OFFICIAL TRANSCRIPT
PROCEEDINGS BEFORE

THE SUPREME COURT

OF THE

CAPTION: TERRY LYNN STINSON, Petitioner v. UNITED

STATES

CASE NO: 91-8685

PLACE: Washington, D.C.

DATE: Wednesday, March 24, 1993

PAGES: 1 - 43

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY 1111 14TH STREET, N.W. WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005-5650 202 289-2260 SUPREME COURT, U.S. MARSHAL'S OFFICE

.93 APR -1 A10:42

1	IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES
2	x
3	TERRY LYNN STINSON, :
4	Petitioner :
5	v. : No. 91-8685
6	UNITED STATES :
7	x
8	Washington, D.C.
9	Wednesday, March 24, 1993
10	The above-entitled matter came on for oral
11 .	argument before the Supreme Court of the United States at 12	11:02 a.m.
13	APPEARANCES:
14	WILLIAM MALLORY KENT, ESQ., Jacksonville, Florida; on
15	behalf of the Petitioner.
16	PAUL J. LARKIN, JR., ESQ., Assistant to the Solicitor
17	General, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C.; on 18	behalf of the Respondent.
19 20 21
22
23 24
25

1	CONTENTS
2	ORAL ARGUMENT OF	PAGE
3	WILLIAM MALLORY KENT, ESQ.
4	On behalf of the Petitioner	3
5	PAUL J. LARKIN, JR., ESQ.
6	On behalf of the Respondent	19
7	REBUTTAL ARGUMENT OF
8	WILLIAM MALLORY KENT, ESQ.
9	On behalf of the Petitioner	37
LO
11
L2
13 14 15
16
17 18 19 20 21
22
23 24
25

1	PROCEEDINGS
2	(11:02 a.m.)
3	CHIEF JUSTICE REHNQUIST: We'll hear argument
4	next in No. 91-8685, Terry Lynn Stinson v. The United
5	States.
6	Mr. Kent, you may proceed.
7	ORAL ARGUMENT OF WILLIAM MALLORY KENT
8	ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER
9	MR. KENT: Mr. Chief Justice, and may it please
10	the Court:
11	This Court has framed the question presented in 12	Mr. Stinson's case as whether a court's failure to follow
13	Sentencing Guideline commentary that gives specific
14	direction that the offense of unlawful possession of a
15	firearm by felony is not a crime of violence under 16	Sentencing Guideline, section 4B1.1, and seeing section
17	4B.1.2's commentary note to whether that failure
18	constitutes an incorrect application of the Sentencing
19	Guidelines under 18 U.S.C. section 3742(f)(1).
20	First, some background, the chronology. Mr.
21	Stinson committed his crimes, which included being a felon
22	in possession of a firearm unlawfully, in October-November
23	of 1989. Mr. Stinson was sentenced in July of 1990,
24	applying the November 1989 Sentencing Guideline manual,
25	section 4B1.1, and the district court treated the felon in

Guidelines.  Then, in October of 1991, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed the district court's sentence, affirmed the sentence of a career fender offender, treating the predicate offense of possession of a firearm by a felon as a crime of violence.  Then just days after the Eleventh Circuit's opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st, 1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission commentary.
Then, in October of 1991, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed the district court's sentence, affirmed the sentence of a career fender offender, treating the predicate offense of possession of a firearm by a felon as a crime of violence.  Then just days after the Eleventh Circuit's opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st, 1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	2	for the career offender provision of the Sentencing affirmed the district court's sentence, affirmed the sentence of a career fender offender, treating the predicate offense of possession of a firearm by a felon as a crime of violence.  Then just days after the Eleventh Circuit's opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st, 1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	3	Guidelines.
sentence of a career fender offender, treating the predicate offense of possession of a firearm by a felon as a crime of violence.  Then just days after the Eleventh Circuit's opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st, 1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	4	Then, in October of 1991, the Eleventh Circuit predicate offense of possession of a firearm by a felon as a crime of violence.  Then just days after the Eleventh Circuit's opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st, 1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	5	affirmed the district court's sentence, affirmed the
Then just days after the Eleventh Circuit's opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st, 1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	6	sentence of a career fender offender, treating the opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st, 1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	7	predicate offense of possession of a firearm by a felon as
opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st,  1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued  clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating  that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the  definition of crime of violence, for career offender  purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a  firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's  judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson  petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing  his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied  the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh  Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	8	a crime of violence.
1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued  12 clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating  13 that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the  14 definition of crime of violence, for career offender  15 purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a  16 firearm by a felon.  17 In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's  18 judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson  19 petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing  20 his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  21 In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied  22 the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh  23 Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	9	Then just days after the Eleventh Circuit's
clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	10	opinion came out affirming the sentence, on November 1st, that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the definition of crime of violence, for career offender purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	11	1991 the United States Sentencing Commission issued definition of crime of violence, for career offender  purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a  firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's  judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson  petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing  his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied  the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh  Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	12	clarifying commentary, and that was amendment 433 stating purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a  firearm by a felon.  In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's  judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson  petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing  his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied  the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh  Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	13	that it was the Sentencing Commission's intent that the 16 firearm by a felon.  17 In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's  18 judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson  19 petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing  20 his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  21 In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied  22 the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh  23 Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	14	definition of crime of violence, for career offender
In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	15	purposes, did not include the crime of possession of a judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	16	firearm by a felon.
petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment. In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	17	In a timely manner, before Mr. Stinson's his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.  In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	18	judgment and sentence was final on appeal, Mr. Stinson
In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	19	petitioned for rehearing to the Eleventh Circuit, basing the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	20	his petition for rehearing on this clarifying amendment.
23 Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission	21	In March of 1992 the Eleventh Circuit in an opinion denied
	22	the petition for rehearing, holding that the Eleventh
24 commentary.	23	Circuit would not be bound by Sentencing Commission
	24	commentary.
This Court, in Williams v. United States just	25	This Court, in Williams v. United States just

1	last term, held that a court's failure to follow
2	Sentencing Commission policy statements can result in a
3	misapplication of the Guidelines under section 3742(f).
4	QUESTION: Well, Mr. Kent, I understand the 5	Government to essentially agree that a commentary that
6	plausibly interprets the Guideline is binding on the 7	sentencing court.
8	MR. KENT: Yes, ma'am.
9	QUESTION: And to agree to with you that a
10	court's failure to follow such a commentary would be an 11	incorrect application of the Guidelines.
12	MR. KENT: That is
13	QUESTION: But I think the Government then says
14	however, here any this commentary should not be applied
15	retroactively in these circumstances. So are you going to 16	address that?
17	MR. KENT: Yes, ma'am.
18	QUESTION: Is that question presented and and
19	should we decide it here?
20	MR. KENT: Yes, this Court should decide.
21	QUESTION: The court below didn't address it.
22	MR. KENT: No, it did not, but the question is 23	necessarily subsumed in the question that has been 24	accepted for cert by this Court. The Justice is correct
25	that the Government has conceded, in effect, that Mr.

1	Stinson's position is correct, that commentary should have
2	controlling weight.
3	QUESTION: So this case may turn on the
4	retroactivity question.
5	MR. KENT: Yes, Justice. I would not refer to
6	it as retroactivity. Our position is that the commentary,
7	as clarifying commentary by definition, clarifying
8	means that the Sentencing Commission was intending to 9	explain what the meaning of this Guideline was. That is,
10	what the meaning of this Guideline was at the time Mr.
11	Stinson was sentenced in July of 1990.
12	QUESTION: That may well be, but but Congress
13	can enact a piece of legislation which it calls clarifying
14	legislation and we will not apply that retroactively.
15	They can they can call it that, but if, in fact, we had 16	interpreted the prior legislation to mean X and the 17	clarifying legislation says we really meant it to mean Y,
18	or at least that's what we now want it to mean, we're
19	we're not going to go and apply that retroactively.
20	MR. KENT: Justice Scalia, if the if the
21	Sentencing Commission's characterization was plainly
22	inconsistent with the act that it took, then this Court
23	would not be bound by it. But I think that the position
24	that the Government has advanced, that the commentary of 25	the Sentencing Commission has controlling weight and must 6

1	be deferred to by the courts unless it is clearly
2	erroneous or plainly inconsistent with the with the 3	law, that same position requires this Court, and the
4	Eleventh Circuit, to give deference to the Sentencing
5	Commission's characterization of this particular
6	clarifying amendment.
7	QUESTION: But it seems to me, Mr. Kent, that
8	what this so-called clarifying commentary describes is
9	that it clarifies the new and now current sentencing
10	regime for felons in possession. And it did not, it seems 11	to me, clarify the former regime as it was in place when 12	this defendant was sentenced. I mean, there is a new
13	scheme adopted for for felons in possession, and so I'm
14	not sure that it would be appropriate at all to apply this 15	so-called clarifying commentary to this defendant, who was 16	sentenced under the old regime.
17	MR. KENT: Justice O'Connor, I have two 18	responses to that.
19	QUESTION: Okay.
20	MR. KENT: First, the Sentencing Commission has 21	twice described this commentary as clarifying. And in the 22	second time that it was addressed
23	QUESTION: Yes, but what does it clarify? It
24	seems to me it clarifies what the meaning should be under
25	the new regime.

1	MR. KENT: Justice O'Connor, it's our position
2	that this clarification is drawn out from the definition
3	that went into effect in November of 1989. There has been 4	an evolving structure of Guidelines that relate to 5	firearm-related offenses.
6	But it's our position that there has never been 7	the intent, as least since November of 1989, by the 8	Sentencing Commission and by Congress which approved the 9	Guideline definition in effect in November of '89, that 10	the career offender crime of violence definition was 11	intended to include possession of a firearm by a by a
12	felon.
13	The there was only one change in the 14	definition of crime of violence in the history of the 15	career offender provision. That change in definition went 16	into effect November of 1989, and that change of 17	definition, November of 1989, was an attempt and 18	there's further commentary that accompanied that change in 19	definition an attempt to make crime of violence be 20	understood from a generic, or, we'd say, a per-se
21	approach, and to limit district courts from looking at the 22	underlying actual conduct.
23	QUESTION: Did that I'm sorry, finish. I
24	thought you were done.
25	MR. KENT: If I may. The definition that was 8

1	incorporated in November of 1989 was taken from 924(e),
2	title 18, section 924(e), the armed career criminal
3	enhancement statute.
4	And that definition carried over from 924(e)
5	itself is a definition that I don't have the language
6	verbatim, but the definition begins by saying that a crime
7	of violence for 924(e) includes an an offense involving 8	the use or carrying of a firearm that, and then the 9	definition continues with a conjunction. There has to be 10	some additional element, some acts of violence.
11	It's our position that the clear intent of the 12	Sentencing Commission which they've tried to clarify
13	now twice in taking over than 924(e) definition was to 14	adopt a to adopt that 924(e) definition permanently.
15	QUESTION: Well, I thought there was a statute
16	that tells the district courts to apply policy statements
17	in effect on the date the defendant is sentenced. There's
18	a statute that tells the court to do that and they've done
19	that here, I mean presumably.
20	MR. KENT: Well, I think that the Government
21	if Justice O'Connor is referring to the Government's
22	argument that 3553 title 18, 3553 requires a sentencing
23	court to apply the Sentencing Guidelines in effect
24	QUESTION: Policy statements.
25	MR. KENT: In policy statements in effect on

1	the date of sentencing, it reads too much into that
2	statute to say that that governs a court of appeals'
3	application of post-sentencing clarifying commentary or 4	policy statements, reads too much into the statute. The
5	Sentencing Commission itself, in Guideline 1B1.11(b)(2),
6	has acknowledged this sort of dichotomy between clarifying
7	and nonclarifying commentary, and has directed courts to 8	apply clarifying commentary.
9	QUESTION: Can one tell immediately the 10	difference between clarifying and nonclarifying
11	commentary?
12	MR. KENT: Well, judicial review of course. I
13	mean the court will determine make it's own
14	determination finally. But, Mr. Chief Justice, it's our
15	position that the characterization of the Sentencing
16	Commission is owed great deference if
17	QUESTION: Mr. Kent. I'm sorry.
18	QUESTION: If the Sentencing Commission
19	describes the commentary as clarifying, then the courts
20	ought to accept it if it's within the ballpark.
21	MR. KENT: Unless it's plainly inconsistent with 22	what the Sentencing Commission's done. For example, in 23	November of 1989 the Sentencing Commission did change its 24	commentary with reference to the definition of crime of

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC. 1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W. SUITE 400 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005 (202)289-2260 (800) FOR DEPO

25 violence.

1	Previously, courts were directed in the
2	commentary to look to the underlying conduct and to see
3	whether there were acts of violence in the actual conduct.
4	An example was given of an escape, and the courts were
5	directed in the commentary to look to the actual conduct.
6	Was the escape a violent escape by the acts that were 7	committed or not? That commentary was also changed in 8	November of 1989, and the courts were limited to look at 9	the count of conviction, the language in the in the 10	indictment.
11	QUESTION: Mr. Kent.
12	MR. KENT: That's a change.
13	QUESTION: Mr. Kent, am I not correct that the 14	Sentencing Commission itself could could clarify all of 15	this? The clarify the Sentencing Commission could say
16	when we said clarifying, we meant thus and so, and it
17	should be applied that way retroactively? Can they can 18	they not do that?
19	MR. KENT: They can.
20	QUESTION: Frankly, I was content to let them do
21	that. And I thought that that when we granted
22	certiorari in this case with a reformulated question, we 23	reformulated the the question on certiorari, we
24	intended to exclude, I thought, the issue of what exactly
25	the commentary meant, whether it meant clarify in the

1	sense that you say or clarify in some other sense. I
2	thought the only question we we wanted to take this
3	case for was whether a court must follow the commentary,
4	whatever the commentary might might mean. Isn't that
5	what the question presented says?
6	MR. KENT: Yes, sir.
7	QUESTION: So why don't we why don't we just
8	talk about that and let the Sentencing Commission worry
9	about all the rest? Couldn't we handle this case that
10	way?
11	MR. KENT: Well, Justice Scalia, I think the 12	Sentencing Commission already has has handled the rest
13	in amendment 461 where the Sentencing Commission in
14	September of 1992
15	QUESTION: Well that may be. We can let the 16	lower court figure that out. We can just decide tell
17	the lower court you have to pay attention to the 18	commentary, which they said they didn't have to do at all,
19	and then and then let them decide what the commentary
20	means.
21	But you're asking us to decide what the
22	commentary means. Frankly, that's a that's a very hard
23	question and, for my part, I I don't want to I don't
24	think we should spend our time on that. I think that the 25	Sentencing Commission should spend its time on that. It

1	has full power to make those decisions retroactively.
2	MR. KENT: Well, Justice Scalia, I I believe
3	the Sentencing Commission has tried to express that
4	already in amendment 461 where the Sentencing Commission
5	directly referred to this case, Stinson, and reiterated
6	their explanation that the amendment, 433, was clarifying.
7	This was and then 2 months later in November
8	of 1992, the Sentencing Commission adopted a Guideline,
9	1B1.11(b)(2), which explains what the significance of this
10	word "clarifying" is, and the courts are directed to apply
11	clarifying amendments. So I think the Sentencing
12	Commission has already answered the question, but I
13	believe the Eleventh Circuit's unwilling to to abide by 14	the answer the Sentencing Commission has given.
15	This Court recently granted cert
16	QUESTION: But not because they not because
17	they disagree with you about the meaning of "clarifying."
18	They they were much more categorical, weren't they?
19	They just say we don't we don't have to pay any
20	attention to the commentaries.
21	MR. KENT: Their holding was limited to their
22	the Eleventh Circuit will not follow commentary that
23	overrules their prior precedent. But the Eleventh Circuit
24	has just recently this Court granted cert in a case
25	called Morrill, M-o-r-r-i-l-l, versus United States.

1	And in a memorandum order this Court reversed or
2	directed the Eleventh Circuit to reconsider a case called
3	Jones, United States v. Jones, in which the Eleventh
4	Circuit had held that being a bank teller per se triggers
5	the vulnerable victim enhancement under the Guidelines.
6	On remand, the Eleventh Circuit en banc has reversed
7	Jones, but has stated that the Eleventh Circuit hasn't
8	decided yet whether clarifying commentary has to be
9	applied retroactively or not.
10	And that that question is on cert before the 11	Supreme Court in this case. I believe this Court needs to 12	give direction at this time on that issue. And the issue
13	is necessarily subsumed within the question that was 14	presented by the Court in its reformulation of the issue.
15	QUESTION: Whatever we said about it could be
16	contradicted by the by the by the Sentencing
17	Commission, couldn't it?
18	MR. KENT: It could be
19	QUESTION: Now, we could come out with a
20	decision, the Sentencing Commission could say no, we 21	really didn't mean that, we meant the opposite, and
22	moreover this view that we now express should be applied
23	retroactively, right? Whereupon our decision would be
24	would be a nullity.
25	MR. KENT: Well, yes, Justice Scalia, you

1	yourself, in the Braxton opinion, deferred to the 2	Sentencing Commission, of course, on a question on which
3	cert had already been granted, because the Sentencing
4	Commission had agreed to take up that issue.
5	But here, to repeat myself, I think the 6	Sentencing Commission already has addressed this issue and 7	has given the answer, and I would simply ask this Court to 8	follow that answer in its instruction for the remand.
9	That is the remand instruction should require the court to 10	apply this clarifying commentary to Stinson's sentence
11	because Stinson's sentence was not yet final on appeal at 12	the time the commentary came out.
13	QUESTION: And the Sentencing Commission has
14	has said that the courts may apply that 433 retroactively.
15	MR. KENT: Yes, sir.
16	QUESTION: But does it say "may" or "must?"
17	MR. KENT: Well, Justice White, that gets 18	into
19	QUESTION: Well which which does it say?
20	MR. KENT: Well, under 3582 in Guideline 1B1.10,
21	in which the Sentencing Commission, in amendment 461, has
22	said that this amendment may be applied retroactively
23	under 1B
24	QUESTION: May be.
25	MR. KENT: May. It's our position that that

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC. 1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W. SUITE 400 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005 (202)289-2260 (800) FOR DEPO

15

1	only controls those cases which were not yet final on
2	appeal. Stinson's judgment and sentence was not final on
3	appeal, a distinction that this Court's recognized before.
4	QUESTION: That's because it was here.
5	MR. KENT: Here and also his appeal before the 6	Eleventh
7	QUESTION: It's before it's before that's
8	because because there was a petition for certiorari
9	filed on time.
10	MR. KENT: Yes, Your Honor. But also, I believe
11	the original amendment, 433 itself, which was
12	characterized by the Sentencing Commission as clarifying,
13	that amendment came out before Stinson's sentence was 14	final on appeal, we had not run past our 21-day period
15	for
16	QUESTION: 433. I thought that was after the
17	judgment of the court of appeals.
18	MR. KENT: Yes, sir. But we still had a right
19	to petition for rehearing.
20	QUESTION: For rehearing, that's right.
21	MR. KENT: Which had not expired.
22	I believe that the Government is seeking here to 23	frustrate the intention of the Sentencing Commission and thereby indirectly frustrate Congress' intention that the

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC. 1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W. SUITE 400 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005 (202)289-2260 (800) FOR DEPO

courts defer to the direction of the Sentencing

24

25

1	Commission.
2	When the Sentencing Commission provides an
3	interpretation of the Sentencing Commission's own
4	Guideline, the Court should give great deference to that.
5	And here this amendment, in which the Sentencing
6	Commission has attempted to clarify the meaning and effect
7	at the time of Stinson's sentencing, the Sentencing
8	Commission itself has said that that amendment was meant
9	to be clarifying.
10	QUESTION: Well, of course, every court of 11	appeals that had dealt with the question had decided it
12	contrary to what the Sentence Sentencing Commission
13	said it meant.
14	MR. KENT: Which is the very reason the 15	clarifying amendment was necessary. The commission is 16	authorized by statute, it's mandated to review and revise 17	the Guidelines. And in light of the decisions from the 18	courts of appeal, here there was clear confusion as to the 19	meaning of this term "crime of violence for career
20	offender purposes" and there hadn't there was not a
21	unanimity among the decisions.
22	I might
23	QUESTION: That's right.
24	MR. KENT: Note also that, as the Government
25	itself notes in its brief in opposition to my original 17

- petition for cert, two circuits, that's the First Circuit 1 in Bell v. United States and the Fifth in Shano v. United 2 3 States, have already applied this amendment retroactively, so to speak. That is they applied it to sentences that 4 were imposed prior to the date of the amendment. 5 Also, this Court, when it granted cert in Kyle 6 v. United States last June, I believe that the record on 7 8 that case would show that Kyle was sentenced in the Fifth 9 Circuit before the amendment, and yet this Court vacated his sentence in light of the clarifying amendment. 10 QUESTION: What if the -- what if -- just forget 11 about the Guidelines for a minute. Suppose -- suppose 12 13 someone is convicted of robbery and he's sentenced for 10 14 years pursuant to a statute on the books. And while his conviction is on appeal in the court of appeals, the 15 legislature lowers the sentence for robbery of this kind, 16 17 this specific kind of robbery, to 5 years. Does the 18 defendant have any recourse to -- to seek a 5-year 19 sentence rather than a 10? MR. KENT: No, sir, Justice White, he does not. 20 21 But the reason for that is there's a special statute, 22 title 18, section 109, which would require the application 23 of prior --
- QUESTION: Of course, I suppose the legislature could say that -- and this -- this lowering of the

2	MR. KENT: The Congress could. And Congress has
3	given the Sentencing Commission that authority.
4	QUESTION: And so, in effect, your argument is
5	that this is exactly what the Sentencing Commission has 6	said.
7	MR. KENT: Exactly, Justice White. I believe
8	this is just as Justice Scalia said in Braxton, noted
9	that the Sentencing Commission was given this unusual
10	power to decide even that sentences could be reduced
11	retroactively, and that is what's been done in this case.
12	And I would ask the Court to remand this case to the 13	Eleventh Circuit with instructions that amendment
14	clarifying amendment 433 be applied to Stinson's case.
15	If there are no further questions from the 16	Court, I reserve my remaining time for rebuttal.
17	QUESTION: Thank you, Mr. Kent.
18	Mr. Larkin, we'll hear from you.
19	ORAL ARGUMENT OF PAUL J. LARKIN, JR.
20	ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENTS
21	MR. LARKIN: Thank you, Mr. Chief Justice, and
22	may it please the Court:
23	We agree with the petitioner that the Sentencing
24	Commission's interpretation of its Guidelines is entitled
25	to deference from the courts. In fact, we probably take 19

1 sentence shall be applicable to all pending cases.

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC. 1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W. SUITE 400 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005 (202)289-2260 (800) FOR DEPO

2	does.
3	In our view, the court should give effect to the 4	Sentencing Commission's interpretations of its own
5	Guidelines in the same way that the courts would give
6	effect to a Federal agency's interpretations of its own
7	legislative rules. In fact, we think that's a reasonable
8	place to start to analyze this problem.
9	The Sentencing Guidelines can reasonably be 10	analogized to a Federal agency's legislative rules. After 11	all, the Guidelines are not just a collection of advice to 12	district courts about how to impose sentence in criminal
13	cases. On the contrary, as this Court explained in the 14	Mistretta case, the Sentencing Guidelines bind courts in 15	the exercise of their sentencing authority, such as the 16	Federal rules of criminal, civil, and appellate procedure
17	bind courts in the management and disposition of the cases
18	before them.
19	QUESTION: Are they in some lower hierarchy than 20	policy statements or are they treated the same way as 21	policy statements?
22	MR. LARKIN: I think for for this sort of
23	purpose, Your Honor, they would be treated in the same
24	way. There are differences under the Sentencing Reform
25	Act between guidelines, policy, and policy statements.

an even more pro-deference position than the petitioner

20

1	For example, there are certain times when congress will
2	refer to guidelines and other times when Congress will
3	refer to policy statements.
4	For example, in one of the statutes that we've
5	cited that is relevant, we think, to the proper
6	disposition of this case, section 3582(c)(2), which we
7	have reprinted in our appendix beginning at page 5a,
8	Congress has set forth a procedure that is to be followed
9	so that a sentence that is already imposed can thereafter
10	be reduced if the Sentencing Commission reduces the 11	offense level for that sentence.
12	If you flip over to page 6a, in subsection
13	what is (c)(2) towards the bottom, you will see that it
14	says, skipping down through part of it, "the court may 15	reduce the term of imprisonment after considering the 16	factors set forth in section 3553(a)," that's in title 18,
17	"to the extent that they are applicable," and. "if such a
18	reduction is consistent with, " here's the phrase,
19	"applicable policy statements issued by the Sentencing
20	Commission."
21	So in that context, Congress clearly has 22	specified a policy statement and the Commission has
23	implemented that demand that command from Congress.
24	What the Sentencing Commission did was adopt a policy
25	statement, which we have also reprinted in our brief
	21

1	that's in the appendix that is, and that's at page 9a.
2	It's section 1B1.10 of the Guidelines manual and it
3	governs the situations in which a retroactive application
4	of a guideline or a policy statement amendment, or
5	commentary, we think, should be covered.
6	That, we think, is the way Congress has 7	generally set out the sort of problem that ultimately we 8	have in this case. One way to look at it, as the term has 9	been used, is to look at it in terms of retroactivity.
10	The threshold question, however, is one, like I said, we
11	with one with which we agree with the petitioner.
12	We didn't argue to the contrary in the court of 13	appeals at the rehearing stage. In fact, our submission
14	at the rehearing stage in the Eleventh Circuit was that it
15	ought not to apply this amendment because the amendment
16	was not in effect at the time of sentencing. And so the 17	position we've taken here in this Court is the position
18	that the Department believes best implements the 19	Sentencing Reform Act and best uses the available types of 20	judicial doctrines in a manner that makes it efficient and
21	reasonable for the courts to apply.
22	QUESTION: Well, now, is is all commentary
23	like an agency rule, because the commentary the 24	Sentencing Commission has to its rules on commentary,

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC. 1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W. SUITE 400 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005 (202)289-2260 (800) FOR DEPO

25 1B1.7, says that some commentary is treated like

1	registative history, and we don't usually think of that as
2	being binding on the courts. So are there different kinds
3	of commentary?
4	MR. LARKIN: No. I think I think the
5	Commission is using the term legislative history perhaps
6	in a different way than this Court is. The legislative 7	history oftentimes will sometimes explain how a statute is
8	to be implemented. That happened frequently with respect
9	to the Sentencing Reform Act. There was a rather 10	comprehensive report by the Senate committee that was 11	issued that accompanies the Sentencing Reform Act, and
12	it gave rather a elaborate explanation of how the Congress
13	thought its provisions would work.
14	And in this case, I think what the Sentencing
15	Commission is getting at is when we issue an explanation
16	of how a Guideline should be implemented, you should look
17	to it the same way you look you would look to a
18	legislative report explaining how a statute is to be
19	implemented. I don't think they meant to say that since
20	legislative history is normally disregarded, you should 21	normally disregard what we've had to say.
22	QUESTION: Well, but a legislative report, that
23	that's different than an agency rule. And I thought
24	your position in your brief, and that you've explained
25	here at the outset, is that this is like an agency rule.

1	So it seems to me that maybe some commentary, if it's like
2	a legislative report, is at a lower form of of
3	legitimacy and force than other commentary.
4	MR. LARKIN: Oh, well it it may it is of 5	lower force than the Guideline itself, because the
6	commentary
7	QUESTION: Well, of course, yeah.
8	MR. LARKIN: The commentary has to be consistent
9	with the Guideline. I mean under the standard this Court
10	has followed since the Seminole Rock case, if an agency's
11	interpretation is inconsistent with the text of the rule
12	the agency
13	QUESTION: Of course.
14	MR. LARKIN: Has implemented, then the 15	agency's interpretation won't be applied. But we think
16	you should look at an agency's interpretation under that 17	standard across the board, because what you have in a
18	in a circumstance is a manual that a district court has to 19	apply at a particular case.
20	It will have guidelines, it will have policy
21	statements, and it will have what sometimes are called
22	application notes or backgrounds, and those explain how 23	the different guidelines and policy statements are to be 24	applied. We think it's eminently reasonable to give deference to the Commission's interpretation of how those

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC. 1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W. SUITE 400 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005 (202)289-2260 (800) FOR DEPO

25

1	guidelines and policy statements should be applied.
2	QUESTION: Well is it is it fair for me to
3	say that your position is that all commentary should be
4	treated like an agency rule?
5	MR. LARKIN: Like an agency's interpretation of 6	its rule, if I can change that, Your Honor.
7	QUESTION: All right.
8	MR. LARKIN: It's not not equivalent to the
9	rule, but like an agency's interpretation of the rule,
10	that would be our position.
11	QUESTION: All commentary.
12	MR. LARKIN: Yes.
13	QUESTION: Well
14	MR. LARKIN: And so we think that is a
15	reasonable way of looking at the generic issue that
16	QUESTION: Well, I didn't know courts were
17	bound, absolutely bound by an agency's interpretation of 18	its own rules.
19	MR. LARKIN: No. Under this Court's decision in 20	Seminole Rock, the agency's interpretation is given
21	considerable deference. And unless
22	QUESTION: I didn't I agree with that. But 23	are they as a is a court bound to accept the 24	agency's interpretation of its own rule? I can't imagine

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC. 1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W. SUITE 400 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005 (202)289-2260 (800) FOR DEPO

25 that they are.

1	MR. LARKIN: Your Honor, we've always taken the
2	position that unless the agency
3	QUESTION: If they want to put out a new
4	regulation, that may be that may be something else
5	again, if you want to amend the regulation, but I didn't
6	know we were just bound by an agency's rule.
7	MR. LARKIN: Your Honor, we've always taken
8	QUESTION: I mean interpretation of its own
9	rule.
10	MR. LARKIN: No, we we've always taken the 11	position that that unless that interpretation is 12	binding unless it's inconsistent with the text of the 13	regulation, relevant statute
14	QUESTION: Well, all right, all right.
15	MR. LARKIN: Or the Constitution.
16	QUESTION: So we're not bound. We're not bound
17	by an agency's interpretation of its own rule, if it's 18	if it's flatly contrary to the text of the rule.
19	MR. LARKIN: Oh. Oh, absolutely. I there
20	is always that circumstance. An agency can't adopt a
21	regulation that says something is black and then interpret
22	it as meaning white. No, no, we we wouldn't take that
23	position. But an agency's interpretation is entitled
24	to to considerable deference, and we think that rule
25	should be applied here, and for that reason we disagree
	26

2	But that doesn't mean that the judgment in this
3	case has to be reversed, because we think there is another
4	rule that's applicable here, one that also has been
5	discussed, and we think that rule governs the proper
6	disposition of the judgment in this case. And that is as 7	follows:
8	The Sentencing Reform Act directs district
9	courts to apply the Guidelines in effect at the time of 10	sentencing, and the act goes on to direct the courts of 11	appeals to determine whether the district courts
12	misapplied the Guidelines. The result is that a sentence
13	that is correctly imposed under the version of the 14	Guidelines that are in effect at the time of sentencing is 15	not retroactively rendered erroneous because the 16	Commission thereafter amends the Guidelines.
17	QUESTION: That, of course, was not the court of 18	appeals' reasoning in this case. As I read the court of 19	appeals tell me if you think this is correct there's 20	nothing in that opinion which indicates that it would not
21	have applied the commentary if it had thought that it
22	were if it had not thought it was not binding.
23	MR. LARKIN: Correct. They did not address the 24	retroactivity issue. They addressed this other issue
25	dealing with the status of commentary.
	1022

with the Eleventh Circuit in this case.

27

1	QUESTION: And I read the opinion as indicating
2	that if they had acknowledged that it were binding, they
3	would have applied it in favor of the petitioner. Is that
4	an incorrect reading of the opinion here?
5	MR. LARKIN: I would say that that's
6	incorrect. I don't think they would have said that this
7.	has to be applied in this case at this stage. We
8	certainly think that would be an erroneous interpretation
9	of the way the Guidelines are to be implemented, and we 10	don't think the court of appeals endorsed those.
11	QUESTION: Well, you but that you would say
12	they would you say the that this commentary was
13	what is it, a 433, was that it?
14	MR. LARKIN: That's the amendment, Your Honor,
15	yes.
16	QUESTION: Yeah, yeah. You say that was an
17	amendment of a Guideline of a commentary.
18	MR. LARKIN: Yes.
19	QUESTION: Not just an interpretation of it.
20	MR. LARKIN: Well, it it actually did several 21	things. The
22	QUESTION: Well, is it as relevant here, was
23	it a I thought the I thought the Commission thought
24	it was just a a clarification or an interpretation of 25	its of the Guideline.

1	MR. LARKIN: Well I think it's as Justice
2	O'Connor mentioned, it's a clarification of how the new
3	system is to be implemented. The new system has three 4	different relevant Guidelines now. The Guideline that was
5	litigated in all the old cases was the career offender
6	Guideline. There was one revision to that; they changed
7	the commentary to say that felon-in-possession offenses
8	will no longer be treated as crimes of violence for
9	purposes of the career offender Guideline.
10	But there were revisions to two there were 11	two other Guidelines that have to be considered too. One
12	deals with the crime of firearms possession. As to that,
13	the Sentencing Commission reshuffled and greatly increased
14	the base offense levels to index them according to a
15	QUESTION: I understand.
16	MR. LARKIN: A defendant's prior record.
17	QUESTION: I understand.
18	MR. LARKIN: And then they adopted an entirely
19	new guideline to implement the Armed Career Criminal Act.
20	QUESTION: So so you say this is an
21	equivalent to a brand new Guideline or a brand new 22	commentary. It's sort of legislative.
23	MR. LARKIN: Right. They've they've done
24	both. They've changed the commentary in one respect and
25	they've adopted legislative rules

1	QUESTION: And that they're and that that
2	kind of a change should not be applied retroactively.
3	MR. LARKIN: Correct. The way it works
4	QUESTION: Even though even though later
5	the the Commission has said that at the courts may
6	apply it retroactively.
7	MR. LARKIN: Well, it it's not applied
8	retroactively to cases pending on direct appeal. There is 9	a separate and special procedure to be followed for 10	retroactive application, and that's, I think, critical to 11	keep in mind here.
12	The court of appeal basically, the way it
13	works is as follows. The district court sentenced the 14	defendant by using this book. This was the book in effect
15	in 1989 when the defendant came up for sentencing in July
16	of 1990. Two books later came amendment 433 when this
17	case was on appeal to the court of appeals.
18	Now, the statute says the district court is to 19	apply the Guidelines in effect at the time of sentencing,
20	and the court of appeals is to review that job by the 21	district court. So the court of appeals is to look to the
22	manual that the district court applied, not to a later
23	manual, not to later commentary in that manual, policy
24	statements in that manual, Guidelines in that manual.
25	It's to look to the manual the district court applied.

1	Now, you can sometimes have what's called a
2	retroactive application of an amendment, but that's a
3	different procedure entirely and it doesn't affect the 4	direct appeal.
5	QUESTION: Well, Mr. Larkin, I guess what we
6	could do here, of course, is just agree with apparently 7	the position taken by both of you that the court below got 8	it wrong in saying they didn't have to consider the 9	commentary, and just vacate and remand and and then let 10	the Government present its position on the proper
11	application.
12	MR. LARKIN: You could, Your Honor.
13	Technically, that would be the minimum necessary to 14	resolve the judgment here.
15	QUESTION: Right.
16	MR. LARKIN: However, we think it would be very 17	efficient and very valuable to to all of the lower
18	courts, to instruct them as to how the amendment process
19	should be considered when the case is
20	QUESTION: Although if we were to do that,
21	conceivably the Sentencing Commission could come along
22	again and say no, we really mean for all courts to apply
23	this notion retroactively.
24	MR. LARKIN: Well, they would they would have
25	to do more than just what they've done here, because what

1	they would have to do is, once again, modify the policy
2	statement.
3	QUESTION: But they could do that and then the 4	courts would have to go back and apply it, in that
5	fashion.
6	MR. LARKIN: In in the retroactive procedure
7	we've described in the last section of our brief. I mean,
8	they've already done that. There's really nothing else
9	for the Commission to do. What you have in this
10	procedure, really, is a mechanism for reopening a final
11	sentence. It begins in the district court.
12	QUESTION: And and the defendant would go
13	back to the district court and make his application there.
14	MR. LARKIN: Correct. But it's important to 15	keep in mind why there's a difference, because there's a
16	different standard of review that applies. If a case is 17	on direct appeal, an appellant can obtain a reversal if he 18	can show that there was an error below. Under this 19	reopening mechanism that Congress has set out and that the 20	Commission has set out, the standard of review would be 21	whether the district court has abused its discretion.
22	It's a different standard and the reason is when 23	someone applies for a retroactive modification of his
24	sentence, the district court is not required to modify
25	that sentence retroactively. It's required to consider 3.2

1	it, of course, but it has the discretion and it can decide
2	that even though the Sentencing Commission has lowered the 3	base offense level for his crime, that the court would
4	have imposed the same sentence nonetheless.
5	I mean this case illustrates that. If you look
6	at page 75 of the joint appendix you'll see the statement
7	of reasons given by the district court as to why excuse
8	me, statement of reasons at page 84. Statement of reasons
9	at page 84 is why the district court imposed the sentence
10	at the upper end of the Guidelines, and it believed that a
11	sentence at the upper end of the Guideline range was 12	necessary because the defendant had a history of violent
13	behavior. The court earlier, at page 75, had said unless 14	there were a very stiff sentence imposed on this
15	defendant, the court would have considered departing
16	upwards from the Guidelines range.
17	So what you have is a case here where the 18	district court has said this is a person that needs a long
19	term of incarceration. If a retroactive application
20	motion were filed in the district court, the district
21	court might deny it on the ground that, no, this sentence
22	is appropriate for this defendant. So that's why I
23	emphasize there is a significant difference between 24	applying an amendment on the direct appeal process and
25	applying it in this process. It

1	QUESTION: Mr. Larson, what what you're
2	proposing to us is really not, however I don't think it
3	is the way we would apply an agency's interpretation of 4	its own regulations. If if a case involving a
5	regulation is on appeal to a court of appeals and while 6	it's on appeal the agency issues a a new regulation or 7	a policy statement interpreting its own regulation, or 8	there's some decision of the agency that makes clear the 9	official agency interpretation of the regulation, wouldn't
10	either one of two things happen?
11	Number one, the the court of appeals itself
12	would take notice of that new of that newly issued
13	agency interpretation and decide the case on that basis.
14	Or number two, remand to the to the trial court for 15	that court to take account of the agency's new 16	authoritative interpretation. Isn't that the way it would
17	happen?
18	MR. LARKIN: That's right, it would.
19	QUESTION: So why is this different?
20	MR. LARKIN: Because here we have a statute that 21	sets out the relevant agency's interpretation. And it's
22	to be considered the statute
23	QUESTION: Well, why we we have a statute
24	that says the trial court shall decide the case on the 25	basis of the law at the time. But that just states a

1	truism. I mean, you expect the same thing for agency
2	regulations too, don't you?
3	MR. LARKIN: Well, no. Here the reason that
4	Congress has set out a specific manual, as it turns out,
5	to be applied.
6	QUESTION: Yeah.
7	MR. LARKIN: Is that the Commission has a
8	continuing responsibility to revise to monitor the 9	implementation of the Guidelines, make revisions where 10	necessary, and to have those revisions injected into the 11	stream of cases that are being decided.
12	If you retroactively applied every revision that 13	came along, you would needlessly burden the system in
14	cases where the Commission didn't believe that prior 15	adjudications were were erroneous or unjust. If the 16	Commission believes prior adjudications are erroneous or 17	unjust, it has a relief mechanism available. That's the 18	one we've discussed in 1B1.10, the retroactive
19	modification of a final sentence. It goes through that 20	procedure.
21	That's the procedure Congres and the Commission
22	have set forth to take the the case you've mentioned
23	into account. If the Commission believes that its

25 QUESTION: Yeah.

provision --

24

35

1	MR. LARKIN: Should be applied to John
2	Smith's case or the whole series of John Smith cases that
3	come out or that have come out already, it can
4	retroactively apply have its amendment applied through
5	this process. But you don't just automatically enter it
6	into the appellate review process.
7	QUESTION: No, I understand that and it makes
8	sense. But but I'm just saying it really is not I
9	don't believe it's the way we would treat an agency's
10	interpretation of its own regulation. I just wonder
11	whether the analogy you're inviting us to make is is a
12	sound one.
13	MR. LARKIN: Well, the purpose of the analogy
14	we're drawing is to the to the substantive weight to be
15	given to the agency's interpretations. And the problem
16	you're talking about is really more a procedural or timing
17	one. We think there really isn't any great inconsistency
18	between them such that our submission that with which
19	we agree with the petitioner, is not somehow rendered
20	implausible by virtue of the matter you've discussed.
21	Unless the Court has any further questions,
22	thank you very much.
23	QUESTION: Thank you, Mr. Larkin.
24	Mr. Kent, you have 9 minutes remaining.
25	REBUTTAL ARGUMENT OF WILLIAM MALLORY KENT

1	ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER
2	MR. KENT: Mr. Chief Justice and may it please
3	the Court again:
4	The point that Justice Scalia was making, I
5	think I addressed this or the Second Circuit has in the 6	Carter case, and this is at page 29 of my brief. And I
7	quoted from the opinion in which the court, Second
8	Circuit, stated "Effective November 1, 1992, a revision to 9	section 1B1.10(d) of the Sentencing Guidelines establishes
10	retroactively that a felon-in-possession conviction under 11	section 922(g)(1) is never a crime of violence for 12	purposes of section 4B1.1," thereby undercutting the 13	Government's position.
14	After oral argument and upon learning of this
15	revision, the Government informed this court that it does
16	not oppose remand or resentencing in conformity with this 17	Guideline's amendment. Accordingly, we remand for 18	resentencing. Now, it's not absolutely clear what the 19	Second Circuit meant by that, but I believe that what that 20	meant was that they were remanding for resentencing in 21	conformity with the amendment and that the
22	defendant/appellant would be sentenced not as a career
23	offender.
24	He was not being remanded under 3582. And
25	Mr or the Government itself just noted in its

1	argument. It said that this procedure 3582, title 18,
2	section 3582 which authorizes the Sentencing Commission to
3	determine which Guideline reductions would be applied
4	retroactively under Guideline 1B1.2. The Government
5	argued that that is a method for reopening a final
6	sentence.
7	And that's my point exactly, that Mr. Stinson's
8	sentence was not yet final on appeal. Mr. Stinson does
9	not have to resort to this discretionary remedy under
10	3582. And it is discretionary and the Government itself
11	is arguing that he shouldn't be entitled to the exercise
12	of that discretion in his favor. He doesn't have to 13	resort to that discretion.
14	QUESTION: But they are right that even if we
15	ruled against you here, that you would not be completely
16	without a remedy.
17	MR. KENT: We could seek we could petition
18	the district court.
19	QUESTION: But then you would have to go through
20	another procedure.
21	MR. KENT: That's correct. And it's also
22	QUESTION: And you don't want to have to do
23	that.
24	MR. KENT: Not only do we not want to have to do it, we believe that Mr. Stinson's entitled to the law in ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC.

1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W.
SUITE 400
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005
(202)289-2260
(800) FOR DEPO

25

1	effect to be applied to his sentence or his appeal before
2	his sentence is final.
3	QUESTION: Well, if you through this other
4	procedure it's discretionary with the trial court whether
5	it whether it will make the change or not.
6	MR. KENT: Exactly. Now, as to whether this 7	Court should dispose of this issue simply by taking the 8	Government's concession and remanding up for the Eleventh
9	Circuit to determine, then, what it will do once it's
10	directed that commentary or at least this particular
11	commentary has controlling weight.
12	The Eleventh Circuit, though, hasn't decided yet
13	what how clarifying commentary is to be applied.
14	Justice White noted in dissenting to the denial of cert in
15	the case of Early v. United States back in October of 1991
16	that although the clear majority of the circuits are
17	applying clarifying commentary retroactively, so to speak,
18	not all of them are.
19	And although the Eleventh Circuit has on
20	occasion I noted one in my brief, Gardiner, and there's
21	been a subsequent case, Dedecker, in which the Eleventh
22	Circuit has applied clarifying commentary retroactively,
23	at least as recently as this Morrill case
24	QUESTION: Well, wouldn't if we rule for you,

ALDERSON REPORTING COMPANY, INC. 1111 FOURTEENTH STREET, N.W. SUITE 400 WASHINGTON, D.C. 20005 (202)289-2260 (800) FOR DEPO

25 shouldn't the court of appeals, now that it knows the

1	commentary is binding, remand to the district court for
2	resentencing?
3	MR. KENT: Well, we would come up against the
4	problem, though, Justice White, of does this particular
5	commentary I mean this is the the problem addressed
6	by the Government in its brief, and it's a question
7	necessarily subsumed in the issue under which cert has 8	been granted. Does this particular commentary apply to 9	this particular defendant? And I believe the issue is 10	ripe for decision by this Court now.
11	QUESTION: Well, it it applies, but the 12	district court didn't have the commentary before it, did
13	it?
14	MR. KENT: No, sir, it did not.
15	QUESTION: And is it possible that even with the 16	commentary, that that the district court would have
17	imposed the same sentence, or would it be impossible?
18	MR. KENT: Well, it's it's possible that the
19	district court could have imposed a worse sentence.
20	QUESTION: Well, then I I can't imagine why
21	the court of appeals shouldn't if we remanded the court
22	of appeals, why the court of appeals shouldn't decide what
23	the sentence is. It's just there's just a new 24	standards that for for the sentencer, namely the 25	district, to follow.

1	MR. KENT: Well, I don't know whether the court
2	of appeals would decide whether this commentary is
3	clarifying or not. And if it's clarifying, whether it's
4	to be applied retroactively or not. I think that question
5	is before this Court now and this Court can decide it.
6	Perhaps the parties should be invited to supplementally
7	brief this issue.
8	QUESTION: Well, let's assume we say it's
9	that it's retroactive and applies to this this 10	defendant, but we don't know how the sentencer would
11	sentence the this defendant under this new commentary.
12	MR. KENT: No, sir. There's no way to know
13	that.
14	QUESTION: Well
14 15	QUESTION: Well QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what
15	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what
15 16	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what precisely are you asking the Court to do?
15 16 17	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what precisely are you asking the Court to do?  MR. KENT: Well, precisely, I'm asking the Court
15 16 17 18	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what precisely are you asking the Court to do?  MR. KENT: Well, precisely, I'm asking the Court to vacate Mr. Stinson's sentence, to remand it for
15 16 17 18 19	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what precisely are you asking the Court to do?  MR. KENT: Well, precisely, I'm asking the Court to vacate Mr. Stinson's sentence, to remand it for resentencing with instructions that this commentary is
15 16 17 18 19 20	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what precisely are you asking the Court to do?  MR. KENT: Well, precisely, I'm asking the Court to vacate Mr. Stinson's sentence, to remand it for resentencing with instructions that this commentary is clarifying commentary and is to be applied to his
15 16 17 18 19 20 21	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what precisely are you asking the Court to do?  MR. KENT: Well, precisely, I'm asking the Court to vacate Mr. Stinson's sentence, to remand it for resentencing with instructions that this commentary is clarifying commentary and is to be applied to his determination of his sentence.
15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what precisely are you asking the Court to do?  MR. KENT: Well, precisely, I'm asking the Court to vacate Mr. Stinson's sentence, to remand it for resentencing with instructions that this commentary is clarifying commentary and is to be applied to his determination of his sentence.  QUESTION: Well, that's what Justice White was
15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23	QUESTION: Just make it clear to me, what precisely are you asking the Court to do?  MR. KENT: Well, precisely, I'm asking the Court to vacate Mr. Stinson's sentence, to remand it for resentencing with instructions that this commentary is clarifying commentary and is to be applied to his determination of his sentence.  QUESTION: Well, that's what Justice White was suggesting too, I think.

1	QUESTION: You think you think you think
2	that we ought to remand it in a manner that the court of 3	appeals that in the court of appeals you would finally
4	win.
5	MR. KENT: Well, I would win insofar
6	QUESTION: And you you object to the notion
7	that that the that the case should go back to the 8	district court.
9	MR. KENT: Well, no, Justice White. Ultimately
10	the district court would it would have to be remanded
11	to the district court to impose a sentence. The court of 12	appeals would only determine whether the proper
13	application.
14	QUESTION: Well, I know, but what did you ask
15	the court of appeals to do in your petition for rehearing,
16	remand to the district court for resentencing under the
17	new Guidelines
18	MR. KENT: Yes.
19	QUESTION: Under the new commentary.
20	MR. KENT: Yes, sir.
21	QUESTION: All right.
22	MR. KENT: If there are no further questions.
23	CHIEF JUSTICE REHNQUIST: Thank you, Mr. Kent.
24	The case is submitted.
25	(Whereupon, at 11:49 a.m., the case in the 42

1	above-entitled matter was submitted.)
2 3
4
5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15
16
17 18 19 20 21
22
23 24
25
	43

Alderson Reporting Company, Inc., hereby certifies that the attached pages represents an accurate transcription of electronic sound recording of the oral argument before the Supreme Court of The United States in the Matter of: 91-8685
Terry Lynn Stinson, Petitioner v. United States and that these attached pages constitutes the original transcript of the proceedings for the records of the court.

BY Am Mani Federico
(REPORTER)