESTION: Are you saying that the district
20 court, in entering that order, ruled out the possibility 21 that if after three months you could show that there was 22 simply no progress made in the state court and that your 23 opponent was blocking normal process, that the district 24 court might not entertain an application to lift the 25 stay?

1 MR. GAEDE: Your Honor, I suppose that it is 2 conceivable that the state court could have done nothing
3 whatsoever and that we would have attempted to come back 4 in and have the stay lifted. I also assume that it's 5 possible that the state court could have ruled that the 6 Federal Arbitration Act didn't apply, and that we could 7 have tried to come back in and have the stay lifted.

8 But I think that those are two fairly extreme 9 circumstances, and certainly as a practical matter -- I
10 think the Fourth Circuit was right that as a practical 11 matter, assuming that the state court is going to move 12 with any kind of dispatch, that what has really happened 13 is that the federal court has denied us the right to 14 have our Section 4 right enforced in the federal court.

15 I can conceive of examples of where that 16 wouldn't happen, but I think as a practical matter, 17 Justice Rehnquist, that belies the reality of the 18 situation. And I might point out two other things at 19 this point.

20 One is that the stay order did not say I am 21 staying the Section 4 case pending a determination of 22 the question as to arbitrability. It said I am staying 23 the Section 4 case pending a determination of the entire 24 case pending in a North Carolina court.

25 The second thing is that at the time the

1 district court made its ruling, it had before it 2 affidavits that had been filed on the issue of 3 arbitration under Section 4, which is the normal way in 4 my experience that that issue is dealt with. And the 5 issue had been fully briefed. No such affidavits and no 6 such briefing had taken place in the state court.

7 So at that particular point in time, more 8 activity had occurred in the district court, the federal 9 district court, than had occurred in the state court.
10 And, as a matter of fact, as the Fourth Circuit found, 11 the district court had before it all the information 12 that it needed or was necessary to make an order that 13 our client was entitled to arbitration and that the 14 district court should have compelled arbitration.

15 QUESTION: Suppose under the state law of 16 contracts matters of timeliness, waiver and laches are 17 matters for a court to decide. A plaintiff sues to 18 compel arbitration and the defendant says well, you've 19 waived it or it's untimely or the demand is untimely or 20 there've been laches or something. And the state court 21 says well, this go to arbitrability as to whether this 22 particular dispute is any longer arbitrable, and it's a 23 matter of state law. Would that be a matter of state 24 law then?

25 MR. GAEDE: I believe not, Your Honor. I

1 believe that almost every court that I'm aware of that 2 has ruled on that question has held that that is an 3 issue for --

4 QUESTION: Despite what the state law -- how 5 it would come out in a suit for damages in a state court.

6 MR. GAEDE: Yes.

7 QUESTION: The state law must decide it as a
8 federal matter.

9 MR. GAEDE: Yes, Your Honor. And I believe 10 that the circuit courts of appeals decisions and almost 11 every final state court that has ultimately reached that 12 question are consistent in that regard.

13 QUESTION: But is that an issue that's 14 normally decided by the court or by the arbitrator?

15 MR. GAEDE: That's an issue that's almost, 16 without fail, decided by the arbitrators.

17 QUESTION: The court refers those issues to 18 the arbitrator. The federal rule is that issues such as 19 that shall be decided by the arbitrator.

20 MR. GAEDE: That is correct, sir.

21 QUESTION: And that that prevails over any 22 contrary state rule where there's a demand for 23 arbitration.

24 MR. GAEDE: Yes, Your Honor. As long as the 25 contract in which the arbitration clause is contained is

1 a contract that affects commerce, as defined within the 2 Federal Arbitration Act.

3 QUESTION: Yes, I understand that. Obviously, 4 that has to be present or the federal law doesn't apply 5 at all.

6 MR. GAEDE: That is correct. That's a
7 necessary predicate to proceeding.

8 If I could, I would like to turn for a minute 9 to the question of appealability under Section 1291. As 10 I said in my answer to Justice Rehnquist's questions, I 11 believe that as a practical matter, and looking at the 12 realities of the situation, the district court's stay 13 order effectively terminated our client's petition under 14 Section 4 of the Federal Arbitration Act to compel 15 arbitration and denied us the right to a hearing on that 16 petition.

17 In so holding, the Fourth Circuit, in our 18 view, followed the rule of this Court that has been 19 applied for many years, and that is that finality is to 20 be given a practical rather than a technical 21 construction.

22 The underpinning or the basis for the finality 23 rule, as stated in the decisions of this Court, is that 24 you will not have piecemeal reviews. Piecemeal reviews
25 during the process of a case. Not piecemeal litigation,

1 not the matter of whether we've got two cases going on,
2 but a piecemeal review in the case that we're talking 3 about.

4 In this situation, the order that was entered 5 by the district court effectively stopped that case
6 forever. And there is no piecemeal review by my client 7 when we went to the Fourth Circuit. What we went to the 8 Fourth Circuit for was to have a determination on the 9 only issue that existed in the case, and that is: will 10 we be entitled to a hearing before the district court in 11 order to determine whether or not we were entitled to an 12 order compelling arbitration. That's the only issue.

13 This is not like the many other cases that 14 have come before this Court where you had a collateral 15 issue, like in Livesay. You had an issue that deals 16 with the class. But the underlying action of the 17 plaintiff could still go forward, as this Court found.
18 And in other cases before this Court.

19 QUESTION: But the theory of the "death knell"
20 rule, to the extent that it has been adopted by courts 21 of appeals before in Coopers & Lybrand v. Livesay, was 22 the same sort of practical analysis as yours, wasn't it; 23 that as a practical matter, the case is over when they 24 refused to certify the class because all the plaintiff 25 has at stake is $30.00.

1 MR. GAEDE: Your Honor, but that underlying 2 cause of action still exists. In our case, when the 3 district court acted as it did, then the question of 4 whether or not we would be entitled to a hearing in the 5 district court is forever settled. Once the state court 6 goes off and rules on that question, then there's 7 nothing left for us to do.

8 QUESTION: But if the state court doesn't 9 rule, you did say that you thought the judge might 10 entertain a motion to --

11 MR. GAEDE: If the state court sat on it for a 12 long time, the district court might. But even in that 13 situation, Justice Rehnquist, I am denied the remedy 14 that Congress in its wisdom said that I should have 15 under Section 4 of the Act.

16 QUESTION: Well, I suppose the state court
17 could enforce the remedies, couldn't it?

18 MR. GAEDE: The state court does not -- under 19 the Federal Arbitration Act, Justice O'Connor, only the 20 federal court can issue an order compelling 21 arbitration. Under Section 3 any court in which an 22 action is pending has the right to stay that action 23 pending arbitration.

24 I don't want to make a -- I think that's an 25 important distinction, and as I said it's a distinction

1 that was recognized in Prima Paint, it was also a 2 distinction that this Court recognized in the 3 Shenferough case back in the 1930s. So I think it's a 4 distinction with meaning. It's not a meaningless 5 distinction.

1 I might add that North Carolina, after this 2 case was decided by the district court, did enter a case
3 that said the Federal Arbitration Act would be the law
4 of that state, but there are other states at this time
5 that do not do that. As a matter of fact, my own state 6 of Alabama does not recognize it right now, and the 7 Supreme Court of Minnesota, in a recent case decided 8 this summer, the Thayer case, has held that the Federal 9 Arbitration Act is not to apply even though commerce was 10 admitted in that case.

11 So, I think we've got a mixed bag of ways in 12 which states might or might not rule on these questions, 13 and we think it is very important if arbitration is to 14 become a meaningful way to deal with disputes, 15 commercial disputes, that it is very important that to 16 the extent possible and to the extent that jurisdiction 17 is granted to them, that the federal courts deal with 18 arbitration questions and develop a body of law that 19 will be uniform and will put some meaning out of what, 20 quite frankly, now, in many situations, is chaos.

21 QUESTION: I don't mean to bring this up time
22 and again, but suppose there is a real honest question 23 as to whether under the language in a contract a 24 particular dispute is arbitrable or not. Now, let's 25 also suppose that contrary perhaps to what you would say

1 that that issue was a matter of state law. Just suppose 2 that.

3 And then there is a pending state court issue
4 on the same state law question, and then there is a 5 diversity action in the federal court seeking to invoke
6 the Federal Arbitration Act, and the judge says, well, I
7 think this coverage question, this arbitrability
8 question, is a matter of state law. There is a case 9 pending in state court, already pending there, and it is 10 at issue. I am going to stay.

11 Do you think that would be an abuse of 12 discretion or just flatly contrary to the Federal 13 Arbitration Act?

14 MR. GAEDE: Your Honor, I believe that that 15 would be contrary to the intent and purpose of the 16 Federal Arbitration Act, and I believe that Congress in 17 its wisdom, having granted --

18 QUESTION: It just wanted the federal courts
19 to just take charge of arbitration cases.

20 MR. GAEDE: I think to the extent that the 21 underlying jurisdiction was available, the answer to 22 that is yes.

23 QUESTION: Do you have to have a diversity
24 case to get in federal court under the Arbitration Act?

25 MR. GAEDE: You don't have to have a diversity

1 case, but you have to have a basis for jurisdiction 2 other than a federal question of a basis of 3 jurisdiction.

4 QUESTION: Well, the Federal Arbitration Act
5 is not a jurisdictional statute. Is that right?

6 MR. GAEDGE: That's correct. That is correct.

7 QUESTION: All right.

8 MR. GAEDGE: It does not set up its own
9 independent jurisdiction --

10 QUESTION: So suppose all the parties are -- 11 well, if you think that -- if the coverage question, the 12 arbitrability question is a matter of federal law, why 13 wouldn't any action to enforce a contract, promise to 14 arbitrate under the Federal Arbitration Act, why 15 wouldn't that necessarily be arising under federal law?

16 MR. GAEDGE: Your Honor, we believe that it is 17 an issue that is to be determined by federal substantive
18 law --

19 QUESTION: Well, if it is --

20 MR. GAEDGE: -- but if it happens to be decided 21 in the state court, the state court is obligated to 22 apply that federal substantive law. And as Mr. Floyd 23 said, that is what the North Carolina Supreme Court has 24 held subsequent to this case, and what most other courts 25 have held.

1 To return for a moment to the question of 2 appealability, this is not a piecemeal appeal. This is 3 an appeal of the only issue that exists. And the 4 Gillespie case, we think, has application here. I
5 understand that in Livesay, this Court said that we want
6 to make sure that the courts understand that Gillespie 7 is limited, a limited decision, but we think that if 8 Gillespie is ever going to have any application, that 9 this is the kind of case to which it ought to apply, and 10 we have cited in our brief a number of cases where the 11 circuit courts have applied Gillespie in a limited way 12 to take appeal of stay orders.

13 In addition, we think the Cohen case is 14 applicable to this situation, the collateral order rule 15 in the Cohen case. We were denied the right to a 16 hearing, which in our view was finally denied to us.
17 That is an important question. It is an important 18 federal question. It is an important question to people 19 who in our situation are trying to enforce arbitration 20 agreements.

21 And finally, that decision was unreviewable on 22 appeal, because once the matter went to the state court 23 and was determined by the state court, there is nothing 24 for an appeal to the circuit court, and as a matter of 25 fact, if the circuit court and if the state court finds

1 the case -- decides the case on the arbitration 2 question, then there is no right of appeal within the 3 federal system to us to a circuit court.

4 Obviously, it is possible for the case to wind 5 its way up through the state court system and then take 6 a discretionary appeal to this Court, but that is a very 7 difficult and very torturous route.

8 I would like to turn for one minute, if I 9 could, to the stay question, because I think that what 10 Mr. Floyd and the hospital are suggesting here turns 11 Colorado River upside down. In Colorado River, this 12 Court held that unless there were unusual circumstances, 13 the federal court could not defer its jurisdiction.
14 What the hospital is really arguing, we think, is that 15 the mere fact of the prior filing of the case in the 16 state court system requires that the case be referred 17 back to the state court system.

18 If you look at the facts in Colorado River, 19 you had the McCarren Act in the Colorado River, which 20 indicated that these water right cases should be decided 21 in the state courts. As a matter of fact, there was 22 even a question before this Court as to whether or not 23 the federal court still had jurisdiction. That was the 24 first issue this Court decided.

25 There is no such thing in this case. As a

1 matter of fact, exactly to the contrary. This Section 4
2 is a right -- granted a right to my client to have a 3 hearing in federal court.

4 The second thing is that in Colorado River you
5 had a res, the water rights. There is no res in this 6 situation. There is no similar existing body of 7 property to be dealt with. And in the Colorado River, 8 there was a very -- they emphasized there were a 9 thousand defendants in the state court case, and that 10 they were 300 miles apart, all of these factors. That 11 is not true in this case. Both cases are in the courts 12 in the county where Greensboro, North Carolina, 13 resides.

14 The only factor in this case that is similar 15 to Colorado River or that Colorado River relied on is 16 the matter of priority of filing, and we do not believe 17 that the simple matter of priority of filing should be 18 determined.

19 On the issue of priority of filing, I would 20 like to point out again that we as a party trying to 21 seek to enforce our Section 4 rights do not have the 22 right to go into court and enforce those rights until 23 the other party has declined to arbitrate. The only 24 solution that we had in this situation absent what 25 happened is to ignore the fact that we were in

1 discussions with the hospital about our claims, ignore 2 that, file our arbitration demand, and then see whether 3 or not they would resist it or not.

4 Thank you, Your Honor.

5 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Thank you, gentlemen.
6 The case is submitted.

7 (Whereupon, at 1:59 p.m., the case in the 8 above-entitled matter was submitted.)
