2 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: We will hear arguments
3 next in Press-Enterprise Company against Superior Court
4 of California, Riverside County.

5 Mr. Ward, you may proceed whenever you are 6 ready.

7 ORAL ARGUMENT OF JAMES D. WARD, ESQ.,
8 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

9 MR. WARD: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it 10 please the Court, this is a closure case involving 11 specifically the issue of closure of the voir dire 12 proceedings in a capital case. The questions presented 13 here confront the Court with the rules involving access 14 to the courtroom by the public and the press.

15 QUESTION: I want to be sure not to 16 misunderstand you. You said in a capital case. Your 17 presentation, your submission is not limited to capital 18 cases, or is it?

19 MR. WARD: The case below was limited --

20 QUESTION: Yes.

21 MR. WARD: -- to a capital case, and the --

22 QUESTION: But --

23 MR. WARD: -- the trial court was -- and the 24 courts below have been utilizing the authority of a case 25 which dealt with the interrogation of the jury in a

1 capital case. The problem has only arisen thus far in 2 capital cases. Obviously, we would be happy with the 3 pronouncement that affected the voir dire in all sorts
4 of criminal cases, Mr. Chief Justice.

5 We are in fact asking the Court to clarify 6 that the right of access to establish that that right of 7 access applies to the jury selection process generally.
8 We are asking this Court to pronounce that the 9 California Supreme Court case of Hovey versus Superior 10 Court should be construed and applied consistent with 11 the right of access.

12 QUESTION: Well, we can't actually do that for 13 you, can we, Mr. Ward? We can't announce how the 14 decision of the Supreme Court of California should be 15 construed. The Supreme Court of California is the final 16 authority on that.

17 MR. WARD: Justice Rehnquist, the Supreme 18 Court of the state of California pronounced a rule in 19 this case as to the method of selecting jurors in 20 capital cases which has been, in our opinion, 21 misinterpreted by the trial courts of our state in a way
22 that has impacted upon our constitutional rights. It 23 would be our position that this Court could most 24 assuredly pronounce that the case should not be 25 interpreted to impact upon our First Amendment rights.

1 QUESTION: We could certainly say that if it 2 were so construed, it would have an impact on your 3 rights, I suppose.

4 MR. WARD: I believe we are saying the same
5 thing, Justice Rehnquist, in a different -- at least I 6 am attempting to do so.

7 The defendant in the case below was found
8 guilty and sentenced to death in connection with a rape 9 and murder. During the trial, the court closed the 10 proceedings during six weeks of voir dire proceedings.
11 The transcript of the six weeks of voir dire was sealed 12 by the court.

13 Three times the petitioner attempted to seek 14 access to the proceedings. On the first occasion, in 15 October of 1981, prior to the commencement of the jury 16 selection process, petitioner made an oral and written 17 motion to allow the public access to the voir dire
18 proceedings.

19 We did so because we had faced this issue 20 before in other departments of the same court. The 21 courts in our county and indeed in the state of 22 California had been closing the courtroom during the 23 voir dire as a result of the case of Hovey versus 24 Superior Court handed down by the California Supreme 25 Court.

1 QUESTION: But doing it only in capital
2 cases?

3 MR. WARD: To our knowledge, the problem only 4 arose in capital cases. We have had a reference to the 5 possibility of the use of the same procedures in other 6 cases, but we have no knowledge of those instances, 7 Justice Brennan.

8 The -- We contended then, as we contend now, 9 that the case of Hovey versus Superior Court did not 10 require closure in order to carry out the mandate of the 11 California Supreme Court in this regard. We argued that 12 to the court on October 19th, 1981, and at the 13 conclusion of the hearing, the court made some comments 14 which appear in the record and in the joint appendix.
15 Those comments were generally to the effect that the 16 court believed that the general voir dire should remain 17 open, and that the death-qualifying voir dire should be 18 closed.

19 However, the court went on thereafter, after 20 the entreaties of the defense counsel, to indicate that 21 there should be other portions of the voir dire that 22 would possibly be closed. The court expanded its 23 thoughts slightly and said that he would conduct 24 individual voir dire with regard to death qualification 25 and "any other special areas that counsel may feel some

1 problem with regard to."

2 The court went on to say that regarding 3 individual voir dire, the court "reserved jurisdiction 4 to permit something further than death qualification."
5 The court then proceeded to the selection of the jury as 6 indicated with three days, three days of open voir dire 7 and six weeks of closed voir dire.

8 QUESTION: Is that fairly typical in capital
9 cases in California?

10 MR. WARD: Unfortunately, Mr. Chief Justice, 11 the length of time for selecting of juries has grown by 12 leaps and bounds in California.

13 QUESTION: I take it California lets the 14 lawyers do it.

15 MR. WARD: That is correct, Your Honor.

16 The fact of the matter is, counsel's -- 17 respondent's brief referred to one case, a case in which 18 we petitioned for cert to this Court, involving 19 selection of a jury involving six months. That is the 20 most extensive one that we know of. And I might add in 21 that case the voir dire in its entirety was closed, in 22 its entirety. However, in that case the transcript was 23 released following the voir dire process.

24 At the conclusion of the jury selection in 25 this case, petitioner again filed a written motion with

1 the court, this time requesting the transcript of the 2 closed proceeding. At the hearing, the court admitted 3 that the responses of the jurors were, to use the 4 court's words, "of little moment." But then the court
5 refers to some of the answers being "sensitive" so far 6 as publication is concerned.

7 At the conclusion of the argument, the court
8 verbalized that "the right of privacy of the jurors," t 9 use the court's words, "should prevail, and that the 10 public's right to know," to use the court's words, was 11 limited. On that basis, petitioner's request for access 12 to the transcript was again refused.

13 QUESTION: Neither of those rights are in the 14 Constitution, are they, either of them, the juror's 15 right to privacy or the public's right to now?

16 MR. WARD: I agree with that, Justice
17 Rehnquist.

18 On the third occasion, on February 23rd, 1982, 19 after the defendant had been tried, convicted, and 20 sentenced to death --

21 QUESTION: Did you agree there is no right to 22 know in the Constitution?

23 MR. WARD: I am sorry, Justice Stevens. That 24 was -- I perhaps was a bit quick with my answer.

25 QUESTION: I think you might as well sit down

1 if you agree with that.

2 (General laughter.)

3 QUESTION: Will you read the passage that 4 tells us that? Or cite it to us?

5 MR. WARD: I cannot, Justice -- Mr. Chief 6 Justice, at this point in time, cite the passage from 7 the Constitution. I think we are not, fortunately or 8 unfortunately, concerned with the utilization or the use
9 of the words "right to know." It was a passage utilized 10 by the court during the explanation of its rationale for 11 having closed the courtroom, and I was only referring to 12 its utilization of terms which were perhaps 13 inappropriate in the circumstances, for instance, 14 calling upon a right of privacy, which separately is 15 undefined, or at least ill-defined as it pertains to 16 jurors at this point in time.

17 On the third occasion when we tried to secure 18 access, we made an ex parte motion to get the release of 19 the transcript, and once again, the court refused. At 20 that time the court indicated that most of the 21 information was "dull and boring," and some of the 22 jurors had, to quote the court, "some special 23 experiences in sensitive areas that do not appear to be 24 appropriate for public discussion."

25 When the Court of Appeal in California and the

1 Supreme Court of California refused our petitions, we 2 came to this Court on certiorari.

3 The voir dire proceedings is, of course, what 4 we are concerned with here. The respondent in its 5 briefs has conceded that the voir dire is a part of the 6 trial. This acknowledgement by the respondent does not, 7 of course, eliminate the issue. The trial courts in 8 California have been closing the voir dire, as 9 previously indicated, ignoring the admonitions of this 10 Court regarding the right of access to public 11 proceedings.

12 We feel that it is necessary for this Court to 13 make a firm pronouncement that the principle set forth 14 in Richmond Newspapers, reaffirmed in Gold Newspaper, 15 apply to the proceedings in connection with the 16 selection of the jury.

17 We would point to the fact that the voir dire, 18 as with the evidence taking portion of the trial, has 19 been historically an open process. We would --

20 QUESTION: You would think, I gather, that 21 your First Amendment right would be satisfied even if 22 you were excluded from the voir dire proceeding itself 23 if a transcript of that proceeding were made available 24 to you?

25 MR. WARD: No, Justice Brennan, we would not

1 be satisfied with exclusion from the proceedings itself.
2 The transcript is, at best, a second best alternative.

3 Functionally, all of the reasoning of this 4 Court that has been applied to the value of the open 5 trial process applies specifically to the open voir dire 6 process as well.

7 In order for the court below to close the 8 courtroom in such circumstances, of course, the court 9 should have articulated on the record findings that 10 absent closure there was a substantial probability of 11 irreparable harm to a compelling interest, that no less 12 restrictive alternatives to closure were available when 13 closure would effectively protect against the perceived 14 harm.

15 Petitioner feels that the remarks of the court
16 and the brief statement in the one written minute order 17 were inadequate to constitute articulated findings in 18 this regard. More particularly, it is our contention 19 that there was no compelling interest which under any 20 circumstances would justify closure in this case.

21 Respondents advance two rationales. One is 22 the Hovey decision, and second, the rights of juror 23 privacy. As to the Hovey decision, it is strongly our 24 contention that the Hovey case does not call for 25 closure. Hovey versus Superior Court was a decision of

1 the California Supreme Court which, so far as it 2 pertains to these proceedings, involved the 3 interrogation of prospective jurors in a capital case.
4 The Hovey mandate was decided based upon a single study 5 by an assistant professor of psychology of a group of 6 some 67 persons who viewed films of simulated voir dire
7 proceedings.

8 This was not a study of the impact of the 9 public and the press upon the venire. There is no 10 mention of that in the study nor in the opinion itself.
11 It was a study of the impact of the answers of the 12 venire persons one upon another. The study concluded 13 that members of a venire in such a case were impacted by 14 the procedures then in use in California, and there was 15 a tendency to create a predisposition in those jurors 16 towards capital punishment.

17 Accepting the findings of the psychological 18 study as sound, the California Supreme Court mandated 19 that all courts in the state during the death qualifying 20 questioning of jurors should question those prospective 21 jurors, to use the court's words, "individually and in 22 sequestration."

23 The court, however, made a clear statement in 24 the opinion that the ruling should not impact upon the 25 openness of the trial. The public defender of the state

1 of California has filed an amicus brief in these 2 proceedings. The public contender contends, as we do, 3 that the Hovey decision does not require court closure.
4 The public defender was, of course --

5 QUESTION: May I ask you, Mr. Ward, are you 6 going to argue that there are no circumstances under 7 which there may be closure of the voir dire?

8 MR. WARD: I would not espouse an absolute 9 rule. I believe that one could perceive of 10 circumstances where it would be necessary, and I believe 11 this Court has so --

12 QUESTION: Well, how do you suggest there be 13 an inquiry into those circumstances, whether or not 14 there are such circumstances?

15 MR. WARD: I believe that a hearing would have 16 to be held giving a reasonable right to the public and 17 press to --

18 QUESTION: Initiated how?

19 MR. WARD: That's a problem of great 20 difficulty that this Court has, I think, faced before.
21 It is a matter of notice, and the right of the court to 22 control its own process.

23 QUESTION: I mean, notice to whom? To the 24 press?

25 MR. WARD: Notice to the public and press.

1 QUESTION: In general, what criteria do you
2 have in mind?

3 MR. WARD: As to the notice?

4 QUESTION: No, not the notice, the substance
5 of the inquiry.

6 MR. WARD: The substance of the inquiry, it 7 would strike me as, it would be strictly as to the 8 necessity and the application of the rules laid down by 9 this Court as to closure, and the inquiry would go 10 simply to the requirement of the court under the given 11 circumstances to look to any closure.

12 QUESTION: Who would have the burden of 13 proof?

14 MR. WARD: The burden would be on those 15 seeking closure.

16 QUESTION: And by what standard of proof?

17 MR. WARD: I think that the -- 18 QUESTION: Clear and convincing?

19 MR. WARD: I would believe that clear and 20 convincing would be the appropriate standard, because we 21 are dealing with the First Amendment right of access.

22 The -- As I say, the Court in Hovey indicated 23 that --

24 QUESTION: I gather you would argue, Mr. Ward, 25 that the presumption should be that the voir dire should 1 be open.

2 MR. WARD: Yes, most assuredly, Justice
3 Brennan, and for a very elemental reason. When one 4 looks at voir dire as, if you wish to distinguish voir 5 dire from the evidence-taking portion of the trial, the 6 voir dire is the time when the public is involved in the 7 process directly. It is, after all, the time that the 8 members of the public are chosen at random to serve on 9 the jury and act as the triers of fact. It is indeed 10 the most public part of the trial. The voir dire by its 11 very nature is a public process.

12 Only until we were confronted with a ruling
13 such as Hovey versus Superior Court was it anything
14 else. It couldn't even be conceived of as being closed 15 under the previous procedures, because the public came 16 into the courtroom to select from the public who was 17 going to be the trier of fact. So it is apparent to 18 us --

19 QUESTION: You do have a problem that some 20 states don't take six months to pick a jury.

21 MR. WARD: Well, that's quite true, Justice
22 Marshall.

23 QUESTION: How would you accommodate that?

24 MR. WARD: I don't think, however, that the 25 presence of the public is the reason for the six months

1 or for any lengthy interrogation.

2 QUESTION: I see.

3 MR. WARD: Perhaps it lies, although I
4 hesitate to say so, with the fact that lawyers do the 5 interrogation. Perhaps it lies with the decisions of 6 the California Supreme Court in the breadth of 7 questioning that they permit. But there is no 8 suggestion or no rationale which would suggest it is 9 because of the presence of the public.

10 QUESTION: It would make no difference to you 11 whether it was ten minutes, a half an hour, or six 12 months?

13 MR. WARD: It would make no difference
14 whatsoever, Justice Marshall. Despite the clear 15 statement --

16 QUESTION: Mr. Ward, can I ask this question?
17 I haven't read the Hovey opinion. I have looked at it, 18 but it is awfully long --

19 MR. WARD: I agree.

20 QUESTION: -- and I don't pretend to have even 21 begun to have read it, but if the substance of what the 22 California Supreme Court suggests, and as I say, I don't 23 really know whether this is true or not, is that the 24 public -- the conduct of the voir dire in public and 25 press attention to the voir dire would somehow tend to

1 make the jury more prone to impose the death penalty 2 than otherwise, if that is in essence what they are 3 saying, would that be a valid reason for closure?

4 MR. WARD: Well, I can't go with the 5 supposition in the first place, Justice Stevens. That 6 isn't precisely what the court said. The court said
7 that because of the impact of the venire persons 8 observing the conduct of the other venire persons when 9 they were interrogated on the death penalty, that there 10 was a predisposition created by these circumstances, and 11 therefore the court reasoned that it would be best if 12 they be questioned individually.

13 Now, the unfortunate word usage was "and in 14 sequestration," suggesting, we believe, and as the 15 public defender believes, that you could -- you should 16 have the questioning done individually, and one juror at 17 a time, but there is no reason to take that outside 18 the --

19 QUESTION: Let me take it a step further. I 20 didn't mean to suggest that they in fact had so 21 concluded; but say the legislature, let's say, had a 22 series of hearings on whether -- what to do about the 23 voir dire problem. They are too long. Should we close 24 them or not? And they came up with a statute that had 25 findings in it and said, we are persuaded by everything,

1 with all these studies and all the rest of it, on the 2 facts, that the public conduct of a voir dire plus all
3 the press attention given to the selection of a jury 4 during this period in a capital case will tend to make 5 the jury more willing to impose the death penalty.

6 Would that be an adequate basis for closure?

7 MR. WARD: One would have -- if one could 8 follow all of those suppositions, I would assume that if 9 we were convinced that the process created a 10 predisposition towards the death penalty, one would have 11 to consider it a compelling reason to consent to 12 closure, but I can't agree, of course, with any of the --

13 QUESTION: As a matter of fact, you don't 14 think such a showing has yet been made?

15 MR. WARD: Oh, absolutely not, Justice
16 Stevens. The clear statement of the court was a problem 17 -- rather, the clear statement of the court in the use 18 of the word "sequestration" was a problem to the trial 19 courts in California, and their interpretation of this 20 was spotty and mixed. The courts below attempted at 21 times to close only the death qualifying questions, at 22 times close the entire voir dire, and at times did not 23 close it at all.

24 The fault, perhaps, is in the --

25 QUESTION: Mr. Ward, do you think that

1 prospective jurors do have any rights concerning 2 questions that may be of a very personal or private 3 nature to have the process closed that have to be 4 considered by the trial court?

5 MR. WARD: Assuming for the moment, Justice
6 O'Connor, that there is some right of the juror to 7 refrain from responding to a question for whatever 8 reason similar to the ones that you may have posited
9 there, the fact remains that I can conceive of no 10 circumstance why it would be necessary to close the 11 courtroom in order to solve that problem for the juror, 12 because there are reasonable alternatives available to 13 the court to avoid any damage to any perceived right of 14 the juror in those circumstances.

15 QUESTION: Such as what alternatives?

16 MR. WARD: The most obvious being, of course, 17 that the court could excuse the juror before invading 18 any perceived right of privacy, because the defendant
19 has the right to a fair and impartial juror and a fair 20 and impartial jury, but not to a specific juror. It is 21 a process of random selection in any event, and it is a 22 matter, even as respondent's brief has pointed out, is a 23 matter of chance as to whether one is called to the 24 venire, or sits in the box.

25 I submit that a juror with a perceived privacy

1 problem is no different than a person who has an illness 2 or for some particular reason, is going to have an 3 operation the following week and cannot sit on the 4 trial, or has some physical infirmity or disability.
5 There is no reason to retain a juror whose rights would 6 be potentially offended by the questioning, but the 7 point remains that the process can remain open, because 8 the defendant's Sixth Amendment desire to have a fair 9 and impartial juror and a fair and impartial jury are 10 the same rights espoused by the public and the press 11 under what we believe their First Amendment right of 12 access to be. They wish to see the process accomplished 13 in the same way.

14 QUESTION: Mr. Ward, in some systems, as you 15 no doubt know, a jury in a criminal case is put in the 16 box and sworn within an hour, sometimes 30 minutes, 17 sometimes 15 minutes. Now, generally, that is 18 accomplished by way of rather comprehensive 19 questionnaires filled out by the jurors in advance which 20 are available to counsel on both sides, and of course to 21 the court.

22 Would you say that questionnaire must be 23 available to the press, since it is in effect part of 24 the process that is at issue here?

25 MR. WARD: It would be my position, yes, that

1 the questionnaires, being part of the process, should be 2 available to the press, but if I may elaborate on that, 3 Mr. Chief Justice, I believe that the use of 4 questionnaires is one of those less restrictive 5 alternatives that could help us avoid the problem with 6 the juror and yet permit the public access to the 7 proceedings, because I submit that if we are dealing 8 with a case, one of the more common sensitive areas with 9 which we are concerned is, for instance, sexual 10 preferences, and if the questionnaires were directed in 11 such a way to elicit from jurors whether any of them 12 harbored any feelings or had any problems in these 13 areas, it could be resolved short of offending any 14 juror's rights in that regard, and we believe that 15 questionnaires is indeed one of the very viable, less 16 restrictive alternatives that would be available to the 17 court.

18 QUESTION: But if it is available, if, as you 19 say, that questionnaire should be available to the 20 media, then where is the protection of the privacy?

21 MR. WARD: The protection arrives, Your Honor, 22 in connection with the use of careful questioning, and 23 the judge at the trial level controlling the court can 24 see to it that the questioning does not offend areas of 25 potential privacy or sensitivity if they exist.

1 QUESTION: I take it, Mr. Ward, whether the 2 system is of individual interrogation or of the venire 3 as a group, all you are asking is that the press be 4 allowed to be present.

5 MR. WARD: Absolutely, Justice Brennan. We 6 believe that the public and press should be present 7 during the procedure, and we see no reason why that 8 should be inconsistent with Hovey.

9 QUESTION: Well, I can remember interrogating
10 prospective jurors in chambers with just counsel 11 present, and your suggestion would be there also ought 12 to be present at least the press. You can't very well 13 allow the -- accommodate to many of the general public.

14 MR. WARD: We would find inappropriate the 15 interrogation of jurors in chambers.

16 QUESTION: Inappropriate?

17 MR. WARD: Yes, Justice Brennan. We believe 18 it is part of the open process. The fact of the matter 19 is that the --

20 QUESTION: Mr. Ward, would your supposed 21 rights extend beyond voir dire and into, for example, 22 the plea bargaining process between the prosecutor and 23 defense counsel?

24 MR. WARD: We make that -- We do not make that 25 suggestion at this time, Justice O'Connor.

1 QUESTION: You are saving that for tomorrow?

2 MR. WARD: Yes, Your Honor.

3 (General laughter.)

4 MR. WARD: I will be back. No, I -- we do not 5 make such a suggestion at this time.

6 The fact is, though, that the Hovey decision 7 potentially is being read by the courts as calling for 8 closure, and in fact I would add parenthetically that 9 the Supreme Court of the state of Kentucky so 10 interpreted the case in a recent, very recent decision 11 where it said that the defendants in the state of 12 California have the right to a closed voir dire.

13 Now, if the case is read that way, it violates 14 this Court's decision in Globe, because it is then a 15 mandate requiring closure, and we submit that this case, 16 Hovey versus Superior Court, is no different than a 17 statute such as the type that you interpreted, the 18 Massachusetts statute in the Globe case.

19 QUESTION: Of course, to say that Globe 20 controls, you have to show that this is really part of 21 the trial, don't you?

22 MR. WARD: We would contend fervently that it
23 is a part of the trial, Justice Rehnquist.

24 QUESTION: Well, how do you define trial for 25 that purpose?

1 MR. WARD: Well, the trial in the appellate
2 courts of the state of California has been defined -- 3 has been defined as commencing with the selection of the 4 jury. We also are enamored with the reasoning of U.S.
5 versus Brooklier in the Ninth Circuit, where they held 6 specifically that the voir dire was a part of the trial 7 process, but I would point out, if I may, that whether 8 you define the trial as commencing with the beginning of 9 the selection of the jurors or as of the time of the 10 calling of the first witness, you look to the reasoning 11 for openness, and the rationale for openness of 12 Richmond, which applied to the evidence-taking of the 13 trial, evidence-taking portion, we believe applies 14 equally if not more forcefully in the voir dire.

15 QUESTION: Well, suppose in this case instead 16 of it being voir dire, it had been a motion the day 17 before it was set for trial for a continuance, at which 18 both sides were going to present witnesses, and then the 19 trial judge felt there was a fair amount of reason for 20 closing that because the witnesses might touch on some 21 sensitive matters.

22 Now, would you feel that under the principle 23 that would be announced in the Globe case or in this 24 case, you could claim that that was part of the trial?

25 MR. WARD: Not necessarily. We are not

1 dealing here, of course, with pretrial publicity as a 2 problem. We are dealing here with, of course, the 3 selection of the jury as a part of the process, which we 4 contend that it is.

5 QUESTION: Well, would you say that a motion
6 for a continuance the day before the jury was scheduled 7 to be empaneled would also be what you call a "part of 8 the process?"

9 MR. WARD: We are not prepared at this time to 10 indicate that all of the proceedings which go on prior 11 to the -- prior to the commencement of the jury 12 selection are a part of the trial.

13 QUESTION: When you say, we are not prepared 14 to do it at this time, it is sort of an unsatisfactory 15 answer. What do you really think about it? It is not 16 whether you are arguing it today. It is how do you 17 analyze it.

18 MR. WARD: All right, Justice O'Connor, I am
19 sorry. You are quite right. It is a very fair question 20 and comment. My position would be that openness should 21 prevail.

22 I would like to reserve --

23 QUESTION: We got into that in Gannett, didn't 24 we?

25 MR. WARD: Pardon me, Justice Blackmun?

1 QUESTION: I say, in the Gannett case, we 2 certainly got into pretrial material.

3 MR. WARD: Certainly, Justice Blackmun, you
4 did get into it in the Gannett case, which -- it was 5 approached from the Sixth Amendment analysis, and we are 6 not, of course, in this case claiming any Sixth 7 Amendment right of access. As you are well aware, in 8 Gannett, you did not get to the First Amendment right of 9 access at that time.

10 If I have any additional time, I would like to 11 reserve it.

12 QUESTION: I suppose the whole case could go 13 off just on whether this is part of the trial or not.
14 If this is part of the trial, Richmond governs, and 15 if --

16 MR. WARD: No, I think not, Justice White, 17 because I think that the --

18 QUESTION: Well, you do submit it is part of 19 the trial.

20 MR. WARD: I do submit that it is part? Oh, 21 we definitely believe that under California law the voir 22 dire --

23 QUESTION: If we agree with you, wouldn't 24 Richmond control?

25 MR. WARD: Absolutely. Absolutely. But even

1 if anyone should be persuaded or convinced that it is 2 better to think of the trial as commencing with the 3 first witness, nonetheless --

4 QUESTION: Well, if it isn't part of the 5 trial, then we have to consider the relationship of 6 Gannett and Richmond.

7 MR. WARD: Yes, that's true, so let's keep it 8 as part of the trial.

10 MR. WARD: Thank you.

11 QUESTION: In California, does the trial begin 12 with the jury selection for all purposes, for example, 13 double jeopardy? When does double jeopardy begin under 14 that opinion?

15 MR. WARD: Double --

16 QUESTION: When does jeopardy attach, not 17 double jeopardy?

18 MR. WARD: Jeopardy attaches with the 19 commencement of the taking of testimony, but the test 20 there, Mr. Chief Justice, is significantly different.
21 You are dealing with the right of an individual, and 22 when does jeopardy apply, and that could be rationalized 23 to involve the --

24 QUESTION: Yes, I know, but your previous 25 statement was that a trial commences with the selection

1 of the jury. It does for these purposes of this case.

2 MR. WARD: Yes.

3 QUESTION: That is your contention.

4 MR. WARD: That is correct.

5 If I have any additional time, I would like to 6 reserve it.

7 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Very well.

8 Mr. Salter.

9 ORAL ARGUMENT OF GLENN ROBERT SALTER, ESQ.,

10 ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT

11 MR. SALTER: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it 12 please the Court, this case presents a situation which 13 calls for the delicate balancing of three fundamental 14 interests, the Sixth Amendment right of a defendant to a 15 fair trial, the First Amendment right of the press to 16 gather and report the news, and the First Amendment and 17 penumbral rights of the prospective jurors to a right to 18 privacy.

19 The issue as we perceive it is not whether 20 there is a right of access by the public to voir dire 21 proceedings. Rather, we see the fundamental issue to be 22 the extent of the juror's right to privacy.

23 QUESTION: Are you talking, Mr. Salter, about 24 a juror's right to privacy guaranteed by the federal 25 Constitution?

1 MR. SALTER: Yes.

2 QUESTION: What provision of the United States
3 Constitution do you think guarantees a juror's right to 4 privacy?

5 MR. SALTER: The right to privacy is not 6 specifically enumerated in either the Constitution or in 7 the Bill of Rights. However, this Court has interpreted 8 that there is a right to privacy that goes even beyond, 9 has roots even deeper than the bill of rights, and we 10 take that right to privacy and we say that an individual 11 has an inherent right to privacy.

12 QUESTION: And what cases from this Court do 13 you rely on for that proposition?

14 MR. SALTER: I think we cited several in the 15 brief, for instance Griswald, the Griswald case.

16 QUESTION: Could a juror refuse to answer a 17 judge's question on the voir dire on the grounds that it 18 would violate his right of privacy?

19 MR. SALTER: I believe our position would be, 20 yes, he would have that right.

21 QUESTION: And do you think a judge would -- 22 do what?

23 MR. SALTER: We had a case in California that 24 just went up on appeal. A decision came out about I'd 25 say two to three months ago.

1 QUESTION: Would you raise your voice a little 2 bit, counsel?

3 MR. SALTER: I am sorry.

4 The case was, I believe, Bobb versus Municipal 5 Court, in which a prospective juror, an attorney, as it 6 turned out, refused to answer a question, and she was 7 held in contempt by the court, and the Court of Appeals 8 determined that in her particular case, her refusal was 9 appropriate.

10 QUESTION: What was it, Fifth Amendment?

11 MR. SALTER: No, she was --

12 QUESTION: I think we are too -- I am 13 responsible for it, but I think we are too far afield, 14 aren't we?

15 MR. SALTER: Well, I think the question is 16 appropriate, though, because her response really was, 17 you are asking the male jurors questions as -- you do 18 not ask them what their spouse does, but you ask the 19 female jurors what their husband's occupation is, and 20 she says, that violates my rights, and I am going to 21 refuse to answer, and the Court of Appeals held that she 22 had that right.

23 QUESTION: You mean, you have the right of 24 privacy not to tell your husband's work?

25 MR. SALTER: It was not a right to privacy

1 issue. The issue was --

2 QUESTION: I didn't think so.

3 MR. SALTER: -- the fact that she could

4 refuse.

5 QUESTION: I am asking for the right of 6 privacy point. Some juror says, under my right of 7 privacy, you don't have a right to question me.

8 MR. SALTER: I believe -- I am unaware of any

9 case which has supported that, but I believe that a

10 juror would have that right.

11 QUESTION: I would hate to see somebody try.

12 I mean, I don't understand how you get the juror's point

13 into this as a First Amendment right. I don't -- it

14 just --

15 MR. SALTER: Well, we start with the --

16 QUESTION: Suppose in the middle of a trial,

17 we have a case here in this Court where a juror was 18 drunk. Could that juror say, you can't question me

19 because it would violate my right of privacy?

20 MR. SALTER: If the juror was drunk, he would

21 probably be released on the grounds of being an 22 incompetent juror.

23 QUESTION: I mean, could he say, you can't

24 question me?

25 Don't you violate my privacy?

1 MR. SALTER: He would have to have some basis
2 for it.

3 QUESTION: What?

4 MR. SALTER: He would have to have some basis
5 for refusing to respond to the --

6 QUESTION: Other than privacy?

7 MR. SALTER: No.

8 QUESTION: He could say privacy, then.

9 MR. SALTER: Yes, I believe he could. He 10 would, however, have to have some basis for that right 11 to privacy. He could not simply say, I am not going to 12 answer based on privacy unless --

13 QUESTION: Well, that's all you're telling 14 me.

15 MR. SALTER: No, I don't believe so. What we 16 are saying is, for instance --

17 QUESTION: Justice Rehnquist asked you, where 18 was it in the Constitution.

19 MR. SALTER: Let me give you --

20 QUESTION: I am asking you, where is it any 21 place?

22 MR. SALTER: Let me give you an example.
23 Let's assume that the question, and it is a question 24 which probably came up in the very case we are dealing 25 with, how did you vote on a particular issue, that being

1 the death penalty issue. That issue has been on the 2 ballot in the state of California. I think a defendant
3 has a legitimate right in asking that question. I also 4 think that a juror could legitimately say, I'm sorry, 5 but the ballot box is secret, and you cannot compel me
6 to answer that particular question.

7 QUESTION: So how do they decide that? Or is 8 that why the voir dires take six months in California?

9 (General laughter.)

10 MR. SALTER: Part of the reason that voir dire 11 has taken so long is because of the very recent case of 12 People versus Williams. That case held that you may ask 13 questions which legitimately could give you grounds to 14 use your peremptory challenges, and so it allows you to 15 go into areas that prior to that you could not -- were 16 supposedly not allowed to go into in the state of 17 California. You could really only ask questions dealing 18 with -- going to the issue of cause.

19 But they expanded that and said very 20 specifically, you can ask questions which are reasonably 21 related to a peremptory challenge, and that would 22 include issues dealing with sex, race, religion, 23 politics, anything which was reasonably related to the 24 particular case at hand, and that is in large part the 25 reason that the one case that Mr. Ward referred to went

1 five months.

2 QUESTION: May I ask if the voir dire in this 3 particular case is in the record before us? Is it 4 available to us?

5 MR. SALTER: The voir dire was not made 6 available.

7 QUESTION: Have you examined it?

8 MR. SALTER: No, I have not. I did not feel 9 that was any of my business.

10 QUESTION: So you didn't participate in the 11 trial then?

12 MR. SALTER: No, I did not.

13 QUESTION: Because I was just wondering if 14 there is any way to find out what percentage of this 15 massive inquiry really involved confidential matters, or 16 privacy matters, however you want to describe them.

17 MR. SALTER: What occurred was that they held 18 three days of general voir dire, asking the typical voir 19 dire questions.

20 QUESTION: I understand. We are most 21 interested in the rest of it.

22 MR. SALTER: But then, after that, issues
23 which dealt with matters of privacy, sexual relations, 24 race, religion, politics, those questions were then 25 reserved for that part of the voir dire which was held

1 privately.

2 QUESTION: Are you suggesting that the entire 3 off the record voir dire or whatever it is involved 4 these matters that would not normally be conducted in 5 open court? I had the impression that maybe 3 or 4 6 percent of the questions involved something fairly 7 sensitive, but the rest of it was fairly routine. But 8 are you telling me everything in this massive 9 examination is sensitive?

10 MR. SALTER: Not having read it, I could not 11 tell you. I can only tell you that the trial judge held 12 those matters in private according to what's in the 13 transcript, and so that those matters were dealt with.

14 QUESTION: Do you know of any case before this 15 Court that we were denied the right to see what we were 16 passing upon?

17 MR. SALTER: No, I am unaware, Your Honor --

18 QUESTION: Including the Pentagon Papers? But 19 we can't see this?

20 MR. SALTER: Certainly, I am sure we can make 21 that available. It is about 4,000 pages, and we can 22 certainly make it available to the Court if the Court 23 wishes to see it.

24 QUESTION: I don't wish to see it. I just 25 want to know why it is -

1 QUESTION: Why you can't.

2 QUESTION: Yes, that's right.

3 MR. SALTER: No, it was -- when the appendix 4 was put together --

5 QUESTION: So the answer is, we can see it.

6 MR. SALTER: -- it was the joint decision by 7 counsel to include what was included. It was not 8 intended in any way to deprive this Court of seeing any 9 information that it thought was relevant or that it 10 needed to see, and we would certainly be more than 11 willing to make it available, sealed in the manner in 12 which the trial court ordered that it was sealed.

13 QUESTION: Was it printed for the appeal to 14 the California Court of Appeals?

15 MR. SALTER: A transcript was made of it, and 16 it was under seal, and it was distributed to counsel who 17 would deal with the matter on appeal, but any references 18 to that transcript are, according to the trial court's 19 order, to be done in a confidential manner, so if there 20 is any question as far as the propriety of questions 21 asked at the voir dire or in the selection of the jury, 22 the defendant and the prosecutor would have the option 23 and the ability to deal with that question.

24 QUESTION: Mr. Salter, were there any feasible
25 alternatives to a permanent sealing of that record?

1 Could the actual sensitive responses have been deleted,
2 or could numbers have been assigned so the identities
3 weren't known? Were there any feasible alternatives?
4 And should the Court consider feasible alternatives?

5 MR. SALTER: I think first it is important 6 that the newspaper did not point out at the time of 7 trial, either before the voir dire occurred or after it
8 occurred, any possible alternatives, and the trial court 9 did, I believe, choose an alternative, and I think 10 probably the most appropriate alternative.

11 They did in their reply brief provide five 12 suggested alternatives. I don't think that any one of 13 those alternatives really serves the primary interest.
14 If you --

15 QUESTION: Mr. Salter, I am sorry. I perhaps 16 shouldn't interrupt you again, but I really am still -- 17 I think maybe the Chief Justice is concerned, too, about 18 the length of this voir dire and the significance of all 19 these questions.

20 You said it is all the result of the case of 21 People against Williams. Is that the case that involved 22 the question of whether there could be peremptory 23 challenges on racial grounds? And this is the matter of 24 making a record to explain why peremptory challenges are 25 made? Is it related to that problem?

1 MR. SALTER: It is related to the problem of 2 peremptory challenges, yes. The initial case in 3 California was the Edwards case, which limited your voir
4 dire questions to areas that you could reasonably use
5 for cause, in challenge for cause. However, the court 6 found that that rule was honored more in its breach, and 7 so it decided that appropriately you could inquire into 8 areas dealing with the issue of laying bases for 9 peremptory challenges.

10 QUESTION: What would otherwise have been just 11 not -- You have to make a record, in other words, to 12 justify peremptory challenges if they concentrate on one 13 minority group or something like that?

14 MR. SALTER: Basically that's true. One of 15 the cases that the Williams case cited dealt with the 16 issue of a rape case, and could you inquire of the 17 jurors whether they had had similar experiences, and the 18 Supreme Court at the time that decision was handed down 19 said, no, you couldn't, but it is quite clear now that 20 under the Williams case, you can ask those questions in 21 California. It is a legitimate area of inquiry. And it
22 is a very private and sensitive area that many people 23 would not, I believe, wish to respond to, whether they 24 had been perhaps sexually abused or sexually assaulted.

25 QUESTION: In a capital case, how many

1 peremptory challenges does each party have?

2 MR. SALTER: I believe it is 26, although they 3 are allowed to augment.

4 Speaking back to your question as to whether 5 or not there are any alternatives, I don't believe the 6 juror questionnaires solves that particular problem 7 because, as Mr. Chief Justice Burger pointed out, the 8 newspaper would want to have those made public, and so 9 it would not make any difference therefore whether you --

10 QUESTION: Well, I suppose at least you could 11 consider whether you could delete the identification of 12 those responding.

13 MR. SALTER: I think the problem in a small 14 community would be that if the public is allowed to come 15 into the courtroom, even if a juror had, instead of a 16 tag that said Juror on it, it said Number 18, someone in 17 the audience may very well know who that person is, and 18 so that person may very well say Juror Number 18, who 19 happens to be someone next door to me, answered the 20 question this way. There is no real right to privacy.

21 QUESTION: Well, but if we are dealing with a 22 transcript, that wouldn't be the case.

23 MR. SALTER: I think some of the same problems 24 arise, because it is the answers which you can begin to 25 relate to certain individuals, and I think it's the

1 issue that people would be able to tell from either the 2 types of questions or the responses given who those 3 individuals might be. It is, I think, a bigger problem
4 in a smaller community, but you can, and the newspapers 5 are well known for their detective work, you can very 6 well find out who the individuals are. It can be made 7 public. You can know who those people might be.

8 And so I do not believe that the questionnaire
9 really is a viable alternative, because in the long run 10 the question still comes out.

11 They offered an alternative of screening 12 questions. Once again, I think you have a similar 13 problem with your questionnaires. If the question is, 14 have you or anyone in your family ever been sexually 15 abused, it is very difficult to either -- to screen that 16 question or to rephrase that question in a way that does 17 not require the prospective juror to provide the same 18 basic information.

19 And so I do not believe that that provides any 20 real alternative, because when you are talking about the 21 issue of privacy, it is the nature, it is the answer 22 which is more important than it is the question.

23 I also do not believe that excusing jurors who 24 say -- or who describe -- or who refrain from describing 25 intimate information is really, once again, a viable

1 alternative, especially if that is done in open court.
2 It is not at all unusual for one juror to see another 3 juror offer an excuse, and have the trial judge allow 4 that juror to be let go.

5 A prospective juror who does not wish to serve 6 will simply mimic that excuse, and so you have the 7 problem of being able to effectively deal with the jury 8 panel which is actually in the court itself, and to 9 effectively ask each one questions and be certain that 10 you are getting valid responses and that they will not 11 offer you simply excuses to avoid their jury duty and 12 their public duty.

13 MR. SALTER: Mr. Salter, I find that argument 14 rather strange. You are implying that most members of 15 the panel will give false excuses when under oath during 16 a voir dire? Just because somebody ahead of them said 17 they needed a babysitter, everybody else is going to 18 make the same statement?

19 MR. SALTER: There have been several --

20 QUESTION: Should we not presume that the 21 citizens will tell the truth before the --

22 MR. SALTER: I think we need to presume that 23 they will tell the truth. Unfortunately, there is 24 somewhat of a prevalent trend nowadays for people to 25 either want to serve or not want to serve. It is very

1 difficult if you come to a case and the trial judge 2 says, this case should probably take six weeks to try.
3 It may take five months for voir dire questioning.

4 QUESTION: Well, I understand that --

5 MR. SALTER: To be willing to --

6 QUESTION: -- but that is an argument you are 7 making in favor of closing the voir dire to the public?

8 MR. SALTER: I am not suggesting per se that 9 the jurors would lie simply to get off a juror.

10 QUESTION: That's what I thought you said.

11 MR. SALTER: On the other hand, it presents a 12 very difficult problem for a trial judge to deal with 13 prospective jurors, because it opens up the opportunity 14 to inflate what are otherwise legitimate reasons for 15 perhaps asking to be released from jury duty, and that 16 is, I think, a problem for a trial court judge.

17 QUESTION: Well, now, what is the reason for 18 not letting a newspaper man hear that reason?

19 MR. SALTER: The areas which we are referring 20 to -- We have no problems with that type of a question.

21 QUESTION: Well, what are you arguing it for?

22 MR. SALTER: The question --

23 QUESTION: Are you relying on it or not?
24 That's all I'm asking.

25 MR. SALTER: The question is, we --

1 QUESTION: I think you were responding to a 2 question.

3 MR. SALTER: The question as we saw it, was 4 that a viable alternative, and we felt that from a 5 practical standpoint, for the decent management of the 6 trial court system, it did not offer a practical 7 alternative.

8 We think that the real issue in this case is 9 whether or not the trial court followed the Richmond 10 standards which have been laid down by this Court. This 11 Court basically set out three criteria, three questions 12 to be asked. Did the trial court recognize the right of 13 the public and press to attend the trial? Did the trial
14 court consider alternatives? And finally, were there 15 findings on the record to support the closure?

16 We think it is very clear that the trial court 17 in this particular case did recognize the right. Number 18 One, there was a motion brought by the newspaper which 19 informed the court of that right. In statements made by 20 the court, the court very specifically said, yes, there 21 is a right for the public to know. And so on that first 22 prong we believe the court very clearly satisfied that 23 first prong.

24 Second thing, did the trial court consider 25 alternatives? Once again, although the newspaper did

1 say there were alternatives, the newspaper never offered 2 any alternatives, and we believe a newspaper does at 3 least have a responsibility to at the time that they 4 make their request initially offer some alternatives so 5 that the trial court has the ability to consider them.

6 But we also feel that the trial court in this 7 case did adopt an alternative, which is perhaps the most 8 feasible in protecting everybody's rights, and that is, 9 they allowed questions into areas which would be 10 traditionally governed by the right of privacy. That 11 assured that the defendant's Sixth Amendment rights 12 would be protected.

13 QUESTION: But they allowed the questions, but 14 they didn't allow the press to sit in on the 15 questioning, did they?

16 MR. SALTER: That's correct.

17 QUESTION: Well, how is that an alternative?

18 MR. SALTER: It represents an alternative 19 because we, Number One, believe that the right to 20 privacy should not be invaded unless there is a 21 compelling state interest. We are allowing that simply 22 and solely for the very limited purpose of giving the 23 defendant a fair trial. But there is no reason that 24 that should be extended or expanded so that the press or 25 the public can delve into those private areas of a

1 person's individual life.

2 And if it turns out that there are not areas,
3 that the areas covered were not sensitive, the trial
4 court could then release those questions. The trial
5 court was asked in this case to do that. The trial
6 court felt that the questions dealt with sensitive 7 areas, invaded the right to privacy, and should not be 8 released to the press.

9 That is very much an alternative to simply 10 saying, no, it is a right to privacy, therefore you 11 cannot ask that question. It allows us to give the 12 defendant, the accused, his Sixth Amendment rights, but 13 it protects the First Amendment rights of both the 14 prospective juror and it does protect in the long run 15 the First Amendment rights of the press.

16 Finally, the question is whether or not there
17 were any findings on the record. We believe once again 18 that there are sufficient findings on the record. The 19 primary reason for requiring that, as we understand it, 20 is that a reviewing court would have the opportunity of 21 seeing whether or not the trial judge truly considered 22 and balanced the various rights involved, and it is very 23 clear through the arguments made in particular by both 24 the district attorney and by the attorney representing 25 the defendant that all of these arguments were made, the

1 balancing arguments, the privacy arguments, the need 2 for, in this particular case, as to those issues that 3 are sensitive, the need for closure, and that the trial 4 judge then adopted those reasons and the bases for that,
5 and in doing so at that point he decided to partially 6 close. He very clearly stated when they asked to have 7 the transcript released that there was a right to 8 privacy, that it should not be invaded. He recognized 9 the right of the press. He also recognized the rights 10 of the prospective, and in this case the jurors.

11 We feel there are sufficient findings on the 12 record. And as a result, once the trial court satisfied 13 that three-pronged standard of Richmond, we feel the 14 trial court did what he was required to do. The 15 newspaper may not like the decision which was made by 16 the trial court, but the trial court followed the very 17 explicit standards laid down by this Court.

18 It is our feeling, very clearly, that any case 19 of this nature must be dealt with on a case by case 20 basis. We are not advocating that there be closure in 21 every single case. We are not advocating that there be 22 closure every time there is voir dire, or any time voir 23 dire extends more than a day. The problem is that --

24 QUESTION: Do you think that the 25 death-qualifying portion of the questioning as

1 envisioned by the Hovey case in California should 2 require closure?

3 MR. SALTER: The Hovey case very specifically 4 said --

5 QUESTION: To the press?

6 MR. SALTER: -- that it does not affect the 7 open nature of the trial. In that sense, Hovey does not 8 require closure. On the other hand --

9 QUESTION: Well, did some of these questions
10 relate to the Hovey requirement in the death-qualifying 11 portion?

12 MR. SALTER: Yes, they did.

13 QUESTION: So is there any reason why the 14 transcript should be permanently sealed as to those 15 questions?

16 MR. SALTER: The rationale -- Are you asking 17 the question as to once -- now that the trial is over?

18 QUESTION: Yes.

19 MR. SALTER: I believe those questions could 20 very well fall into the category of the right to privacy 21 as to your political views. And I think that is 22 probably where those questions in the mind of the trial 23 judge went.

24 QUESTION: So you are backtracking, and you
25 are now saying that that portion should be closed if it

1 meets the Hovey qualification --

2 MR. SALTER: The primary rationale of Hovey
3 does not require closure per se, but when you deal with 4 Hovey on a lengthy basis, you have a lengthy voir dire, 5 I think at that particular point, during the time the 6 voir dire is taking place, it is quite appropriate for 7 the court to close it so that the questions, the 8 responses, the issues which are dealt with do not become 9 part of the record for prospective jurors who might not 10 at that particular point be called.

11 Obviously, on a five-month voir dire it is 12 quite possible that there are people out there who will 13 not have been called at the time the case started but 14 may very well read of the case and read of the 15 responses. So at that point that is very crucial and 16 very important.

17 I do not believe necessarily, but I think the 18 trial court did, that it goes into an area dealing with 19 perhaps the issue of political right to privacy and 20 expressing your views, because obviously the death
21 qualification issue is an emotional argument. It deals 22 with how did you vote on a particular issue. It is very 23 much intertwined with it. And so I think there is a 24 very difficult problem in dealing with that.

25 It once again is going to be resolved on a

1 case by case basis. There may very well be cases where 2 asking questions about death-qualifying issues will not 3 invade that particular right, what you might call your 4 garden variety capital case. But in a case of this 5 nature, the publicity involved, the extent of it, the 6 trial judge, I think correctly, found that it was all 7 part of that whole concept of a right to privacy, of not 8 having to disclose how you voted on a particular issue.

9 We feel, once again, that the trial court met 10 the standards set forth by this Court in Richmond. We 11 feel that that was what the trial court was obligated to 12 do, and it performed it in the best manner that it 13 could. For that reason, we feel that the decision of 14 the trial court should be affirmed.

15 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Mr. Ward, do you have 16 anything further? You have two minutes remaining.

17 ORAL ARGUMENT OF JAMES D. WARD, ESQ.,
18 ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER - REBUTTAL

19 MR. WARD: Yes, Mr. Chief Justice. This is a 20 closure case. We do not believe it is an appropriate 21 case for deciding right of juror privacy. Not only is it 22 a case devoid of any record regarding the matter of 23 juror privacy, but it is devoid of any juror claiming 24 any right. All that we have are vague references by 25 counsel and the court to the possibility of some

1 sensitivities of jurors. We have no evidence at this 2 point and on this record that any juror objected to any 3 question, or that there was indeed any invasion of any 4 right, whether -- any concern, indeed, for a juror's 5 privacy whatsoever.

6 QUESTION: Somewhere in these papers or in the 7 whole treatment in the discussion of less burdensome 8 alternatives was the idea that if a juror had some 9 confidential matter they wanted not to be interrogated 10 about, they go to the judge in chambers or communicate 11 with him and explain this and then ask to be excused.
12 If that were done, would you think the media is entitled 13 to know the reason why the judge excused the juror?

14 MR. WARD: I think, Your Honor, that the use
15 of that sort of a process is one of the less restrictive 16 alternatives which is available, because assuming for 17 the moment that there is defined --

18 QUESTION: But you would waive any inquiry, 19 any claim to a right to know what the reasons were?

20 MR. WARD: Yes, most assuredly, Mr. Chief 21 Justice. We would have to. If ultimately it were 22 determined that there were a protected area, we would 23 have to avoid the disclosure of that area, but the point 24 is that it is a closure case where the court closed it
25 on the rationale of a California Supreme Court decision

1 and then only on a post hoc rationalization did it come 2 forward with this rationale of juror privacy.

3 When we addressed the closure issue in the 4 first instance, it was based upon Hovey versus Superior 5 Court. After the case was closed, when we went to get 6 the transcript --

7 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Your time has expired
8 now, Mr. Ward.

9 MR. WARD: I am sorry. Thank you.

10 CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER: Thank you, gentlemen.
11 The case is submitted.

12 (Whereupon, at 3:02 p.m., the case in the 13 above-entitled matter was submitted.)
